2. NAIRO programming has brought together for the first time and in five consecutive years, the leadership of several national agencies representing the Jewish, Negro, Indian and Spanish-speaking minorities; the directing heads of official state agencies from the east and west coasts and from points between; the minority group specialists from several federal government departments; and the many people hitherto isolated from each other by the confining limitations of local private and public agency perspectives and budgets. An immeasurable contribution to professional self-esteem and assurance has been one slight mark of progress registered during this brief period, not to mention the undreamed of new vistas of understanding of intellectual stimulation and of resource materials which these contacts have opened. The strikingly noticeable shift of the tone of debate, from highly charged subjectivity, in the first conference, to calm, incisive, objective discussions in the fifth conference, presents still another measure of NAIRO's contribution during this brief period of operation.

3. Publication of NAIRO REPORTER is a major accomplishment of an organization of professionals which, in the face of tremendous handicaps, has initiated and maintained scheduled, monthly issuance of a bulletin universally recognized in the field as a "must". At least two forerunners of NAIRO REPORTER have lived for brief periods even though heavily subsidized, and have retired from the scene. No one of them has been published by a general membership organization or by a sponsor representing such a diversity of interests. It is this diversity of membership interest which has made the REPORTER maintain a dignity, a clarity, a universality of appeal and a rigid objectivity in reporting, which permits its comparison with any professional organ in the country. Its purpose is to provide the field with (a). a report of incidents and events in the nation, bearing upon intergroup relations; (b). a record of legislative acts and judicial opinions and rulings with which the profession would be concerned; (c). accounts of new techniques and methods and their successes and failures; and (d). reports, critiques and synopses of research reports, articles and publications relating to the field. Again, because of the diversity of NAIRO membership, these services are provided on an unbiased plane, without subjective interpretations and free of any suggestion of pressure tactics or intent.

4. In keeping with one of its primary purposes, NAIRO has conducted the first of a series of projected special purpose conferences, through means of which professionals in the general field of intergroup relations may have opportunity to explore specific areas of community life where intergroup relations have been neglected, under-emphasized or mismanaged. In this first instance NAIRO membership interests were merged with those of persons professionally engaged in Housing, resulting in the exchange of valuable information and the equipping of many with new or refined techniques of approach and operation. Immediately pending are special purpose conferences on Research and on Police Training in Intergroup Relations.

5. In recognition of an important part of NAIRO responsibility, a considerable portion of its membership has been tied into active promotion of specific activities and duties, of which the following are but a part of the whole:

(a). Regional committees have been set up in the West, Mid-west, South and East, for the combined purposes of promoting ad interim regional conferences; expanding NAIRO membership; increasing REPORTER subscriptions; and aiding the general membership through reportorial, personnel exchange and interpretive services. Regional conferences have been held thus far, in the west and mid-west.

(b). Sub-committees are now actively engaged in intensive study of plans for (1) promulgating acceptable minimum standards and practices for selection and guidance of professionals in the field; (2) creating machinery for nation-wide registry and referral service of professionals in the field; and (3) providing liaison with professionals in Education and in the Social Sciences for constructive collaboration wherever these fields of interest meet.

WHAT ADDED SERVICES CAN NAIRO PERFORM?

Contingent upon the framework of time within which a salaried administrative staff may hope to operate, NAIRO'S broad objectives would be attained more effectively through:

(1). Intensification of efforts toward which sub-committees on Standards, Education, Professional Exchange and others now are bending their efforts.

(2). Conceiving and stimulating research in those aspects of intergroup relations where the experiences of practitioners in the field indicate existence of a serious need of study.

(3). Publication of a Professional Journal, which project has received serious thought for two years. A committee currently is exploring ways and means, substance and format, scope and limitations, and NAIRO official Board is committed to the ultimate consummation of plans for such a periodical.

(4). Increasing that phase of organisational service which thus far has had but limited expression, viz: the selection and circularisation of pamphlets and other material containing information of value to NAIRO membership.

(5). Expand services of NAIRO REPORTER and extend its coverage to include subscribers and readers in related fields, such as Education, Social Work, Law Enforcement, etc; to enable this bulletin to reach into agencies, professions and communities where intergroup relations interests are isolated, anemic, rejected and in need of information and inspiration.

(6). Promote the classification and alignment of persons engaged in organizational efforts in behalf of isolated, neglected or exploited racial and cultural minorities not already having the benefit of such constructive association.

WHAT ARE NAIRO'S NEEDS

The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials came into being as a completely subsidized organization, and after three years of directed endeavor was left to its own devices and forced to exist upon its own resources. For two years, the work of the organization has prospered; philosophy and objectives clearly defined; leadership nurtured and harnessed; NAIRO REPORTER initiated and published in uninterrupted continuity; and the most successful conference promoted. There is confidence expressed by its officers that NAIRO will continue to serve during the years to come, but that such service will be limited; provided with great difficulty; slow and painful in its efforts to expand; and fraught with the many hazards which assail any professional organization whose early existence is made to depend upon membership fees alone.

In the meantime, NAIRO is unable to respond immediately and adequately to the tremendous challenges which this moment in our domestic and world history presents. Hundreds of organizations of all kinds, served by thousands of professional workers,* are groping for solutions to problems through trial-and-error methods. Serious areas of friction and potential conflict exist unnoticed and unattended in many American communities. Demagogues, agitators and subversive elements seize upon the fears and prejudices of the masses in the absence of constructive leadership which carries with it the knowledge and assurance which professional cross-fertilization supplies.

*No census of professionals in this highly specialized field is presently available. However, it is estimated that more than 1,000 organizations of all sorts are represented by professionals and policy-makers, numbering from one to over 20 per agency; these are supplemented by an unlimited number of specialists employed in related and seemingly "unrelated" fields; e.g. Police Departments, Advertising and Sales Promotion Agencies, Libraries, Industries, etc.

NAIRO'S needs are America's needs. These are (a) the means with which to do an adequate job in areas already charted; (b) the opportunity for administrative freedom from economic restrictions, by which constructive planning and programming may be accomplished; and (c) insurance that these means and opportunities may be provided over a period of from three to five years; for a period sufficient to build a substantial foundation and organisational structure which in strength, efficiency and professional knowledge will equal the depth, delicacy and complexities of the problems which exist in NAIRO'S field of competence. These things are essential if America can be armed speedily for its domestic mobilization against Prejudice and Discrimination, and defended from the subversive concomitants of these evils.

Specifically, these needs can be measured in terms of:

1. An administrative officer to give full time to promotion of NAIRO objectives;

2. A full-time assistant who could be assigned to special duties, such for instance as publication of the REPORTER, development of a Journal, or other areas of operation as required;

3. Funds to facilitate the promotion of national, regional and special purpose conferences;

4. Funds for miscellaneous administrative expenses, secretarial help, travel etc.,for membership and subscription promotion in building toward ultimate assumption of the responsibility for self-support.

It is proposed that a grant for a minimum period of three years be given, beginning with the maximum amount of $51,450. for the first year, and declining in the two subsequent years to $40,000 and $30,000 respectively as NAIRO is able to assume more of its own cost of operation. The initial budget request, therefore, would apply to items corresponding to the following:

STAFF
Executive Director	$9,000.
Assistant Director(and Editor)	7,500.
Office Staff (2) (Probably a clerk-librarian and clerk-stenographer)	8,000.	$24,500.
OFFICE
Rent	$2,200.
Supplies and general printing	4,000.
Furniture and equipment	3,500.*
Communications	1,500.
Professional materials and subscriptions	750.	11,950.
TRAVEL in re field consultation and service		2,500.
NAIRO REPORTER and other releases and publications (printing,mailing, and promotion)		8,000.
CONFERENCES(Promotion, reporting, etc.)		3,000.
MISCELLANEOUS AND CONTINGENCIES		1,500.
TOTAL		$51,450.

*Most of this first year expense only. Full mechanization of office of this type affords maximum efficiency and economy, initial equipment cost being offset in relatively short period -- two or three years -- by savings in clerical salaries. Budget figure may be too modest; it should be checked against present prices of first-rate duplicating, addressing,folding, sealing and/or stamping equipment,plus the usual typewriter and adding machine requirements,files and furniture.

These proposals are presented after long and careful deliberation by responsible officials of NAIRO, whose professional connections and standing are the best assurance that can be given as to the integrity of purpose with which this request is being made and the honest efficiency with which a grant would be administered. We are confident that recognition of this request would completely fulfil the conditions under which the purposes of your Foundation were set forth.

Dear Louis:

I'm quite happy with the preliminary program sent March 27 for the research conference. I think the NAIRO committee will feel special usefulness in the July 27 session on the organization and administration of research and in the evaluation session.

Could you include some subjects, and with the subjects some people, in agriculture? The thing that interests me is the effect of land tenure patterns upon race relations. It is settled that land-owning communities have stable social institutions, but so far as I know, it isn't proven on paper that land-owning communities made up of people from two or more races get on especially well. I'm satisfied they do, but I urgently want to see it proven. Arthur Raper, in the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in Washington, might be able to do it himself, or he could tell you who could. Tuskegee has now a Rural Life Center, headed by Ernest Neal, with Lewis Jones as assistant, and they are pretty good on it.

The question is important because the South is right now undergoing a revolution in its cropping pattern, and nobody is raising much question about the land tenure pattern, which continues bad in great sweeps of the South.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

TO NAIRO RESEARCH CONFERENCE COMMITTEE

Dear Committee Member:

I am sending you herewith a preliminary program as I have formulated it for the NAIRO conference on research in race relations. Aside from wanting your criticisms and suggestions, I should like to have also your specific recommendations as to people to be invited to present prepared reports on any aspect of the program that I have included or on any aspect that I have failed to include that you think should be included.

You will note that in the formulation of the tentative program I have emphasized two lines of inquiry: (1) general problems of research in race relations, (2) research problems in specific areas of race relations. Under the former I have included (a) organization and administration of research in race relations, (b) trends in race relations research, (c) evaluation of research in race relations. Under the second type of papers I suggested (a) research in employment and economic opportunity, (b) research in housing, (c) research in education, (d) research in public policy (legislation, litigation, administrative procedures, etc.).

As I see it, these various topics will cover some of the major interests of operating agencies and policy-makers, though not necessarily all of them. If any important areas are omitted and you can think of someone who could present a valuable report on the state of research and the problems of research in any of these fields, will you please let me know. It is important that I have your comments within a few days since the participants who are to prepare papers must be invited without delay.

The Foundation funds which we have been granted for this conference are sufficient to pay the transportation and maintenance of the members of the committee and of the writers of the papers, which are to be delivered to me before the conference so that discussion can be arranged. We are also in a position to pay a small stipend to those who will write the prepared papers.

I look forward to a prompt reply from you so that the program can be finally formulated.

Sincerely,

Louis Wirth

MEMORANDUM

TO: NAIRO RESEARCH CONFERENCE COMMITTEE
Helen E. Amerman — Herman Long
Isidor Chein — Richard Marks
Dan Dodson — George S. Mitchell

FROM: Louis Wirth, Chairman

SUBJECT: Tentative program for research conference

I should like to get your criticisms and suggestions on the tentative program for the conference on research in race relations to be held this summer in Chicago, under the joint auspices of NAIRO and the Committee on Education, Training and Research in Race Relations of the University of Chicago, with the aid of a special grant from the Field Foundation.

Place: Campus of the University of Chicago Date: July 26-30, 1952

Saturday, July 26

Morning

Meeting of NAIRO committee and race relations officials to formulate questions to be addressed to the research people. (We ought to circulate the NAIRO membership, through their official organ, the REPORTER, apprising them of the forthcoming conference and requesting them to send in all questions that they wish to address to race relations research people and all problems involving research which they wish to have considered at the conference. This will give us the opportunity to canvass the field with a view to determining just what issues and problems are on the practitioners' minds which the research people might consider in formulating their own programs. At the end of the conference we ought to have a panel session in which we would try to give such answers as can be given to the questions raised.)

Afternoon

Informal separate and joint conferences among the research people and the practitioners for the exploration of their separate and common interests.

Sunday, July 27

Morning

The organization and administration of research in race relations, -- to be followed by discussion in which those who are responsible for directing research programs will be the primary participants.

Afternoon

Research on race relations problems in the field of employment and economic opportunity.

Monday, July 28

Morning

Trends in race relations research.

Afternoon

Problems and progress of research in housing as it bears upon race relations.

Tuesday, July 29

Morning

Evaluation of research in race relations.

Afternoon

Race relations research in the field of education.

Wednesday, July 30

Morning

Race relations research in public policy (legislation, litigation, administrative procedures, etc.).

Afternoon

Summaries of meetings.

Among the people who should be invited to present papers are the following: Gordon Allport, Harvard; Robin Williams, Cornell; Herman Long, Fisk; Isidor Chein and Morton Deutsch, New York University; and Robert Merton, Columbia. Aside from NAIRO committee and subcommittee members, participants should also include research directors of the national agencies: Anti-Defamation League, American Jewish Committee, American Jewish Congress, Urban League, National Conference of Christians and Jews, NAACP, National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing, National Opinion Research Center, Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan, Housing and Home Finance Agency, and a few others. We should also invite representatives of the Field, Rockefeller, and Russell Sage Foundations and the Carnegie Corporation.

To: Special Purpose Conference Committee, and Research Conference Committee

From: Harold A. Lett

By now, you probably have Helen Amerman's memorandum through which you have learned of Tom Wright's heart attack down in Virginia. I am given to understand though that it apparently was not a serious attack and that Tom is recovering, but that in all probability, he will be kept out of circulation for some time to come.

For the moment, therefore, this leaves Helen carrying the burden of the Research Conference planning by herself. The University has selected a staff member to take over that phase of the program in which the University must be represented, with Helen serving in the dual capacity of NAIRO and University representative for liaison purposes. Because of Tom's first-hand knowledge of developments to this point, I am asking one of his assistants to step into Tom's shoes as far as the Research Conference planning is concerned. Maynard Wishner was appointed originally on the Committee for Police Conference but I am asking him to work with Helen Amerman as co-Chairman of the Research Conference Committee; as two persons in the Chicago area who can provide the continuity which at this period, we need very badly. I hope that this action will meet with your approval and that you will lend Helen and Maynard your active cooperation.

MEMORANDUM

May 17, 1952

TO: Members of the NAIRO Special Purpose Conferences Committee
and
Members of the NAIRO Research Conference Subcommittee

FROM: Helen E. Amerman

SUBJECT: Status of Preparations for the Conference on Research in Race Relations

By now you have undoubtedly heard the tragic news of Louis Wirth's sudden death May 3rd.

As Mr. Wirth's former assistant and a member of the NAIRO Research Conference Subcommittee, I have been asked to coordinate the planning for the conference for the time being. Now, more than ever, we need your assistance.

Attached is a brief summary of the developments since Mr. Wirth's communications of March 27 to the members of the Special Purpose Conferences Committee and the Research Conference Subcommittee. Our immediate need is to have, BY RETURN AIR MAIL, YOUR SUGGESTIONS WITH REGARD TO CONFERENCE PARTICIPANTS WHOSE EXPENSES SHALL BE PAID.*

As a review of Mr. Wirth's thinking on this matter, I submit the following excerpts from his file on the Conference:

1. I would think of such a conference as not exceeding 25 members. Government agencies, and probably the national organization representatives, could pay their own transportation; others would have to be offered transportation and maintenance in Chicago. . . . Transportation, $1,200; Maintenance, $600. . . . (From the proposal submitted to the Field Foundation, January 14, 1952)

2. The $3,000 is for the purpose of defraying the cost of the conference including (1) Preparation of the conference; (2) Transportation of persons to be invited and their maintenance in Chicago during their stay in the city; (3) Recording and transcription of the proceedings; (4) Editing and publishing the report; (5) . . . stipends to be paid to persons to prepare papers in advance of the conference. (From letter to Harold Lett, January 28, 1952. NOTE: "Preparation of the Conference" is not listed in the itemized budget submitted to the Field Foundation. The Foundation added $500 to the original budget, for payment of $100 to each of five speakers for papers prepared in advance; we are now committed to $800 for eight papers.)

3. Of course, a cordial invitation will be extended to the NAIRO membership to attend the research conference, and I hope that time can be set aside at which the practitioners can ask questions of the research people and can make their contributions. But I want to emphasize that this is a conference on research in race relations and that, therefore, the people to participate are primarily research people. It has occurred to me that before the conference we should send out an invitation to the practitioners--at least the members of NAIRO--asking them to send in their questions which they would want the research people to answer if they can. This ought to give us an idea of what the practitioners want to know from the research group and might give us some leads as to how to conduct the actual meeting.

* Please send to 4901 S. Ellis Ave., Chicago 15, Ill.

. . . This leaves $1,800 to defray the cost of transportation and maintenance of those to be invited as well as all the overhead expenses of the conference. This is obviously going to limit the number of people to be invited with expenses paid to probably not more than fifteen. If in this fifteen are to be included the members of the NAIRO Committee and yourself, and of any other officers of NAIRO there would obviously be no money left for any planning conference prior to the meetings. . . . (From letter to Harold Lett, February 29)

. . . Aside from NAIRO committee and subcommittee members, participants should also include research directors of the national agencies: Anti-Defamation League, American Jewish Committee, American Jewish Congress, Urban League, National Conference of Christians and Jews, NAACP, National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing, National Opinion Research Center, Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan, Housing and Home Finance Agency, and a few others. We should also invite representatives of the Field, Rockefeller, and Russell Sage Foundations and the Carnegie Corporation. (From memoranda (a) to NAIRO Special Purpose Conferences Committee, March 13, 1952, and (b) to NAIRO Research Conference Committee, March 27, 1952)

Mr. Tax, Mr. Wishner, and I shall meet as soon as possible after Wednesday, May 7, to draw up the invitation list for participants in addition to those giving papers. We shall have before us the names which appear among Mr. Wirth's notes and the names submitted by Committee members. We shall appreciate any suggestions you may make to guide us in choosing a small number of participants to be invited to attend the Conference with expenses paid. Of course, we shall send general invitations to a much wider group, including the NAIRO membership and those remaining on the list from which the special group is chosen.

We shall continue to keep you informed as the plans for the Conference progress, and we hope that you will participate in the development of the program as actively as distance permits.

CONFERENCE ON RESEARCH IN RACE RELATIONS, JULY 26-30

Summary of Developments from March 27 to May 17

1. Mr. Wirth made preliminary arrangements with the University administration for holding the conference on campus as part of the summer session program.

2. On May 2, Mr. Wirth mailed invitations to present papers, to the following:

Dan W. Dodson, "Organization and Administration of Research in Race Relations"
Margaret Carrity, "Research on Race Relations Problems in the Field of Employment and Economic Opportunity"
Robin M. Williams, Jr., "Trends in Race Relations Research"
Robert K. Merton, "Problems and Progress of Research in Housing in Its Bearing Upon Race Relations"
Gordon W. Allport, "Evaluation of Research in Race Relations"
Helen E. Amerman, "Race Relations Research in the Field of Education"
Donald Young, "Planning Research and Formulation of a General Strategy for More Effective Collaboration among Research Centers in This Field and between Research Workers and Action Agencies"
James W. Nabrit, Jr., "Race Relations Research in Public Policy"

Each prospective speaker was offered a stipend of $100 for the preparation of the paper and transportation and living expenses while attending the Conference. Dr. Dodson, Miss Carrity, Miss Amerman, and Dr. Nabrit have accepted; Dr. Allport has sent his regrets. In accordance with Mr. Wirth's plans in the event that Dr. Allport could not accept, Dr. Williams has been asked to take the paper on "Evaluation of Research in Race Relations" instead of the one on "Trends in Race Relations Research," for which he was originally invited.

3. Mr. Wirth had drafted a letter to other participants. The invitation list had not been formally compiled, but Mr. Wirth and I had discussed its make-up, and several names had been jotted down.

4. Upon hearing of Mr. Wirth's death, Mr. Lett appointed Thomas H. Wright, Midwest Regional Chairman of NAIRO, to represent him in the matter of the Conference. Unfortunately, Mr. Wright was subsequently taken ill, and Mr. Lett has named Maynard Wishner to take Mr. Wright's place in the planning until he recovers.

5. On May 9 I reviewed the status of the Conference plans with Mr. Wright, and, on this basis, I have taken the following actions during the past week:

a. May 14 - Letter to Mr. Maxwell Hahn, Executive Vice President of the Field Foundation, reviewing the status of the Conference plans and suggesting a meeting to be attended by himself and representatives of NAIRO and the University's Committee to work out a plan of operation in lieu of Mr. Wirth's personal leadership (The Board of Directors of the Foundation had designated Mr. Wirth as director of the conference).

b. May 14 - Letters to six prospective speakers (Dr. Allport's regrets had already been received, and I was the eighth speaker), assuring them of our intention of carrying out the conference as Mr. Wirth would have wished.

6. On May 16, the University's Committee on Education, Training and Research in Race Relations named Mr. Sol Tax to serve temporarily as their official representative for the Conference; Mr. Tax will not be on campus this summer.

7. Mr Hahn has informed Mr. Lett that he does not consider the suggested meeting (See 5 a above) to be necessary, and Mr. Lett has instructed Mr. Tax, Mr. Wishner, and myself to proceed immediately, with assistance by correspondence from the remaining committee and subcommittee members. Mr. Tax and I hope to confer with Mr. Wishner early next week.

8. Notice of the Conference appears in (1) the Spring issue of the INVENTORY OF RESEARCH IN RACIAL AND CULTURAL RELATIONS and (2) the summer session time-schedule of the University; (3) it will also be carried in the July number of the AMERICAN JOURNAL OF SOCIOLOGY.

Dear Harold:

Technically, I could get to the Executive Committee meeting Friday, the 27th. I will drive back into Atlanta the late afternoon of Thursday, the 25th, after having been out a week. And I've got to be in New Orleans Monday, the 30th. That schedule is mighty tight, and in addition, the hundred dollars it would cost to fly up there and back is an item.

If you cannot get a quorum and badly need me, I will come. In that case, it would be necessary to let my office know by Tuesday morning, June 24. They could callyme in Miami then and tell me I've got to go to New York.

Spare me if you can, but I will come if you have to have one more.

Sincerely,

To: Executive Committee Members

From: Harold A. Lett

There are several matters which will require the attention of the Executive Committee before our members become scattered during the summer vacation period. Tommy Norford will want to discuss with us several aspects of the annual meeting plan and program in order that she may proceed with promotional activity during the summer and early fall.

In addition to the annual meeting, there also are plans to be made and reports given as to the Research Conference in Chicago and the Police Conference which we hope may be considered for the late fall. These are just a few of the important items which must be dealt with before we can have our full Executive Board meeting in Washington in September.

Accordingly, I am asking you to meet in Executive Committee session on Friday morning, June 27th, convening promptly at 9:30 a.m., so that we may hope to be free at lunch time or immediately thereafter. We will convene in New York at the State Commission Against Discrimination office, 270 Broadway.

Will you please return the enclosed postcard immediately so that we may know about your plans.

MEMORANDUM

June 18, 1952

TO: Members of the NAIRO Special Purpose Conferences Committee
and
Members of the NAIRO Research Conference Subcommittee

FROM: Helen E. Ameman

SUBJECT: Progress of Preparations for the Conference on Research in Race Relations since May 17

The local steering committee, composed of Maynard Wishner, Donald T. Campbell (representing the University's Committee on Education, Training and Research in Race Relations), and myself, has met twice since my last memorandum to you.

We have decided to call a meeting of the full committee membership (both groups to whom this communication is addressed) immediately prior to the opening of the Conference. For that reason, we are shifting the meeting of practitioners from 10:30 AM Saturday to 1:30 PM (concurrent with the meeting of research people), and WE SHALL EXPECT YOU AT 10:30 AM, SATURDAY, JULY 26 IN ROOM 108, SOCIAL SCIENCE BUILDING. The major business to be transacted will be: (1) a detailed review of Conference plans and (2) decisions regarding publication of the proceedings.

By now you have undoubtedly received one of the general invitations which were mailed last week. We sent 226 to NAIRO members and 223 to people engaged in research. Press releases were also sent May 29 to 77 scholarly journals and race relations publications.

Monday, June 16, the steering committee decided upon a list of prospective chairmen and discussants for each session (The list is attached). We decided to have two discussants for each paper--one from the point of view of research and the other from that of the practitioner. We are asking that they limit themselves to 15 minutes each. Our budget will permit us to offer $30 to each out-of-town chairman or discussant to help defray his expenses. We felt this was a better use of the remaining allotment for transportation and maintenance than full expenses for one or two people.

All Conference personnel from out of town will be housed at Judson Court, just across the Midway from the Social Science Building. This, with our encouragement of informal group meetings based on common interests, should provide maximum opportunity for making valuable contacts among the group.

Mr. William Gremley, who handles public relations for the Chicago Commission on Human Relations will handle complete press coverage during the Conference.

We have taken advantage of an opportunity to have the proceedings of the Conference published as a section of the Fall 1952 number of the Inventory of Research in Racial and Cultural Relations, which will be off the press about September 30. We shall delay the detailed arrangements until the Committee meeting July 26.

We look forward to seeing all of you at the Conference.

Dear Fellow Board-Member:

Just a note to convey the sad news that Tom Wright passed away Wednesday afternoon, June 18th. He had undergone a gall bladder operation in the morning but his heart was not strong enough to carry him through.

He had been up and around following the attack in Virginia and was seen by several at the National Conference of Social Work. I have wired the widow, whose residence is 800 Halsted Street, C/o Hull House, Chicago, Illinois. Meantime, Helen Amerman is representing NAIRO officially at the funeral services.

Sincerely,

Harold

Dear Mrs. Perry:

Many thanks for the stack that came in Wednesday. They are signed and in the mail.

We dug up a few more copies of THE NAIRO REPORTER to add to the ones you sent.

A few suggestions from the list from which you prepared them.

(1) J. M. Tydings appears twice, once in Lincoln Ridge, Kentucky, and once in Louisville. Same guy. I sent only one. Best address is the Louisville one.

(2) J. M. Dabbs, Route 1, Mayesville, S. C., appears twice.

(3) Philip S. Ogilvie appears twice, once at New Orleans and once at his now correct address at Rock Hill, S. C.

(4) Alex Miller, Atlanta, Georgia, appears twice.

(5) Mrs. Irving Kohn at New Orleans is now Mrs. Helen Schwartz, Jewish Community Relations Council, 602 Fullerton Bldg., St. Louis 1, Missouri. She belongs to NAIRO anyhow.

(6) Miss Mozell Hill at Atlanta University should be addressed as Mr. or Dr.

I do hope we get some members.

That was a lot of work on your part and Mr. Long's.

If you or Mr. Long will write me on what is a fair share of the expense, I will pay off my part.

For the record, our postage bill on getting them out was $3.15.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

Dear George:

Thanks very much for the recent correspondence from your office, including a draft copy of the letter which we are sending to southern race relations personnel, and a copy of the minutes from the discussions at our Birmingham meeting. I very much appreciate the suggestions on follow-up to the matter of race baiting and race propaganda in political campaigns. Mr. Flemming has already sent me some very excellent material from the Georgia scene.

I think the draft letter which you sent is quite adequate. I will merely add a specific direction as to where dues should be sent. If I remember the discussion at our executive committee, it was suggested that dues could be sent directly to the regional chairman or to Arnold Aaronson. I believe that Frank Loescher had indicated that he did not want to handle the details of membership. I have a list of present and former members of NAIRO who are in the South, which I asked our president to send to me. We can use this as our mailing list, along with the persons who were present at the Birmingham and Atlanta discussions.

I will have the letter mimeographed or multilithed, with personalized headings typed on. These will come to you for signature within the next ten days.

With best of wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Herman

Dear Herman Long:

I send up a draft of this letter merely to keep our project pushing. You change the letter any way you want, and get it prepared and signed, and send the stack to me, and I will write my John Henry on them and get them out. Let me know what they cost, and I will foot half the bill.

For addressees, I would suggest those in the directory not known to be presently members of NAIRO, plus any more you can think of.

Dear Board Member:

As agreed upon in the Executive Committee meeting, held in New York in June, the fall meeting of the Board of Directors will be held in Washington, D. C. on Thursday and Friday, September 11th and 12th. The Thursday session will be opened at 10:00 a.m. and business of the Board will continue into Friday until all essential business has been disposed of. The sessions will be held in the Conference Room of the Bureau of Employment Security, #5223, United States Department of Labor.

No specific provisions are being made to provide accommodations for you but I am sure that Thomasina Norford's office in the Labor Department will be glad to make hotel reservations if you wish. In this latter event, please communicate with her directly.

Matters that you consider essential for discussion should be suggested to me at your earliest convenience in order that they may be included in the agenda.

I shall look forward to seeing you in Washington.

Sincerely,

Harold A. Lett

The Honorable John McMillan
Chairman, District House Committee
House Office Building
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. McMillan:

The Sixth Annual Conference of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials (NAIRO) will be held at the Hotel Willard in Washington, D.C. on November 12, 13 and 14, 1952. As you know, NAIRO is a professional group composed of intergroup relations officials of national, state and local public and private organizations which are devoting the major part of their program to intergroup problems. The annual conferences serve not only as methods of exchanging information on techniques for solving these problems but as a means of bringing in to address the group, experts who can discuss with us various phases of intergroup problems in the broad scope of national and international relationships.

It was the unanimous opinion of the Planning Committee that should you be able to accept our invitation to participate in the conference, you could not only ably accomplish this purpose but by your very presence encourage and inspire us to continue our efforts in solving these problems which we know have interested you for so long.

It is therefore my pleasure, in the name of NAIRO, to invite you to address a conference at the opening session, Wednesday, November 12 at 9:30 a.m. on "Your Visit Will Help Your Nation's Capital." We would be honored to have you accept our invitation and if you have the time to attend any of the other conferences, would be pleased to have your company.

A copy of the tentative program and a brochure explaining the purpose of the organization are attached.

Hoping to receive a favorable reply to our request as quickly as convenient to you and with best wishes for your continued success, I am

Sincerely yours,

Harold A. Lett

Dear Margaret:

Many thanks for your letter. Katherine Stoney will call you, and I hope come to see you, the first two or three days of October.

I used to know Congressman McMillan fairly well a dozen years ago. Has some leanings toward being liberal, and in his conduct he is a gentleman. So I think you would be safe in inviting him, routinely.

If Harold Lett would send a letter dictated by himself, I think that would be enough, but if Lett wants me in addition to write McMillan and tell him what the conference is all about and urge him to be present, I will be glad to do so, though McMillan's recollection of me will be slight. The point about the man is that he has perfect dignity.

Years ago in New York a cousin of mine in Mississippi suggested that I pay attention to a girl graduate student at Columbia who was from Mississippi. I went to see her and inquired about gently of her, with a view to finding out more or less who she was in Mississippi. She set me straight right away. "My grandfather was the last gentleman to be governor of Mississippi." So you see what I mean about McMillan.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

Dear George:

I'll be delighted to see your representative when she gets in town and if there's anything I can do for her, tell her to please feel free to call on me. Meanwhile, I'll jot down a few names and addresses for her and see that Monsignor O'Grady is included.

In connection with the NAIRO Conference, we decided at the Board Meeting to invite the Chairmen of the House and Senate Committees dealing with the District of Columbia, along with Commissioner F. Joseph Donahue, to give a few word of welcome (about three minutes worth). The Honorable John McMillan of South Carolina is the chairman of the District House Committee. I don't know anything about him, and neither does Tommy Norford. Do you think he would be all right in that position or do you think we'd be better off not asking him? If he would be good, do you think a letter from NAIRO signed by Harold Lett would be sufficient to get him here, or should we try to have someone else ask him?

Looking forward to seeing you in November, and with best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Margaret

MEMORANDUM

FROM: Maurice B. Fagan

RE: Conference on Police and Intergroup Relations

Unfortunately it is necessary for us to cancel the proposed Conference on Police and Intergroup Relations which we tentatively scheduled for November 10th and 11th. We were not able to obtain firm commitments from a majority of the cities we contacted nor were we able, possibly because of the short notice, to obtain the official cooperation of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Harold Lett and I will meet shortly to set up a planning committee to work on a conference for sometime in the spring of 1953. You will be contacted as early as possible for your suggestions although the probability is that we may have to meet briefly during the annual conference to discuss the problem as a whole.

Thanks very much for your very helpful suggestions and for the contacts you made with police chiefs. Please advise them of the cancelation and of our hope that a conference will be scheduled early in 1953.

I look forward to seeing you all in Washington in November.

Warm regards.

Dear Member:

As you know, our annual conference is being held in the Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C., beginning Wednesday morning, November 12th and ending Friday noon, November 14th. Formal notices and programs will be sent to you directly by the Program Committee.

The Executive Board will meet in the President's suite, Willard Hotel at 7:00 p.m. on Tuesday, November 11th. It also is the plan to have a meeting of all sub-committees whose jobs are unfinished at 3:00 p.m. on Tuesday, November 11th. In this latter instance, committee chairmen are requested to notify Mrs. Norford of meeting plans so that facilities for meetings can be assured.

As prescribed by the constitution and by-laws, you are being notified herewith of proposed changes to Articles VI, VIII, IX, and addition of Article XVII. You will come to the annual conference prepared to register your vote in connection with these proposed changes.

Sincerely,

Harold A. Lett

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

Our sincerest thanks for your very fine report. We might add that all of the reports are really high caliber.

May we impose on you for one small additional matter. Would you be good enough to suggest subjects that you feel should be discussed at the NAIRO Conference in Washington, in connection with employment.

The following are a few examples of items recommended for conference discussion.

1. How can we get information about minority employment without racial, religious and nationality identifications?

2. What methods and techniques can we utilize to secure broader employer, labor union, etc., cooperation in the matter of merit employment?

If you can get this out to us in the next day or two, airmail-special, you will have our ever lasting gratitude.

Mr. Murray L. Lewis
Jewish Personnel Relations Bureau
590 N. Vermont Ave., Rm. 225
Los Angeles 4, Calif.

Dear Mr. Lewis:

Thanks for your long letter of October 10. It followed me down to Florida, and I am only back in the office today.

The answer to your questions is short and sad.

I speak only of the South, and really, only for the Southeast, because I don't know what's been going on lately in Texas or Oklahoma. But generally speaking, for the Southeast there has been very little progress in the up-grading of Negroes in industry. They are hired, and hired in greater numbers than heretofore, because industry is expanding. But I hear very little of their being hired in better jobs than heretofore. There are the famous cases of better integration around Memphis (principally, International Harvester). But little news reaches me of successful up-grading of any of the large industries in the South or of the new work on contracts in the Federal Government. That goes for Oak Ridge and for the Savannah River Project, also.

Neither has the Federal Government itself really implemented in the South the executive order requiring fairer employment of Negro governmental personnel. I am told that the TVA has taken on a small group of Negro fledgling engineers. And the OPA in this city or that has added a Negro secretary. But by and large, the Federal Government has not performed in the South. I think the real reason is fear of retaliation by reactionary Southern Congressmen.

Some evidences that State governments in the South are easing up a little. A new report from North Carolina about employment of Negroes in social welfare agencies in the South reveals that 177 Negroes are now employed in public welfare agencies in eleven Southern States.

Also, here and there, Negroes have been elected to city councils—Nashville, 2; Richmond, 1, until recently; Greensboro, 1; and probably some others. A very few localities have Negro members of school boards nowadays.

Our own records, herewith, on Negro municipal employment, Negro police, and Negro firemen.

The things to be done are:

(1) Get the Federal Government to behave as directed.

(2) Put on a real enforcement program under the executive order worked out on contracts with the Federal Government. One thing to do there is to get some agency to publish a list, broken down by States, of all such contract work currently being performed. Then minority persons would know where they are supposed to have a crack at jobs.

One good thing to report: Considerably more interest and action lately in the South in technical and vocational training for Negroes.

Another thing to be done is the old, aching problem of cracking apprenticeship training. The U. S. Government denies all responsibility for spreading the training fairly, and won't even produce and make reports on a race break-down (unless it has changed very recently, which I doubt.)

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

AIRMAIL SPECIAL

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

As you may know, the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials (NAIRO) is having its sixth annual convention in Washington on November 12, 13 and 14.

At this conference, they expect to devote a good deal of time on the methods and techniques in doing something about the problem of discrimination, rather than in just outlining the problem and reiterating the information that most of us already know.

They have established commissions in five major areas of intergroup relations - employment, health, housing, education, and other civil rights. It will be the work of these commissions to provide the reports which will be mimeographed and placed in the registration kit of each conferee and will provide the basis for the workshop session. I have been asked to serve as the chairman of the Commission on Employment.

With respect to the content of the employment report, there are various subjects that have to be covered adequately on an a priori basis in order that the conference can focus attention on techniques and methods in resolving some of the problems that face us.

On the basis of your reputation and your agency identification, I know that you can adeptly handle the following assignment.

1. What gains have been made in the hiring of Negroes?

   a. Where such hiring has taken place, are there problems of segregation?

2. What immediate problems require attention, and what can be done in this connection?

3. What are some of the long range problems that you expect to tackle in the future?

While we are desirous of getting as complete an informational report as we possibly can there, nevertheless, are practical considerations which mean keeping the report as brief as possible, but without in any way eliminating any of the essentials. This is necessary in view of the fact that there will be at least ten subject areas that will comprise the final Employment Commission report.

Now here comes the part that we label "miracle". Because the time is so limited before the conference takes place on November 12, it is essential that we have your report in this office no later than Monday, October 27th.

Frankly, I would rebel if I were asked to complete an assignment in so short a period of time, and I also thoroughly appreciate the fact that unquestionably your heavy schedule will make it doubly difficult for you to complete this assignment in time. Unfortunately, this is the situation, and we would appreciate very much your cooperation in this regard. May we also request that you submit four carbon copies of your report.

Once the reports are received in this office, we have the responsibility of editing and coordinating them into a single final draft. If time permits, we will send to you what we consider a final draft of the report for your comments prior to our mailing it to the NAIRO office in Washington. However, because of time limitations this may not be possible and if we cannot do this I trust that you will go along with any condensation or revisions that we may make.

One more point. We would appreciate any manuals, bulletins or other printed material that you have available in relation to the field of employment. It would assist us considerably if you could list the following, with which you are familiar in connection with the employment field.

1. Latest literature

2. Bibliography

3. Visual aids

We feel certain that your report will represent a most worthwhile contribution to the project assigned to us on Employment.

Again, thank you for your willingness to serve and for your cooperation. Please let me hear from you.

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

As you no doubt know, the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials is having a three-day conference in Washington beginning November 12th. I have been named chairman of a committee on "Other Civil Rights" and our committee has been asked to prepare a report for the conference. I should very much like to have you serve with me as a member of the committee. Even if you can not get to the conference it would be useful to have the benefit of your views on our report.

May I also ask whether you could undertake to prepare a memorandum for us on "one of the "other civil rights," namely, the problem of security of person. What we should like to have is some statement of the incidence of lynching, police brutality and other forms of secret conspiratorial violence, e.g., bombings, in the South. What, if anything, is being done about these problems;what can or should be done and how the various NAIRO agencies can help in these tasks. You might also refer to the new anti-lynching laws recently enacted, any instances of effective police or court action and furnish a bibliography of not more than five or six items.

I hope that you will be able to accept such an assignment and serve with us on the committee.

With personal regards.

Sincerely yours,

SUBJECT: Meeting to Evaluate Conference on Research in Race Relations

In accordance with the desires of the NAIRO Board of Directors, I have been asked to call a meeting of the NAIRO Conference Committee members who attended our sessions in Chicago last July in order to prepare an evaluation of the Conference.

Since most of us will be at the Washington NAIRO meetings for committees Tuesday afternoon, November 11, I am asking that we meet from 5 to 6 PM on that day to initiate our discussions and, if necessary, plan to complete the report at a subsequent meeting. We shall have to arrange a place to meet and inform you of it after your arrival.

Please wire your response, collect, immediately. My address is:

Dear George:

I am very pleased to know that you are going to participate in the NAIRO Conference. The two spots on the program where we are asking you to serve are - Wednesday Afternoon, November 12 to speak on "The Use of Administration" - under the main topic "The Tools, Methods and Techniques of Intergroup Relations," and we want you to preside at the afternoon workshop session on Thursday, November 13 on "Intercultural Education."

As soon as the programs come from the printers, we will send you one together with registration blanks and other necessary forms.

Looking forward to seeing you, I remain

Sincerely yours,

Tommy

RECEIVED

October 17, 1952

To: NAIRO Chairmen

From: Program Committee

As you know, the NAIRO Conference is to take place in Washington at the Hotel Williard on November 12-13-14. At the last Board of Directors' Meeting, we decided to hold the NAIRO committee meetings at 3:00 pm the day before the Conference - Tuesday, November 11 - if you think it necessary to call such a meeting.

Since the committees are small, you would probably prefer holding the meetings in your rooms. However, if you require a larger space and will let us know, we will try to make suitable arrangements for you.

In a day or so you will receive a copy of the full program along with the letter of invitation we are sending out. On the program you will note that you are scheduled to give a committee report at the Business Session on Thursday, November 13, at 8:30 am. If your committee hasn't a great deal to report on work already accomplished, you might give your thinking on what the committee could or should do in the coming year so it can start off on a sound basis.

With all good wishes, best regards, and looking forward to seeing you at the Convention,

Sincerely yours,

TJN

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

As a member of the Commission on Employment for the NAIRO Conference, we believe that you will be interested in a total picture of our activities, which we feel will result in the kind of adequate employment report that will provide the conferees with information that they can use not only before and during the conference, but for future reference as well.

Enclosed you will find a compilation of the subject areas and the names of the individuals to whom they were assigned. We would appreciate any expression of opinion you may have as to whether you feel these subject areas will elicite the kind of information desired, or any other suggestions you wish to make.

Thank you again for your wholehearted cooperation.

Sincerely,

COMMISSION ON EMPLOYMENT

Assignments

Arnold Aaronson, National Community Relations Advisory Council:

Requested to direct inquiries to the National Association of Manufacturers and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce concerning any programs and activities that they are conducting or contemplate for the future, to foster the principle and practice of merit employment.

Alexander Allen, Pittsburgh Urban League:

What can a community agency do in the way of furthering merit employment? As an illustration, will you briefly report on the specific activities of your agency in this regard?

1. Would you indicate what methods and techniques you have found effective, and conversely, those you have found ineffectual?
2. What gains, in your opinion, have been made in the past few years in hiring and upgrading of individuals of minority groups, and in what occupations and industries?
3. Conversely, in what occupations and industries are there still problems?
4. Will you comment on your success in retail stores?
5. What do you consider are some of the problems of local community agencies engaged in this work of reducing discrimination in employment?

Richard Anliot, FEP Committee, Youngstown, Ohio:

What are the programs and problems of the FEP Commissions with limited funds and staff?

1. In this report, would you consider this fundamental question? Do you feel that limited funds and staff seriously hamper you in attempting to achieve the intent and purpose of the legislation?
2. Do you have any methods by which you can compensate for this lack?

Dr. Max Baer, Bnai Brith Youth Organization, Washington, D. C. :

1. To what extent are minority youth taking advantage of the newer opportunities that are now available in so-called non-traditional occupations and industries, where previously restrictions existed?
2. In this connection, would you indicate what, if any, programs such as career conferences are being carried out to acquaint minority youth with changes in the employment picture, as a result of removal of race, religious, and nationality restrictions?
3. What information is available as to the total Jewish labor force?
4. What is the occupational and industrial distribution of Jews?
5. In this connection, if you could provide some breakdown as to region, it would be helpful.
6. Do you have similar information available for other ethnic and cultural groups?

Donald Beatty, Ohio State Employment Service:

Describe briefly the program of the Ohio Employment Service designed to further the hiring of qualified individuals of minority groups. Please consider the following points in your report:

1. The nature of the problem.
2. The size of the minority group.
3. The size of each ethnic and cultural segment which make up the total minority group.
4. What changes, if any, have taken place in the employment pattern of minority groups since the inauguration of this special program of the Employment Service?
5. What specific methods have been particularly successful in carrying through the objective of the program?
6. What else is needed to strengthen the program?

Mrs. Geraldine Bledsoe, Michigan State Employment Service:

Same as to Donald Beatty, but referring to the Michigan State Employment Service.

Donald T. Campbell, Committee on Education, Training, and Research in Race Relations, University of Chicago:

Request for list of organizations, complete bibliography, latest literature, visual and educational aids, in the field of employment.

Roy Chapman, Colorado FEP Commission:

Same as to Richard Anliot, except in regard to State FEP Commissions with limited funds and staff.

George Conley, Rhode Island FEP Commission:

1. What gains do you feel have been made, and in what occupations and industries, since fair employment legislation was enacted?
2. Conversely, in what occupations and industries are there still problems?
3. What techniques and methods have you found effective in those areas where you have achieved success? Cite illustrations.
4. To what extent have you been able to secure the cooperation of employer groups and trade associations, such as the Chamber of Commerce, etc., in your efforts to reduce discrimination in employment?

Don Frank, Office of Price Stabilization, Washington, D. C.:

Request for a report on a study of job opportunities for Negroes in the state employment service.

Mrs. Lillian Friesburg, Pittsburgh Jewish Community Relations Council:

1. What gains have been made, if any, during the past few years in terms of breaking down discriminatory barriers in employment, against Jews?
2. Are there any outstanding successes that you have been able to achieve in this regard? Cite illustrations.
3. What methods and techniques did you find successful?
4. Is information available that would indicate the extent of discrimination against Jews? In what occupations and industries?
5. What are some of the immediate problems that require attention? What can be done?

Robert Granville, Committee on Government Contract Compliance, Washington, D.C.:

What compliance procedures have been set up to handle violations?

1. What programs have you established to further the hiring of qualified minority group individuals with firms who have Federal contracts?

2. What staff is available? Indicate staff responsibilities.

Gonnor E. Hough, Cambridge Civic Unity Committee, Massachusetts:

1. What can a community group do in the way of furthering merit employment? As an illustration, will you briefly report on the specific activities of your group in this regard?

2. Would you indicate what methods and techniques you have found effective, and conversely, those you have found ineffectual?

3. What gains, in your opinion, have been made in the past few years in hiring and upgrading of individuals of minority groups, and in what occupations and industries?

4. Conversely, in what occupations and industries are there still problems?

5. Would you be good enough to approach the subject from the point of view of those minority groups and those areas about which you have information?

Miss Virginia Huebner, FEP Division, Wisconsin:

Same as to George Conley.

L. C. Lawhorn, Fair Employment Board, Civil Service Commission, Washington, D.C.:

What procedures do you have available, and what techniques do you employ to see to it that the intent and purpose of Executive Order 9980, providing for fair employment practices in Federal establishments are carried out?

1. Specifically, would you indicate what steps and approaches you take to make reasonably certain that there is no discrimination because of race, religion, or nationality in the initial hiring, upgrading, disciplinary action, and discharge of Federal employees?

William Leland, Minneapolis FEP Commission, Minnesota:

Same as to George Conley.

Edward F. Lewis, Urban League of Greater New York:

Request for information about any studies that have been made on the efficiency, stability, absenteeism, etc., of minority group workers.

Glenn E. Mansfield, Washington FEP Commission:

Same as to George Conley.

George S. Mitchell, Southern Regional Council, Atlanta, Georgia:

1. What gains have been made in the hiring of Negroes?

2. Where such hiring has taken place, are there problems of segregation?

3. What immediate problems require attention, and what can be done in this connection?

4. What are some of the long range problems that you expect to tackle in the future?

A. W. Motley, BES, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C.:

What available statistical information is there on white, non-white placements made by occupation and industry, and with a breakdown by states, if possible? It would be very desirable if you could provide the necessary information on this subject for the past few years.

1. Is there any information that would throw some light on the subject of what gains have been made by individuals of minority groups, and in what occupations and industries during the past few years?

2. Conversely, is there information available as to the occupations and industries which still pose a problem with respect to the hiring and upgrading of qualified individuals of minority groups, and upon which we should focus attention in the months ahead?

3. What is the total labor force in the U. S.? What is the distribution of this labor force by occupations and industries?

4. What is the total non-white labor force in the U. S.? What is the distribution of this labor force by occupations and industries?

5. Unemployment data re white and non-white.

6. Is there information available about the religious groups (minorities)? Employment - unemployment data, and occupational and industrial distribution.

Bill Oliver, and Miss Lillian Hatcher, UAW - CIO, Detroit:

What are the educational programs now in use by the UAW - CIO to combat discrimination in employment?

1. Are there any follow-up procedures that you have to test the effectiveness of these programs?

2. What techniques and methods have you found to be most successful and effective in bringing about changes in attitudes?

3. What educational programs do you contemplate for the future?

4. What observations do you have as to the value and impact of non-discriminatory clauses in union-management contracts.

William F. Patterson, Bureau of Apprenticeship, Dept. of Labor, Washington, D.C.:

What is the status of apprenticeship training as it relates to individuals of minority groups? Would you be good enough to break down this information on a regional basis?

1. What can be done to build up the participation on the part of qualified individuals of minority groups in apprenticeship training programs?

2. California recently passed the following statute: "It shall be unlawful for an employer or a labor union to refuse to accept otherwise qualified employees as indentured apprentices on any public works, solely on the ground of race, creed, or color of such employee." Do you know of any other states, other than those with fair employment practices legislation, which have enacted similar legislation relating to apprenticeship training?

Charles Posner, Cincinnati Jewish Community Relations Council:

Same as to Mrs. Lillian Friesburg.

Mr. Walter Reuther, UAW - CIO, Detroit:

Same as to Bill Oliver, except in regard to the CIO only.

Ralph Rose, American Friends Service Committee, Philadelphia

1. What techniques, approaches, and methods have you found successful in your efforts to increase job opportunities for qualified individuals of minority groups in certain firms and industries? Will you cite illustrations?

2. What gains have been made by individuals of minority groups, and in what occupations and industries in the last few years?

3. Conversely, what information do you have as to the occupations and industries which still pose a problem with respect to the hiring and upgrading of qualified individuals of minority groups?

4. Will you please tackle the latter two items in relation to the geographical areas about which you have experience and information?

Miss Sonya Samuel, Chicago Committee on Human Relations:

Same as to Alexander Allen, with the exclusion of item #4, and the addition of:

1. Would you indicate in what way the non-discriminatory clause in city contracts has been helpful in bringing about a greater measure of merit employment?

Boris Shiskin, AFL, Washington, D.C.:

Same as to Walter Reuther, except in regard to the AFL.

Henry Spitz, NYSCAD, New York:

What is the present and pending status of FEP legislation - national, state, and city? Would you please consider the following points?

1. Coverage
2. Enforcement procedures.
3. Administrative procedures -- budget, staff, etc.
4. Any other items that you consider pertinent to the subject.
5. What significant court action, pro or con, has been taken since various states and cities have enacted fair employment practices legislation?

Mrs. Anne Tanneyhill, National Urban League, New York:

1. To what extent are minority youth taking advantage of the newer opportunities that are now available in so-called non-traditional occupations and industries, where previously restrictions existed?

2. In this connection, would you indicate what, if any, programs such as career conferences, are being carried out to acquaint minority youth with changes in the employment picture, as a result of removal of race, religious, and nationality restrictions?

Julian Thomas, National Urban League, New York:

Same as to Ralph Rose.

Albert J. Weiss, Bureau on Jewish Employment Problems, Chicago:

What specifically can a specialized community agency do to achieve a greater measure of merit employment on a voluntary basis?

1. Cover the kinds of negotiations you engage in, particularly in regard to self-initiated activity.

2. Will you cite some illustrations of where you have achieved success in reducing or eliminating discrimination in employment?

3. Will you indicate your techniques and methods of approach?

John Willard, American Friends Service Committee, Chicago:

1. Will you indicate the techniques and approaches used that led to the successful integration of Negroes as salesclerks in the department stores?

2. Are there any other successes which you can point to, which increased opportunities for individuals of minority groups?

Ivan L. Willis, International Harvester, Chicago:

Would you describe the program of International Harvester with respect to merit employment?

1. What techniques, in your opinion, can be effectively used to involve more management people in activities that would foster merit employment?

Bradshaw Mintener, Pillsbury Mills:

Same as to Mr. Willis, except in regard to Pillsbury Mills.

J. J. Morrow, Pitney- Bowes, Inc.:

Same as to Mr. Willis, except in regard to Pitney-Bowes, Inc.

O. M. Taylor, New York Telephone Company:

Same as to Mr. Willis, except in regard to the New York Telephone Company.

Louis Krapin, Anti-Defamation League, New York:

Please indicate briefly your efforts in connection with the problem of discrimination in board examinations for various professions, the results of those efforts, and what action you contemplate for the future.

Theodore Leskes, American Jewish Committee, New York:

Same as for Donald T. Campbell.

J. Robison, American Jewish Congress, New York:

Would you be good enough to compile a list of all Executive Orders that are in any way related to the field of employment, which are now extant on the Federal, State, County, and Municipal levels. For example, the Attorney General's Opinion, of the State of California, dated July 23, 1951, would be considered as coming within the catagory of an Executive Order.

Clarence A. Peters, National Conference of Christians and Jews, New York:

Describe briefly your labor-management program, designed to bring about a greater measure of merit employment.

1. In what plants have these institutes been held?
2. Will you evaluate the results?
3. What plans do you have for the future in this connection?

Dear Harold:

My Executive Committee met Saturday and called off my annual meeting for this year. So I am free to be in Washington November 12. And if you still want me to do whatever it was you wanted me to do the 12th, okay.

And I will do the education business on the 13th, 2:30 in the afternoon. Discussion notes later.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

The Sixth Annual Conference of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials (NAIRO) will be held at the Hotel Willard in Washington, D. C., on November 12-13-14. As you know, NAIRO is a professional group composed of intergroup relations officials of organizations of national, state and local, public and private which are devoting the major part of their program to intergroup problems. The annual conferences serve not only as methods of exchanging information on and techniques for solving these problems, but as a means of bringing in to address the group experts who can discuss with us various phases of intergroup problems in the broad scope of national and international relationships.

Since we are particularly anxious to have the conference this year a working session where techniques and information are exchanged for the mutual benefit of all participants, we have established commissions as well as workshops in five major areas of intergroup relations - health, housing, education, employment and other civil rights. Rather than treat agriculture and segregation as separate areas, we are including them as part of every area.

It will be the work of the commissions to prepare a broad-scale report on all phases of intergroup problems. The report will then be furnished all conferees and be a background for the workshop sessions. The workshop sessions will be composed of the commission chairmen who will stage the setting for the discussion, consultants who can help frame the discussion and a chairman.

We are very much in hopes, because of your ability and experience in the area of education, you will be able to accept our invitation to be chairman of the workshop session on November 13, 2:30 p.m.

If you can accept, and we hope you can, we would ask you to give an outline of the discussion plan to be followed, including any suggestions of the commission, suggestions from the floor which you can allow to be presented in the opening minutes of the session, and primarily your own. We are asking you to chair this session not only because of your background in this area, but because we think it is extremely important, if we are to accomplish our purpose, to keep the discussion on an objective, scholarly level. It was the unanimous decision of the planning group that you could not only ably do this but also that your presence at the meeting would encourage and inspire us to carry on our program.

As soon as the commission report on education is available, and we hope to have it at least a week before the conference, we will send you a copy.

Hoping to have a favorable, prompt reply to our invitation, and with best wishes and best regards,

Sincerely yours,

Harold A. Lett

Dear Harold:

You are very kind to ask me to be on the program for Wednesday, November 12. By bad luck, I cannot get to the conference until the next day, the 13th. The Southern Regional Council has its annual membership meeting October 12, and that's my raison d'etre.

It looks like the NAIRO meeting is going to be a heck of a good one, and I will enjoy being there for all the rest of it. My warmest praises to you and others for the very hard work that went into that program.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

The Sixth Annual Conference of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials (NAIRO) will be held at the Hotel Willard in Washington, D.C. on November 12, 13, and 14, 1952. As you know, NAIRO is a professional group composed of intergroup relations officials of national, state and local public and private organizations which are devoting the major part of their program to intergroup problems. The annual conferences serve not only as methods of exchanging information on and techniques for solving these problems but as a means of bringing in to address the group experts who can discuss with us various phases of intergroup problems in the broad scope of national and international relationships.

It was the unanimous opinion of the Planning Committee that should you be able to accept our invitation to participate in the conference, you could not only ably accomplish this purpose but by your very presence, encourage and inspire us to continue our efforts in solving these problems which we know have interested you for so long.

It is therefore my pleasure, in the name of NAIRO, to invite you to address a conference at the Afternoon Session on Wednesday, November 12 at 2:30 p.m. on "Use of Administration." We would be honored to have you accept our invitation and if you have the time to attend any of the other conferences, would be pleased to have your company.

A copy of the tentative program and a brochure explaining the purpose of the organization are attached.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

I am very happy to learn that you will be the chairman of the afternoon workshop session of the NAIRO conference on November 13.

There has been a delay in getting the material prepared for a report, and it is doubtful that it can reach you in Atlanta before you leave. In the meantime, therefore, the enclosed outline is being sent you. It indicates the main points which will be discussed and serves as a basis for getting the reactions of commission members. I hope that you will find it useful.

With personal wishes, I remain

Sincerely yours,

I. The nature of educational inequality and the barriers to educational opportunity.

A. Scope

In spite of the fact that the 48 States and the District of Columbia have committed themselves to equality of educational opportunity, disparities in the provisions for various segments of the population continue. This section is concerned with the nature of the inequalities and the extent to which the differences are becoming smaller or larger. Comparisons may be given between the national average in selected items and the average for the non-white population. Examples would be per cent of pupils of certain age groups enrolled in school, school attendance rates, length of school term, retention in school from first to twelfth grade, per capita expenditure for selected items. Information will be sought on estimates regarding the money necessary for equalizing facilities in dual school systems. Also, the influence of religion, race or sex on admissions and employment will be studied.

B. Your reaction

1. What do you regard as the most important indices or factors that should be included in a study of inequalities and barriers in education?

2. What studies or sources of data are especially pertinent and should be listed?

3. What significant questions regarding inequalities and barriers to educational opportunities should be raised?

II. The elimination of racial segregation and the achievement of full integration in education.

A. Scope

A distinction between desegregation and full racial integration is being made more frequently. Desegregation refers to the outlawing of segregated education as a legal requirement. Full racial integration would require the establishment and maintenance of schools where the admission of students, the employment of administrative, teaching and non-teaching personnel, and the participation in the policy-making, the governing, the organization, and the conduct and activities of the schools are not determined by race but by aptitude, ability and merit. A study will be made of legislation, court action, executive orders, community and educational activities. Consideration must be given to the extent of desegregation or integration as indicated by figures on enrollment, employment, and membership in organizations or on boards of control. Some attention should be given to the problems that are raised for the formerly separate Negro school as racial integration in education continues.

B. Your reaction

1. What issues should be raised on this subject?

2. Will you describe the situation or cite references as to what has happened by way of segregation and integration in specific communities.

3. Will you describe briefly or submit material on the work of an agency or on a program that has contributed to desegregation or integration.

II. The elimination of racial segregation and the achievement of full integration in education.

3. Will you describe briefly or submit material on the work of an agency or on a program that has contributed to desegregation or integration.

III. Intergroup education.

A. Scope

Intergroup education is treated as a phase of education for better human relations. It is particularly concerned with situations in which one's group affiliation may be included as a factor in determining free participation in community living. The section should contain some discussion of programs in school systems, in colleges, and for teacher and community leaders. It should also treat the studies, the experimental plans, and the practices known, and indicate the nature of evaluation procedures.

B. Your reaction

1. Will you furnish descriptions or cite references to successful intergroup education programs.

2. What are some of the most important issues in this area?

3. In your opinion, what are the next steps in intergroup education?

IV. Additional items.

A. Scope

You may wish to make other suggestions that would help in presenting an adequate picture of educational opportunity. Use this sheet in any way that would help in gathering pertinent data, in determining present status and trends, and in organizing a good discussion.

B. Your reactions

1. Would you like to suggest any additions, deletions, or modifications?

2. It would be helpful to list the intergroup agencies that are doing significant work, and the publications in which one could find pertinent material on the topics mentioned. Please list those that you regard as especially important, and that you would recommend for keeping informed on trends in the areas outlined.

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

Thank you for your letter and invitation of November 3, 1952, in relation to a meeting of the Education Committee of NAIRO at an 8:30 breakfast in the main dining room of the Willard Hotel Wednesday morning, November 12.

I regret very much that for the first time since my association with the Commission I am obliged to miss the annual NAIRO conference due to the pressure of obligations here in the state. I have already explained the situation to Harold Lett. However, I am glad to report that our Commission will be represented at the conference and on the Education Committee.

We have an intern on our staff this year who is assigned to us by a grant from the Fund for Adult Education, established by the Ford Foundation. His name is William Boyer, and he is highly qualified with a good many years of study and experience in the human relations field. I am sure that you and your committee will enjoy meeting him and benefit from his information and point of view. He will come to your meeting well briefed in regard to the education question from the point of view of our educational agency.

With best wishes for a successful committee meeting and conference, I am

Sincerely yours,

Dear Charlie:

On behalf of the Committee on Education at the recent NAIRO conference, I send you the following report.

The committee thought it important for NAIRO to provide, as a service to its members, a steady flow of information coordinating the efforts made over the country in intergroup education. As measures to this end, it authorized:

1. A central mailing list of interested people.

2. Reports of all institutes held to be circulated to members.
   (a) Published reports
   (b) Summaries in the form of letters from conductors of such institutes whose results are not published.

3. Advance notice to all NAIRO members of institutes wherever held.

4. A bibliography in this field.

One member of the committee urged that Mr. Ray O'Connor, of the Bridgeport Intergroup Council, be considered as a would-be useful member, or perhaps chairman, of a new Committee on Education.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

I again want to express sincere appreciation for the report that you submitted, which resulted in our being able to prepare a substantive, comprehensive compilation that should be of some practical value to all of us who are concerned with the problem of discrimination in employment. For it is only through the cooperation of each member of the Commission on Employment who was asked to report on a specific assignment that it was possible for us to get all of this material and information together.

As you know, the Commission on Employment report is a preliminary draft. This had to be so in the face of the very limited time in which we had to complete the total report. This means that there may be some inaccuracies in content or impressions conveyed which need to be clarified in connection with various subject areas that are discussed.

Your copy of the report is being forwarded under separate cover, and I would appreciate your reactions to it so that through your comments and that of other members of the Commission it will be possible for us to revise the report along more polished lines and in keeping with the unique character of each individual contribution.

FROM: Helen E. Amerman, Co-chairman

SUBJECT: Report of Committee

Enclosed is the report of the Committee which I have prepared for submission to supplement my oral report at the business session of the NAIRO meetings in Washington.

Please read the evaluation of the Conference on pages 2 and 3 and notify me immediately if it does not seem to you to reflect the consensus of the group.

IF I DO NOT HEAR FROM YOU BY FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5, I SHALL FORWARD THE REPORT TO THE SECRETARY OF NAIRO.

Dear George,
I'm still glowing from your compliments on my election to the Board!
I read in Crisis today that Elma Sharp has joined the staff of Spelman College as administrative assistant. If that's my little white-haired friend from relocation centr. days, an ex-missionary to Japan, she's a jewel and I hope you'll get acquainted with each other soon. She has wonderful common sense and a great sense of humor.

REPORT OF THE NAIRO RESEARCH CONFERENCE COMMITTEE

Presented November 13, 1952, at the Sixth Annual Conference

On the basis of a $3,000 grant from the Field Foundation, NAIRO and the Committee on Education, Training and Research in Race Relations of the University of Chicago co-sponsored a Conference on Research in Race Relations on the University's campus, July 26-30.

After the death of Louis Wirth, who had been in charge of planning the Conference, a steering committee composed of Helen Amerman and Maynard Wishner, co-chairmen, and Donald T. Campbell, representing the University's Committee, completed the arrangements.

One hundred twenty-two persons registered for the Conference, representing a wide variety of interests, both action and research, from many parts of the country. Room and board were provided in Judson Court, a University dormitory, across the Midway from the Social Science Building where most of the sessions were held.

The first day researchers and practitioners held separate preliminary meetings to discuss their objectives for the conference, and then they proceeded to the first general session, where the prior deliberations of each group were reported and discussed. After that, each day's program consisted of two three-hour sessions with one prepared paper at each. The morning sessions were devoted to various aspects of the whole field of research in race relations (Organization and Administration, Trends, Evaluation), and the afternoons were devoted to research in specific functional areas (Employment, Housing, Education, Civil Rights). The Conference closed with a luncheon at which the five days' proceedings were summarized and evaluated and plans for the future were proposed.

In addition to the prepared program, participants were encouraged to meet in small informal groups to discuss subjects of special interest. The Conference Committee provided meeting rooms and public announcements for some half dozen such groups.

Arrangements have been made to publish the complete Proceedings of the Conference (including the prepared papers and stenotype transcription of the discussions) as the Winter-Spring, 1953, issue of the Inventory of Research in Racial and Cultural Relations. The Conference budget allowed $300 for publication of the proceedings, and this has been paid to the Inventory as a partial subsidy of the expense. The Proceedings will be sold by the University of Chicago's Committee on Education, Training and Research in Race Relations, which publishes the Inventory, at $1.00 per copy.

The financial report of the NAIRO Conference Fund (attached) shows a balance of $139.33 as of November 11, 1952. The Committee agreed that this money should be used for: (1) expenses of any committee member who found it difficult to finance his trip to Washington for this evaluation of the summer Conference, (2) a second mailing to Conference registrants to publicize sale of the Proceedings, explaining that they were not being provided free to registrants, (3) distribution of the Proceedings.

The members of the NAIRO Research Conference Committee who had attended the Conference, meeting in Washington, D. C., November 11, 1952, made the following evaluation (The co-chairmen abstained from participation in this process, except that Miss Amerman served as recorder):

1. In general, the experience of several uninterrupted days in a congenial atmosphere made for a valuable association between the members of the practitioner and researcher groups. As the first meeting of its kind it accomplished:
   a. a meeting of minds
   b. new friendships
   c. recognition of the need for fitting the two fields together
   d. review of a common background of materials.

2. Due to previous lack of rapport, research and action people tended to lack a common language.

3. Too many speakers went over the same ground, using the same references and background material.

4. In the future, instead of a stenotype report, minutes should be taken by reporters with experience in the field.

5. Some carry-over should be planned. Such a future meeting should build upon the first Conference, starting with an evaluation of progress in research since summer 1952 and going on from there rather than repeating the topics of the original meetings.

The Committee makes the following recommendations to the new Board of NAIRO:

1. That an immediate appeal be made for funds for NAIRO, or for NAIRO and a university (or some other arrangement), to sponsor a second Conference on Research in Race Relations in 1953.

2. That such arrangements be concluded well in advance to facilitate sound planning which will insure progress beyond the previous conference and allow time for the writing of papers.

3. That the financial arrangements provide for a small planning meeting several months in advance of the conference.

4. That the 1953 conference, building upon the Proceedings of the 1952 Conference and the commission materials in the Washington NAIRO Conference kits, (1) review developments in the functional areas and (2) give further consideration to the assumptions of practitioners listed in 1952 and research on their validity.

Respectfully submitted,

Helen E. Amerman
Co-chairman

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

Board of Directors Meeting -- November 11, 1952
8 p.m., Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C.

The following were present: Harold Lett, President, Alexander Allen, Joseph Coles, Hortense Gabel, Margaret Garrity, Wilfred Leland, Frank Loescher, Herman Long, Mr. Lopez (substitute for George Conley), George Mitchell, Thomasina Norford, George Schermer, and Maurice Fagan, Secretary.

It was noted that the minutes of the previous Executive Committee meeting should be corrected to note that George Mitchell was present.

6th Annual Conference--Washington, D. C.,
November 12-14, Willard Hotel

Margaret Garrity stated that each of the study commissions had completed their reports and that they had been mimeographed for distribution to all persons attending the 6th Annual Conference. Sixty-seven registrations had been received from out-of-town members but many more were expected to register on Wednesday morning.

Thomasina Norford urged the reporters for each workshop to be on the lookout for two or three points which might be submitted to the newspapers each day. She also asked that the reporters submit written summaries of the workshops so that they can be carried in the next issue of NAIRO Reporter.

It was pointed out that the program incorporated the two-fold emphasis which the Board had recommended at the September meeting, namely, professional standards and successful experiences and failures. She urged that the NAIRO members be reminded that "This is your Capitol too--so take the message back to your respective communities."

The Board of Directors expressed its profound appreciation to Thomasina Norford, Margaret Garrity, Co-Chairmen of the 6th Annual Conference, and Mary Pipes, Conference Secretary, and the 25 host organizations who were servicing the Conference and responsible for the reception and entertainment schedule for Wednesday evening.

Treasurer's Report

Frank Loescher, Treasurer, reported that the balance as of November 1, 1952 was $1885.58, less the $386.16 of unpaid bills, so that the actual balance as of this Board meeting is $1499.42. Word has been received that the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith and the American Jewish Committee were each expected to make payments of $500 for subscriptions to NAIRO Reporter before the end of 1952 and that in the very near future the NAACP would remit $250 also pledged for NAIRO Reporter. Arnold Aronson agreed to follow up on these pledges and was urged to discuss with the National Conference of Christians and Jews whether it could again make a bulk subscription to NAIRO Reporter. Mr. Aronson cautioned against assuming that such "subsidies" in the form of bulk subscriptions to NAIRO Reporter would be continued each year and that every effort must be made to make NAIRO Reporter self-supporting at the earliest possible moment.

NAIRO Reporter

It was the consensus of the Board that the future of NAIRO Reporter should be considered by the new Board of Directors, which would hold its first meeting on Friday afternoon, November 14th. In the meantime Arnold Aronson was asked not only to approach the national agencies about their commitments for the year 1952 but to sound them out on the continuance of "bulk subscriptions" for 1953. Mr. Aronson raised the question of whether NAIRO Reporter could ever become self-supporting on the basis of volunteer assistance and whether it would not be in the long run more economical as well as successful to engage a full-time worker not only to enlarge the number of paid subscribers to NAIRO Reporter but also to enroll more members from national and state organizations which have large staffs, very few of whom belong to NAIRO. It was agreed that Frank Loescher would make an appeal at the business meeting for more members and more paid subscribers to NAIRO Reporter and that he would point up the serious financial position NAIRO would be in if the "bulk subscribers" to NAIRO Reporter were not to continue their contributions after this year.

Mr. Loescher asked whether it would be feasible to approach one of the national agencies for the loan of a staff member who would help build memberships and paid subscribers. It seemed to be more likely that we could borrow such a staff member than it was likely that we could afford to engage one. He added that in addition to national and state organizations we might be able to enroll many workers who are charged with intergroup responsibilities for government agencies.

There was a long discussion of the need for making intergroup relations workers more aware of the precise services which NAIRO had to offer and why they should enroll as members when most of them are unable to attend the Annual Conferences. Mr. Fagan urged that the Regional Chairmen be utilized much more fully in obtaining renewals of memberships and servicing prospects and eventually enrolling them as new members. He said, for example, that each Regional Chairman might be given fifty extra copies of NAIRO Reporter and extra copies of various special mailings so that such material could be sent to prospective members. Herman Long suggested that we set up membership committees within the larger communities where there is a reasonable number of prospects within the community. Such committees could also work on renewals.

It was agreed that the new Board of Directors should be asked to work out and spell out what NAIRO has to "sell". The new Board will also be asked to explore the possibility of borrowing a staff member from a national agency. Harold Lett appointed a temporary committee to report at the business session on Thursday morning on (a) how to stimulate more activity by present members; (b) the types of appeals which could be used with prospective members; (c) how to obtain additional new members.

Agency Subscriptions

Harold Lett raised a question of whether it would be desirable to include one individual membership as a part of the agency subscription fee for services and materials. During the discussion several members expressed opposition to the idea and urged that membership be confined to individuals only and whether or not an agency cared to reimburse such members should be up to the agency and not to NAIRO. Wilfred Leland raised the question of whether it would be more desirable to figure agency subscription fees at the rate of $2.50 per thousand dollars of budget rather than on our present basis, which appears to confuse some people. It was agreed that both questions should be submitted to the new Board of Directors.

Wright and Wirth Memorial

Mr. Lett reported that scholarships in human relations work were being established in memory of Louis Wirth and that a request had been made to NAIRO members to participate in the memorial. It was pointed out that while the session on Friday, November 14th, included a tribute to Louis Wirth and Thomas Wright, no provision had been made for obtaining voluntary contributions from members. It was agreed that envelopes would be distributed so that members could insert whatever amount they chose and that the total so collected would be turned over to the Wirth Memorial Fund as our tribute to both Louis Wirth and Thomas Wright.

Resolutions

It was agreed by the Board that if any of the workshops should pass resolutions such resolutions were to be referred to the Board of Directors for such disposition as it cared to make up.

NAIRO Archives

It was agreed that Herman Long would speak to Helen Amerman as to whether she would examine NAIRO's files in order to retain such material as appeared might be valuable and to write the history of our origin and experiences to date so that a continuous record could be kept of NAIRO's history.

By-Laws

It was agreed to recommend to the new administration that it mimeograph and distribute the by-laws as revised to NAIRO members.

7th Annual Conference--Minneapolis
November 11, 12, 13, 1953

It was agreed that the details of the 1953 Conference were properly the responsibility of the new Board of Directors, which will meet Friday afternoon, November 14th.

1954 Conference

Harold Lett reported that invitations had been received from Milwaukee, Chicago, Boston, Miami Beach and Atlantic City. It was agreed that this too should be submitted to the new Board of Directors for action.

Personnel Registry

Dan Dodson was asked to summarize his experiences and to formulate suggestions as to the best method of handling the personnel registry and that his report should be submitted to and acted upon by the new administration.

The meeting was adjourned at 11:40 p.m.

December 19, 1952

Mr. George S. Mitchell,
Executive Secretary,
Southern Regional Council,
63 Auburn Avenue, N.E.,
Atlanta, Georgia.

Dear George:

I am very glad to tell you that the Board of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, meeting after the Conference in November, unanimously elected you as the Southern Regional Chairman.

It is through these regional chairmanships that the Board is able itself to elect some of the people who have made significant contributions to the Board. I certainly hope that you will find it possible to serve. I am going on the assumption, of course, that you will serve. This may mean a great deal or little in terms of additional responsibility for you. Your election was not predicated on the condition that you would undertake any particular program, but only in the belief that you would be able to contribute to the Board.

There have been, in the past, regional conferences of NAIRO, and you may want to evoke a regional conference this year. I will leave that for you to decide, depending upon the interest of yourself and others with whom you work. My main interest will be to see that any inquiries which come to the national officers of NAIRO regarding developments in your area will be referred to you, and conversely, I hope that you will be able to keep the National Board advised of those developments which you think are significant on a regional basis.

I know that the Council isn't exactly flush and that there are problems as far as travel is concerned, but I certainly hope that you will accept this election with the understanding that you will come to the meetings if you can, and in any case, will keep us informed of your reactions to our activities.

Thanks, by the way, for your letter regarding the Committee on Education. We will discuss this along with some other problems in communication at our next Board meeting.

Sincerely,

Chas.

Dear George:

Apparently you have not yet been notified that you are a member of the Board by virtue of your election as Chairman of the Southern Region for 1953. This action was taken at the Board meeting following the Conference in Washington. Therefore, I am delighted to renew my invitation for the Board meeting in Pittsburgh on January 17th. I only hope that your budget is such that you will be able to attend this meeting. My feeling is that it will be just about the most important Board meeting of the year, inasmuch as a series of important organizational policy proposals, designed to genuinely strengthen NAIRO, are going to be discussed.

Best wishes, as always.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS
BOARD OF DIRECTORS MEETING
WILLARD HOTEL, WASHINGTON, D. C.
November 14th, 1952

BOARD MEMBERS PRESENT:

Alexander Allen, Helen Amerman, George Conley, Maurice Fagan, John Feild, Margaret Garrity, Wilfred Leland, Harold Lett, Charles Livermore, George Schermer, Myron Schwartz and Corneff Taylor. Guests: Thomasina Norford, Russell Myers, Paul Klein and Marshall Bragdon.

1. MINUTES OF PREVIOUS MEETING:

The minutes of the Executive Board Meeting, held at the Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C., on November 11th, were not available. It was agreed that they would be submitted at the next regular Board meeting for approval.

2. TREASURER'S REPORT:

Mr. Lett reported that Frank Loescher had prepared a financial statement covering NAIRO's operations between November 1st, 1951, and October 31st, 1952. A copy of that statement is attached hereto. Margaret Garrity reported that the income from the Annual Conference totalled $1408.75. Of this amount, $430.00 represented payment of dues and $211.00 represented payment of the Conference registration fee. She reported that the approximate Conference expenses were $866.17. Corneff Taylor moved acceptance of the financial report on a tentative basis. This motion was adopted unanimously. Wilfred Leland suggested that all income from the Conference, except membership dues, be used to cover the Conference expenses. George Schermer moved that membership dues and registration fees should go into the NAIRO treasury and that NAIRO underwrite any deficit in the Conference expense. Harold Lett suggested that the local sponsoring community be permitted to use the registration fees to cover Conference expenses, as an incentive to encourage local participation and support for the Conference. George Schermer argued rather that it would be a sounder procedure for NAIRO to maintain the financial accounting of the Conference separately from any local sponsoring committee's activities. George Schermer's motion was approved unanimously. In connection with the Conference management, Harold Lett moved that the Association extend its deepest appreciation to Miss Mary Pipes for her outstanding work on arrangements for the Conference. The motion was approved unanimously.

In connection with next year's NAIRO operations, Alexander Allen moved that Arnold Aronson be asked to submit a tentative budget at the next Board meeting. It was suggested that Bill Leland submit an estimate of the 1953 Conference expense to Arnold Aronson. It was also suggested that the proposed budget be shaped on the basis of experience at the Detroit Conference, the New York Conference, and the Washington Conference. George Schermer was asked to assume responsibility for obtaining summary statements on these experiences from those persons involved in the arrangements of those conferences. The motion was approved unanimously.

3. 1953 Conference Plans:

Wilfred Leland presented a report on plans to date for the 1953 Minneapolis Conference. George Schermer moved that the discussion of this Conference be limited to only the essential advance arrangements and that other aspects of Conference planning be referred to the Program Committee. Russell Myers pointed out that it was essential that certain definite decisions be taken at once to facilitate the local Planning Committee's arrangements with the University of Minnesota. George Schermer stressed that the responsibility for the content of the program should rest with the Program Committee. The motion was unanimously approved. With regard to essential advance arrangements, Harold Lett reported that the Executive Committee meeting in June had selected Justice William O. Douglass, Justice Robert H. Jackson and Mr. Charles Malik of the UN, as keynote speakers to be invited in that order. Myron Schwartz suggested that Adlai Stevenson and Justice William Black also be considered. Wilfred Leland reported that Eleanor Roosevelt, Margaret Mead, and Judge William Hastie also had been suggested. Alexander Allen moved that the Executive Committee recommendations approved in June be reconfirmed. The motion was adopted unanimously. George Schermer moved that the Conference outline submitted by Wilfred Leland be approved, subject to changes in the program content, except for the dinner and luncheon schedules. The motion was approved unanimously. Harold Lett moved that Wilfred Leland, Russell Myers and the local committee be commended for the excellent progress they are making for the 1953 Conference. The motion was approved unanimously. Harold Lett moved that the Chairman be authorized to appoint the Conference Program Chairman and Committee, with emphasis upon broad representation. The motion was approved unanimously. The Chairman suggested that each Executive Board member submit suggestions on program which can be turned over to the Program Committee. Maurice Fagan moved that an appropriate statement be drafted on the holding of the Conference in the Nation's Capitol and that it refer to the fact that the Association is heartened by the progress being made in eliminating segregation in Washington, D. C. The Chairman asked Marshall Bragdon if he would prepare such a statement.

3. 1953 CONFERENCE PLANS - cont'd

4. NAIRO COMMITTEES and REGIONAL CHAIRMEN:

The Chairman indicated that he was asking Helen Amerman to continue as Chairman of the 1952 Research Conference Committee with the suggestion that she send, as soon as possible, recommendations for any further program in this area. He also asked Miss Amerman to submit to the Board recommendations concerning the proposed Professional Journal. The Chairman asked Maurice Fagan to continue to act as Chairman of the Special Police Conference Committee. Maurice Fagan urged that President and Board name the regional Chairman at once in order that increasing emphasis be placed on regional NAIRO activity. Accordingly the President named Virginia Huebner - Mid-West; Louise Blackham - West; Mildred Mahoney - Eastern; and George Mitchell - Southern. Harold Lett moved that nominations be closed and that a unanimous ballot be cast by the Secretary. This motion was unanimously approved and the Secretary cast such a ballot.

5. LOUIS WIRTH MEMORIAL FUND:

Paul Klein reported that $18.00 was collected during the Conference for the Louis Wirth Memorial Fund. There was considerable discussion as to how this contribution might be increased. The suggestion that NAIRO membership be circularized was tabled in favor of a suggestion that the three NAIRO members who are presently on the Louis Wirth Memorial Fund Committee implement solicitation from NAIRO membership, personally, rather than in the name of the Association. Mr. George Conley stated that he would contribute an additional $32.00 to the fund, which would bring the contribution total to $50.00. This money was turned over to George Schermer, a member of the Fund Committee, for forwarding to the Fund Treasury.

6. PROPOSAL FOR AGENCY INTEREST GROUP DEPARTMENTS:

George Schermer proposed that - (a) The NAIRO Board authorize departments for Agency interest groups within NAIRO, where there is an expressed need for such a department, and - (b) That there be a session at the time of the Annual Conference for Agency interest groups at all levels. Harold Lett moved that these proposals be received without action at this time. The motion was approved unanimously.

7. STATEMENT on the 1952 ANNUAL CONFERENCE:

Alexander Allen moved that the statement prepared by Marshall Bragdon, referring to the experience of the Sixth Annual Conference held in the Nation's Capitol be approved. That statement reads as follows:

"The Board of Directors of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials welcomes the improvement of racial relations and practices in Washington, which has both marked and made possible the holding of its annual conference here.

"The Nation's workers for intergroup equality of opportunity, well aware of the handicaps remaining, praise the many citizens and officials who have strengthened democratic practices in our Nation's Capitol.

"Looking to the future, they hail and will support the pledged effort of Dwight D. Eisenhower and his administration to erase to the uttermost the remaining segregation and other discrimination in Washington. For they know, as F. Joseph Donohue, District Commissioner; and Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of National Capitol Parks of the Department of Interior, so well expressed in their welcome to the NAIRO conference, that no better, deeper defense can be built against the enemies of our way of life."

The statement was approved unanimously.

George Conley moved adjournment.

Respectfully submitted,

John G. Feild
Secretary

Meeting of Board of Directors
NAIRO
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania
January 17th, 1953.

Those present included Alexander Allen, Helen Amerman, George Conley (arrived late), Maurice Fagan, John Feild, Harold Lett, Charles Livermore, George Schermer and Corneff Taylor.

I. APPROVAL OF MINUTES

Harold Lett moved approval of the Executive Board meeting minutes of November 11th, 1952, and November 14th, 1952. APPROVED.

II. REPORT ON ADMINISTRATIVE AGREEMENT

The Chairman presented a report on the administrative agreement which had been reached between the Chairman, the Treasurer and the Secretary, during a special executive committee meeting held in New York on December 12, 1952. Harold Lett moved that the proposed administrative procedure be approved. Seconded by Helen Amerman. APPROVED. (See copy attached) George Schermer moved that the adopted administrative procedures be incorporated into an administrative manual and that all future rules of procedure, approved by the Board, be incorporated into this manual and that this manual be made available to all Board members. Seconded by Alexander Allen. APPROVED. George Schermer also moved that the fiscal year of NAIRO be established from January 1 to December 31, effective immediately. Maurice Fagan seconded. APPROVED. George Schermer moved that a study be made by the Secretary and Treasurer of the period of the dues-year and that a report be made at the next Board meeting. Maurice Fagan seconded. APPROVED. It was also suggested that a proposal for an appropriate amendment to the By-Laws on the dues question and the fiscal year be studied for submission at the next Conference.

III. PROPOSED ORGANIZATIONAL PLAN FOR NAIRO

The Chairman presented a proposed detailed plan of organization for the Association. Numerous suggested changes were made in this proposal and the corrected plan was APPROVED upon a motion by Alexander Allen, seconded by Helen Amerman. (See copy attached) In addition, the following proposals relative to this plan were adopted: Alexander Allen moved and Helen Amerman seconded that each Commission be given an instruction to include material dealing with all aspects of intergroup relations, not just non-white relations. APPROVED. Corneff Taylor moved and Maurice Fagan seconded that the membership committee be organized with one person from each Department and one vice-president from each Region. APPROVED. Maurice Fagan moved and Harold Lett seconded that a committee be set up to determine the best way to meet the problem of personnel registry. APPROVED.

IV. NAIRO REPORTER

Considerable discussion was held concerning the problem of financing the NAIRO Reporter. Based on this discussion Helen Amerman moved and George Conley seconded that (1) the Reporter be continued in its present form for the next three issues; (2) that every effort to effect economies be explored; (3) that a suitable promotional campaign be developed, aimed at encouraging both individual and bulk subscriptions; and (4) that we draw on cash reserves to continue the Reporter in a cheaper form if the above measures do not result in achieving a self-sustaining basis. APPROVED.

V. BUDGET

The attached budget was presented by the Chairman and with the above contingency concerning the NAIRO Reporter was APPROVED on a motion by Harold Lett, seconded by Maurice Fagan.

VI. CONFERENCE PLANNING

Considerable discussion was held concerning the 1953 Conference, and planning suggestions from Bill Leland and Russell Meyers were considered in some detail. On the basis of this discussion and the adoption by the Board of the new plan of organization, it was determined that the Conference planning should proceed on the basis of the following outline:

1. The outline of the Conference should provide for one day devoted to the Commissions; one day to the Departments, and at least a half-day to the committees and business of NAIRO.

2. Commission reports should be given preference for the first day's schedule.

3. Thursday should be given preference for the business meeting.

4. The local arrangements committee is authorized to extend invitations to Mr. Malik, the Lebanese delegate to the UN, and to Senator Hubert Humphrey.

The Board expressed its disapproval of discussion meetings being held in combination with meals.

VII. CORPORATE AGENT

Because of the death of Louis Wirth, it was necessary to name a new Corporate Agent. On the motion of George Schermer, seconded by Harold Lett, Helen Amerman was named the Corporate Agent and the Secretary was instructed to file the necessary papers. APPROVED.

VIII. AUTHORIZED SIGNATURES

Maurice Fagan moved, seconded by Harold Lett, that the Secretary John Feild and the Treasurer, Arnold Aronson, be authorized to sign organizational checks, with only one signature being required for validation. APPROVED.

IX. POLICE-INTERGROUP RELATIONS COMMITTEE

Maurice Fagan reported that the International Association of Police Chiefs has named a committee to undertake plans for a joint conference with NAIRO. They have named the Chiefs from Detroit, Atlanta and New Orleans. The Board APPROVED the authorization of an appropriation of $300 to the NAIRO committee for the proposed conference, on a motion by Helen Amerman, seconded by Corneff Taylor.

X. CONVENTION SITE FOR 1954

Due consideration was given to convention bids from Chicago, Atlantic City, Milwaukee, Boston and Miami Beach. It was moved by Helen Amerman and seconded by George Schermer that the convention be held in Boston, Massachusetts, in 1954.

APPROVED. Harold Lett expressed his preference for Atlantic City and Corneff Taylor indicated he wished to vote for Milwaukee. It was moved by Harold Lett, seconded by George Schermer that Mildred Mahoney be asked to serve as 1954 Chairman. APPROVED.

XI. RESEARCH COMMITTEE

The report of the Research Conference was discussed in considerable detail and it was decided that the remainder of the Field Foundation grant, totalling $134, be designated for the purchase of 134 copies of the report on the Conference, for distribution to persons working in the field. APPROVED. In addition, Harold Lett moved and George Schermer seconded, that a request for funds for another Research Conference be referred to the Finance Committee. APPROVED. It was suggested that Helen Amerman might draft such a request. In Connection with the proposed study on professional standards which had been referred to the Research Committee at the last Annual Conference, it was suggested that Helen Amerman prepare a prospectus on such a study and present it to the Finance Committee for approval. George Schermer moved, seconded by Helen Amerman, that a proposed project for a new directory be referred to the Finance Committee. APPROVED.

XII. ELECTION OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

In accordance with the By-Laws, nominations for membership on the Executive Committee for the four places other than the five officers, were opened. Due consideration was given to geographic proximity of the members on this committee and the following persons were elected:

Dan Dodson
Harold Lett
George Schermer
Maurice Fagan

XII. APPOINTMENTS TO COMMITTEES, DEPARTMENTS AND COMMISSIONS

With the advice and consent of the Executive Board, the Chairman named the following persons to the Committees:

Finance - Chairman, Dan Dodson
Members: George Schermer, Arnold Aronson, Margaret Garrity, John Sullivan, Harold Lett, Charles Livermore

Publications - Chairman, Arnold Aronson
Members: James Evans, Arnold Forster, James W. Ivy, Mildred Mahoney, John Sullivan, Marshall Bragdon

Conference Arrangements - Chairman, Wilfred Leland

Non-Professional Leadership - Chairman, George Conley

Inter-Professional Relations - Chairman, Maurice Fagan

Resolutions - Chairman, Margaret Garrity
Members: Will Maslow, Frank Baldau

Membership - Chairman, Corneff Taylor

The following persons were named to the Departments:

Local Public Services - Chairman, George Schermer
Local and State Private Services - Chairman, Myron Schwartz
State Public Services - Chairman, Harold Lett
Federal Services - Chairman, George Nesbitt
National Private Services - Chairman, Harold Moss
Research Services - Chairman, Helen Amerman

The following persons were named to the Commissions:

Education - discussion of the chairmanship will be undertaken with H. H. Giles, Louis Raths.

Manpower Utilization - discussion of the chairmanship of this Commission will be undertaken with Murray Lewis.

Nature, Scope and Theory of Intergroup Relations - discussion of the chairmanship of this Commission will be undertaken with Robert MacIver.

Civil Rights - discussion of the chairmanship of this Commission will be undertaken with Clarence Mitchell.

Housing and Family Life - undetermined.

XIV. STATEMENT ON FEDERAL RACE RELATIONS SERVICES

After considerable discussion of the statement which the annual meeting instructed should be sent to President Eisenhower, regarding the Federal Race Relations Service, the following motion was made by Harold Lett, seconded by George Schermer: that the letter addressed to President Eisenhower should be based on the following considerations:

1. that the race relations services in the various Federal agencies be continued; that they have proved their value in -

   a. providing more equitable participation of minority groups in the services extended by the Federal agencies, and

   b. in that they have resulted in the increased employment of qualified minority persons in the Federal agencies, as well as increasing the manpower potential of our Country.

2. that there are at least eight or nine agencies that have programs serving masses of consumers, which could well afford to develop a competent race relations service.

3. the operation and conduct of the personnel in the race relations service has come to be based on high professional standards.

This motion was APPROVED with the instruction that the Chairman prepare the appropriate letter.

XV. ADJOURNMENT

Harold Lett moved that the Board express its appreciation to Alexander Allen and the Pittsburgh League for their courtesy in arranging facilities for the Board meeting, and that the meeting be adjourned.

Respectfully submitted,

John G. Feild
Secretary

AGREEMENT REGARDING ADMINISTRATION

The following represents the administrative agreement among the officers of the Association and the recommendation for a fiscal year to correspond with the calendar year.

(1) Administration

A.- Secretary:

1. Will maintain records of the Association in appropriate files, and will report all business conducted by Association to regular Board meetings.

2. Will maintain up-to-date list of the membership and be responsible for billing membership for dues.

3. Will forward all money received to treasurer.

4. Will produce all mimeographed publications.

5. Will maintain and be center for distribution of all mimeographed publications and non-periodical publications.

6. Will provide chairman of publications committee with lists of people to be added to regular distribution list and those to be removed from list in accordance with agreed upon policy of Association.

7. Will issue at the direction of the president, or the Board, or the Executive Committee such reports or bulletins as they may authorize to the membership.

8. Shall maintain a file of jobs and job-seekers (to be notified of job openings). No NAIRO recommendations shall be made.

ALL PERSONS CONDUCTING CORRESPONDENCE IN BEHALF OF THE ASSOCIATION OR OTHERWISE USING THE LETTERHEAD OF THE ASSOCIATION WILL SEND COPIES OF THIS CORRESPONDENCE TO THE SECRETARY AND TO THE PRESIDENT. SUPPLIES OF STATIONERY ARE AVAILABLE FROM THE SECRETARY.

B.- Treasurer:

1. Will receive all funds receivable to NAIRO or to any of its committees or activities and will maintain them in one account in a bank of his selection, except as authorized by the Board.

2. Will pay expenses of the Association in accordance with and not exceeding amounts authorized for the various purposes of the Association as approved in budget adopted by the Board. Any payments not in accordance with these appropriations must be approved by the president.

3. Will provide the secretary and the editor of the Reporter and others that may be designated from time to time with revolving funds which shall be replenished from time to time in accordance with the budget and upon receipt by the treasurer of the appropriate vouchers.

4. Shall provide the president with regular monthly reports of the state of the treasury and the condition of the budget.

5. Shall serve on the finance committee of the Association and work with this committee in developing a fiscal plan for the Association.

6. Shall seek to develop a plan during the year 1953 whereby the fiscal year of the Association may become the calendar year in order to give the new president each year an opportunity to submit a plan for the financing of the Association.

7. Will make financial reports to the Association on a regular basis.

C - President:

1. Will coordinate the activities of the various departments, committees, and commissions, and will keep the membership informed of these activities.

2. Will carry out and report on the activities authorized by the membership and the Board.

3. Will authorize all releases in behalf of the organization to the public.

4. Will prepare or assure reports on all phases of the Association's activities to the Board meetings and will submit agendas.

5. Will prepare a budget for the organization for the fiscal year following his election.

(2) It is recommended that the fiscal year of NAIRO will be from January 1 to December 31.

PROPOSED BUDGET FOR NAIRO FOR 1953

As the report of the treasurer shows, the finances of the organization are in good shape. A standard form for financial reports will help us see the progress we are making a little more clearly. Following are some objectives for the coming year:

1. The improvement of the financial management of the organization.

2. The maintenance of the $1500.00 cushion we now have accrued from past economies in administration. We should live within our income.

3. The increase in that income by the sale of more types of literature and to seek foundation help.

4. The development of a more effective secretary's office, looking to the time when we can finance a full time office. I hope we can improve communication in the organization by developing this office and making it possible for the secretary to employ a part time assistant.

5. I think we should be able to make the annual conference self-supporting and possibly make a little on it.

6. The Reporter can be published in its present form only by obtaining large bulk subscriptions as we have in the past. There is no reason to believe that they will not be continued by the League, and the NAACP.

With these objectives, the following budget is presented for 1953. In order to simplify our bookkeeping, it is recommended that the calendar year be adopted as our fiscal and budgetary year.

I. Estimated Income - 1953

(1)	Dues	$1500.00
(2)	Agency Memberships	400.00
(3)	Conference	200.00
(4)	Publication Sales
	(a) Reporter	2200.00
	(b) Other Publications	500.00
		4800.00

II. Recommended Appropriations - 1953

(1)	Administration	$1500.00
(2)	Conference
(3)	Publications
	(a) Reporter	2500.00
	(b) Other
(4)	Special Projects	500.00
	Total	$4500.00

Dear Arnie:

The February 1953 issue of the REPORTER is the best one yet! The State news was most interesting (and terribly difficult, I am sure, to get together), the notes in general were fresh, and the report about the contract compliance business excellent.

All praises!

Dear Mr. Feild:

I do wish I could be at the NAIRO Board meeting April 23 and 24, but unfortunately, I have a longstanding previous engagement--requiring me to be in Richmond and in Washington parts of both days. If I tried to squeeze in New York, I think I would make chicken tracks and get nowhere!

I'm sorry, because I always learn a lot at the Board meetings.

TO: Members of the Board of NAIRO,
Department Chairmen, and Commission Chairmen

FROM: Charles Livermore

As you have learned from John Feild, an excellent attendance is expected for the Board meeting in New York. I believe that real progress will be apparent to everyone. At the same time, there will be a number of difficult problems to work out.

May I ask you please:

(1) To have your reports written out. It will save a great amount of time for the secretary.

(2) If you are not able to attend, please mail your report to John Feild so that it may be presented. Send it to him care of Hortense Gabel, 35 West 32nd Street, New York 1, New York.

(3) Attached is the agenda.

Almost every part of our organization is functioning. Remaining, however, are budgetary problems regarding the REPORTER, which were tabled from the last meeting, and problems relating to the financing of projects which have been recommended previously. Some of the conflicts between Board planning and Conference planning have been resolved due to the excellent work and cooperation of the Minneapolis committee, and I think we can expect an excellent conference as a real culmination of our year's work - but, it will take considerable responsibility on the part of the members of the Board, and the Department and Commission heads.

It is my hope that we can complete our business on Wednesday and devote Thursday to some hard thinking about the conference content.

Will Leland will not be with us, but a member of his Committee, Irwin Glatstein, will be. Every report is important, however, to the proper development of the organization.

SAVE Thursday night for a social gathering.

DRIVE CAREFULLY and love that neighbor.

Let us hear from all upon the meeting.

Dear George:

I have been very interested to note that Negroes have been elected to office in a number of Southern communities during recent weeks. It seems to me that a summary of such elections, an analysis of the extent to which they resulted from bloc voting and an interpretation of their significance in terms of trends and political realignments would provide some very worthwhile material for the readers of NAIRO Reporter.

I know of no one who is as well equipped to do this job as you. If you can possibly spare the time, therefore, I would very much appreciate an article for the June issue of from 600 to 1,000 words. Our deadline is May 29.

As you may know, the FEPC hearings have been postponed until January. I hope that we will be able to line up some witnesses from the South before that time. Many thanks for your help.

Regards.

Meeting of the Board of Directors
Boston, Massachusetts, November 16, 1954

The meeting was called to order at 8:00 p.m. by the Chairman, Mr. Charles Livermore. Board members present included Alexander Allen, Helen Amerman, Louise Blackham, Joseph Coles, John Feild, William Gremley, Virginia Huebner, Paul Klein, Wilfred Leland, Jr., Harold Lett, Charles Livermore, Herman Long, Fritz Pollard, Myron Schwartz and Corneff Taylor. Others present included Committee Chairmen: Arnold Aronson, Publications; Maurice Fagan, Inter-professional Relations; Mildred Mahoney and Thomas Heffernan, Conference Arrangements; Departmental Chairmen: Marshall Bragdon, Municipal Services; Maurice Moss, National Private Services; Commission Chairmen: Richard Marks, Employment; Eleanor Dungan, Education; George Schermer, Theory; Joseph Robison (Secretary) Civil Rights; NAIRO Reporter Editor, Samuel Spiegler; and guests: John Buckley, Boston; John Laub, Detroit, and Mrs. John Feild, Toledo.

I. Minutes of Previous Meeting

The Secretary read the minutes of the Board meeting of August 13th and 14th. Mr. Livermore asked that the minutes be corrected by the deletion of all but the first sentence in Section IX. Myron Schwartz MOVED, William Gremley seconded the approval of the minutes as corrected. ADOPTED.

II. Old Business

A. Fund for the Republic Grant Application

The Chairman reported that NAIRO's request for a 3-year, $80,000 grant from the Fund for the Republic had been rejected by the Fund. He stated that he had conferred with Mr. David Freeman, Executive Assistant to the Fund, who explained that the Fund seemed willing to consider the resubmission of requests from the Association for specific projects, but did not seem inclined to approve a grant for general operations as had been submitted by the Association.

B. Research Conference Proceedings

Helen Amerman reported that a further offer from Phylon Magazine for the publication of the 1953 Research Conference Proceedings had been under discussion, but that printing costs for the entire proceedings had proved impractical. Herman Long commented that there appeared to be two alternatives which Phylon Magazine might consider: a summarized version of the Proceedings or the publication of certain selected papers. Following further discussion of this problem, Helen Amerman offered to put the Research Conference papers (excluding the discussions) on stencils if other agencies would cooperate in running them off, assembling them, and having them bound. Miss Amerman MOVED that this procedure be adopted, Virginia Huebner seconded and the motion was APPROVED. Myron Schwartz, Virginia Huebner, Louise Blackham, Maurice Fagan, Marshall Bragdon, Alexander Allen, William Gremley and Charles Livermore agreed to cooperate with Miss Amerman.

C. Local Public Services Study

Helen Amerman reported that the study made during 1953 of local public agencies would not be published in the Journal of Human Relations as previously reported, but indicated that through the cooperation of the American Jewish Congress this study would be mimeographed for NAIRO distribution. Marshall Bragdon reported that a study of local public agency personnel practices had been completed and would be presented at the Conference. Mr. Allen suggested that an announcement of the availability of this study be carried in the NAIRO Reporter.

D. 1953 Conference Proceedings

The Chairman reported that Will Leland had completed the assignment made at the August Board meeting to process and publish the 1953 Conference Proceedings in mimeographed form and that these Proceedings had been mailed to the entire membership. Mr. Leland reported that the cost of the binding was approximately $105 and Mr. Feild MOVED and Mr. Long seconded that an appropriation for this expenditure be authorized. APPROVED. Marshall Bragdon MOVED, Virginia Huebner seconded, that the Board express its appreciation and commendation to Mr. Leland and his local committee for doing an excellent job for the Association. APPROVED.

E. Police Conference

Maurice Fagan reported that the reaction to the first Police Conference, held in Philadelphia in April of this year, had been enthusiastic. Following approval by the Board in August of a second conference, Mr. Fagan stated that he had discussed joint sponsorship with Mr. Roy Wike, the Executive Secretary of the International Police Chiefs Association, on October 13th. Mr. Fagan reported that no definite commitment had been received from Mr. Wike, but that he had expressed a strong interest in the project. Mr. Fagan stated that the National Conference of Christians and Jews was scheduling a Community Police Conference on a national basis for May of 1955, and expressed the belief that this would preclude the holding of a second NAIRO Conference too close to that time. He stated that he would continue to develop plans for such a conference at a later date, however.

F. Non-professional Leadership

Herman Long reported that following approval at the Board meeting in January of a project to solicit greater participation on the part of board members of agencies in the intergroup relations field, Corneff Taylor and the Secretary, Mr. Feild, had succeeded in assembling lists of some 1200 such persons. About half of this list has been circularized and the others will be circularized in the near future. Considerable interest has been developed through this means and a great many memberships have begun to come in. Mr. Long raised the question of what form of organization should be set up for this committee. Mr. Fagan expressed concern that setting up a special unit of lay members would change the professional character of the Association. Others commented, however, that such a committee could be useful in getting initial participation of board members, who might then work through the various Departments and Commissions. Further discussion of this committee resulted in agreement that the effort to solicit memberships should continue and that a special meeting of such persons at this Conference might be held to explore with them additional suggestions. The question of the form and organization of the Non-professional Leadership Committee was referred to the new Board.

G. Mid-West Region Activity

Mr. Paul Klein reported that he had arranged a meeting, as Mid-West Regional Chairman of NAIRO, of the Federal Procurement Officers in Cleveland, to discuss implementation of the procedures being formulated by the President's Committee on Government Contracts. He also reported that he had written to several national union officials, as requested by the Board in August, attempting to interest the labor civil rights representatives in the activities of the Association.

H. UNESCO Membership Application

Mr. Gremley reported that NAIRO's application for membership on the UNESCO Advisory Panel had been rejected. He stated that only 6 organizations are selected each year and that there were more than 60 applications submitted during the year. He requested the Board to determine whether it wishes to continue its application. Mr. Bragdon MOVED and Virginia Huebner seconded, that the NAIRO application be continued. Mr. Klein MOVED and Mr. Feild seconded, that this action be tabled until the next Board meeting. ADOPTED.

III, New Business

A. Conference Arrangements

The Chairman commented that the advance preparations for the Conference, under the leadership of Mildred Mahoney and Thomas Heffernan, had been made with a great deal of care and seemed to be excellent in every respect. He suggested that inasmuch as the program schedule was very tight and that the number of panel participants seemed to be quite large, that it might be advisable to designate time-keepers for the commission discussions. Myron Schwartz MOVED and Harold Lett seconded that time-keepers be appointed and that the Commission Chairmen be given a time signal when one hour of the allotted period remained and that panel presentations be completely cut off at 45 minutes before the end of each session, in order to allow adequate time for floor discussion. ADOPTED. The Chairman asked the two Vice-Presidents, Virginia Huebner and Alexander Allen, to serve as time-keepers.

B. Next Board Meeting

It was agreed that the new Board would meet on Friday, January 19th, at 8:30 a.m.

C. Professional Standards Committee

Mr. Alexander Allen reported that the report of this Committee would be mimeographed and distributed to the Board prior to the business meeting for its review. He briefly outlined the content of the report and it was agreed that mimeographed copies would also be available at the business meeting for the entire membership.

D. Philadelphia NAIRO Activity

Maurice Fagan reported that Philadelphia members of NAIRO had adopted a practice of meeting three or four times a year on an informal basis and that these meetings had proved interesting and worthwhile. He also reported that they had resulted in obtaining additional memberships in NAIRO. Helen Amerman commented that on two or three special occasions such meetings had also been held in Chicago and suggested that the new Board might consider the question of local chapter activity.

The meeting was adjourned at 10:30 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,

John G. Feild
Secretary

MINUTES OF NAIRO BUSINESS MEETING
SHERATON-PLAZA HOTEL, BOSTON MASSACHUSETTS
November 18, 1954

The meeting was called to order at 3:30 p.m., Mr. Charles Livermore, President, presiding. There were 65 members present.

I. APPROVAL OF MINUTES

The Chair called for the approval of the minutes of the Business Meeting held in Minneapolis, Minnesota, November 12, 1953. Mr. Joseph Coles MOVED, Miss Helen Amerman seconded, that the minutes be approved as mailed. ADOPTED.

II. NOMINATIONS FOR OFFICERS AND MEMBERS OF THE BOARD

The Chair called upon Mr. Arnold Aronson, Chairman, Nominations Committee, to deliver his report. Mr. Aronson reported that he had met with the following members of the Nominations Committee: Miss Margaret Garrity, Mrs. Hortense Gabel, Mr. Maurice Fagan and Mr. George Schermer. Only Mr. George Conley had been absent. Mr. Aronson stated that the terms of the following members of the Board had expired: Mr. Alexander Allen, Mr. Dan Dodson, Mr. James Evans, Mr. Wilfred Leland, Mr. Harold Lett and Mr. Herman Long. The Committee submitted the following named persons as nominees for membership on the Board of Directors, whose terms would expire November, 1957:

Marshall Bragdon
George Culberson
S. Andhil Fineberg
Paul Klein
Herman Long
Louis Radelet

Mr. Aronson MOVED, Janet Smith seconded, that the Secretary be instructed to cast a unanimous ballot for those nominated. ADOPTED. The Secretary so cast his ballot.

Mr. Aronson next reported the Committee recommendations for nominations for officers for 1955 as follows:

Marshall Bragdon, President-elect
Frank Horne, Vice-President
Myron Schwartz, Vice-President
John Feild, Secretary
Corneff Taylor, Treasurer.

Mr. Aronson MOVED, C. F. Motz seconded, that the Secretary be instructed to cast a unanimous ballot for those nominated. ADOPTED. The Secretary so cast his ballot.

Mr. Aronson next reported the Committee recommendations for nominations for persons to serve on the Nominations Committee in 1955, as follows:

R. Maurice Moss, Chairman
Virginia Coffey
John Hope
Harold Lett
Charles Livermore
Mildred Mahoney

Mr. Aronson MOVED, John Sullivan seconded, that the Secretary be instructed to cast a unanimous ballot for those nominated. ADOPTED. The Secretary so cast his ballot

III. REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON PERSONNEL STANDARDS

The Chair called upon Mr. Alexander J. Allen, Chairman, Committee on Personnel Standards, to submit the report of his Committee. Mr. Allen then read the attached report. Following his reading of the Report, Mr. Allen invited discussion from the floor. The following is a brief summary of the comments made. They are being set forth in this fashion in the interest of reviewing the range of discussion that surrounded this Committee report.

Moss -- Stated that the membership should extend a vote of thanks to the Committee for its apparent conscientious efforts on a complex problem.

Muravchik -- Stated that academic training was only partially relevant.

Nesbitt -- Stated that consideration should be given to continuing training.

Klein -- Questioned what would be the effect of approving this report.

Chair -- Stated that this would be an organizational policy that must be implemented by the Board.

Coles -- Stated that he agreed with Muravchik that academic qualifications seem to have been given too much emphasis in the report.

Henderson -- Stated that there was great need for objective standards, but that academic qualifications can be offset by other abilities. Suggested possibility of inserting an "escape clause".

Allen -- Commented that the standards being recommended are minimum.

Robison -- Stated that the adoption of this report carried with it the assumption that these standards would be publicized and recommended to agencies as a guide. He questioned whether such a guide could be applied where non-professional criteria were being used by agencies or whether it would be used in private as well as public agencies.

Chair -- Commented that the question of private and public agency differences had been considered by the Committee.

Long -- Stated that the experience factor might be interpreted to include experience in a variety of organized group activities; that "personal characteristics" might be defined to include "commitment to the objectives of the field"; and he questioned why sex and race had not specifically been excluded.

Allen -- Called Mr. Long's attention to paragraph two.

Schermer -- Stated that there are basic differences between public and private agencies. Private agencies tend more toward professional background in selecting personnel. Public agencies need a reasonable set of minimum standards to serve as a guide. Would be supported by those eager to keep agencies non-political.

Schwartz -- Stated that in attempting to define personnel standards there was an implicit definition of the field itself. Stated that there was need to protect the professional worker and at the same time to raise standards of work in the field. Perhaps there is need for more definition of what constitutes good professional work. Stated that report was a good beginning but doubted that NAIRO was ready to adopt.

Motz -- Stated that there was obvious need to set standards that are an accurate measure of the professional abilities and skills that are needed. Agreed with Long that there was need to measure or include factor of commitment and outlook of worker.

Horne -- Stated that the limitations of the report were the limitations of the various agencies working in the field. There is not much clarity within the agencies, themselves, and there is need to analyze what skills, what backgrounds, what abilities have been effective. Also the need to bring apprentices into the field, perhaps from a variety of backgrounds.

A. Miller -- Stated that he agreed strongly with Frank Horne. Urged that NAIRO consider setting standards for membership as well as standards for agencies. Suggested further consideration. Also suggested the need to set standards for election of board members.

Allen -- Pointed out that there was nothing in the recommendation that would threaten anyone who had been working in the field for a couple of years. Stated that the Committee recognized the need for further consideration of the problem but had formulated recommendations as a basis for initial discussion by the membership.

Aronson -- Stated that he believed this report was the most significant topic presented to the Conference. Stated that the problem was complicated by the fact that there were different requirements for different jobs. Also that the profession itself needed better definition i.e. an objective body of knowledge that can be transmitted. Emphasized the need to take action in instances where workers are fired without cause. Urged further consideration of problem.

Livermore -- Pointed out that the Committee on Personnel Standards was one of NAIRO's oldest committees and was established before any particular incident had arisen.

Taylor -- Stated that he agreed with Arnie Aronson that this was one of the most important discussions at the Conference. Indicated that he believed the field had developed far enough to establish a few minimum standards that could serve as a guide for further development, especially in helping new agencies set standards.

Gremley -- Pointed out that the recommendations are not rigid but should be viewed as suggestions. Stated that he was opposed to the phrase, "elimination of right to substitute experience for training".

Allen -- Commented that that phrase referred to a future development.

Leland -- Stated that perhaps "training in related fields" could be added to qualifications definition.

Fineberg -- Stated that there was great need for a "floor" of minimum standards. Predicted that if this report was not adopted this year that it would not be adopted in another five years. NAIRO has to take action at some point on this problem.

Bragdon -- Urged that further discussion of this problem be undertaken at the Departmental meetings. Urged the setting of November 1955 as a goal for the adoption of some minimum standards.

Moss -- Stated that it was his view that this report was being submitted as a basis for initiating discussion. Urged further consideration during the year. Commented that perhaps the word "paid" could be eliminated in connection with experience.

Lett -- Pointed out that agencies are already exercising some kind of standards. Stated that there seemed to be some fear that these standards would threaten some of those now working in field. Pointed out that they would apply to those coming into field or to those seeking advancement. Commented that the idea of "commitment" referred to by several members would have to be spelled out more clearly, perhaps on basis of demonstrated action by worker.

Fagan -- Stated that this is the kind of problem which needs to be given regular consideration over a period of years. Expressed the belief that the field was not as vague as it has been described but that certainly the first statement of standards ought to be carefully considered. Need for widest possible agreement on statement before it is adopted.

Livermore -- Pointed out that this Report was an attempt to start a full scale discussion, not to push adoption. Pointed out that any action on standards must be taken at a membership meeting and could not be adopted by the Board. Listed the following alternatives:

1. Adopt the Report
2. Amend the report and adopt.
3. Table the report until the second business session.
4. Refer the Report back to the Committee.

Herman Long MOVED, Alexander Allen seconded, that the report be accepted and that it and the comments and discussion be referred to the Board for appropriate action and that the subject be brought back to the membership for final action. ADOPTED UNANIMOUSLY.

Marshall Bragdon MOVED, Helen Amerman seconded, that this meeting request each of the Departments to bring this subject up for discussion during their meetings. ADOPTED.

IV. RECESS

Myron Schwartz MOVED, Joseph Coles seconded, that the meeting be recessed until Friday afternoon, November 19, 1954. ADOPTED.

(The Second Business Session was opened at 4:30 p.m., with the President, Mr. Charles Livermore, presiding. Thirty members present.)

V. REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON INTER-PROFESSIONAL RELATIONS

The Chair called upon Maurice Fagan, Chairman, Committee on Inter-Professional Relations, for a report from his Committee. Mr. Fagan reported that his committee had been giving emphasis to three fields: police, education, and recreation. He reported on the encouraging results of the first Police-Community Relations Conference sponsored by NAIRO in Philadelphia, April 8-9, 1954. He indicated that widespread interest had been developed among police officials throughout the country. He reported that police officials in Washington, D.C., had publicly acknowledged that they had altered their police training program as a result of the conference, even though they had not attended; had only read the conference reports. Mr. Fagan further reported that he had met with the new Executive Director of the International Association of Chiefs of Police and the latter had indicated his willingness to cooperate as soon as he gets himself oriented to his new job. George Mitchell MOVED, Margaret Garrity seconded, that the report be accepted with thanks and commendation to the Committee. ADOPTED.

Helen Amerman MOVED that the Committee be instructed to work closely with the Commission on Education in planning activities with educators. Although there was no second to this motion, Mr. Fagan indicated that he would make every effort to cooperate with the Commission on Education. Mr. Fagan indicated that his committee was now in the process of developing thinking as to ways and means of undertaking joint planning with other professional groups.

VI. REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON PUBLICATIONS

In view of the absence of Arnold Aronson, Chairman, Committee on Publications, the Chair commented that it might be well to have comments on the problem of the Reporter's content. The Chair indicated that everyone seemed to agree that an excellent, factual, objective job has been done on various issues of general significance. He stated, however, that the question of including internal association news in the Reporter had been raised. He also pointed out that the Departments and Commissions had submitted very little news concerning their activities for publication in the Reporter. George Mitchell MOVED, Maurice Fagan seconded, that the Publications Committee make every attempt to include occasional internal news concerning NAIRO affairs. ADOPTED.

VII. REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON NON-PROFESSIONAL LEADERSHIP.

The Chair asked Herman Long, acting Chairman of the Committee on Non-Professional Leadership, to report on the activities of this Committee. Mr. Long reported that the Committee had greatly extended its program this year in an effort to recruit additional agency board personnel into NAIRO membership. Nearly 1000 letters were directed to such persons through the assistance of the Secretary and Corneff Taylor, Chairman of the Membership Committee. Mr. Long commented that it was apparent from the response that professional workers could well afford to give their board members a little more information about NAIRO. Membership response was most encouraging, however, and additional effort along this line is planned for the coming year. George Mitchell MOVED, Margaret Garrity seconded, that the report be accepted. ADOPTED.

VIII. REPORT OF MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE

The Chair called upon Corneff Taylor, Chairman of the Membership Committee, for a report on the activities of that Committee. In his absence, the Chair reported that NAIRO had grown from 187 members two years ago, to 290 at the present time. He indicated that the outlook for the present was good and that many members were actively helping out on this part of NAIRO's growth. George Mitchell inquired how many members had their dues paid by their agency. Over half of those present responded affirmatively. Mildred Mahoney MOVED, Herman Long seconded, that the report be accepted. ADOPTED.

IX. REPORT OF RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE

In the absence of the Chairman of this Committee, Frank Baldau, the Chair called for resolutions from the floor. Mr. Maurice Fagan MOVED that NAIRO hails the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court of the United States declaring segregated education in the U.S. to be unconstitutional and contrary to the best ideals and interests of the U.S. We note with deep gratitude that the overwhelming response of organizations and school systems all over the country has been positive and cooperative. We call upon educators, civic and religious groups, as well as intergroup organizations to combine their resources and skills to bring about the earlist possible integration of schools and the development of close and democratic relations among all pupils, teachers, school administrators, and between schools and the public. America once more has demonstrated to the world that the ills of democracy can be cured best by more democracy. NAIRO offers its full support and services in the effort to bring about integration in education and good human relations in and through the schools of our nation. Virginia Huebner seconded. ADOPTED UNANIMOUSLY.

X. TREASURER'S REPORT

The attached report was submitted by Harold Lett, Treasurer. The Chair commented that this past year the Association had lived within its approved budget for the first time. He stressed however, that the financial need was greater than ever before, in view of the fact that our surplus is at an all time low. George Mitchell MOVED approval of the report. Margaret Garrity seconded. ADOPTED.

XI. REPORT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE

Mildred Mahoney, Co-Chairman with Thomas Heffernan of the Conference Committee, stated that the Boston NAIRO people had enjoyed having the Conference and expressed the hope that it would serve to stimulate intergroup relations activity in the coming year. Margaret Garrity MOVED, Wilfred Leland seconded, that the Association express its deep gratitude to Mrs. Mahoney, Mr. Heffernan, and all the others that had contributed to the success of the conference. ADOPTED.

XII. DEPARTMENTAL REPORTS

Representatives of the various departments were asked to comment briefly on the activities of their Departments during the year. None of the departments submitted specific recommendations for action by the membership, but all reported better organization and increased activity during the year.

XIII. OTHER BUSINESS

Herman Long, NAIRO President for 1955, MOVED, seconded by Marshall Bragdon, that the Association extend its warmest thanks to the retiring President, Mr. Charles Livermore, for his leadership during the past two years, for his unselfish giving of himself, his stimulating ideas, creativeness, sincerity and dedication to the goals of NAIRO. UNANIMOUSLY ADOPTED. Mr. Livermore responded by expressing his appreciation to all those that had helped during the past two years. He pointed out that he had only been prevailed upon to accept re-election for a second term because his choice, and that of most NAIROANS, had been Herman Long, who had been unable to accept a year ago. He emphasized, in conclusion, that what had been accomplished thus far was only a beginning and that the steps yet to be taken would be the challenge that would enable NAIRO to realize its potential.

XIV. ADJOURNMENT

George Mitchell MOVED, Margaret Garrity seconded, that the meeting stand adjourned. ADOPTED.

Respectfully submitted,

John G. Feild

Cambridge, Massachusetts, is pleased to reprint:

what NAIRO means to me

presented by
DR. GORDON W. ALLPORT
NAIRO Conference,
November 18th, 1954
Boston, Massachusetts

"To me NAIRO* symbolizes the abrupt and inspiring advance that is occurring in American democracy today. NAIRO serves notice upon the dark forces of racial and religious prejudice in our land that they will henceforth meet more solid and more skillful opposition than ever before. It serves notice that our American ideals are now, more actively than ever before, in the process of realization.

"NAIRO did not create the ideals for which it stands. Those ideals were created in part by George Washington when he prayed, 'Almighty God, we make our earnest prayer that Thou wilt ..... incline the hearts of the citizens .. to entertain a brotherly affection and love for one another.' They were created in part by Thomas Jefferson when he wrote, 'I have sworn upon the altar of God eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man.' They were created by Abraham Lincoln when he warned that this nation cannot survive half slave and half free.

"Basing its purposes upon such expressions of the American creed, NAIRO agrees with William James that 'Ideals ought to aim at the transformation of reality - nothing less!'

"NAIRO believes ideals can best succeed in transforming the uglier side of our national reality by using the professional skills and scientific knowledge. NAIRO utilizes the findings of social and psychological science and stands ready to utilize its findings more fully when newer discoveries are made. When exhortation is needed NAIRO enlists eloquent voices and persuasive communication. When the equality of all citizens can be promoted by legislation NAIRO joins with like-minded organizations, to obtain and enforce legislation that implements the American ideal. When our communities through their schools, churches, police forces, industries, and voluntary organizations can be brought to improve human relationships NAIRO works to this end.

"At all times NAIRO seeks to create conditions that lead to trustful human contacts, realizing that the American way of life is predicated above all else upon mutual trust, and upon the belief that every person merits respect, - never because of his tribal, class or creedal membership, but for himself alone.

"NAIRO joins its strength to that of all movements in the world today that seek to win the battle for the integrity and growth of the human spirit against the threatening tides of totalitarian tyranny. It believes that a demonstration of viable and progressive democracy in the United States will do more at this time to establish the way of peace and hope for the human family than will any other form of action.

"NAIRO knows that its goal is high and the obstacles to its achievement great. It draws courage from the fact that intelligent planning and professional knowledge have vastly improved the physical health of the nation. It is committed to the proposition that enlightened policy and professional skill can similarly improve the social health of the nation, and in so doing have beneficial effects upon all mankind."

Meeting of the Board of Directors
National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials
Boston, Massachusetts, November 19, 1954

The meeting was called to order by the Chairman, Mr. Herman Long, and the following Board members were present: Helen Amerman, Marshall Bragdon, Joseph Coles, George Culberson, John Feild, Dr. S. Andhil Fineberg, William Gremley, Frank Horne, Virginia Huebner, Paul Klein, Charles Livermore, Herman Long, Will Maslow, Fritz Pollard, Louis Radelet, Myron Schwartz, and Corneff Taylor. Mrs. Mildred Mahoney, Maurice Fagan and Harold Lett were also present.

I. Election of Regional Chairmen

Following considerable discussion, the following persons were elected Regional Chairmen: East, Thomas Heffernan, Civic Improvement Commission, Boston; South, Fredrick Routh, Southern Regional Council, Atlanta, Georgia; Mid-West, Wilfred Leland, Jr., FEPC, Minneapolis, Minnesota; West, Louise Blackham, Civic Unity Council, Seattle, Washington.

II. Proceedings and Commission Reports

The Secretary raised the question of establishing a price for the sale of 1953 Conference Proceedings and the 1954 Commission Reports. It was agreed that a price of $2.00 would be established for the Proceedings and $1.00 for the Commission Reports.

III. Next Board Meeting

It was agreed that the next meeting of the Board would be held in Chicago, Illinois, in January, and that the Secretary would poll the Board to determine the most suitable dates.

IV. 1956 Conference Committee

The Chairman appointed a committee to review the selection of the 1956 Conference site, consisting of Frank Horne, Chairman, Louis Radelet and Harold Lett. This committee was requested to make a report to the Board meeting in January.

V. Appreciation for Clerical Assistance

Joseph Coles MOVED and Marshall Bragdon seconded that the Association extend its sincere appreciation and gratitude to Mrs. Arline Vernier and Mrs. Isabel Alden of the Toledo Board of Community Relations staff for their assistance to the Association during the past two years, and the President and Treasurer were instructed to review the Association's financial ability to extend token remuneration for this assistance. APPROVED.

VI. Appreciation for Conference Arrangements

The Board unanimously extended its appreciation to Mrs. Mildred Mahoney and Mr. Thomas Heffernan for their generous and excellent efforts on behalf of the 1954 Conference. The President was instructed to address a letter to the boards of the agencies for which these persons work, expressing this appreciation. The Board also unanimously expressed its appreciation to the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews for their generous financial support of the 1954 Conference.

VII. Inter-professional Relations Committee

It was suggested that the Inter-professional Relations Committee establish three sub-committees on Police, Education, and Recreation. It was also suggested that the Committee consider holding the second Police Conference in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, in March of 1956.

VIII. Review of NAIRO Structure

The Board agreed that a review of the NAIRO structure should be undertaken and that a discussion of this problem be placed on the agenda for the next Board meeting. Herman Long, Marshall Bragdon and Louis Radelet were asked to review the experience of the past two years and report at the January Board meeting.

The meeting was adjourned at 10:00 a.m.

Respectfully,

John G. Feild, Secretary

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON PERSONNEL STANDARDS

The assignment to this committee is to develop a statement or statements of training and experience qualifications which should be required of candidates for appointment to professional positions in the intergroup relations field. This assignment grew out of an increasing concern on the part of NAIRO members and board members about specific situations in which factors other than training and experience were the deciding factors in appointments to strategic positions.

These "factors other than training and experience" can be indicated by the assumptions that, in varying situations, the intergroup relations worker must be a Republican or a Democrat (and in some cases must be actively working at it); or must be a local resident, not an out-of-towner (or must be an out-of-towner); or must be white, gentile and a protestant, preferably of north European stock.

Our report is based upon the assumption that, except in unusual instances which we will indicate, these are all non-performance factors and that competent performance in the intergroup relations field is based upon professional training, experience and ability.

It is recognized that a yardstick of training and experience of the type we are attempting, if it is to serve a useful purpose, must be interpreted and sold to lay board members and appointing officers on the strength of its value in improving the calibre of personnel and service of the intergroup relations agency with which they are connected. This will necessarily be a long term process and will require some continuing NAIRO structure for this purpose.

Procedure

It was the thinking of Charles Livermore, NAIRO president, that a statement of training and experience could best be drawn up out of the collective thinking of the various departments. Accordingly, the chairman of each department was assigned to service on this committee and asked to submit his own views and gather and transmit the views of his department members on the subject. A memorandum and letter of explanation and transmittal went to each department head in April of this year with copies to the president and secretary. The questions posed were the following:

1. What training qualifications should be required for intergroup relations work generally? Undergraduate specialization? Graduate training?

2. What training qualifications should be required for intergroup relations work of the type covered by your own department? (For example, are there special training qualifications for work in the local public field as distinct from the general intergroup relations field?)

3. What experience qualifications should a person possess for professional work in the intergroup relations field? On the professional level but not in a supervisory or executive capacity? On the supervisory or executive level?

4. What experience qualifications should professional workers in your particular department possess?

5. What suggestions would you make as to the means by which NAIRO should seek to have these standards of training and experience adopted once they are arrived at?

   a. In private agencies; local, state and national?
   b. In public agencies; local, state and national?

6. Please add any other comments regarding this assignment which you feel will be helpful.

By July nine individuals had replied to this communication. By the first of November six more had commented, making a total of fifteen replies, all of them thoughtful and some of them in great detail.

Findings and Premises

Before attempting to synthesize this material into a useable statement, it might be well to point out the findings and premises upon which we have proceeded. These are:

1. that the development of professional standards in the intergroup relations field must be a long-term process and that much can be gained from the manner in which the allied fields of education and social work have spent many years in the progressive definition, refinement and improvement of standards in their respective areas.

2. that the present report of this committee therefore should be considered the first of a series of steps toward an ultimate goal; a first step however which seeks to be specific enough to be useable, high enough to serve as a challenge but low enough to be realistic.

3. that this committee would not attempt to inquire into membership standards for NAIRO. Its work has been upon the assumption that NAIRO membership would continue to include both lay and professional persons and those somewhere in between.

4. that most of the recent problems coming before NAIRO of the ignoring of training and experience qualifications have been in the area of local public agencies which suggests that much of the solution must be worked out in terms of the lay boards of local public commissions, municipal government, civil service, mayors and city councils.

5. that the already established qualifications of intergroup relations agencies which have them should be given careful study in determining the direction for further refinement of standards proposed herein.

6. that standard-setting in a field such as this, which includes successful practitioners from a wide variety of backgrounds, should begin in low, broad and flexible terms and move gradually over a period of some years to the high, narrow and rigid standards characteristic of the older professional groups.

7. that persons already in the field, lacking the particular academic suggested herein, but with years of successful professional experience to their credit, must be protected from handicap in promotions or new employment by providing for the acceptance of successful paid professional experience in lieu of specified academic preparation on a year for year basis.

8. that creed or national origin has no place in the selection of staff for intergroup relations work except in those instances in which a private agency may specify that part of the responsibility carried by the position is the transmission and interpretation of a particular creed or national culture pattern. In such instances it would be considered reasonable to specify that the worker be a member of that creed or nationality group.

9. that while generic statements of training and experience are needed, it woul not be wise at this point to attempt supplementary training and experience qualifications for departmental areas within the general field. In the words of Marshall Bragdon, chairman of the local public department, the wall between the specialties, at this stage, should be kept rather low. Of course this does not prevent individual agencies, especially those with larger staffs and many specializations, from setting such standards as they deem appropriate.

10. that in view of the importance of personal characteristics in this field, intergroup relations agencies and appointing officers might well consider the use of objective testing devices (social distance scale, ethnocentric measurement, projective tests, etc.) as one type of tool in evaluating candidates.

11. and finally, that NAIRO, in setting professional standards of the type proposed in Appendix A and Appendix B, must assume some responsibility in aiding agencies in understanding and meeting them. Thus NAIRO should continue to encourage the expansion of training facilities and opportunities it should continue and expand its role as a clearing house for competent professional personnel in the intergroup relations field; it should establish some machinery for presenting and interpreting NAIRO's position on personnel standards to intergroup relations agencies, City Councils, mayors and Conferences of mayors and governors.

NOTE: As indicated, both Appendix A and Appendix B, which follow, are minimum statements upon which individual agencies can and should build. Certain agencies already require much more. The point is that NAIRO, as the professional organization in the field, should be satisfied with nothing less.

As soon as is reasonable, NAIRO should begin to tighten and raise these beginning statements. Points at which this might be done and the sequence of such steps should be decided in the future. Among such steps however would probably be: the raising of graduate training from a "desired" to a "required" category; an increase in the amount of graduate training required; the elimination of the right to substitute experience for training; the elimination of the right to substitute training for experience; an increase in the number of years of experience required; progressive narrowing and making more specific the subject-matter content of the training required.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS is

- A national organization of individuals primarily engaged in intergroup relations.
- An association to improve intergroup relations and aid in the attainment of equality of opportunity for all persons regardless of race, religion, national origin or ancestry.
- An organization which seeks to improve standards of work in the field of intergroup relations and to advance professional and technical knowledge.

PURPOSE

The program of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials has this major purpose—To improve intergroup relations by:

- FACILITATING MORE EFFECTIVE EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION and experience and furthering cooperation among official agencies and citizens' organizations dealing with racial, religious, ethnic, and cultural relations.
- ESTABLISHING CONTINUING RELATIONSHIPS and providing the impetus and inspiration for regular exchange of information and ideas among individuals in national and international official and private agencies and organizations concerned with intergroup relations, in order to bring about more effective utilization of the resources of these agencies and organizations on the state and local scene.
- IMPROVING STANDARDS OF WORK IN THE FIELD of intergroup relations, advancing professional and technical knowledge and practice, and aiding professional and technical personnel and administrators in their day-to-day operations.

ORGANIZATION AND SERVICES

To accomplish its stated purposes, the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials

- OPERATES A CENTRAL HEADQUARTERS office to serve the members, committees and conferences of the Association, and to act as a coordinating influence for individuals engaged in intergroup relations activities.
- SERVES ITS MEMBERS by developing through publications, committees, conferences and by other means, a continuing program designed to improve professional policy and practice and citizen support of and participation in intergroup relations.
- OFFERS THE SERVICES OF ITS OFFICE and membership machinery to intergroup relations agencies of local, state and national character, that professional exchange and cross-fertilization of ideas, techniques and experiences may be of direct benefit to all practitioners in this field of operation.
- PUBLISHES A MONTHLY PERIODICAL, NAIRO REPORTER, as the one professional organ in the nation which provides consistent, accurate and objective reporting of (a) incidents and events bearing upon intergroup relations;

(b) legislative acts and judicial opinions and rulings; (c) accounts of techniques and methods developed; (d) reports, synopses and critiques of research efforts, articles and publications relating to this field of interest.

MEMBERSHIP

Membership is limited to individuals and is of two classes:

- ACTIVE: Any person primarily engaged in intergroup relations in a professional staff capacity, whether salaried or voluntary; as a recognized authority; or as a member of the governing body of an agency or commission in this field. Active members shall be entitled to vote at any membership meeting, hold office, receive all regular and special informational services of the Association, benefit from services of the Personnel Exchange and from such other special services as shall be determined by the Board.
- ASSOCIATE: Any person subscribing to the basic objectives and program of the Association. Associate members shall be entitled to receive all regular informational services of the Association and participate in conferences of the Association. Associate members may be appointed to serve as consultants on committees.

MEMBERSHIP DUES

ACTIVE AND ASSOCIATE MEMBERSHIP dues are $10.00 per year.

AGENCY SERVICE SUBSCRIPTION FEES are on the following scale:

Agency Annual Budget	Annual Subscription Fee

ORGANIZATIONAL BUSINESS

All of us are aware that the scope of NAIRO's activities has been enlarged beyond the capacity of our unpaid staff. Fortunately, the willingness of our membership to undertake volunteer assignments is enabling us to do things that would just not otherwise be possible. And yet we continue to grow. During 1954 we added 103 new members--an increase of about 40%. So far this year we have gained another 25 members and the trend continues. The number of new agencies being created, both in the South and in smaller communities throughout the country, gives even greater emphasis to the need for strengthening professional standards and concepts of work in the field. With this in mind, and within the limits of our resources, an effort will be made during the coming year to provide all of you with as complete a picture of NAIRO's activities as possible. We sincerely hope you will read these materials carefully and give us your comments and suggestions. Don't hesitate to offer ideas that you feel might be useful to your colleagues.

Enclosed in this mailing you will find the following:

1. The minutes of the business meeting held at the Eighth Annual Conference in Boston, including a copy of the financial report submitted at that time and the very important report of the Committee on Professional Standards.

2. A Directory of Leadership Personnel, along with a statement describing our organizational structure and a chart outlining this structure.

3. A copy of our audited 1954 financial statement.

4. A copy of the proposed program for our Ninth Annual Conference to be held in Milwaukee November 30th, December 1st and 2nd.

PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS

Following the very fine and important discussion held at the Boston Conference on the report submitted by our Committee on Professional Standards, the Board, at its January meeting in Chicago, considered ways and means of making a further advance with this problem. The Committee has been enlarged and it is hoped that a conscientious effort to solicit the thinking of our membership will result in bringing before our business meeting in Milwaukee the kind of report on which some definitive action can be taken. Each Department Chairman has been requested to solicit the views of NAIRO members within his area. In the months ahead we are sure you will be receiving communications from them and we sincerely hope you will take the time to give them your views.

LEADERSHIP PERSONNEL

Recognizing that there still may be some lack of clarity regarding the functions assigned to the Departments and to the Commissions, we hope you will carefully review the enclosed materials. We call your attention especially to the enclosed "Members Registration Form", which we hope you will return to our headquarters, signifying your interest in the activities of one of the Commissions. The reports issued by these Commissions are an effort on the Association's part to draw together the knowledge and information upon which we base our efforts as professional workers in the field. Their value is no better than the contributions that all of us make to them. In a like manner, the value of the Departments in providing an opportunity for exchange of experience among professional workers associated with similar types of agencies will be strengthened and made more effective only to the degree that we can jointly develop closer working relationships. Finally, the scope of the activities being carried on by our committees in many vital areas of professional concern is increasingly producing results. This year, we hope to have these committees meet a day in advance of the Conference opening. At the January Board meeting, a new Committee was established on Resources and Planning. It has been given the specific assignment of reviewing both our present resources and of developing projects related to concrete needs in the hope that we may be able to enlarge both our membership services and our contribution to the total field. Several new projects are being drafted for which we plan to solicit funds, including a Training Institute for new workers in the field.

NAIRO REPORTER

Both at the Boston business meeting and at the last two Board meetings, there has been continuing discussion of enlarging the scope of our regular monthly publication. The objective and factual material now being reported needs to be augmented with information relating to both our internal affairs and to other activities in the field not now being reported. How we can find the resources to do this is being given top priority. One of the valuable and significant ways that our own membership may be able to give assistance is to arrange to have their agencies subscribe to 15, 25, 50, or 100 copies for distribution to their Board members and in their local communities. These subscriptions are available at the reduced rate of $2.00 per year. While the number of agency subscriptions has greatly increased, it still does not begin to reflect the potential available to us. Please give this serious consideration.

OTHER PUBLICATIONS

Unfortunately, due to a mix-up in Boston, all of you did not receive copies of the five Commission Reports. Lacking the funds to publish these ourselves, we were able to obtain mimeographed copies through the courtesy of a number of agencies, but our supply is now completely exhausted. Copies of the 1953 reports are still available, however, from our headquarters, at a cost of $3.00 for the two volumes.

1953 Research Conference Proceedings. Through the cooperative, volunteer efforts of about a dozen NAIROans, the Proceedings of the 1953 Research Conference will be mailed to you within the next week or so. These Proceedings are being made available to NAIRO members without charge, and will be sold to non-members for $2.00. Those who have reviewed them are agreed that the material contained in this 85-page publication is among the most valuable developed in recent years.

The effort involved in publishing them has been tremendous and the cost involved to NAIRO in issuing and distributing them has prompted the Board to suggest that NAIRO members receiving them might wish to contribute $1.00 toward this project. We will be happy to send you a bill if you are able to charge this to your agency.

PERSONNEL EMPLOYMENT REGISTRY

The services being extended to NAIRO members, and others who are interested in seeking employment in the field, while not as effective as we might wish it to be, has been steadily improving. We have been receiving many requests from both existing and new agencies for personnel referrals. Recently, through our Personnel Registry, NAIRO member Robert Sweet was named Executive Director of the Des Moines Commission on Human Relations, growing out of a referral from our Registry. Several openings are now pending and we suggest that you pass along the word that agencies interested in personnel may wish to contact us. Also, we are happy to list those interested in seeking positions. As you know, the Association makes no attempt to evaluate personnel records, but simply acts as a clearing house.

MILWAUKEE CONFERENCE

The task of organizing the Milwaukee Conference is now going forward, full steam. Virginia Huebner, the Conference Chairman, reported at our recent Washington Board meeting that the local Committee is well organized and is now getting down to specifics. We think you will see from the enclosed proposed program that the arrangements thus far are both extensive and enticing (that is if you like Milwaukee beer). We hope you will not hesitate to send your suggestions to your Department Chairman, and we hope you will find it possible to work with one of the Commissions in making this Conference as fruitful as it should be.

FINANCIAL NOTE

It should be quite plain from the enclosed 1954 financial statement, that the need for funds continues to plague us. All bills for 1955 membership dues have recently been mailed. If you have received yours, please act upon it as soon as possible. The Board continues to give its best thinking to the augmentation of our resources. Enclosed you will find a few membership applications. How about signing up a colleague or two to be in NAIRO?

AMENDED BY-LAWS

of the

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

DATE: October 4, 1955

ARTICLE I. NAME

The name of this organization shall be the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials.

ARTICLE II. PURPOSE

The purpose of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials shall be:

1. To encourage the collection, compilation and dissemination of ideas, information and research among organizations and individuals engaged in the improvement of intergroup relations;

2. To facilitate the exchange of knowledge, experience and research among governmental agencies and private organizations dealing with racial, religious, ethnic and cultural relations;

3. To advance generally the science, processes, and art of intergroup relations and to improve the standards of work in that field, advancing technical and professional knowledge, standards and practice.

ARTICLE III. ORGANIZATION AND ELECTIONS

1. The Association shall consist of one organization representing the entire body of the membership. The Association shall maintain a central headquarters office as designated by the Board of Directors. The Association may establish divisions within the organization as required.

2. The membership of the Association shall determine policies of the Association at the annual meeting, and subject to the mail ballot provisions, shall elect in this order, the Board of Directors, the Officers, and the Nominating Committee for the following year.

ARTICLE IV. MEMBERSHIP

1. Membership shall be limited to individuals and shall be of two classes:

   a. Active: Any person primarily engaged in intergroup relations: in a professional staff capacity, whether salaried or voluntary; as a recognized authority; as a member of the governing body of any agency or commission, or otherwise substantially engaged in the intergroup relations work of an agency or commission related to this field.

   b. Associate: Any person subscribing to the basic objectives and program of the Association.

2. The Board of Directors shall have authority over admission to membership in NAIRO, but may delegate to the Membership Committee, or its Chairman, or to the Executive Secretary, the power to receive and act upon applications for active membership, provided that such delegatees shall, wherever feasible, consult with active NAIRO members in the area from which the application is received. Subject to review by the membership at the annual business meeting, the Board of Directors may suspend or remove from membership, after opportunity for hearings and fair notice thereof, any person whose conduct is deemed harmful to NAIRO.

ARTICLE V. DUTIES AND PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERSHIP

1. The Association shall establish and maintain a schedule of annual fees and dues for the two classes of membership.

2. Each Active member shall be entitled to: vote at any membership meeting; hold office; participate in conferences; serve, by appointment, on committees; receive all regular and special information services; and utilize the services of the Personnel Exchange and such other special services as shall be determined by the Board.

3. Each Associate member shall be entitled to: participate in conferences; serve, by appointment, on committees; and receive all regular informational services.

4. Any individual, organization or agency may subscribe to the regular informational services of the Association. Special information or other services may be rendered upon request, with or without charge, as the Board of Directors may determine.

ARTICLE VI. OFFICERS

1. The officers of the Association shall be a President, a President-elect, two Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer and a Secretary, all of whom shall be regular members of the Board of Directors at the time of their election to office, or shall have been regular members of that Board in the year immediately preceding their election to office. The President-elect, Vice Presidents, Treasurer and Secretary shall take office as soon as elected, and shall serve until their successors are chosen; the President shall succeed to his office from the position of President-elect, when the new President-elect shall have been chosen. Elections shall take place at each annual membership meeting (Article X, Sect. 1) or by mail ballot (Article X, Sect. 8).

2. An Executive Secretary may be appointed by the Board, to serve as the administrative officer of the Association, subject to the direction of the Board, which may, among other duties, delegate to the Executive Secretary the administrative functions of the Treasurer and Secretary. The Board of Directors may also appoint such other staff as it shall deem desirable to perform such duties as may be prescribed by the Board of Directors.

3. The President shall be the principal executive officer of the corporation and shall in general supervise and control all of the business and affairs of the corporation. He shall preside at all meetings of members and of the Board of Directors. He may sign, with the Secretary or any other proper officer of the corporation authorized by the Board of Directors, any deeds, mortgages, bonds, contracts, or other instruments which the Board of Directors have authorized to be executed, except in cases where the signing and execution thereof shall be expressly delegated by the Board of Directors, or by these by-laws, or by statute to some other officer or agent of the corporation; and in general shall perform all duties incident to the office of President, and such other duties as may be assigned by the Board of Directors from time to time. He shall make available to the President-elect whatever information in his judgment will enable the latter to succeed him most efficiently.

4. The President-elect, in addition to having the regular powers and duties of any member and of any member of the Board of Directors, shall also be responsible for familiarizing himself as much as possible with the functionings of the association.

5. In the absence of the President or in the event of his inability or refusal to act, the Vice-President (or in the event there be more than one Vice-President, the Vice-Presidents in the order designated, or in the absence of any designation, then in the order of their election) shall perform the duties of the President, and when so acting, shall have all the powers of and be subject to all the restrictions upon the President. Any Vice-President shall perform such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

6. If required by the Board of Directors, the Treasurer shall give a bond for the faithful discharge of his duties in such sum and with such surety or sureties as the Board of Directors shall determine. He shall have charge and custody of and be responsible for all funds and securities of the corporation; receive and give receipts for moneys due and payable to the corporation from any source whatsoever, and deposit all such moneys in the name of the corporation in such banks, trust companies or other depositaries as shall be selected in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws; and in general perform all the duties incident to the office of Treasurer and such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

7. The Secretary shall keep the minutes of the meetings of the members and of the Board of Directors in one or more books provided for that purpose; see that all notices are duly given in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws or as required by law; be custodian of the corporate records and of the seal of the corporation and see that the seal of the corporation is affixed to all documents, the execution of which on behalf of the corporation under its seal is duly authorized in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws; keep a register of the post office address of each member which shall be furnished to the Secretary by such member; and in general perform all duties incident to the office of Secretary and such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

8. A vacancy in any office because of death, resignation, removal, disqualification or otherwise, may be filled by the Board of Directors for the unexpired portion of the term, except that, if the office of President-elect shall become vacant, it shall remain unfilled until the next regular election of officers, at which time the members shall elect a President for the immediately following term, as well as all the regular officers.

ARTICLE VII. BOARD OF DIRECTORS

1. The affairs of the Association shall be managed by a Board of Directors which shall consist of not more than twenty-eight (28) members, and not less than eighteen (18). Eighteen Directors shall be elected by the membership, in accordance with the provisions of Article X; in addition, any of the six (6) officers who is not otherwise a member of the Board, shall serve ex-officio during his term in office. Further, the President shall appoint four (4) Regional Chairmen of the Association, from four separate geographic regions of the country, to serve for terms of one year or until their successors are chosen, and these persons shall also serve ex-officio on the Board of Directors, if not already members of the Board.

2. The term of office of the eighteen elected members of the Board shall be for three years, or until their successors are chosen. Six (6) members shall be elected to the Board of Directors yearly. Vacancies shall be filled by appointment of the Board, until the next regular election, at which time a member shall be elected for the unexpired term.

3. The Board of Directors shall report its actions at the Association's annual meeting and shall hold an annual meeting of the Board, immediately after the annual meeting of members, at the same place, without notice. The Board may call such special meetings as may be necessary, at such times and places as it may determine. Special meetings may be called by or at the request of the President or any five (5) directors. Notice of any special meeting of the Board of Directors shall be given at least five (5) days previously thereto by written notice delivered personally or sent by mail or telegram to each director at his address as shown by the records of the corporation. If mailed, such notice shall be deemed to be delivered when deposited in the United States mail in a sealed envelope, such notice shall be deemed to be delivered when the telegram is delivered to the telegraph company. Any director may waive notice of any meeting. The attendance of a director at any meeting shall constitute a waiver or notice of such meeting, except where a director attends a meeting for the express purpose of objecting to the transaction of any business because the meeting is not lawfully called or convened. Neither the business to be transacted at, nor the purpose of, any regular or special meeting of the Board need be specified in the notice or waiver of notice of such meeting, unless specifically required by law or by these by-laws.

4. a. The act of a majority of the Directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the Board of Directors, except where otherwise provided by law or by these by-laws.

b. At meetings of the Board, seven (7) shall constitute a quorum. If less than seven (7) of the directors are present, a majority of those present may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

ARTICLE VIII. EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE BOARD

1. There shall be established an Executive Committee within the Board of Directors consisting of the officers and three (3) other members of the Board elected by that body. The Executive Secretary, if any, shall be a non-voting member of this Committee.

2. a. The Executive Committee shall act for the Board between meetings of the Board.

b. A majority of the members of the Executive Committee shall constitute a quorum and a majority of those members present at a meeting shall prevail on all questions if a quorum is present.

ARTICLE IX. COMMITTEES

1. The standing committees of the Association shall be:

a. A Nominating Committee of not less than five (5) persons nor more than eleven (11) persons, the duties of which shall be to nominate for presentation to the annual meeting a slate of officers and directors, with at least one candidate for each vacancy, and a slate of candidates for the following year's Nominating Committee.

b. A Membership Committee, which shall aid in securing members and advise the Board of Directors (and Executive Secretary, if any) on problems relating to eligibility for membership in the Association. The Chairman of this Committee shall be a Member of the Board of Directors, and said Board shall appoint wuch Chairman and the members of the Committee.

c. A Conference Committee, which shall plan and organize the program for the annual meeting, subject to the Board's approval. The Board shall appoint the Chairman and members of this Committee.

2. The Board may authorize the formation of other Committees, not having and exercising the authority of the Board in the management of the Association. Subject to the approval of the Board, the President shall appoint the Chairman and members of such committees. The President shall have the power to make interim appointments to the committees authorized by the Board and to create interim Committees and make appointments thereto.

3. Persons not members of the Association may be appointed to serve on the Conference and special Committees.

4. Each member of a Committee shall continue as such until his successor has been appointed, unless the committee shall be sooner terminated, or unless such member be removed from the committee or fail to qualify as a member thereof. The appointing authority in each case shall have the power of removal, whenever in his or its opinion the best interest of the Association are thereby served. Vacancies in any Committee shall be filled in the same manner provided for the original appointments.

5. a. Unless otherwise provided in the resolution of the Board of Directors designating a committee, a majority of the whole committee shall constitute a quorum and the act of a majority of the members present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the committee.

b. Each committee may adopt rules for its own government not inconsistent with these by-laws or with rules adopted by the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE X. MEETINGS OF MEMBERS

1. The Association shall hold an annual meeting of members and such other meetings as may be necessary to conduct the affairs of the Association, the time to be fixed by the Board of Directors.

2. Special meetings of the members may also be called either by the President, or not less than one-tenth of the members having voting rights.

3. The Board of Directors may designate any place, either within or without the State of Illinois, as the place of meeting for any annual meeting or for any special meeting called by the Board of Directors. If no designation is made or if a special meeting be otherwise called, the place of meeting shall be the registered office of the corporation in the State of Illinois, provided, however, that if all of the members shall meet at any time and place, whether within or without the State of Illinois, and consent to the holding of a meeting, such meeting shall be valid without call or notice, and at such meeting any corporate action may be taken.

4. Written or printed notice stating place, day and hour of any meeting of members ahll be delivered, either personally or by mail, to each member entitled to vote at such meeting, not less than five nor more than forty days before the date of such meeting, by or at the direction of the President, or the Secretary, or the officers or persons calling the meeting. In case of a special meeting or when required by statute or by these by-laws, the purpose for which the meeting is called shall be stated in the notice. If mailed, the notice of a meeting shall be deemed delivered when deposited in the United States mail addressed to the member at his address as it appears on the records of the corporation, with postage thereon prepaid.

5. Any action required to be taken at a meeting of the members of the corporation, or any other action which may be taken at a meeting of members may be taken without a meeting if a consent in writing, setting forth the action so taken, shall be signed by all of the members entitled to vote with respect to the subject matter thereof.

6. The members holding one-tenth of the votes which may be cast at any meeting shall constitute a quorum at such meeting. If a quorum is not present at any meeting of members, a majority of the members present may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

7. At any meeting of members, a member entitled to vote may vote either in person or by proxy executed in writing by the member or by his duly authorized attorney-in-fact. No proxy shall be valid after eleven months from the date of its executive unless otherwise provided in the proxy.

8. The Board of Directors may authorize elections of directors and officers to be conducted by mail.

ARTICLE XI. CONTRACTS, CHECKS, DEPOSITS AND FUNDS

1. The Board of Directors may authorize an officer or officers, agent or agents of the corporation, in addition to the officers so authorized by these by-laws, to enter into any contract or execute and deliver any instrument in the name of an on behalf of the corporation and such authority may be general or confined to specific instances.

2. All checks, drafts or other orders for the payment of money, notes or other evidences of indebtedness issued in the name of the corporation, shall be signed by such officer or officers, agent or agents of the corporation and in such a manner as shall from time to time be determined by resolution of the Board of Directors. In the absence of such determination by the Board of Directors, such instruments shall be signed by the Treasurer or an Assistant Treasurer and countersigned by the President or a Vice-President of the corporation.

3. All funds of the corporation shall be deposited from time to time to the credit of the corporation in such banks, trust companies or other depositaries as the Board of Directors may select.

4. The Board of Directors may accept on behalf of the corporation any contribution, gift, bequest or devise for the general purposes or for any special purpose of the corporation.

ARTICLE XII. BOOKS AND RECORDS

The corporation shall keep correct and complete books and records of account and shall also keep minutes of the proceedings of its members, Board of Directors and committees having any of the authority of the Board of Directors, and shall keep at the registered or principal office a record giving the names and addresses of the members entitled to vote. All books and records of the corporation may be inspected by any member, or his agent or attorney, for any proper purpose at any reasonable time.

ARTICLE XIII. SEAL

The Board of Directors shall provide a corporate seal which shall be in the form of a circle and shall have inscribed thereon the name of the corporation and the words "Corporate Seal. Illinois."

ARTICLE XIV. WAIVER OF NOTICE.

Whenever any notice whatever is required to be given under the provisions of the General Net for Profit Corporation Act of Illinois, or under the provisions of the articles of incorporation or the by-laws of the corporation, a waiver thereof in writing signed by the person or persons entitled to such notice, whether before or after the time stated therein, shall be deemed equivalent to the giving of such notice.

ARTICLE XV. REGULATION OF INCOME

No part of the net earnings of the Association shall in any way inure to the benefit of any member, director or officer, but this shall not preclude to the reimbursement for expenses incurred as such or the payment of compensation authorized by the Board of Directors to the Executive Secretary and other persons for services rendered as such. The Association shall not engage in carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation.

ARTICLE XVI. AMENDMENTS

These by-laws may be amended by a majority vote at the annual meeting. Written notice of any proposed amendments shall be submitted to the membership at least 30 days in advance of the meeting; including either the verbatim proposal, or a fair digest which is sufficient to clearly indicate the contents of such proposal.

ARTICLE XVII. PARLIAMENTARY PROCEEDINGS

In official meetings of the Association, Roberts Rules of Order shall determine parliamentary procedures.

Dear Dick:

I have received your notice of the NAIRO Board meeting, May 11-12 in Detroit and I shall be there. As I told John Field last year SRC's agreement with me is to pay my way to the Annual Meeting and to one Board meeting per year. I would like to attend all Board meetings and if a speech with an honorarium could be possibly arranged with a group located in the city where the other Board meetings are being held I of course could come. This one in May will be an SRC-financed undertaking.

Best regards,

Dear Dick:

Rather than writing directly to Dan Corrigan in St. Paul, I am writing to you and you may advise him about the difference between SRC and SCEF. It would be presumptuous of us to seek to judge another organization and certainly we do not feel that we are the authorized spokesman in the field of human relations. As to distinguishing between the SRC and the SCEF, the following seems important:

1. SCEF was an outgrowth of, and is a successor to, the Southern Conference on Human Welfare. SRC is an outgrowth and successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation. The two movements have different traditions and different programs and personnel.

2. SRC is tax-exempt; SCEF lost its tax-exemption a few years ago.

3. SRC istrying to build affiliated State membership organizations. SCEF, to the best of my knowledge, is a self-perpetuating Board, and has no affiliated organizations or locals.

4. There are differences in tone and approach which can hardly be fittingly evaluated by us. Perhaps the best way to do so is to compare the publications of the two organizations.

5. We are entirely separate movements, going our separate ways, without either coordination or friction.

I am enclosing copies of several recent issues of New South which you might pass on to Mr. Corrigan. I hope this meets with what you needed.

Best personal regards. I look forward to seeing you at our next Board meeting.

Dear Miss Strobach:

My apologies for not answering your letter sooner but it came while I was in New York.

Nothing would please me more than to meet with your group and to see my good friend Fred Grossman again. Unfortunately, however, we are particularly hard pressed just now and my New York trip has exhausted my quota for northern visits for the time being. Fred Routh of our staff might be a possibility but he is out of town at the moment. As soon as he returns to the office I will raise the question with him and let you know.

If that doesn't work out and you decide to keep the possibility open, I would be glad to let you know in advance the next time I am to be up that way.

Sincerely,

Mr. Harold Fleming, Assistant Director

Dear Mr. Fleming:

As you may know, there is in Philadelphia a local group of NAIRO members which meets regularly during the year. This year, I am acting as chairman of the program committee. In thinking about a program for our October meeting, I felt that all of the members, as well as many other people who attend our meetings, would be very interested in a discussion of the current situation in the South. I knew that Dr. Frank Loescher had been in Atlanta last week and I called him to ask if he could suggest possible speakers on this subject. Yours was the first name he mentioned. The program committee - Thelma Babbitt(AFSC), Fred Grossman (ADL), and Robert Johnson - and the local chairman Nat Agran (JCRC), were all enthusiastic.

This letter then is an invitation, but, unfortunately, one with reservations. The local group has no funds available for paying traveling expenses. My thought was that if you plan to be in the Philadelphia area, we would be delighted to arrange a luncheon meeting at your convenience. In the event that you have no such plans, could you suggest any member of your staff or any other informed person who expects to be in this area in October?

I am certain that all of the local people interested in intergroup relations would gain much from the kind of objective, first-hand report you would present. So much of what we read fails to meet either qualification. As Fred Grossman said to me this morning, it would be wonderful to learn what is going on from someone living with the situation and without "northern interference." Fred, by the way, asked me to send you his best regards.

May I hear from you at your earliest convenience?

Many thanks.

Sincerely,

Paula Strobach

Dear Ted:

Many thanks for your letter of October 1. We have done considerable research this summer on the resistance movements in the South, but it is in rough form at the time. I will seek to pull together relevant parts of the information in the next few weeks and send the report to you. I did not realize that you would want the report much before the 1st of November, and I hesitate to promise that the paper delivered at the conference will be exactly like the manuscript I send you.

We are finding new material all the time and some of it highly pertinent, but in view of your request, I will send you what I would consider will be a preliminary report.

I look forward to seeing you at the NAIRO meeting.

Dear Ted:

Please excuse the long delay in getting you some information for the revised edition of The People Take The Lead. I am enclosing two bits of information. One is a supplementary report, on the employment of Negro police since May 1954; and the second is a report of desegregated White institues of higher learning in the South. I hope that this will assist you in your religion.

The total number of cities in the South that employ Negro police now number 145, though there may be others we do not know about. The list of colleges is correct through June, 1956. We are now seeking information on schools which opened this fall.

The only state that we know about which has illuminated the question of race from the driver's license since 1953 is New York

Dear Mr. Routh:

Many thanks for your letter and your generous offer to speak to the local NAIRO group on Saturday, October 27th. Unfortunately, it is just about impossible to convene the members at a Saturday meeting. We have decided, that for the time being, we will not plan to hold any meeting this month. As you no doubt know, a good many of us on the staff of the Commission are involved with the NAIRO Conference. At this point, we are so swamped with details that little time remains for making any additional arrangements. We are hoping that a good many of the local members and friends of NAIRO will be able to attend the luncheon session on the first day of the Conference at which time you are scheduled to speak. Perhaps this will, in some way, serve as a substitute for a regular scheduled meeting to discuss desegregation in the south.

Personally, I feel this meeting is likely to be the high spot of the Conference. I certainly am looking forward to the opportunity of meeting you.

Mr. Schermer, by the way, has just returned to work after a bout with a kidney stone. I haven't yet had a moment to convey your regards to him, but I certainly will. Again, many thanks. See you in November.

Dear George:

Because he has been slowed down by a knee-fracture, Marsh Bragdon has asked me to write you on his behalf to invite you to attend the special breakfast for human relations center personnel and selected NAIRO leaders at the NAIRO Conference, Thursday, November 29.- no engagements (SP) → Hungry club 28th

This year we anticipate that most of the centers will be represented at the Conference. As you will recall, last year Dean Epley reported on a survey of human relations centers before the Department of Research Services and the following morning the center personnel and NAIRO leaders met to discuss ways in which the Association and the centers might approach the problem of professional training for intergroup relations workers. This year, with more center directors present and the stimulus of Ken Benne's address to the combined Local Public and Local Private Services Departments, we should have an even more productive session.

Will you please send your acceptance to me so that I may reserve a place for you?

Sincerely yours,

We are going over some of the facts making doubly sure what we have is accurate. The final report will run between 20 and 30 pages, double spaced typing. The report will consist of, 1) general introduction, 2) an examination of the resistance groups on a regional basis, 3) an examination of their method of operation, 4) an examination of their literature (particularly hate literature), and 5) a state by state break down of resistance groups as to leadership, membership, etc.

Dear George:

I have been meaning for some time to write you before your impending departure to Scotland. Let me say first that Marilyn and I and the kids intend to take you up on your invitation and we hope it will not be in the too distant future.

I don't think I need to tell you what it has meant to me personally to have had your friendship over these last ten years. But I know what it has meant to me, spaning way back to the meeting I chaired on police-community relationships at the second NAIRO meeting in Chicago. Looking around today, I don't think there is a person in this field who hasn't barrowed, knowingly or otherwise, some of your insights. Certainly you are leaving this field and this country a rich legacy, both of your wisdom and your humor.

All of this is to say that we're going to miss you. Incidentally, I saw Mrs. Tilly at a meeting last week, and I sent you our warmest regards through her.

Good luck, God bless you, and keep the welcome mat out. See you soon.

Speech Delivered by Herbert Hill
Labor Secretary of the NAACP at the 14th Annual Institute of Race Relations
July 9, 1957, Fisk University, Nashville, Tennessee

In a recent study by the 20th Century Fund entitled "AMERICA'S NEEDS AND RESOURCES", a team of twenty-five specialists presented the results of five years research and interpretation of all known facts and figures about the solid base of American life—the business of earning a living. Their findings and forecasts tell us much about the future of every man, woman and child in the United States today and in future generations.

This authoritative study makes the following estimate:

> "America's economic system, the strongest and most productive in human history, is easily capable of reaching a total output of $414 billion five years from now. (Compared with $357 billion in 1954.)
> "By 1960 the population will probably climb 25 million from the 1950 figure to a new total of 177 million people.
> "The American labor force will reach a total of over 72 million, an increase of nearly 8,000,000 in one decade.
> "With about 6% of the world's people and less than 7% of its land area, the United States now produces and consumes more than one-third of the world's goods and services, and turns out nearly one-half of the world's factory-produced goods.
> "The aggregate real income of the more than 160 million Americans today probably exceeds the combined income of the 600 million people living in Europe and Russia and far surpasses the total income of the more than 1 billion inhabitants of Asia.
> "The United States has not only climbed to a new plateau, but is ascending heights whose upper limit is not yet measurable, and at an accelerated rate of speed."

It is clear that the anticipated increase in productivity is based squarely on the belief that the American labor force, from Company management, and industrial engineers, to production machine operators will use more technical knowledge and skills to produce and distribute the vast quantity of goods and services expected. What are the implications of this estimate for the Negro wage earner and for the entire Negro community? What are the characteristics of the Negro labor force and how is it being utilized? In what areas of employment has the Negro made the greatest gains and where the least? What is the relationship of educational attainment by Negroes to job opportunities when compared with whites? What is the comparative yearly average income of Negro and white labor and what is the effect of trade unionism upon the Negro's economic status?

This paper will attempt to answer some of these questions and indicate related problems in an attempt to determine the future of the Negro worker in the American economy.

Because the Negro citizen is playing such a decisive role in the current civil rights conflict the matter of developing a firm and secure economic base within the Negro community is of the greatest importance. The disparity in the economic status between Negro and white wage earners and their vulnerability in terms of economic distress are clearly indicated by the facts on income distribution.

In 1939 the typical Negro worker earned an average of $364. a year in wages or salary; the white worker in that year earned $956.; that is 2½ times as much. By 1954 the average or salary income of a Negro worker had risen to $1,589. while the average white worker earned $3,174. This means that the income of the white wage earner was still twice as much as that of the Negro. (STATISTICAL ABSTRACT-1956, Page 311.)

In 1954, 17.6% of all white families in the United States were living on an annual income of $2,000. or less but of non-white families 42.3% were living on an annual income below $2,000.

Another very serious problem which affects the economic well-being of most Negro families is that very limited progress has been made in securing for the Negro worker the same degree of employment stability that the white worker enjoys. As a result the proportion of Negroes unemployed has been approximately twice that of white workers both among men and women. During the last decade this differential has been extended in both good years and bad, nor is there any evidence that this differential is declining. On the contrary a Labor Department report indicates that there seems to be some evidence that the ratio of unemployment among non-whites when compared to that of whites has been increasing since 1951. (MONTHLY LABOR REPORTS-September 1956, Page 1036.)

The available data for September 1956 indicates that 2.5% of the white civilian labor force and 6.1% of the Negro civilian labor force were unemployed. It is evident that despite great changes in the employment and occupational characteristics of Negro wage earners in the last ten years, the economic condition of Negroes remains substantially below that of the white population.

Throughout the industrial economy of the United States major changes are taking place that directly affect every wage earner, white and colored. These significant technological changes, called automation, have a special meaning for Negro workers and a direct relationship to the well-being of the entire Negro community.

The fact that there is a great concentration of Negro workers in the ranks of the unskilled and semi-skilled means that the increasing introduction of advanced methods of production will result in the wholesale displacement of Negroes currently employed in unskilled jobs. Already one can cite many instances where a highly trained white man and a new machine have replaced many unskilled Negro workers.

A basic need today is to make possible the full realization of the individual Negro's talents and abilities in terms of industrial and engineering skills, to eliminate all the restrictions and limitations which prevent Negro youth from becoming highly skilled workers, sharing the full benefits of the rich American economy. If we do not succeed in large measure in making possible the realization of the Negro potential, American society will be denied urgently needed manpower skills and the Negro will be forced into an even more marginal position in the American economy even though the expansion of economic opportunity increases for other groups within the community.

Because the quality and quantity of vocational and technical training is a basic element in fundamentally changing the Negro's economic status efforts to eliminate current restrictions that prevent the admission of qualified Negroes into apprenticeship training programs and other forms of vocational training must now be given greater attention by industrial management as well as by organized labor and state and federal governments.

The Federal Government through grants-in-aid from the U.S. Office of Education in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare provides funds which subsidize apprenticeship training programs in the various states. The Federal Government, therefore is directly subsidizing discrimination in the skilled trades wherever the respective union involved excludes Negroes from admission into the training programs. An example of this is currently to be found in Cleveland, Ohio, where the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers absolutely refuses to admit qualified Negroes into the apprenticeship training program controlled by the Union. Additional U. S. Government participation in the apprenticeship training field is promoted by the Federal Committee on Apprentice Training which is an operation of the U. S. Department of Labor. While this Agency evidently makes no direct subsidy to apprenticeship training programs it encourages and develops such programs for various craft unions which deliberately exclude Negroes from apprentice facilities. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has repeatedly urged that all forms of public support be withdrawn from discriminatory apprenticeship programs including the use of public school buildings and other facilities in programs which deny admission to Negroes.

At the present time there is virtually a systematic exclusion of qualified Negro youth from certain apprenticeship training programs jointly conducted by industrial management and labor unions in the North as well as in the South. For many craft occupations the only way a worker can be recognized as qualified for employment is to complete the apprenticeship training program. This is true for the printing trades, among machinists and metal workers, the various craft unions in the building and construction trades industry and many others. The role of the labor union in these occupations is decisive because the trade union determines who is admitted into the training program and, therefore who is admitted into the union..

Any analysis of employment patterns would be incomplete without some measure of the extent to which the education, training and skill of the Negro worker is utilized by industry. This problem is crucial since there is a loss to the entire economy when basic resources whether human or non-human are under utilized.

We know that there is a significant correlation between educational attainment and job status. However, a high proportion of educated and trained Negroes are working at levels much lower than their educational attainment would indicate. Where specific craft and technical training rather than general education is considered this pattern of underemployment is even more apparent. In virtually every industrial community there is a large but varying proportion of non-whites, trained as craftsmen and professional and clerical workers who are employed significantly below their trained capacities. Of these the skilled craftsmen is the most underemployed. A recent study conducted by members of the Department of Economics of Washington University provides data for St. Louis, Missouri, indicating the degree of non-white underemployment in that community. The basis for this evaluation is both in terms of educational attainment and specific vocational training.

The St. Louis area is highly industrialized with many major manufacturing plants and with a large and diverse Negro community. Where occupational classification is compared with educational attainment the researchers found that four out of ten who have one to three years of college training and five out of ten who had completed high school are now employed in lower occupational categories than white persons with similar education and suffer considerable underemployment. A comparison of specific vocational training with jobs held indicates that seven of ten who have craft training, five of ten who have clerical training, and over five of ten who have training as machine operators are currently employed in occupational classifications well below their trained capacities. This underemployment has continued despite a four-year period during which there were shortages of craft and clerical workers. Unfortunately this pattern is repeated in many industrial communities across the country.

On August 12, 1953 President Eisenhower issued an Executive Order setting up the President's Committee on Government Contracts to eliminate discrimination in employment by any party contracting with the Federal Government. Government agencies are required to write into all government contracts provisions against discrimination and a committee of officers and eminent citizens was established to investigate complaints and to secure compliance. It was hoped that this action would develop as one of the firmest weapons in the struggle for equal rights for minorities.

It is with much regret that we are forced to note the lack of vigorous enforcement and broad application of the promise contained in the President's Executive Order establishing the President's Committee on Government Contracts. Even a cursory examination of the status of Negro workers in industrial plants throughout America operating on government contracts reveals a blatant and widespread violation of the anti-discrimination clause contained in all government contracts.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People acting on behalf of Negro workers has filed many complaints with the President's Committee on Government Contracts. The Association has documented an industry-wide pattern of racial discrimination in the aircraft manufacturing industry and in the oil refining and chemical industries. At the present time cases are pending against major aircraft manufacturing companies including:

Boeing Aircraft and Cessna Aircraft Cos.-Wichita, Kansas
Lockheed Aircraft Corporation - Marietta, Georgia
Hayes Aircraft Company - Birmingham, Alabama
Rohr Aircraft Corporation - Riverside, California

In the oil refining and chemical industry the Association has filed cases against:

Esso-Standard Oil Company - Baton Rouge, Louisiana
Union Carbon and Carbide Corp. - Texas City, Texas
Lion Oil Company - El Dorado, Arkansas
Union Carbon and Carbide Corp. - Charleston, W. Va.

In some of these and other cases complaints have been pending for well over two years without any action by the President's Committee. In addition complaints have also been filed against the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company which categorically refuses to hire Negroes however well qualified.

The American economy is predominantly interstate in its very nature and, therefore a basic responsibility for eliminating discriminatory employment practices must fall upon the Federal Government especially where Federal funds are used. A recent example of the need for Federal action in relation to evasions of state civil rights laws is the problem of airlines operating in New York State.

On October 2, 1956, a joint statement was issued by the New York State Commission Against Discrimination and eighteen airlines in which the Government subsidized airlines pledged agreement to accept applicants "in all categories of employment and...upgrading on the basis of merit without regard to color, race, creed, or national origin." As a direct result of that policy, the airlines indicated there would be "no solicitation of applicants, employment agencies, training schools, or other sources which discriminated in referral of job candidates." The agreement also states, "the overall objective will be to encourage employment policies and practices fully in keeping with the New York State laws."

This new statement of policy was the culmination of a long series of conferences between the State Commission Against Discrimination, leaders in the airline industry and with civil rights agencies. Developments following the issuance of the agreement clearly indicate that while significant changes have taken place in the employment of Negroes for ground jobs, absolutely no Negroes have been employed in flight operations with the exception of the New York Airways Helicopter Service. This includes pilots, flight engineers, radio operators, navigators, stewards and stewardesses.

It is now evident that the major airlines operating in the State of New York have broken their agreement with the State Commission Against Discrimination by their adamant refusal to employ qualified Negroes in flight classifications. Several of these cases are now pending with the State Commission. It is significant to note that for purposes of escaping the jurisdiction of the New York State Commission, both American Airlines and Eastern Airlines have transferred their initial employment processing to other states. Until very recently, American Airlines processed applicants and in fact employed persons through their New York office. Today, we are told, all employment operations are conducted through the Company's Fort Worth office in Texas.

Eastern Airlines does a major portion of its business between Miami and New York. A great part of its traffic originates in New York and New Jersey for Florida resorts. Today, Eastern's hiring for flight personnel is undertaken in Miami, which has no state law banning discriminatory hiring. While both these and other airlines conduct a major portion of their business in northern states having State Fair Employment Practice laws, they are able to escape the jurisdiction of these commissions simply by shifting hiring activities into other states. Since no applicant is rejected in New York or New Jersey, no complaint will ever be filed with these State Commissions and the companies' racial employment practices, therefore, will not be tested.

It is precisely in these and similar situations, where an interstate corporation escapes the jurisdiction of a State FEPC law by moving its employment operations elsewhere, that the President's Committee on Government Contracts must and can invoke its authority. If it does not, it is therefore encouraging evasions of state civil rights statutes by permitting private firms to operate with federal government contracts while openly violating state fair employment practice laws.

Because the President's Committee on Government Contracts could be a basic factor during this period in eliminating racial restrictions in the training and employment of Negro workers it is most unfortunate that so much of its activity has been devoted to ritual and rhetoric with little substance.

A clause requiring union membership as a condition of employment is to be found in virtually all collective bargaining agreements in the building and construction trades industry. Because unions perform certain managerial functions in the construction industry the refusal to admit into membership because of color completely denies qualified Negroes the right to work in their chosen trades.

The most significant example during the past year of the adamant racist practices of some building trades unions was the refusal of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 38, Cleveland, Ohio, to admit Negro mechanics.

On June 18, 1956 the Community Relations Board of Cleveland, which performs the function of a fair employment practices commission, found Local 38, of the IBEW, unanimously guilty of racial discrimination against Negro workers. The decision of the Community Relations Board called for the admission of qualified Negroes and for the acceptance of Negroes into the apprenticeship training programs conducted by the Union.

Local 38 remains in defiance of the decision of the Board and has refused to admit Negroes, however well qualified, into union membership. As a result skilled Negro mechanics are completely denied the right to work in construction installations in the Cleveland area. This includes major construction projects erected with Federal Government funds such as six NIKE launching and control sites for guided missiles under construction for the U.S. Army and a large Veterans Administration hospital.

It is important to note that after much discussion and debate within the labor movement the President of the AFL-CIO has finally announced that Local 38 will lose its charter early in July unless it admits the Negro plaintiffs.

On February 18, 1955 the Wisconsin Industrial Commission found Local 8 of the Bricklayers, Masons, Marble Masons Protective International Union guilty of racial discrimination in refusing to admit into membership two qualified Negro bricklayers. This finding was the result of a long period of investigation and finally a public hearing on January 19, 1955.

The Wisconsin Industrial Commission which administers the State's extremely limited and weak fair employment practices statute attempted to secure compliance with its decision after the Union refused to admit the Negroes by initiating a court action. In response the Bricklayers Union brought an action in the Wisconsin State courts to have the findings and recommendations of the Commission set aside. The court without reviewing the issue of refusal of membership held that the order of the Commission being merely an unenforceable recommendation was not subject to review by the Courts. In the course of this litigation the Court held that:

> "Membership in a voluntary association is a privilege which may be accorded or withheld, and not a right which can be gained and then enforced.
> "The courts cannot compel the admission of an individual into such an association, and if his application is refused, he is entirely without legal remedy no matter how arbitrary or unjust may be his exclusion."

Application of this doctrine involving voluntary associations and clubs to a trade union is indeed a dangerous one and would set a precedent having serious consequences in related situations elsewhere. Unfortunately the Wisconsin State Supreme Court sustained the decision of the lower court.

Appeals to the International Union of the Bricklayers organization have brought no results. Local 8 remains as it has always been in the past, a completely "lily-white" union.

AFL-CIO policy declarations against racial discrimination in trade unions and the continued support by the merged labor movement for civil rights measures is greatly welcomed by Negro wage earners and the entire Negro community. The commitment of the National AFL-CIO to "help assure the implementation of the Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation in the public schools" was particularly meaningful in the light of attacks on this policy by some southern unions and threats of disaffiliation because of the AFL-CIO's affirmative position on civil rights.

Trade union attitudes towards Negro labor in the South are invariably torn between the traditional humanitarian and democratic ideals of the American labor movement and the regional bias against integration and equality of opportunity. Because the racial policies of trade unions are often the decisive factor in determining the employment status of Negro workers in major sectors of the economy, it is hoped that the National leadership of the AFL-CIO will soon proceed to eliminate anti-Negro practices in the ranks of affiliated unions, especially the building trades unions, with the same vigor shown in its determination to cleanse organized labor of gangsters and racketeers.

A most disturbing aspect of the great industrial development taking place in the southeastern states has been the serious inability of Negro workers to register any significant employment gains since the end of World War II in the manufacturing plants which are transforming not only the countryside but also the old social patterns of southern life. Investigations indicate that in the textile industry, still the basic industry of the South, Negroes remain in a most marginal position. Among the 400,000 textile workers in Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina there is apparently not a single Negro employed as a weaver, spinner or loom fixer.

One might have anticipated that southern industrial development taking place in areas of heavy Negro population would result in a greater use of available Negro labor. Unfortunately this has not happened. For example, according to State Government figures the number of textile workers employed in South Carolina was forty-eight thousand in 1918 and 124,000 in 1950 while the percentage of Negroes in the textile labor force fell from 9% to 4.8% over this same period.

In heavy industry, as opposed to consumer manufacturing, the gains of Negro labor is most limited. Negro employment is negligible in such major industrial plants as the General Motors and Ford plants in Atlanta; Hayes-King Aircraft Company in Birmingham and the big Ford assembly plant in Dallas, Texas.

In these plants if Negroes are employed at all it is in the most menial jobs. Recent investigations in the four southern manufacturing plants of the Ford Motor Company are most revealing. At the Company's plant in Dallas, Texas, there is employed a total of 2,991 workers. Of these nine are Negroes, all in menial capacities. In the Atlanta plant there are employed a total of 1,588, of which there are 21 Negroes, all in unskilled jobs. In the Norfolk-Portsmouth plant there are 1,626 workers, of which there are nine Negro janitors and in the Memphis, Tennessee plant employing a total of 1,458 there are exactly 35 Negro janitors.

An investigation by the NAACP at the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation plant in Marietta, Georgia, indicates as of January 1957 that the Company employs 1,350 Negroes out of a total work force of 18,000 workers. This limited figure represents an unusually large number of Negro employees in relation to the prevailing pattern in industrial plants in and around Atlanta. More typical of the southern industrial scene is the fact that the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation employs 2,400 white women but only seven Negro women, all in custodial menial jobs. The full meaning of these figures can only be understood in relation to the large and diverse Negro manpower source available in the Marietta-Atlanta area.

The limited occupational diversification found at the Lockheed Aircraft plant is typical of the status of Negroes in other sectors of the growing southern economy.

As a result of a sustained effort by the NAACP with the President and Southern Regional Director of the International Association of Machinists, Negroes will soon be admitted for the first time into the apprenticeship training program at the Lockheed plant jointly conducted by the Union and the Company.

During the month of June the Company recognized for the first time the seniority rights of Negro workers in relation to promotion when a group of 16 colored workers were promoted to what had previously been all-white job classifications.

Among the most significant developments involving the status of Negroes in southern industry during the past year were the events in the oil refining and chemical industry where the NAACP made an attack against the separate line of progression in collective bargaining agreements. At the large Magnolia Refinery in Beaumont, Texas a group of thirty-two Negro workers were promoted for the first time into the "process mechanical division" which had hitherto been "lily-white." In addition several Negroes were initially employed in production departments hitherto employing white labor exclusively and for the first time segregation was eliminated in the all-Negro "labor department." Similar changes involving a lesser number of Negroes took place at the Gulf Oil Corporation and at the Shell Oil Company's plants in Houston, Texas and at the Cit-Con Oil Refinery in Lake Charles, Louisiana.

In the course of filing complaints before the President's Committee on Government Contracts the Association documented an industrywide pattern of discriminatory employment practices including improper classification of Negro workers, wage differentials based upon race, denial of apprentice and other training facilities to Negroes and violation of seniority rights together with a lack of democratic trade union representation.

Much credit belongs to the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union which established and enforced a new industrywide policy prohibiting the separate line of progression in collective bargaining agreements and calling upon local affiliates to eliminate discriminatory practices and segregated locals.

Racial conflict in the South has now begun to directly affect the future of southern industrialization. Today, throughout the South, in precisely those states where there has been the greatest movement of new manufacturing plants the issue of the Negro's status has been posed in the sharpest terms, sharper now than perhaps at any time since the Reconstruction period.

The serious threat to the continuous development of Southern industry is two-fold. Industrialists have noted that turmoil and violence resulting from racial bigotry often results in serious interruptions and stoppages of vital production as in the rubber manufacturing plants in and around Tuscaloosa, Alabama during the demonstrations and riots which occurred when Miss Autherine Lucy appeared on the campus of the State University. Recent events indicate that the newly developed work discipline of southern white industrial workers disappears during a period of racial violence.

The second serious factor having a negative effect on Southern industrial growth as a result of racial conflict is the economic boycott used by both races against merchants and companies accused of having partisan interests in the segregation question. Many state leaders in southern communities have expressed concern about the effects of boycotts upon economic development.

Recently the Birmingham, Alabama POST HERALD editorialized as follows: "Now, Birmingham can see the price which must be paid for the racial outbreaks and the resulting hoodlumism....It is understandable that plant officials would hesitate to move a plant into a city where there has been such violence. This points up the necessity for our public officials to apprehend and bring to trial those persons who have been guilty of this violence."

A front page story in the New York TIMES dated March 13, 1956 is headed "RACE TENSION DISCOURAGES MOVES TO SOUTH" and reports "A definite diminishing of the desire of industry to move South." The WALL STREET JOURNAL on March 8, 1956 stated "the present southern boycotts are the most far reaching ever faced by American businessmen. Many southerners including some firmly committed to continuing segregated schools deplore the use of economic pressure by either race--the boycotts and other things now happening definitely are not a solution."

Recently Hugh White, former Governor of Mississippi, commenting on the rise of racial violence stated "Our State's economy has already been severely involved. They can say State law has broken down. There is no telling what will happen."

The effects of racial conflict upon southern industrial development is just now beginning. It will continue to develop and may deepen into a crisis of major significance for the whole southern economy.

The great transition in the American South from an economically stagnant and socially depressed area into a vital industrialized society will be seriously impeded for the next period. The profound industrial revolution of the South, which in the past decade dramatically raised living standards and made possible a very high level of employment is now interrupted.

In refusing to accept the recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court in the school segregation and transportation cases together with a traditional resort to violence the white South finds itself in a great dilemma in which once again it is its own victim.

Dear John:

This letter has three purposes:

(1) I am pleased to accept the position as Chairman of NAIRO's Commission on Education. I have some ideas on the annual report which I would like to discuss with you in the not too distant future after things have calmed down here. I note in your letter you say I will be invited to participate in the Board meeting in May. Does this mean NAIRO is going to pay my expenses? You see, I am already a regular member of the Board, having been elected in 1955 for a three year period. I was somehow or other, though, left off the stationery list of the Board. Dick Marks is in the process of correcting this error.

(2) I cannot accept the position as Executive Secretary of NAIRO and coordinator of its Apprentice Training Program. George Shermer of Philadelphia called me and said I headed the list of the "ten most wanted men." As I explained to you regarding the possibility of the Detroit job, I cannot consider in good conscience leaving the South at this time.

(3) SRC is having difficulties raising funds in the South because of the worsening situation down here. The money we received from the Fund and other foundations must be supplemented if we are to carry on. Could you possibly provide us with an entree to some liberal labor leaders, manufacturers, and financiers with whom you have come in contact through your job? People of the caliber of Mr. Kelly who have a concern for the growth of democracy and who might contribute $100.00 or more to SRC. We are tax exempt, you know.

John, sure would appreciate it if you could scare us up a few such guys.

Best regards to Marilyn and you.

Dear John:

I have received your letter of April 4th, informing Board Members and Chairmen of Commissions, Departments, and Committees of NAIRO that the Board meeting has been moved to April 12 and 13. I very much regret I will be unable to attend this meeting for I have been scheduled for a special conference in Memphis during those two days.

I had made special arrangements to get to New York for the meeting which was scheduled for May 3 and 4, including the opportunity to have my way paid by another organization, but as we say down here, life is sometimes like that.

Some time ago I wrote you agreeing to serve as Chairman of the Commission on Education, and I ended the letter by asking if you knew of any industrialists or other people in the Detroit area who might be interested in donating to the Southern Regional Council. These are, as you know, extremely critical times in the South and it is more difficult than ever to raise funds. This is especially true for those organizations which do not accept the segregation orthodoxy. Therefore, any leads you might be able to give us would be very deeply appreciated.

I will be in Michigan in mid-June, for I am speaking to the UAW-CIO at its FDR camp on June 20th. I will certainly take time to look you up then and we can get together, bend an elbow, and talk over our respective work.

Best personal regards.

Dear Dean:

I have received your letter of May 15th and would have replied sooner but for the heavy schedule of conferences in which we now find ourselves.

I will be happy to serve on the membership committee of NAIRO. As you know, I am at the present time a member of the Board and Chairman of the Commission on Education.

Dear Mr. Routh:

Miss Thelma Babbitt, Chairman of the NAIRO Membership Committee, has asked me, as Southern Regional Chairman, to invite you to become a member of NAIRO's Membership Committee. NAIRO is making an effort to develop local groups in various areas of the country and to provide names of people who might be prospects for NAIRO membership.

In order to accomplish these purposes, it seemed desirable to enlarge the Committee so that its members will be conveniently located for contacts in person as well as by correspondence. The promotion of the aims of NAIRO depend in large measure upon the willing cooperation of such interested persons as yourself. By virtue of your membership in NAIRO, you are already qualified to serve both NAIRO in general and your community in particular by accepting this invitation. We hope, therefore, that you will be able to do so.

May we have the pleasure of receiving your favorable response soon?

Dear John:

Mrs. Hamilton of the Atlanta Urban League called me this morning saying that she had received a note from you about a possible trip to Atlanta. Both the Urban League and SRC now have their interns.

SRC has chosen as its intern a young Georgian by the name of Machion Garrison. He is, we feel, well qualified to fill this position. We were particularly anxious to find a young person recently out of college who was seeking a life career in the field of inter-group relations. We believe we have found such a person. We were also anxious to find a qualified Negro for the position for we had considerable difficulty finding qualified Negroes when we sought to staff our state affiliated organizations. So again we feel fortunate in our choice.

After talking with Mrs. Hamilton both of us felt that the week of October 21 might be an appropriate time for you to come. If this is possible please specify what dates during that week you will come. If that is impossible please suggest alternative dates.

It was good to see you in Detroit at the NAIRO meeting. I look forward to working with you in the future .

Best regards.

Certainly glad that you are coming down to Atlanta. Mrs. Hamilton and I look forward greatly to your arrival. I have made reservations for you at the Peachtree on Peachtree Hotel (man, how Southern can you get!).

I trust there is no significance in it, but the undertakers are holding a convention in town at the same time.

The P'tree Hotel is a nice clean and decent hotel. We have guaranteed your room and told them you would be arriving very late the night of the 22nd and would be staying through the night of the 23rd. Your room is a single with bath.

Dear Fred:

I am very pleased to learn that SRC and the Urban League now have their interns, and I welcome the opportunity to come to Atlanta next week. The best days would seem to be Wednesday and Thursday.

In the interests of economy, I thought that I should come by Night Air Coach, arriving around 2 o'clock Wednesday morning. Would you be kind enough to reserve a hotel room for me so that I can go directly there? Just for the record, since I know famed Southern hospitality, I do not expect to be met at that uncivilized hour. I will look forward to seeing you at your office around 10 a.m., which is really much more gracious for every one concerned.

I will plan to spend all Wednesday and Thursday in Atlanta, at your disposal and at Mrs. Hamilton's.

Will you be kind enough to let me know about the hotel room at your earliest convenience. I do look forward to seeing you again.

Harold Fronson,

Dear _____:

This letter is written by direction of the Eleventh Annual Conference of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, which concluded in Kansas City on November 22 last. Its purpose is to over all possible assistance and cooperation to the Commission on Civil Rights

The N-A-I-R-O is an organization of persons engaged professionally in intergroup relations work. With occasional exceptions, the members of the Association are employed by agencies and organizations, public and private, committed to the advancement of equality of opportunity and the preservation and enhancement of equal rights in accordance with the Constitution of the United States and in the spirit of democracy.

As individuals, many members of the Association are in positions to make available to your Commission information on the status and progress of civil rights in the communities, states or regions in which they work. Many may be able to be helpful in various ways in connection with programs of interpretation or with the creation of such advisory or other bodies as the Commission may determine upon. All members of the Association will be pleased to cooperate in every appropriate way in connection with the publicization of hearings that the Commission may decide to hold, in the presentation of testimony and otherwise.

Recognizing that the staff work of the Commission will require the services of legally trained persons, the Association has asked me to convey to you its hope that the legal aspects of the Commission's operations will not militate against what we regard as a profoundly necessary concern for other approaches. The procedures and practices developed in recent years by the profession of intergroup relations can contribute greatly - and in respects in which legal methods and procedures alone may be inadequate - to the harmonious resolution of civil rights problem. Intergroup relations practitioners, in addition to possessing skills and knowledge and experience useful in the resolution of conflict situation associated with denials of civil rights, have gained extensive familiarity with the legislative needs in the civil rights field; and their participation in the formulation of recommendations for legislative action is in our view greatly to be urged.

We hope that the Commission will accept our proffer of cooperation and that, as it proceeds with the urgent and demanding task that has been laid upon it by the Congress, it will not hesitate to seek any specific information or invite any specific assistance that our Association or its members may be in a position to supply.

With this letter go the earnest wishes of all members of our Association to you and your associates for the fruitful fulfilment of your great responsibility.

Sincerely,

RESOLUTION (As originally proposed by George Culberson)

Statement: As members of the profession, we individually offer the new Commission on Civil Rights of the United States Government every cooperation and assistance in the performance of its duties. While we cannot commit the public and private agencies for which we work, we believe that these agencies, also, will wish to be of every assistance to the Commission and we will urge them to do so.

Specifically, we are prepared to assist by furnishing information and facts concerning civil rights problems and progress in our own communities, states or areas. In the establishment of "advisory committees within states" we feel that we can assist in the selection and formation of these bodies. If public or private hearings are used as one means of gathering information, we can assist in publicizing and bringing individuals and organizations before such hearings.

We urge the Commission on Civil Rights to secure experienced and professionally competent intergroup relations workers for its staff. As the professional organization in this field, we offer the advisory services of NAIRO to the Commission in establishing the criteria and standards of selection for the various staff positions which will be required.

Dear Fred:

You will recall, I know, that the Executive Committee was charged with the editing and release of the Conference's one resolution - that offered by George Culberson (copy enclosed).

I have attempted to incorporate the elements of that resolution in a letter addressed to the Commission on Civil Rights, and my draft is enclosed. I want very much to get your comments and suggestions.

At the present time, in the light of Justice Reed's resignation, there is a question as to the proper person to receive it, and we may have to wait until the President names the new chairman. In any case, we want to be ready to send it promptly when the choice is announced.

May I hear from you as soon as convenient? If I do not hear otherwise by Christmas, I will take the liberty of interpreting silence as consent.

Good wishes for a happy holiday.

Sincerely,

Arnie

Subject: NAIRO Housing Study

On November 15, 1957 I informed you that we had received the green light to rewrite the special report on the role of intergroup relations officials in combatting discrimination in housing. Our Committee held two meetings between that date and December 17th, at which time the Griers submitted their report for Committee approval.

The Committee felt the Griers did an excellent job and submitted the report to Davis McEntire on December 19th.

Copies of the report are not available as yet. If possible, we may try to get the Foreward and Summary mimeographed so that all members of the Committee might be acquainted with the essence of the report.

We believe the Griers did an outstanding job and are to be commended not only for their skills but for their interest and diligence in coming through with an onerous task.

I also want to take this occasion to state that the Committee fully appreciated the herculean job undertaken by Helen Amerman who designed the questionnaire and prepared the first draft of the study.

Dear Ed:

I have read your correspondence with Davis McEntire. I share with you some astonishment at the conclusions he drew from the report. From my viewpoint the report showed that under considerable difficulties, including limited finances, several of the agencies were showing not only concern about, but concrete work in, the problems of housing for minority groups.

You are on the right track, so hi-ball it along.

In my memorandum of January 6, 1958, addressed to the Committee on the NAIRO housing study, I indicated to you that we will attempt to get the Foreword and Summary of this study mimeographed. I can report now that we should have that part of the study available for you within the next two weeks.

Attached hereto is a letter from Davis McEntire, dated December 27, 1957, acknowledging the receipt of the NAIRO housing report. I was pleased by his response to the report in the first two paragraphs but considerably disturbed by some of his observations in the two following paragraphs. I, therefore, prepared a reply which I believe reflects the thinking of those members of the Special Research Advisory Committee with whom I have been working regularly and who have attended the meetings we have held for the last half year on this report. A mimeographed copy of this letter is also attached.

I should like to receive any comments you may have in regard to an exchange of letters between Davis McEntire and myself. I assume I am on the right track.

Dear Davis:

Thank you for your letter of December 27. I agree to all the text revisions you request. I am glad that you are pleased with the readability and interest of the report.

I am frankly puzzled, however, by the conclusions you have drawn as to its meaning. The report is a compilation of the viewpoints of intergroup workers in housing throughout the country. Its major contribution -- a most valuable one -- may be to make clear that the problems faced by individual workers and their judgments as to the reasons for these problems are not unique, but general phenomena the country over. I think that the study will be most useful if it enables workers to see their own situations in the broad context of others' experiences.

I do not understand what you mean when you refer to the report as supplying "a corrective" for unspecified "claims". I believe the report amply indicates that those who responded approach their own work with an attitude of honest and realistic self-evaluation which is the surest route to increased effectiveness and is particularly commendable in view of their ideological motivation. Certainly, the survey questions were not answered, nor was the report written as propaganda to raise money from foundations.

I find it hard to understand also your statements that the report shows that intergroup agencies "have not developed much program" or that the report "does not attempt to relate resources to program". The report devotes over one-third of its length to a discussion of program. Four main categories of program which have been developed by intergroup agencies to combat housing problems are identified and analyzed. Not only does the report describe the limited resources currently available to agencies, discussing very clearly and concretely how few people are working on these problems; it also repeatedly relates the paucity of resources both to the effort to develop effective programs and to the enormity of the problems which these programs attempt to meet. You will find these relationships discussed on pages 2, 4, 5a, 8, 9, 10, 11, 26, 33, and 34 through 37.

I was struck most forcibly throughout the report by the vast disparity between the resources which intergroup workers see as operating to promote segregation in housing and the resources which are currently available to combat it. In the light of this disparity, I was frankly encouraged by the finding that some results had been achieved to date -- and also by the fact that so many workers viewed their programs clearly as long-range efforts.

I had thought the report spoke for itself. In the light of your comments, however, I should like to have you incorporate as the concluding paragraph in the Foreword to this report submitted by the Committee the attached statement.

Sincerely yours,

Edward Rutledge
Housing Director

CONCLUDING REMARKS IN THE FOREWORD

The Committee was most forcibly impressed throughout the report by the vast disparity between the resources which intergroup workers see as operating to promote segregation in housing and the resources which are currently available to combat it. In the light of this disparity, the Committee was frankly encouraged by the findings that some results had been achieved to date -- and also by the fact that so many workers viewed their programs clearly as long-range efforts.

On the basis of the findings in this report, the Committee would recommend that foundations develop and expand their support for intergroup agencies' activities in discrimination in housing in the fields of research, education and community relations.

Mr. Edward Rutledge, Chairman
NAIRO Special Research Advisory Committee

Dear Ed:

This will acknowledge with pleasure the NAIRO report, "The Professional Intergroup Relations Worker and Minority Housing Problems." The report is obviously a large improvement over the first one. Considering the limitations of the material with which your authors have had to work, I think they have produced a readable and interesting report.

Before dittoing the report for circulation to members of our Commission, I wonder if you would agree to a few minor editorial changes. (1) On page ii, paragraph 2, line 7, may we insert "and activities" following the word "views"? (2) On page iii, line 1, may we change the preposition "in" to "from"? (3) On page v, may we identify the list of names as NAIRO Special Research Advisory Committee"? (4) On page 1, paragraph 2, the first sentence as it stands is in error. May we change it to read ". . . originally performed by the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials at the request of the Commission on Race and Housing"?

I am sure that this report will be read with considerable interest by the members of the Commission on Race and Housing, particularly by the subcommittee which is studying the activities and the role, actual and potential, of intergroup relations organizations in reducing discrimination in housing. It will undoubtedly contribute to some new thinking on this subject. Some of us, I believe, have been inclined to see a greater potential for leadership and effective action in the intergroup relations agencies than the present report seems to indicate. I gather from the report, on the whole, that the intergroup relations agencies have not developed much program, and such efforts as have been made are not considered to have had much result. Some sources, as you know, have made larger claims for the achievements of the intergroup relations agencies, and on the surface it would appear that they have had a significant impact in some areas. The judgments of the NAIRO report supply a corrective which no doubt is needed.

One of the questions which the Commission has been considering is whether it should recommend to foundations an expansion of support for intergroup relations agencies activities in housing and if so, for what types of program. Your report seems to discourage this approach. Although the report describes the limited resources of intergroup relations agencies very well, in a general way, it does not attempt to relate resources to program, nor does it suggest possibilities of more effective action if more resources were available. I mention this not in criticism of the report, but only to suggest its probable effect on the thinking of the group to which it is initially directed. Some members of NAIRO have been among those who have most strongly urged the Commission to support an expansion of intergroup relations programs in the housing field.

With kind personal regards,

Cordially,

/s/ Davis McEntire

Dear Ed:

Thank you for your letter of January 8. The underlying question in my comments of December 27 was whether you considered that the report gave a correct and adequate estimate of the activities of intergroup relations agencies in reducing housing discrimination. You have answered my question. The foreword will be supplemented as directed.

We shall ditto the report within the next week or two for circulation to Commission members and will supply copies for your Committee and the NAIRO Board. The copies for NAIRO people we shall send to you for distribution.

NAIRO BOARD OF DIRECTORS MEETING
Chicago, Illinois
January 24-25, 1958

PRESENT: (Board) President Aronson, Allen, Babbitt, Coffey, Culberson, Fager, Garrity, Gray, Lawrence, Leskes, Marks, Whitby.

(Non-Board) Lloyd Davis, William Gremley, John Lassoe, Jr.

I. APPROVAL OF MINUTES

The minutes of the November 19-20 Board meeting were approved as submitted. (MOTION: Fager-Leskes)

II. REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY (John Lassoe, Jr.)

A. Membership: As of January 20, 451 members were carried on the roster, as follows: paid through 1958, 181; paid through 1957, 178; paid through 1956, 58; paid through 1955, 34. Since only members paid through 1957 or 1958 are considered to be in good standing, NAIRO's actual membership is currently 359. Urgent letters have been sent to the 92 delinquents, advising them that they will be dropped from membership unless dues are paid by February 28 (deadline for the compilation of the Membership Roster). After discussion, it was established that delinquent members may rejoin NAIRO without payment of back dues, although this is not to be encouraged until their memberships actually lapse.

B. Office Administration: Reviewing the office workload of the first six months, the Executive Secretary requested authorization to spend up to $30 monthly (excluding July & August) for necessary extra secretarial services. The Treasurer reported that this item, and one for vacation secretarial replacement, were included in the 1958 Budget under "Contractual Secretarial Services". The President noted the importance of continuing to farm out secretarial work to officers and members so that the NAIRO office would not be overwhelmed. Mr. Lawrence agreed to process the Board Minutes in his office, and Mr. Leskes volunteered the services of the American Jewish Committee in the publication of the NAIRO Membership Roster (mimeographed). These offers were accepted with appreciation. Mrs. Babbitt asked if Board minutes could be sent to the entire NAIRO membership, but it was later agreed that a summary of action in the NEWSLETTER would be sufficient.

C. Publications: The proposed DIRECTORY OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS AGENCIES WITH PAID STAFF is in preparation; questionnaires have been sent to all known agencies in the field (list compiled by Helen Amerman).(The directory will be prepared and published by NAIRO in cooperation with the Anti-Defamation League.)

A brochure describing NAIRO and its activities, requested at the September Board meeting, was delayed pending review of NAIRO's structure. Assuming completion of the review at this meeting, the brochure will be prepared immediately afterwards.

Promotion of the REPORTER has been hindered by lack of time and the difficulty in obtaining good mailing lists. Mr. Aronson suggested that Board members could help by including sample copies (available from NAIRO in quantity, without charge) in their respective agencies' mailings.

III. REPORT OF THE TREASURER (George Culberson)

The Treasurer presented his report for the year 1957, together with audited reports for 1956 and 1957 (James O. MacLean,CPA). He noted that receipts from REPORTER subscriptions. sale of publications, and Intern Trainee pledges were considerably below budget estimates, while membership dues receipts were almost as budgeted. The Treasurer's report (copy attached) was accepted with high commendation. (MOTION: Gray-Whitby)

The question of financial accounting to sponsoring foundations (i.e.Fund for the Republic and McGregor Fund) was raised. Separate books on the expenditure of foundation funds were ruled out, and Mr. Fager suggested that the report should be in terms of program accomplishment rather than dollar expenditures. The form and content of the report were referred to the Finance Committee for recommendations by the May Board meeting. (MOTION: Allen-Gray)

Convening as a Committee of the Whole, the Board considered the 1958 Budget proposed by Mr. Culberson. As an introduction, he stressed the fact that the bulk of NAIRO's current annual income ($25,000 from foundation grants) was assured for only 1½ more years and that it was vitally important that NAIRO now build a cash reserve and at the same time develop new sources of revenue. He noted that Internship Pledges from members and others could not be expected to reach the $5,000 goal suggested originally; accordingly, the 1958 pledge estimate had been dropped to $2,500, and a Special Funds Drive goal of $2,500 added. Anticipated receipts from membership dues and Reporter sales had been based on a substantial increase in both.

Anticipated expenditures had been based on the first six months' operation of the New York office and represented a reasonable target estimate for 1958. They included a $25,000 Bond for the Treasurer (cost: $35 annually), which had been recommended by the auditor and which was duly approved by the Board; promotion (travel) expenses for four regional chairmen and four regional representatives, which was later confirmed by the Board; and an allowance for the Executive's Hospitality Expenses (to be approved individually by one officer other than Treasurer), which the Board also approved.

Reconvening, the Board approved the Budget for 1958 as amended (copy attached). (MOTION: Allen-Gray)

At the Treasurer's request, the Board authorized a separate bank account for the Executive Secretary's severance pay reserve.

IV. REPORT OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON FINANCIAL DEVELOPMENT (Mr. Culberson)

Meeting in Kansas City, The Sub-Committee offered five specific financial recommendations, dealt with by the Board as follows:

A. "A renewed drive for pledges to help NAIRO fulfil its commitment to raise $5,000 of its total budget this year" - Noting the fact that income from pledges in 1957 totaled only $1,765, Mr. Culberson again recommended that the 1958 goad be reduced to $2,500. He suggested that the Finance Committee be given the responsibility for this item.

B. "A renewed drive for new members with a goal of a net gain of 100" - Mr. Culberson suggested that the drive for 100 newmembers (net) and for renewals (to reduce the number of defections among 1955 and 1956 delinquents) be the responsibility of the Membership Committee.

C. "A renewed drive to increase the number of subscriptions to the NAIRO Reporter"- Mr. Culberson recommended the appointment of an Ad Hoc Committee on REPORTER Promotion - with the responsibility for active solicitiation of new subscriptions and with the power to increase subscription rates at their discretion to $2.50 (bulk) and $3.50 (individual). This was approved by the Board.(MOTION:Culberson-Marks)

D. "A special effort by the Executive Secretary and the Board to secure foundation grants for administrative purposes, as well as for special projects" - this was left as a staff-Board responsibility, with the specific understanding that foundation grants received would not be considered as Special Funds Drive receipts.

E. "Authorization for the Board to conduct special fund-raising events in select cities " - Mr. Culberson translated this into the Special Funds Drive budget item of $2,500. He noted that it would not be very easy to raise even this small amount through special events but felt that the modest goal would be good experience for years ahead. This was referred to the Resources and Planning Committee, which was asked to develop ideas for appropriate events or efforts that might be undertaken by local NAIRO groups. The Committee was also asked to coordinate such activities and to decide which types were appropriate for NAIRO.

V. REPORT OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON PROGRAM DEVELOPMENT

The Sub-Committee, instructed at the September Board meeting to review NAIRO's Commission, Department and Committee structure, met in Kansas City and offered several recommendations, dealt with by the Board as follows:

A. "The concept and structure of the Departments are sound. NAIRO members should automatically become members of Departments in accordance with the type of agency they work for." It was agreed that the Departments would operate as before: automatic affiliation of each NAIRO member with a Department; representation of each Department on the Conference Program Committee, to coordinate planning of Departmental sessions; Departmental emphasis on exchange of information (developments, methods, techniques, etc.) relating to professional function within that type of agency. Mr. Lawrence offered a strong recommendation that each department be encouraged to institute (or re-institute) a Departmental Newsletter.

B. "In accordance with the concept of agency representation noted above, a Research Department is an anomaly. NAIRO members whose principal vocation or interest is research might properly be members of Departments in accordance with agencies they represent. However, consideration should be given to proper placement within the Department structure not only of researchers but of NAIRO members who are members of universities or who are academicians." -- Accepting this recommendation, the Board abolished the Research Services Department. (MOTION: Culberson-Marks)

C. "NAIRO Commissions should consist of members who share a common field of work, interest or responsibility. The Commissions should be a medium through which information, knowledge and insights are exchanged."

D. "Consideration whould be given to the establishment of an additional Commission to deal with the subject of interreligious relations." This recommendation, echoed by the Local Private and Local Public Departments, was endorsed by the Board, and the Commission on Interreligious Relations was created. (MOTION: Gray-Culberson) There was some dissatisfaction with the Commission's name, and the Executive Committee was asked to consider possible alternatives.

E. "The Commissions Should define their interests and mobilize their resources and insights around specific topics." (See below)

F. "The structure of NAIRO as amended in accordance with the suggestions offered is essentially sound. It has not operated as well as it might partly because of the problem of communication and geographical distance among members. Meaningful work by Departments, Commissions, and Committees can best be done by groups of members who can meet on a local level." (see below)

G. "NAIRO leadership should formulate three or four meaningful questions for the Departments and Commissions and have these questions considered throughout the year by groups of NAIRO members on the local level. These questions could then form the major areas of discussion at the annual NAIRO conferences." (see below)

The last three recommendations were embodied in a detailed plan for Commission reorganization submitted by the President (see attached, Appendix I). He defined as two major NAIRO problems the question of participation by members in NAIRO activities between Conferences and the question of geographical representation in NAIRO bodies. Noting that under the present structure the two conflict, he suggested that greater activity in local NAIRO groups would seem to provide the best solution and that the Commissions could be related program-wise to these local bodies. In similar vein, he suggested that the primary responsibility of regional chairmen should be to organize and stimulate these local groups. The President's proposal (Appendix I) was adopted.(MOTION: Gray-Marks)

H. "Consideration should be given to the establishment of a new Committee to deal with job security for NAIRO members." The Board referred the question of job security to the Committee on Professional Standards (which may create a special sub-committee).(MOTION: Gray-Marks)

The Sub-Committee's report was accepted. (MOTION: Coffey-Allen)

VI. REPORT OF THE MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE (Mrs. Thelma Babbitt)

Discussion of the role and function of the Membership Committee and its relationship to RegionalChairmen and Regional Representations (see below) brought the following consensus:

The Membership Committee has primary responsibility for recommending and enforcing membership qualifications, for recruitment and maintenance of membership (i.e. new members and renewals, including re-enrollment of delinquents). This Committee shall work with and through the Regional Chairmen and Regional Representatives.

The Regional Chairmen and Regional Representatives are primarily responsible for organizing and stimulating local NAIRO groups, for aiding them in their programming, for coordinating their activities, and for reporting on them to the Board. As representatives of the NAIRO Board, they are also responsible for interpreting NAIRO policy in their respective regions. Finally, they are responsible for appointing people within their regions to handle membership recruitment and renewals in cooperation with the Membership Committee.

In approving this interpretation, the Board also recommended to the membership a change in the By-Laws increasing from four to eight the number of regional chairmen, this to be voted on at the 1958 Annual Business meeting. In the interim, the Board approved the eight regions as defined by the Membership Committee and authorized the President to appoint four Regional Representatives, to supplement the four Regional Chairmen already authorized by the By-Laws. Although the Regional Representatives cannot have Board status until the By-Laws are altered, they are otherwise to fillthe same role as Regional Chairmen in their respective regions. (MOTION: Fager-Whitby)

Discussion of the definition of local NAIRO groups brought the following clarifications: (1) they are not "chapters" or "branches" in the formal sense but simply gatherings of NAIRO members in given cities or areas; (2) Each group is open to, and automatically includes, all NAIRO members in its area; (3) No one can belong to a local NAIRO group except as a member of national NAIRO but local NAIRO groups may invite non-members to take part in their activities; and (4) existing (non-NAIRO) local organizations of professionals may not affiliate formally with NAIRO except insofar as their individual members become members of NAIRO and come together on that basis (I. e. NAIRO continues to be an association of individuals only).

VII. REPORT ON THE NAIRO INTERNSHIP PROGRAM (John Lassoe, Jr.)

The Executive Secretary reported on the first six months of the Internship Program, offering four generalizations based on his contact with all but two of the first year's interns: (1) the intern selection process worked well, and all of the interns seem to be both promising for the field and well-placed in their particular assignments; (2) most of the interns are getting experience and training that is transferable, and most are therefore in a position to move into other agencies in this field (a few do not fall in this category because the context and/or nature of their training experience is not what would commonly be considered "intergroup relations"). (3) the agency selection process could be improved; some of the agencies were ill-chosen for this particular program; and (4) most of the agencies and most of the interns seem satisfied with their participation in the program; a few agencies lament the fact that they cannot give the supervision they would like to, and a few interns feel that they do not have clear training assignments.

The mid-year Internship Seminar, originally scheduled for March 1-14, has been postponed until April or May to permit more careful planning and the recruitment of an outstanding Workshop Leader. The Educational and Professional Training Committee, in addition, recommended that a limited number of non-interns be permitted to register for the two-week workshop on a fee basis. This was seen by the Committee as a tentative exploration of a possible future NAIRO activity: training seminars for junior professional staff. It also suggested a partial means of support for the seminars after the major foundation grants have expired. The Board agreed that a limited number of non-interns (6) should be permitted to enroll for the Seminar at a total cost of $150.00 ($250 minus $100 scholarship), covering tuition and room and board. Criteria for the selection of these non-interns was left to the Educational and Professional Training Committee.

In considering the selection process for next year's internships, the Committee felt that some criteria for agency selection might be prepared for use by participating foundations; accordingly, a 9-point document, "Criteria for Agency Selection, 1958-1959", was prepared - officially at the request of the Fund for the Republic. The Board approved this document and directed that it be circulated.

The Executive Secretary noted that eight interns would be seeking employment at the end of their year of training and asked permission to circulate information about available interns among potential employers. He was directed to prepare a resume of education, experience, and reference sources on each of the available interns and to distribute these sheets before the end of their respective internships.

VIII. NAIRO RESEARCH CONFERENCE

Dr. Don Hager reported, by letter, that he was currently developing the plans for NAIRO's third Research Conference. Although the Research Services Department has been abolished, it was agreed that Dr. Hager would be asked to develop a prospectus for early submission to foundations as part of a formal request for a grant to cover Conference costs.

IX. NAIRO SUMMER WORKSHOP PROPOSAL

The Board referred to the Resources and Planning Committee a proposal submitted by Dr. Martin Chworowsky, Albert Greenfield Human Relations Center, University of Pennsylvania, for cooperative sponsorship of a summer (1959) workshop for intergroup relations practitioners. The Committee was asked to draft a more detailed proposal - in consultation with Dr. Chworowsky - for consideration by the Board at an early meeting. (MOTION: Babbitt-Coffey)

X. NAIRO HOUSING STUDY

Mr. Aronson reported that the Housing Study material originally compiled by Dr. Helen Amerman had been re-written by George and Eunice Grier for The Special Research Advisory Committee (Edward Rutledge, chairman). This had then been submitted to the Commission on Race and Housing in fulfilment of NAIRO's commitment under the special grant. Copies are being reproduced by the Commission for distribution to the NAIRO Board and the Special Committee. It was suggested that this might be reproduced by NAIRO for distribution to the general membership, perhaps as part of the report of the Commission on Housing and Family Life. The Board reserved decision until copies had been reviewed. The President, in mail consultation with the Board, will then decide on possible publication and distribution.

XI. WASHINGTON, D. C. STUDY PROPOSAL

Mr. Aronson reported that the Special Committee (Frances Levenson, Herman Long, George Nesbitt) was attempting to secure foundation support for this project. The Study Proposal, as currently outlined, was reviewed, and some members suggested that NAIRO's role needed clarification. The Board also asked that the project budget be redrawn to insure that no less than 5% of any foundation grant accrue to NAIRO for administration costs. (MOTION: Culberson-Allen) With these stipulations, the action of the Special Committee in seeking foundation support was approved.

XII. REPORT OF PERSONNEL REGISTRY REVIEW COMMITTEE (Chester Gray)

Mr. Grayreported for the Committee (which had also included: Paul Klein, chairman, Maurice Moss, Irene Miller, Richard Marks). Recommendations: That the Registry be continued for both members and non-members - free to the former but with a nominal charge for the latter (perhaps as an "associate membership," since New York laws forbid fees of any kind for this type of service); that each registrant complete a standard form or face sheet, which would be reproduced in quantity; that registrants continue to receive notice - by mail - of all job openings; that agencies, upon payment of a fee (recommended: $5.00) - would be entitled to receive copies of all registrants' face sheets; that agencies - without payment of a fee - might examine these same face sheets in the NAIRO office; and that procedures be developed for regular clearance of the Registry file and for follow-up survey of the Registry's service to registrants.

The Board noted that only 4 of the 125 current registrants were members in good standing and decided to limit the Registry to NAIRO members. It decided against any fee device designed to circumvent the New York law and asked instead that non-members be encouraged to subscribe to the NAIRO Reporter, in which monthly listings of job openings will still be carried. Feeling that the work of reproducing registrant face sheets would be an excessive burden for the NAIRO office at this time, it voted against making these available - on a fee basis - to agencies. Reservations about employer access to the Registry files were also expressed. It was decided that, for the present, the Registry would confine its services to members only and that strengthening of the Registry would be postponed until more members made use of it.

XIII. APPOINTMENTS AND ELECTIONS

A. The following were unanimously elected to the Executive Committee (in addition to the officers): THELMA BABBITT, JOHN G. FEILD, JOHN HOPE, II.

B. Mrs. Thelma Babbitt was unanimously re-elected chairman of the Membership Committee. By Board consent, the choice of the members of this Committee was left to its chairman in consultation with the President of NAIRO.

C. LOUIS MASON (Commission on Human Relations, Pittsburgh) was unanimously elected chairman of the 1958 NAIRO Conference Committee. Members of the Pittsburgh Conference Planning Committee were then confirmed as members of the NAIRO Committee.

Noting that the delay until January in the appointment of the various chairmen hampered NAIRO's activity and wasted at least two months of the year, the Board recommended that hereafter the President-elect be prepared to name Committee, Commission and Department chairmen at the Boardmeeting immediately following the Annual Conference; that this post-Conference Board meeting be scheduled - in advance - as a full 1½-day session; and that it serve as the organizational meeting of the new Board, including on its agenda the preparation of the 1959 Budget and other key business matters. (MOTION: Babbitt-Lawrence)

D. In presenting his nominations for the various chairmanships, Mr. Aronson suggested thatconsideration be given now or later to two-year terms for Commission and Department chairmen, to give them greater opportunity to develop program and organize their units effectively.

Mr. Aronson also explained that he had reluctantly by-passed all current chairmen in making his 1958 appointments. Despite the excellent work that many of them had done, he felt that new faces should be introduced into leadership roles this year and that it was fairer to appoint a completely new slate than to single out a few for re-appointment. He added that, since none of the nominees had been approached in advance of the meeting, some might decline. All appointments are, therefore, tentative and confidential, pending acceptance.

The following Commission chairmen were nominated by the President and confirmed by the Board (geographic centers chosen in accordance with the Commission reorganization adopted earlier):

Nature, Scope & Theory (Detroit) - JOSEPH FAUMAN, Jewish Community Council

Manpower (Cleveland) - CHESTER GRAY

Housing (Philadelphia) - JOHN McDERMOTT, National Conference of Christians and Jews

Education (Chicago) - ANNABELE C. PRESCOTT, Chicago Public Schools

Interreligious Relations (New York) - ROY McCORKEL, National Conference of Christians and Jews

(Other Civil Rights) "Washington D.C.) - BENJAMIN SEGAL, Trade Union Program on Civil Liberties & Rights

It was decided that the 1957 Manpower Commission (Louis Mason, chairman) would remain in operation until publication of its report, scheduled for March 1. It was also decided that, in the event that a nominee could not accept the chairmanship, the President was authorized to choose a replacement in the same city.

The following Department chairmen were nominated by the President and confirmed by the Board:

Local Private - LLOYD DAVIS, Catholic Interracial Council, Chicago

Local Public - BURTON I. GORDIN, Commission on Human Relations, Philadelphia

State Public - JOHN BINKLEY, Colorado Anti-Discrimination Commission, Denver

National Private - ISAIAH TERMAN, American Jewish Committee New York (N.B. Mr. Terman decld)

Federal Services - BOOKER McGRAW, Housing & Home Finance Agency, Washington, D. C.

In nominating the NAIRO Committee chairmen, Mr. Aronson spelled out the assignment of each Committee for 1958.

Resources and Planning - Consisting of present officers and all past presidents, this Committee has the responsibility for exploring and recommending new program activities and new sources of income. Since the program and finance aspects are seen as inseparable (the one depending on the other), an earlier division of this Committee into two subcommittees has been abandoned. In 1958, this Committee has the special charge of developing and coordinating program activities that will implement the Special Funds Drive for $2,500. Chairman: LOUIS RADELET, National Conference of Christians and Jews, New York City.

Professional Standards - This Committee is expected to continue and expand the discussion of professional standards initiated by its predecessors. Starting point in 1958 will be the report developed by the 1957 Committee for discussion at the Kansas City NAIRO Conference. The Committee also has the special charge of studying questions of job security for NAIRO members. Chairman: GRACE MARR, American Nurses Association, New York City.

Resolutions - This Committee is charged with the development of a draft statement of concern, to be submitted to the NAIRO membership in advance of the 1958 Conference where it will be discussed and acted upon. The statement of concern is seen as a more appropriate alternative to specific, topical Conference resolutions, it is hoped that its early submission to the membership will encourage its consideration by local NAIRO groups in advance of the annual meeting. Chairman: SAMUEL SPIEGLER, National Community Relations Advisory Council, New York City.

Interprofessional Relations - Drawing on the members of NAIRO who are also active in other professions and other professional bodies, (law, nursing, education, etc.), this Committee will seek to develop closer liaison with allied disciplines and to promote appropriate joint projects or activities. Chairman: CHARLES LIVERMORE, New York State Commission Against Discrimination.

Publications - Formerly this Committee was nominally responsible for all NAIRO publications, including the Reporter. In 1958, its primary concern will be the proposed JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS (6 issues, published bi-monthly), which will be based on the respective reports of the six Commissions. Chairman (and overall JOURNAL editor): S. ANDHIL FINEBERG, American Jewish Committee, New York City. (N.B. Dr. Fineberg declined)

Educational and Professional Training - Reactivated last year to serve as the Advisory Committee for the NAIRO Internship Program, this Committee will continue with its present membership for the duration of that program. By design, it is equally balanced among academicians, practitioners from internship agencies, and practitioners from non-internship agencies. It continues to be responsible for advising the Executive Secretary in his administration and coordination of the interns' training. Chairman (replacing Charles Livermore, who continues on the Committee): Dr. MARTIN CHWOROWSKY, Albert Greenfield Human Relations Center, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia.

Finance - Headed by the Treasurer, this Committee is responsible for the Annual Budget and for other matters relating to the administration of NAIRO finances. In 1958, it also assumes responsibility for securing and collecting both individual and agency pledges toward the NAIRO Internship Program. Chairman: GEORGE CULBERSON.

Conference Program - Continuing the practice inaugurated last year, this Committee is composed of representatives of each Department and Commission, together with such other members as the Chairman may appoint. It is responsible for planning the program of the 1958 Conference, subject to Board approval, and for securing the speakers. In 1958, its membership will be centered in the New York area. Chairman: IRVING GOLDABER, New York Commission on Intergroup Relations.

There was some discussion of the desirability of greater geographic representation in the chairmanships, especially in the South and Far West. Mr. Aronson noted that this year's appointments were at least a step in that direction and expressed the belief that the rotating city-centered Commission would, for example, locate eventually in almost every city in which there were even a few NAIRO members. The Board urged that this concern over wide geographic representation be borne in mind in future years and approved the appointment of all chairmen nominated. (MOTION: Whitby-Allen).

XIV. 1957 CONFERENCE: REPORT AND EVALUATION (Sidney Lawrence)

A. Finances: Despite the fact that approximately $925 was raised locally, the 1957 Conference incurred a $50 deficit. Mr. Lawrence indicated that this would be met locally but, as a matter of future policy, asked for a ruling on financial responsibility for the Annual Conference. The Board asked the Executive Committee to consider the question of whether NAIRO or the local sponsors should be financially responsible for the Annual Conference, and to report to the Board - with a policy recommendation - at the May meeting. (MOTION: Whitby-Culberson)

B. Mr. Lawrence presented a brief analysis of the Conference Evaulation sheets returned by some 41 member-delegates. The general sessions and the "opportunity for informal exchange" were rated as the best features of the Kansas City meeting; Commission and Department meetings were rated weakest. The general tone of the replies suggested that delegates felt crowded in time, and the Board went on record as favoring the extension of the Annual Conference to four days, i. e. Tuesday morning through Friday noon, followed by the Board meeting through Saturday. It was decided to poll the membership on this possibility, with an extension of the 1958 Conference (Pittsburgh) in mind if hotel reservations can be assured. The evaulation sheets contained various program suggestions, all of which were relayed to the Conference Program Committee. That body was instructed to report to the Board at its May meeting.

The Board expressed its grateful appreciation to Margaret Garrity and the President's Committee on Government Contracts for the hospitality extended at this meeting.

APPENDIX I
Minutes, Board Meeting
Chicago, Illinois: January 24, 25, 1958

RECOMMENDATION: REORGANIZATION OF NAIRO COMMISSION STRUCTURE AND FUNCTION

A. The Commissions, now six in number, shall be localized this year around six cities in which there are nuclei of professionals especially interested in the respective areas of concern.

MANPOWER UTILIZATION :	Cleveland	NATURE, SCOPE & THEORY:	Detroit
HOUSING AND FAMILY LIFE :	Philadelphia	EDUCATION :	Chicago
INTERRELIGIOUS RELATIONS:	New York	(Other Civil Rights*):	Washington, D.C.

*The Commission - formerly known as the Commission on Civil Rights - that deals with such topics as Transportation, Recreation, Public Accommodations, Voting, etc., needs a title that is more accurately descriptive of its special concerns.

B. The Commission members in the respective cities shall constitute the Steering Committee of each Commission; NAIRO members located outside the Commission cities will be invited to affiliate as correspondent-participants.

C. The city-centered Commission cores shall be responsible for:

(1) Their Commission report, for which they shall serve as editorial committee. They may, of course, solicit articles from others.

(2) Formulation of a major topic of particular interest in their Commission's area of concern - for discussion in local NAIRO groups around the country and perhaps at the NAIRO Conference.

D. The six annual Commission reports shall be staggered at bi-monthly intervals (beginning with Manpower Utilization in March) and shall be the basis for the (NAIRO) JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS. Overall editorship of the JOURNAL shall be in the hands of NAIRO's Publications Committee; editorial supervision of each issue will be exercised by the city-centered core of the Commission reporting.

E. Each Commission will be represented on the Conference Program Committee by a New York area representative selected by the Commission chairman (the Conference Program Committee will be centered in New York City this year). This representative will help plan the 1958 Conference and, in the discussion of Commission sessions, will reflect the concerns of his own Commission members.

F. Localizing of the Commissions in the six cities shall be for one year only. It is contemplated that the Commissions will rotate from year to year among cities in which there are nuclei of NAIRO members, eventually covering all.

NOTE: This recommendation was adopted - in essence - by the Board of Directors without dissent.

NAIRO Internship Program

January, 1958

Suggested criteria for Agency selection, 1958-9

It is suggested that preference be given to agencies that meet the following criteria:

A. The agency is primarily engaged in intergroup relations.

B. The agency program is such that the intern can be given experience in a variety of intergroup situations - school desegregation, housing integration, reduction of prejudice, interreligious understanding, fair employment practices, police-community relations, etc.

C. The agency program is such that the intern will work with members of more than one ethnic group in situations that will expose him to the actual workings of intergroup conflict or intergroup understanding.

* * * * *

It is further suggested that recipient agencies be asked to commit themselves to the following:

A. The agency will provide staff supervision by one or more persons who are professionally experienced in intergroup relations.

B. The agency will cooperate with NAIRO, the Program's coordinating agency, in the development of the mid-year seminar and in the evaluation of the program. With respect to the latter, the agency will provide NAIRO with bi-monthly reports from its intern and semi-annual reports from the intern's supervisor.

C. The agency will send its intern to the two-week Internship Seminar, and his supervisor to at least three days of that seminar, sharing travel costs with other internship agencies (on a travel pool basis, such costs not to exceed $500).

D. The agency will select its intern on the following basis:

1. The intern is interested in preparing for a professional career in the field of intergroup relations, and expects to remain in this field after his internship.

2. The intern shall not be otherwise employed during his internship and shall devote full-time to that training.

3. The intern shall be employed for a period of one year (12 months) at an adequate junior professional salary (in 1957-1958, intern salaries averaged $4,250).

E. The agency will prepare - and submit as part of its application or shortly after its acceptance - an outline of the proposed year's training, which shall include:

1. Opportunity for internal orientation to the agency program and philosophy.

SUGGESTED CRITERIA - 2

2. Opportunity to become acquainted with the program and philosophy of the other intergroup relations agencies in the area, and with the community as a whole.

3. Opportunity for specific work assignments, under supervision but with increasing responsibility and latitude for decision and initiative. (Insofar as possible, work assignments encompassing a variety of skills useful in intergroup relations - public relations, administration, community organization, investigation and mediation, etc.).

4. Opportunity for ample and regular consultation with the supervisor.

F. In those situations where the intern is in fact a staff trainee, slated to remain with the agency after completion of the internship year, the agency will expose the intern to problem areas and job assignments beyond those for which he is being trained specifically.

NOTE: The suggested criteria were drawn up by NAIRO's Educational and Professional Training Committee at the request of the Fund for the Republic, one of the foundations sponsoring the Internship Program. Selection of agencies to receive second-year grants will be made by participating foundations, not by NAIRO.

Dear Agency Executive:

NAIRO, in cooperation with the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, is preparing to publish a DIRECTORY OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS AGENCIES WITH PAID STAFF. It is our understanding that your Agency (a) is primarily concerned with intergroup relations and (b) has some paid staff.

In order to make this DIRECTORY as comprehensive and useful as possible, we are asking you to complete and return the enclosed form. Please feel free to give (or send) as much information as you deem pertinent.

Of course, if your agency does not wish to be listed or does not meet the criteria stated above, we would appreciate your notifying us. However, if we do not receive a reply from your agency by February 1, we shall presume that it is to be listed.

I hope that you will respond fully and promptly. We want this DIRECTORY to be of maximum value to the entire field.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

Arnold Aronson

BY-LAWS OF THE SOUTHWEST REGIONAL COUNCIL
AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

Unanimously adopted at the Southwest Regional Council Meeting and Conference, February 8 & 9, 1958, Dallas, Texas, at the afternoon session on Saturday February 8, 1958.

ARTICLE I

ORGANIZATION

Sec. 1. As authorized by the Executive Board of the American Jewish Committee, on April 28, 1956, a Southwest Regional Council is hereby organized to represent the states of Arkansas, Oklahoma, Southwest Tennessee and Texas.

Sec. 2. These by-laws become effective when approved by constituent representatives of the Region and proper authority in the National Organization.

ARTICLE II

PURPOSES AND GOALS

Within the framework of established policy, it shall be the function of this Council to promote the aims, purposes and welfare of the American Jewish Committee in the Southwest Region by means of:

Sec. 1. Facilitating the availability of resources and services of the National Organization to Regional and Local activities and interests.

Sec. 2. Facilitating communication of national policy statements and items of information to chapters, units and members of the American Jewish Committee within the region and regional attitudes, reactions and issues back to the National Organization.

Sec. 3. Interpreting of regional attitudes for national policy deliberations.

Sec. 4. Developing means for utilizing regional resources to deal cooperatively with other interested groups on matters of local and regional concern.

ARTICLE III

MEMBERSHIP

Sec. 1. Each Chapter shall choose one delegate for every twenty members or a minimum of two delegates.

Sec. 2. Each unit shall choose two delegates.

Sec. 3. The Chairman, with Council approval, may appoint a maximum of two delegates from towns having no chapter or unit.

Sec. 4. The Chairman, with Council approval, may appoint a maximum of twenty-five delegates-at-large in addition to Sec. 3, above.

Sec. 5. Delegates shall serve for a term of two years beginning on the date of the Annual Council Meeting. Initial appointments by the Chapters, Units and Council Chairman shall follow the principle of staggered terms with one-half of all delegate groups serving for one year and one-half for two years.

Sec. 6. No delegate may serve for more than four consecutive years except those appointed under Sec. 4, above.

ARTICLE IV

MEETINGS

Sec. 1. The Annual Meeting of the Council shall be held between September and November. Date and place are to be designated by the Chairman or Executive Committee. This meeting shall be open to all Chapter, Unit and National AJC members and guests.

Sec. 2. An Executive Session for Council members only will be held in May or June at time and place designated by the Chairman.

Sec. 3. Special Meetings of the Council may be called at any time by the Chairman or a Vice-Chairman in case of the Chairman's disability.

Sec. 4. A Quorum shall consist of one-fourth of the qualified delegates.

ARTICLE V

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Sec. 1. Appointments - The Executive Committee shall consist of all officers and seven additional Council members appointed by the Chairman and approved by the Council, to serve for one year, dating from the Annual Meeting.

Sec. 2. Functions - The Executive Committee shall have full power to act for the Council in the interim between meetings.

Sec. 3. Chairman - The Chairman of the Council shall serve as Chairman of the Executive Committee.

ARTICLE VI

OFFICERS AND STAFF

Sec. 1. A Chairman, First and Second Vice-Chairmen, a Secretary and a Treasurer shall be elected by members of the Council and hold office for a period of one year from the date of election at the Annual Council Meeting. If filling a vacancy during the unexpired term of office, they shall serve until the next Annual Meeting. Officers may not serve more than two consecutive terms exclusive of vacancy appointments.

Sec. 2. The outgoing Chairman shall serve as honorary Chairman and member of the Executive Committee during the tenure of his successor.

Sec. 3. The functions of the officers shall be those usually prescribed for such offices.

Sec. 4. The Director of the Southwest Region and his staff shall be available to the Council for appropriate service.

ARTICLE VII

COMMITTEES

Sec. 1. The Chairman shall appoint such committees as may be required to conduct the business of the Council.

ARTICLE VIII

AMENDMENTS

Sec. 1. These by-laws may be amended by a two-thirds vote of the delegates provided at least one-third of the delegates is present. Notice of proposed amendments must be sent to all delegates one month prior to the meeting, and all amendments must be approved by the National Organization.

ARTICLE IX

OFFICE

Sec. 1. The office of the Council shall be located at the Southwest Regional Office.

Enclosure - 1 (Statement)

ROLE AND RESPONSIBILITY OF NAIRO'S RESOURCES AND PLANNING COMMITTEE

(A statement submitted by F. B. Routh, Southern Regional Council, Atlanta, Ga.)

The Resources and Planning Committee is a creature of the Board of Directors; it is responsible to the Board. Its function is to assess long-term trends in the field of intergroup relations and the professional needs of intergroup relations officials; to recommend to the Board, on the basis of its findings, such actions as will make NAIRO a more effective and well-respected professional association.

In pursuit of these goals it shall carry out such assignments as the Board may direct and carry on such other activities as may be necessary in the fulfillment of its obligations.

NAIRO RESOURCES & PLANNING COMMITTEE

Dear Member:

I am enclosing the minutes of our most recent meeting - a memorable session in Philadelphia last month.

PLEASE NOTE the important charge on the last page: an urgent requirement that each member submit to me promptly in writing a statement of his ideas on the Committee's role, function, and future. I will then circulate these among you at least one week in advance of our next meeting.

And PLEASE NOTE that our next meeting is scheduled for Thursday, May 1, in New York City - at the Building for Brotherhood, 43 West 57 Street (9:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.). NAIRO's Board of Directors meets here on May 2 and 3, and we want to have a report for its consideration.

I look forward to hearing from you at your earliest convenience. We need the guidance of every Committee member in arriving at some agreement on the most appropriate and valuable contribution that we can make to NAIRO during the year ahead.

Sincerely,

Lou

LOUIS A. RADELET
Chairman
Resources and Planning Committee

P.S. Naturally, all members are cordially invited to take part in the Board meetings that will follow our one-day session.

Resources and Planning Committee
February 14, 1958
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

Present: Louis A. Radelet, Chairman; Arnold Aronson, Marshall Bragdon, Maurice Fagan, John G. Feild, Charles Livermore, George Schermer. Guests: Leonard Aries, John Lassoe, Jr.

Absent: George Culberson, Margaret Garrity, Sidney Lawrence, Harold Lett, Herman Long, Francis McPeek, Frederick Routh.

Arnold Aronson reviewed the past history and present assignment of the Resources and Planning Committee. Originally established by Herman Long during his presidency, it has consisted of past presidents and others, and has been charged with the long-range development of NAIRO program and financial support. Both the Internship Program and the employment of an Executive Secretary were planned by this Committee, and it is appropriate that this Committee now provide the broad directions needed for NAIRO's future. The life span of NAIRO's national staff and office is limited by the internship grant, due to expire in 1959, and it is time now to chart certain long range goals for NAIRO, incorporating as one considerations of program and finance.

In addition to this broad charge, Mr. Aronson noted that at least three specific matters had been referred by the Board: (1) the Special Funds Drive for $2,500 during 1958, with the request that the Committee delineate the type of fund-raising activity that would be appropriate for local NAIRO groups, (2) a proposal presented by Dr. Martin Chworowsky for summer workshops for senior intergroup relations practitioners, jointly sponsored by NAIRO and the Albert Greenfield Center for Human Relations, University of Pennsylvania; and (3) various proposals that NAIRO establish and provide the type of clearing-house services offered by the American Council on Race Relations.

Discussing the specific proposals, Maurice Fagan felt that the proposed workshop for senior practitioners might be too exclusive -- inappropriate for NAIRO since some of its members (newcomers and junior professionals) would be excluded. On the other hand, a broader workshop that involved lay leadership might gain their support for NAIRO, as well as their agencies'. By the same token, agencies might welcome NAIRO-organized seminars or workshops to which they could - for a stated fee - send their junior professional members.

Mr. Schermer noted that the decision had been made - several times over - to remain as a professional association, becoming neither an action agency nor a federation of agencies. This did not, however, preclude the development of the development of services to agencies on a subscription basis. Many agencies have $500 - $2,500 per year that could be paid out for real consultative and informational services. One hears discussion of a possible clearing-house service among agencies, and this may provide NAIRO with the opportunity to be both an association of individuals and an agency services organization. This might resolve our dilemma of wanting to be a professional organization but of also wanting to be and do more than the profession of intergroup relations can support financially. We must figure out, therefore, how we can function as a professional organization of integrity, and still exist.

- more -

Mr. Radelet stressed the need for projection in terms of goals for the Committee itself, relating what NAIRO is to what NAIRO should be. It was suggested that NAIRO activities should promote personal growth, security, efficiency, etc. of its members, and that this should include consideration of such matters as job security and pension plans. In similar vein, the development of intergroup relations as a profession is dependent upon NAIRO since that body provides the necessary community of interest and the requisite drive to professionalize. How then can NAIRO best accomplish these aims and, at the same time, support itself? (Mr. Fagan observed that the bulk of our finances must come from agencies and that all we have to give them is "ourselves.")

Mr. Livermore noted that the leadership group of NAIRO is a largely-unused resource, with little chance to function as such or to provide its services. Although this core group has a responsibility for making articulate the things in which it believes, it has never spoken as such and is missing an opportunity to become an operative group in the national picture. The Resources and Planning Committee should be expanded to include people nominated by the past presidents and present officers, comprising the key people in this field. The Committee should meet four times annually for 2-day periods and should concern itself with determining key issues, discussing them, and issuing reports designed to secure national publicity. (Mr. Livermore then moved this suggestion, seconded by Mr. Schermer.)

Mr. Feild felt that this function would be completely inappropriate for this Committee, that the only vehicle for such public statements should be the NAIRO Board of Directors. (The motion was defeated after considerable discussion.)

It was agreed that there needed to be further clarification of the Committee's role and function, that this should be developed by the Committee itself and submitted to the Board at its next meeting. Mr. Feild then moved, seconded by Mr. Livermore, that this Committee meet one day in advance of the next Board meeting (specifically, on May 1), that each member of the Committee submit to the chairman well in advance of that meeting a written statement of the most appropriate role and function for the Committee, and that the chairman in turn distribute such statements to the members one or two weeks before the May 1 meeting. The motion was adopted without dissent.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN V.P. LASSOE, JR.

Dear Lou:

I hope to be able to attend the resources and planning committee meeting scheduled for May 1st in New York. I would prefer a dinner or evening meeting to one during the afternoon, but will try to accommodate the rest of the group if they desire otherwise. Please let me know when the meeting is scheduled. This means, of course, I will attend NAIRO's Board meeting on May 2nd and 3rd. I look forward to seeing you then.

Dear Thelma:

Thank you for your recent letter with the enclosed copy of the letter you hope to send to prospective NAIRO-ites.

I would suggest Harry Jones (121 East Third Street, Room 209, Charlotte, North Carolina) and Bill Williams (213 N.E. Second Avenue, Miami, Florida) for membership committee assignments. They are the Directors of our cooperating state groups in their respective states. I am enclosing a list of professionals in the field of inter-group relations who should be members of NAIRO and who I am sure would welcome a letter from you. Feel free to say that I suggested their names. I hope this helps.

All good regards.

By the way, if you have not already sent me suggestions for Membership Committee members in your region, would you please let me have these names immediately? Otherwise, we will have to appoint people from the national membership list from various regions in the country.

Federal Civil Rights Developments

Nearly half a year after its creation by act of Congress, the Federal Civil Rights Commission at this writing has had no funds appropriated for its operations, is still waiting for the Senate to act on confirmation of its executive director, and has on the record disclaimed all intention of investigating any such incident as that at Little Rock. One quarter of the Commission's statutory life span of two years having already elapsed, vigorous prosecution of its task will be necessary if it is to discharge the responsibility with which the law charges it. Signs of movement in this direction are earnestly awaited.

Appropriation "Deferred"

The White House had included in the 1959 appropriation bill for general government expenses an item of $750,000 to finance the Civil Rights Commission. On February 7, the House Appropriations Committee "deferred" action on this item. Moreover, it made it clear that it would not be disposed to provide interim funds in lesser amounts until the Commission was better organized for work. Committee members indicated that they were reluctant to approve the appropriation without hearing an Administration representative —as is customary—explain why the money is needed and how it is to be spent. No such representative appeared to justify or defend this particular request. (The Commission's essential expenses, meanwhile are being met by allotments from the President's special emergency funds.) The members of the Commission had not yet been confirmed by the Senate, as the law requires; and no staff director—also subject to Senate confirmation—had yet been named, at the time of the Appropriations Committee hearing.

Rumors were rife in Washington that the Administration was having trouble finding a qualified person of appropriate stature to accept the appointment as staff director. Anthony Lewis, New York Times reporter, writing in that paper on February 16, commented that a candidate for the post had to be "moderate" enough to have a reasonable chance of being accepted by Southern Senators and not so "moderate" as to ensure the opposition of Northern Senators, and that he had to be willing to take on a short-term job calculated to win more enemies than friends and with no political future.

Staff Director Named

On February 19, President Eisenhower announced his choice, Gordon M. Tiffany, attorney of Concord, N.H. Mr. Tiffany has practiced law in Washington. He was Sherman Adams' aide in 1950 when the present presidential adviser was governor of New Hampshire, and was state Attorney-General from 1951 to 1953, when he became City Solicitor of Concord. New Hampshire's Republican Senator Cotton said of Mr. Tiffany that he is "a highly reputable and conscientious lawyer," but he added he did not know the appointee's views on civil rights. Senator Eastland of Mississippi, powerful chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which passes on candidates for confirmation, told reporters he did not know when a hearing on Tiffany's confirmation would be held.

The Judiciary Committee did hold hearings February 24 on the members of the Commission. At these hearings the Commissioners assured the Committee that they regarded the Commission as a fact-finding body and that they would regard any investigation of integration disputes such as Little Rock quite beyond their authority. In response to close questioning by Southern Senators on the Committee,

New York State Supreme Court Ruling on Anti-Bias Housing Law

A New York State Supreme Court judge, in upholding the constitutionality of New York State's law prohibiting racial and religious discrimination in publicly assisted housing, used a line of reasoning that could apply to the similar laws of other states and to laws barring discrimination in private housing as well.

Justice Samuel W. Eager rendered the decision in the case of Pelham Hall Apartments, Inc., operators of Rochelle Arms, an apartment house in New Rochelle. (See NAIRO Reporter, July 1957.) The operators in effect admitted, as charged by the New York State Commission Against Discrimination, that they had refused a qualified Negro applicant an apartment solely because of his race.

They contested the SCAD order directing them to cease and desist from this discrimination on the grounds (a) that the law (Metcalf-Baker Act of 1955) is unconstitutional, since it violates the right of private owners of property to choose those to whom the property is to be sold or rented and since it conflicts with the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment by applying only to owners of housing receiving assistance after a certain date and thus discriminating against them as compared with other owners; and (b) that the law does not apply to Rochelle Arms anyhow because the original FHA commitment to insure a loan on the project was made one day before the effective date of the Act (which was July 1, 1955).

Dr. John A. Hannah, Michigan State College president who is Commission Chairman, and Commission members John S. Battle, former Virginia governor, and Father Theodore M. Hesburgh, Notre Dame University president, all gave essentially this answer.

Narrow Construction of Law

It was certainly a most narrow interpretation of the law, as was pointed out by a lawyer on the Judiciary Committee's staff, Robert Young, who observed that the law creating the Commission gave it broad powers of investigation and subpoena which certainly would extend to the taking of testimony under oath about controversial integration situations, and the referral of the results of such investigations to the Justice Department. As reported in NAIRO Reporter, Vol. VIII, No. 1, October 1957, the Civil Rights Act directs the Commission, among other things, to conduct studies of "legal developments constituting a denial of equal protection of the laws."

Dr. Hannah said, however, that it was his "feeling" that the Commission should be wholly separate from the Justice Department and not be used as what he called its "tool."

Notwithstanding these assurances, the Southern Senators on the Committee could not bring themselves to vote for confirmation of the Northerners on the Commission when the matter came to a vote in committee on March 3. The Three Southerners—Dean Robert G. Storey of Southern Methodist University Law School, former Governor Doyle E. Carlton of Florida, and former Governor Battle were unanimously approved for confirmation. But Senators Eastland, Olin D. Johnston (D., S.C.), John J. McClellan (D., Ark.) and Sam J. Ervin, Jr. (D., N.C.) voted against Dr. Hannah, Father Hesburgh, and J. Ernest Wilkins (Assistant Secretary of Labor). All the Commission members were subsequently confirmed by voice vote on the Senate floor.

Civil Rights Head Grilled

Meanwhile, the newly appointed head of the Justice Department's new Civil Rights Division, created by the same Civil Rights Law that created the Civil Rights Commission, was not faring so well. The Judiciary Committee subjected him to intensive questioning twice and ordered him back for further grilling. Questioning of the nominee, W. Wilson White, centered on his role in the Administration's decision to send troops to Little Rock last September. Mr. White was then head of the Legal Division of the Justice Department, which prepared the brief on which the President based his proclamation ordering the troops into the Arkansas city.

While the Southern Senators continue their tactics of delay and obstruction, and the Administration through Attorney General William P. Rogers calls for a moratorium on further civil rights legislation, a bipartisan group of Northern liberal Senators have sponsored a new and different civil rights bill, S. 3257. The sponsors are: Douglas (D.) of Illinois, Humphrey (D.) of Minnesota, Ives (R.) of New York, Hennings (D.) of Missouri, Case (R.) of New Jersey, Morse (D.) of Oregon, Dirksen (R.) of Illinois, McNamara (D.) of Michigan, Javits (R.) of New York, Clark (D.) of Pennsylvania, Pastore (D.) of Rhode Island, Beall (R.) of Maryland, Carroll (D.) of Colorado.

Introducing the bill on February 10, Senator Douglas said its purpose was "to extend full first-class citizenship and equality of opportunity to all of our Negro and Spanish-speaking citizens."

New Legislative Approach

The bill represents a wholly new approach to the problem of promoting compliance with Supreme Court interpretations of the Constitution as regards equal treatment. It proposes to substitute reward for punishment, to offer inducements rather than threats, to replace federal authority with federal aid; in short to make it profitable to communities and states to comply and thus costly to remain intransigent. Senator Douglas, in his sponsoring speech, outlined the bill as follows:

Title II authorizes the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to assist, through the compilation and distribution of data, the making of surveys, the arrangement of conferences, the appointment of advisory councils, the provision of specialists' services, and the development of community understanding for desegregation programs that are in harmony with the Constitution. Appropriations up to $2.5 million a year for 5 years are authorized for these purposes.

Title III authorizes the Secretary to make grants for school facilities in areas where the chief problem preventing or hindering effective compliance is the lack of adequate buildings or other physical equipment.

It also authorizes grants for employing additional teachers, in-service teacher training, employment of specialists, short-term training courses, and other additional educational measures undertaken to eliminate segregation, while at the same time assuring that existing educational standards will not be lowered.

Funds would also be available to local communities that wish to comply with the Court's decisions, but where, as in Georgia and Virginia, the State threatens to cut off funds or close the schools.

Appropriations of not more than $40 million a year for 5 years are authorized to cover the costs of the grant programs.

Title IV provides that when other methods fail, the executive branch of Government . . . shall assume responsibility for initiating the development of desegregation plans to accomplish the objectives of the Court's decisions. In the development of both the tentative and approved plans, however, there are express provisions for the fullest possible local consultation and participation. . . .

In the history of America's advance toward equal justice, court proceedings have been the means of making many of our greatest forward steps. They are still an indispensable part of our protections against racial discriminations.

A growing group of States, however, have passed so-called antibarratry laws which make it much more difficult for civil-rights groups or others to assist persons in bringing or maintaining lawsuits for the vindication of their civil rights. Other forms of pressure — such as organized boycotts, threats, and intimidation — have also been used to deter such legal actions.

Since the persons who are denied their rights to equal protection are more often than not poor persons, unable alone to sustain the heavy costs of litigation, and more subject than others to hostile pressures, these laws and pressures will increasingly padlock out of court the Negroes and also the Spanish-speaking Americans of the Southwest in their efforts to maintain suits to carry out the law of the land.

To meet this situation, the proposed legislation would authorize the Attorney General of the United States to start civil actions for preventive relief against those who deprive persons of their rights to equal protection of the laws, on account of race, color, religion, or national origin.

[This authority is much like that provided in part II of last year's bill H.R. 6127, and in the 1956 measure, H.R. 627, both overwhelmingly approved by the House.]

Title V confers the power to file compliance actions in school cases in connection with approved desegregation plans, when the Secretary certifies that all efforts to secure compliance by conciliation, assistance, and otherwise have failed.

Title VI first authorizes preventive action against those State and local officials and others acting under color of State law in cases involving denial of equal protection generally, including school cases, by reason of race, color, religion, or national origin; but it provides that the Attorney General may sue only upon a signed complaint, and when, in his judgment, the person aggrieved is unable to seek effective legal protection for himself.

Suits are also authorized by the Attorney General against those who attempt to prevent local officials from according persons equal protection of the laws, or who act to hinder the execution of court orders for the commitment was made on June 30, the actual financing and its insurance by FHA came after July 1, 1955.

Constitutional Interpretations

More significant are Justice Eager's rulings on the constitutional issues. Of the right of private ownership, he wrote:

> The private ownership of private property, free of unreasonable restriction upon the control thereof, is truly a part of our way of life, but, on the other hand, we, as a people do hold firmly to the philosophy that all men are created equal. Indeed, discrimination against any individual here on account of race, color or religion is antagonistic to fundamental tenets of our form of government and of the God in whom we place our trust. . . .
> In the final analysis, . . . what is here involved is a conflict between the rights of the private property owner and the inherent power of the state to regulate the use and enjoyment of private property in the interest of public welfare; and . . . the power of the state, when reasonably exercised, is supreme.

Specifically, in rejecting the defense contention, he declared:

> Now, it is firmly settled that private property rights are subject to the exercise of police power legislation. . . . Broad discretion resides in the Legislature, comprised of elected representatives of the people, to decide what is necessary in the interests of the public good . . . a legislative act may not be annulled by a court merely because it doubts the wisdom thereof. . . . These particular legislative acts directed against the practice of racial or religious discrimination are presumed constitutional. . . . I am satisfied that the legislature did act within the bounds of the police power in enacting provisions against racial and religious discrimination in publicly-assisted housing accommodations.

> . . . the prohibition against denial of equal protection of laws does not preclude a state from resorting to classification for purposes of legislation. . . . The test is whether or not the classification rests upon some reasonable basis bearing in mind the subject-matter and the object of the legislation. . . . Civil rights and anti-discrimination legislation in this state, and on the federal basis for that matter, has been and is a step by step proposition. . . . A proceeding step by step by legislative bodies to eliminate the practice of racial discrimination in affairs closely connected with the lives of our citizens is not only a reasonable, but in view of changing times and circumstances, a required method of procedure in the interest of public welfare. The Legislature was authorized to proceed as it did in imposing a ban against discrimination in housing, that is, by gradual steps, beginning with provisions applicable to various classes of publicly owned and managed housing and over a period of time extending the provisions to specified classes of private housing projects inaugurated or carried out with governmental assistance. Proceeding in such manner required classification in the legislation enacted from time to time; and, under the circumstances, reasonable classification was justified. It is concluded that the classification in the particular 1955 and 1956 amendments to the Civil Rights Law and the Executive Law having to do with publicly-assisted housing accommodations is not so arbitrary and unreasonable as to be in violation of the equal protection clauses.

An appeal from this ruling is anticipated and the issue probably will be brought before the United States Supreme Court in due course.

equal protection. Action to deprive persons of their rights under the 14th amendment because such persons are opposing denial of the rights of others, is also made a basis for legal action by the Attorney General. In addition, the Attorney General is explicitly authorized to intervene in cases brought by others for relief against the denial of equal protection of the laws, because of race, color, religion, or national origin.

Little hope for action on this bill in the present session is held out by legislative observers.

Community Worker Wins NCCJ Certificate of Recognition

Among the recipients of 1958 certificates of recognition from the National Conference of Christians and Jews is Louis Kousin, Executive Director of the Eastern Union County Jewish Community Council, with offices in Elizabeth, N.J.

Mr. Kousin writes a column, "Brotherhood Every Day," which appears bimonthly in the Elizabeth Daily Journal. It deals, for the most part, with the positive developments in the general field of community and human relations with special emphasis on intergroup understanding. The column has appeared regularly since 1953. So far as we know, Mr. Kousin is the only intergroup relations practitioner to win this award for essentially journalistic contributions to brotherhood.

New Trial Ordered Because of Discriminatory Language in Argument to Jury

A federal district judge sitting in St. Joseph, Mo., set aside a jury verdict for the defendant in a civil action because counsel in arguing to the jury used the terms "Jewed up" and "Jewed down."

In moving for a new trial, the plaintiff's lawyers, who were Jewish, claimed improper conduct by the defendant's attorney in his argument to the jury.

In granting the motion for a new trial, the court said that it was sure that the defendant's attorney had not intended any offense or to reflect upon the religious faith of counsel for the plaintiff. The court concluded, however, that whether the statements were intentionally made by counsel for the defendants or not, "It is the opinion of the court that they were highly prejudicial, and that the best interests of justice demand that a new trial be granted."

Letter of the Week

The following letter by Mark Ethridge, publisher of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal appeared, on February 23, in the Washington Post and Times-Herald:

My wife's piece in This Week Magazine about our being "mugged" in Washington and the round-up on crime—"Fear in the Street of the Nation's Capital" in the U.S. News and World Report for Feb. 14—have produced a spate of letters addressed to us. Some of them are indignant over crime in the Capital, some are sympathetic, and some, from my less ardent admirers in the South, think that only poetic justice was done when a Negro hit me in the head.

That is what disturbs me about both pieces. It never occurred to my wife to say that they were white boys, and the piece in the U.S. News and World Report leaves the implication that they were indeed Negroes. They were not. There were five of the young thugs; three stayed in the get-away car and two "mugged" and "yoked" us, whatever the expression is.

All of them were white; three from Asheville, N.C., one from South Carolina and one from Maryland, just over the District line. All of them had good old English names common to the South; all were products of good old segregated Southern white schools.

I'm sorry to discomfit those who seemed pleased to have me hit in the head, but I did want to set the record straight. Besides, I would never admit that a Negro could hit any harder than a white boy.

Dear Fred:

I hope that you are still planning to attend our Internship Seminar in Chicago - at least over the middle weekend of June 14 and 15. In fact, I am counting on it and would like to ask you to assume two specific responsibilities.

One would be a talk with discussion on "The South Today," touching on developments, implications and special professional considerations. I would hope that this could be arranged on Friday evening, June 13, or Monday morning, June 16, depending on your travel plans.

The second request is somewhat more demanding, namely, to chair the evaluation sessions over that weekend - Saturday and Sunday afternoons, and possibly Sunday evening. We want to get the fullest and frankest comments possible, and I think that you have the skill to draw these out. We can discuss - by mail or when you arrive in Chicago - the specifics of this evaluation as Arnie and some of our Advisory Committee members see it.

I would ask you for that speech as a contribution to NAIRO and without blushing. For the evaluation task, however, may I insult you with a purely token offer of a $50 honorarium? I hope that you will be able to say "yes" to both requests, but don't let the money frighten you - we can always give it to the SCEF!

Pay no attention to Chuck Livermore's letter. I not only have the money but also have the official entries.

Let me hear from you.

Sincerely,

John

May 1958

Dear Friend:

I am enclosing some brochures announcing the second phase of our National Internship Program. Agencies participating in 1958-1959 are anxious to receive applications from qualified candidates, and I hope that you will encourage appropriate people to apply.

You will note that applications should be sent directly to the training agencies listed; they will in turn select their own trainees. NAIRO serves simply as the overall coordinating and administering agency.

Please do not hesitate to write to this office if we can provide additional brochures (in any quantity that you desire) or other information.

I might add that, although the application deadline is set as July 1, some of the agencies may continue interviewing during the summer. Therefore, after the official deadline, you might encourage likely candidates to write to NAIRO for the names of agencies still considering applications.

We shall appreciate any help that you can give in publicizing this program, so vital to our professional growth.

Sincerely,

Arnold Aronson

OPPORTUNITIES FOR

ON-THE-JOB PROFESSIONAL TRAINING IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS

1958—1959

PURPOSE

To provide young men and women with an opportunity to prepare for professional careers in intergroup relations through one year of supervised on-the-job training in an intergroup relations agency.

PROGRAM

Each trainee will spend twelve months on a paid work assignment in an agency somewhere in the United States. Training will vary according to agency program and geographic location, but all of the assignments may be expected to include exposure to a variety of intergroup situations in such areas as housing, employment, education, police-community relations, and interreligious understanding.

Following orientation to the training agency, other intergroup relations organizations, the community, and basic concepts and techniques of intergroup relations, the trainee will receive actual work experience—responsibility on a continuing basis for some phase of the agency's program, under staff supervision but with opportunity for initiative and decision.

The training year will include a two-week workshop for trainees and their supervisors. In addition, trainees may be offered courses, workshops, or reading programs.

STIPEND

Fellowships equivalent to junior professional salaries will be awarded for the year's training. These will vary with the agency, but in 1957-1958 they averaged $4,250.

DURATION OF TRAINING

Trainees will be expected to complete the full twelve months of training on a full-time basis; they may not be otherwise employed. Upon successful completion of the year's training, they may anticipate employment at the junior professional level in an intergroup relations agency: the one in which they trained or some other.

ELIGIBILITY

Applications will be accepted from all persons who are interested in professional careers in intergroup relations.

Each training agency selects its own trainee from among those individuals who apply directly to it, and each agency sets its own requirements and prerequisites for the post. For example, although only a college degree will be required in most cases, a few agencies will seek those with advanced degrees, while others may be willing to accept those who have not yet completed college. No previous experience in this or any other field is necessary, in any case.

SPONSORSHIP

These training opportunities are made possible by grants from several sponsoring foundations and through the cooperation of the participating agencies. Overall administration of the program has been delegated to the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials (NAIRO), an organization of individuals concerned with advancing intergroup relations knowledge and skills, and with improving the standards of intergroup relations practice, to the end that all persons may enjoy equality of opportunity and maximum dignity.

APPLICATION PROCEDURE

Letters of application may be sent to one or more of the training agencies; a separate letter must be sent to every agency in which the applicant would be interested in receiving training. The letter should describe education, experience, and special qualifications; it should also include a clear statement of the applicant's reasons for seeking a career in this field.

Applications should be submitted as early as possible but no later than June 30, 1958. Training programs will commence sometime before September 2, 1958.

Dear George:

I believe that Harry Ashmore would be by far the best speaker available for the banquet. He is unusually well informed, highly articulate, and has been through the mill at Little Rock.

Another very able speaker I would bring to your attention is Marion A. Wright, "Top Knot", Linville Fall, North Carolina.

Mr. Wright is a former President of the Southern Regional Council; he was for many years an outstanding attorney in South Carolina; on the state literacy board, and was President of the University of South Carolina Law School Alumnae Association. He is an Adlai Stevenson with a southern accent. He is a phrase-maker of Churchillian stature. Believe me, you could do no better.

Hope this is better than a reply post card.

All good regards.

Cordially,

Frederick B. Routh
Assistant Director

Dear Executive Board Member:

The banquet committee for the 1958 Conference has three names to propose to the Executive Board for approval as the main speaker at the Wednesday evening banquet. The subject as determined by the Board is to be an analysis of the situation in the South and its implications for the country as a whole. We give a high preference rating to our first choice, would be happy with the second, but are a little uncertain about our third.

1. Harry Ashmore, executive editor of the Arkansas Gazette, winner of the Pulitzer Prize for his handling of the Little Rock situation.

2. Dr. Benjamin Mays, president of Morehouse College, Atlanta.

3. Brooks Hayes, congressman from the State of Arkansas, who attempted to mediate the situation between the Governor and the President.

Newspaper editors and publishers in Pittsburgh are enthusiastic about the possibility of securing Harry Ashmore and he would receive good coverage both nationally and locally. Dr. Mays draws well in Pittsburgh and was here last about two years ago. Brooks Hayes is just a name to most and would have to be sold.

We have also considered Governor Theodore McKeldin, E. Franklin Frazier, Don Shoemaker and others. Will you express your preference on the enclosed card and return promptly.

Yours,

George Culberson, Chairman

Mr. Harry Ashmore, Executive Editor
The Arkansas Gazette
Little Rock, Arkansas

Dear Mr. Ashmore:

The Twelfth Annual Conference of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials will meet in the City of Pittsburgh from November 19-22, 1958. We are inviting you to be the speaker at the Conference Banquet on November 19 at 6:30 PM in the Penn Sheraton Hotel.

Attending this Conference will be 400 persons from all sections of the country. They will be individuals who are professionally engaged with both public and private agencies in the task of securing improved intergroup relations. Most work at the local level but many are also employed in state, regional and national positions. Almost everyone who is giving full time to this field of work will be present. In addition to these members of the Association there will be present at the banquet about the same number of people from the local community as this is the only public meeting of the Annual Conference.

The Executive Board has determined that the banquet session should consider an analysis of the situation in the South and its implications for the country as a whole. This must be an objective and realistic analysis if it is to be helpful. You are the unanimous choice of both the local Conference Program Committee and the Executive Board as the person best equipped and qualified to handle this assignment.

We know that you must have enormous demands on your time in these crucial days and therefore must be selective in your out-of-town engagements but we ask you to consider the fact that this audience will reach every major agency working to improve relationships between racial, religious and nationality groups. In fact, I think you might enjoy attending sessions of the Conference earlier that day and on the two following days. If so, we would be happy to pay your expenses for the entire period of the Conference.

The Honorable Sidney McMath is acquainted with me and with the Mayor's Commission on Human Relations of which I am the Executive Director. He came to Pittsburgh in September of 1956 to assist us with a program and received quite a welcome from Mayor David L. Lawrence and Pittsburgh generally. I therefore give him as a reference for Pittsburgh hospitality. Frederick B. Routh, one of our Vice Presidents, is a member whom you know and I give him as a reference for further information about the National Association.

Your previous writings and appearances before other groups are well known to the people in this field and it is our belief that you have made a real contribution to knowledge and understanding of the complex problem which is the main concern of our time. Furthermore, we believe that now is the proper time and NAIRO is the proper forum for an interpretation of the meaning of current events as they affect those most closely associated with bringing about social change in an orderly manner.

We sincerely hope that you can and will accept this invitation.

Yours truly,

George W. Culberson, Chairman
Annual Conference Banquet Committee

To:- NAIRO Members

From:- Conference Chairman

Subject:- NAIRO SUMMIT Conference

This is the first of a series of conference bulletins designed to inform membership about the forthcoming conference of NAIRO. This particular bulletin will give only a broad picture of conference plans to date. Later bulletins will provide detailed data on program content, speakers and consultants.

The conference theme - "Intergroup Relations -- Crisis and Opportunity" appears to be a most challenging one, particularly as the seriousness of the school situation in the South intensifies. The banquet now scheduled for Wednesday, November 19 will feature a review of the South Today.

NAIRO faces a CRISIS in its search for new techniques and methods for the solution of new problems.

NAIRO offers ample OPPORTUNITY to its membership to participate in its plenary sessions, Commission and Department meetings, clinics which are set up around specific subject matter and the President's Reception. This years conference schedule will not be as tight as heretofore. Delegates will have more free time!

Such challenging subjects as "Case Studies in Conflict", "Integration vs Non-Discrimination", "Population Movement and Political Change" etc., have been selected for stimulating realistic and practical conference discussions.

Pittsburgh, the host city, offers the warmest of hospitality which is being generated by an enthusiastic Local Conference Committee. This committee is leaving no stone unturned to make your visit most pleasant.

Pittsburgh is celebrating its Bicentennial which begins four or five days after NAIRO conference. The theme of the Bicentennial celebration is "Pittsburgh--Gateway to the Future." In effect, NAIRO is raising the curtain on this celebration.

Your visit to the steel capital of the world will afford you an opportunity to view the famous Golden Triangle, the new all aluminum Alcoa Building, Mellon Park in the heart of the business district, Point Park, and the towering buildings of steel which make up the famous Gateway Center, as well as the many steel mills which line the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers.

Make your plans now and come to Pittsburgh for this curtain raising, thought-provoking and important SUMMIT Conference of NAIRO.

CONFERENCE DATA

Headquarters -- from now until November 17 conference headquarters is the Pittsburgh Commission on Human Relations, 518 City County Building, Pittsburgh 19, Pa. Inquiries about the conference can be addressed to the above address.

Registration -- registration in advance will be handled by the Jewish Community Relations Council, 200 Ross Street. (detailed information will be supplied later)

Hotel Reservations -- reservations can be made by writing directly to Mr. John Garvin, Front Office Manager, Penn-Sheraton Hotel, William Penn Place, Pittsburgh, Pa. Advance reservation cards will be mailed you in Bulletin #2. Early reservations are encouraged. If an overflow is indicated early enough arrangements can be made for additional space.

Conference Opening and Closing -- the conference opens at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday, November 19, with registration beginning at 8:30 a.m. Conference closes at 4:00 p.m. on Friday, November 21.

Transportation -- Pittsburgh is serviced by two major railroads; namely, the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio. There are 7 major airlines servicing the city with the airport 45 minutes from the hotel.

From the West by automobile, the Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania Turnpike brings you directly to the city. From the East, the New Jersey and Pennsylvania Turnpike enters the city. Because of its central location Pittsburgh is easy to get to.

Parking -- the hotel headquarters is surrounded by ample public and private parking facilities.

"INTERGROUP RELATIONS - CRISIS AND OPPORTUNITY"

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

MINUTES

Meeting, NAIRO Board of Directors, September 19-20, 1958 Pittsburgh

Present: Arnold Aronson, presiding; Alexander J. Allen, George Culberson, Frank Fager, John Feild, Margaret Garrity, Sidney Lawrence, Theodore Leskes, Richard Marks.
Others: Irving Goldaber, Louis Mason, Jr., John Lassoe, Jr.

1. REPORT OF THE TREASURER

George Culberson reviewed Receipts and Expenditures, January 1 - August 31, 1958 (see attached statement). He noted that receipts from Special Funds Drive, Internship Pledges, and Memberships will probably not reach anticipated amounts, although membership dues income has been higher than in previous years. On the other hand, expenditures are running as predicted or lower, with only the cost of Commission Reports expected to exceed the budgeted amount. Mr. Aronson noted that receipts over and above the $25,000 in foundation grants were less than 50% of the goal, while the year is 75% over. The Board agreed on the urgent need for additional internship pledges and recommended again an approach to the Board members of agencies, especially those participating in the internship program. Note: Mr. Culberson asked that the item of Expenditures listed as "Internship Program" be changed to "Internship Promotional Expense," since it represents only the money spent to publicize internship openings.

Mr. Culberson offered a special breakdown of Expenses For First Internship Seminar (also attached), the total being just over one-half of the amount budgeted. John Lassoe noted that the actual expense to NAIRO was even lower ($2,283.22), since reimbursement for living expenses was received from the wife of one intern and from the three fee-paying junior professionals. Each of the latter paid $150 for the Seminar, and the entire amount ($450) was credited to Special Funds Drive. Actual cost per person was $61.50. Mr. Culberson noted for the record that Seminar Expenses as enumerated did not include salaries of NAIRO's Executive Secretary (an estimated 3-4 weeks) or office secretary (1-2 weeks, preparing materials), or the cost of preparing and mailing the forthcoming Report.

The Treasurer's report was accepted (Leskes-Feild).

Mr. Culberson named the following Board members to serve on the Finance Committee, with preparation of the 1959 budget as the first task: Allen, Garrity, Chester Gray, Leskes, and Culberson. All but Mr. Gray were present and accepted.

II. REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

A. John Lassoe noted that publications sales have been high and are still increasing, although there are still few subscriptions to the JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS. Since other NAIRO publications are exhausted or scarce, publications revenue becomes dependent on the new JOURNAL. Recommendations: (a) That a special promotional piece be printed and distributed, soliciting subscriptions for both the JOURNAL and REPORTER, and (b) that at least one-half of the surplus copies of JOURNAL issues 1-3 be used as sample copies in promotional mailings. Both were approved by the Board, the cost to be paid under the appropriate budget items (printing, and REPORTER promotion).

B. Noting a marked increase in requests for distribution by NAIRO of various types of materials, the Executive Secretary asked for a policy decision on each category.

APPROVED FOR DISTRIBUTION: Professional tools (sample publications, bibliographies, how-to materials, speeches or articles, etc.))

NOT APPROVED FOR DISTRIBUTION: Organizational promotional material (pamphlets about agencies, fund solicitations, etc.); publication promotional material (brochures advertising books, pamphlets or periodicals, whether authored by NAIRO members or not); film promotional material.

Books, pamphlets, and films will continue to be listed in the Reporter; in addition, the Executive Secretary and the Managing Editor of the Reporter were asked to investigate the possibility of paid advertisements (books or films) in either the Reporter or the Journal.

C. NAIRO membership now totals 416 (325 paid through 1958; 91 paid through 1957). This represents an increase of 30 since May, an increase of 57 since January. Since May, three former NAIRO members have rejoined but without payment of back dues. The 91 members who have paid no dues in 1958 will be billed in October. In addition, an intensive drive for new members will be encouraged in October and November, and letters will be sent from the National Office to key prospects.

D. A capsule summary of NAIRO Commission, Department, and Committee activity since the May Board meeting was offered, as follows:

Committees: Interprofessional Relations - inactive; Professional Standards - intensive work on its Questionnaire on Functions, Standards, and Qualifications of Practice, just mailed to all NAIRO members; Resolutions - correspondence with Commissions and with entire membership, soliciting suggestions for a draft Statement of Concern that will be submitted at the Annual Meeting; Educational and Professional Training - planning for the Internship Seminar last June, now preparing for special attention to internship evaluation; Membership - inactive, with first meeting scheduled for late September; Resources and Planning - forced to cancel Pittsburgh meeting on September 18, now planning to meet in New York in October.

Departments: Local Private - published third issue of Departmental newsletter, SHOP TALK, now planning for Conference sessions; Local Public - published first issue of Departmental newsletter, now planning for Conference sessions; State Public - published first issue of Departmental newsletter, now planning for Conference sessions; National Private - now planning for Conference sessions.

Commissions: Housing and Family Life - JOURNAL issue now in process, publication expected in October; Nature, Scope & Theory - JOURNAL issue now in process, publication expected in October; Other Civil Rights - Washington, D.C., survey of civil rights continuing, with JOURNAL issue due in January; Interreligious Relations - JOURNAL issue in process, due for publication in November; Manpower Utilization - Commission in process of formation, with JOURNAL issue due in May, 1959; Education - Commission in process of formation, with JOURNAL issue due in March, 1959. The Board voted unanimously to continue - for at least one year - the present system of Commission city rotation, with each Commission changing to a new city as soon as its issue of the JOURNAL is published. (Allen-Feild)

E. Local NAIRO group activity continued through the Spring, and at least one major meeting is already planned for the fall. New York City NAIRO held its first meeting in June, with 40 members and prospective members attending an evening discussion session; Southern Connecticut NAIRO sponsored a statewide Conference on Human Values, with over 100 in attendance at a full day's session in New Haven; Detroit-Michigan NAIRO also held a one-day conference in June; and Chicago NAIRO honored the 1958 NAIRO interns at a special luncheon during the June Internship Seminar. On the West Coast, the Southwestern Region of NAIRO will hold a two-day Conference in Los Angeles (September 25-26). Local groups in Cleveland and Philadelphia continued their regular meetings.

F. The Executive Secretary reported that the Seminar had been a complete success from the point of view of intern, supervisor, and Seminar leaders alike. All had agreed, however, that a split Seminar (one week in the early fall, and one week in late Spring) would have greater value for the interns and would relieve the considerable strain of two full weeks at one time. The Board authorized the expenditure of up to $800 over current Seminar cost estimates ($2,500) for partial subsidization of intern travel to a split Seminar session during the week of November 16-21 - in Pittsburgh at the time of the NAIRO Conference; decision on to the desirability of such a session rests with the Educational and Professional Training Committee, scheduled to meet in October. (Culberson-Feild) Implicit in this authorization was the understanding that the June session would be limited to one week and that room, board, and leadership costs would be no higher for two separate week-long sessions than for one two-week meeting. Internship agencies will still be expected to provide travel expenses for interns and supervisors attending the spring session.

All but two of the first-year interns have been placed in post-Internship jobs; six remained with their training agencies in permanent posts, two found employment in other intergroup relations agencies, while seven secured posts in agencies peripheral to intergroup relations. A full report on the first year of the Internship Program is being prepared and should be available by mid-October.

In the 1958-9 Internship Program, interns have been selected by 10 of 14 agencies now participating (the South Chicago Community Center having been added since the last Board meeting). Six foundations are included among the sponsors, with the Cleveland Foundation replacing the Kansas City Association of Trusts and Foundations this year.

The Executive Secretary recommended that the Internship Program be continued for at least one more year and that an attempt be made to secure foundation funds for its support. (Decision deferred until discussion of future development.)

III. REVISION OF THE NAIRO BY-LAWS

The Board endorsed an amendment proposed by George Culberson et al, creating the category of Student membership in NAIRO and entitling those in that category to all services and privileges except the right to vote and hold office. If the amendment is adopted at the Annual Meeting, annual Student dues of $5 will be proposed by the Board. (Culberson-Marks) Mr. Culberson offered the following definition of Student: "Any person enrolled in a recognized college or university and working toward a degree with the intention of entering the field of inter-group relations."

This amendment - with two others previously endorsed - will be offered to the membership at the Annual Meeting on November 19.

Mr. Aronson raised the issue of possible mail balloting for officers and directors, moving toward greater involvement of the NAIRO membership. He suggested that this be added to the proposed amendment that would permit nomination and election to major office of any member of NAIRO (removing - if adopted - the present requirement that the nominees for such offices be current or immediate past members of the Board). Mr. Leskes questioned whether mail nomination and election of officers would indeed produce greater participation: mail nominations usually present considerable difficulties (it being hard to secure the requisite number of signatures) and mail elections bring few returned ballots if they lact contests for office. Mr. Aronson explained that, while the Nominating Committee would offer only one candidate for each officer's post, he would expect enough names to provide a contest for Directorships. The total membership would, in any case, have a greater feeling of participation. The Board deferred action on the proposal until the Annual Business Meeting, when it will be referred to the membership for discussion.

IV. 1959 CONFERENCE SITE

1959 Conference bids from four cities were presented and discussed.

(1) CHICAGO - Has the advantages of a strong local NAIRO group, a central location that would encourage attendance, and good local resources; has the disadvantage of representing NAIRO's first repeat of a Conference site, if chosen.

(2) MIAMI - An invitation transmitted by Dean G. Epley, suggesting various Miami Beach hotels in which a non-discrimination policy could be guaranteed. Has the advantage of being a new site and located in the South; has the disadvantage of lacking a strong NAIRO group. Some also questioned the impact on the Southern scene of a convention in Miami Beach, which is an atypical Southern community.

(3) SAN FRANCISCO - An invitation transmitted by Helen Amerman on behalf of the local NAIRO group and the local agencies. Has the advantage of being a new site in an area in which NAIRO has many members but has never met; has the disadvantage of travel distance that could cut attendance of members from eastern and central cities.

(4) SAN JUAN - An invitation from Joseph Monserrat on behalf of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. Has the advantage of being a new site with special professional interest for many members; has the disadvantage of travel distance that could cut attendance by members from western and central cities. Lacks a local NAIRO group but government resources would be available; these would be coordinated by Mr. Monserrat in the New York office.

Board discussion centered on San Francisco and San Juan; there was general agreement that both would be very desirable sites but that both would have reduced attendance because of travel distance. Final decision was deferred until November, pending receipt of additional information from Mr. Monserrat. It was agreed that both the 1959 and 1960 sites would be chosen at that time.

V. 1958 CONFERENCE PLANS

Mr. Goldaber reviewed the Conference program and presented an outline of the schedule and topics, as follows:

Wednesday, November 19

9:30 A.M.	Opening Session (Welcome; President's Address; Executive Secretary's Report; Treasurer's Report; Action on Proposed By-Laws Changes)
12:00 Noon	Luncheon (Topic: "Integration vs. Non-Discrimination," with two speakers)
2 P.M.	Concurrent Meetings of four Commissions (Education, Manpower Utilization, Housing & Family Life, Interreligious Relations), discussion the Luncheon topic.
4 P.M.	Concurrent Meetings of NAIRO Departments (on their own topics)
6:30 P.M.	Banquet (Topic: "The South Today" Speaker: Marion A. Wright, former president, Southern Regional Council)
9 P.M.	Clinics

Thursday, November 20

8 A.M.	Breakfast Meetings (of various committees)
9:30 A.M.	Business Meeting #1 (Report of the Nominating Committee; Report of Resolutions Committee and Action of proposed Statement of Concern)
12 Noon	Luncheon (Topic: "Constructive Use of Intergroup Conflict: Three Case Studies." Reports by different individuals on a case of housing integration conflict, a case of school desegregation conflict, and a case of interreligious tension.)
2 P.M.	Concurrent Meetings of NAIRO Departments (on luncheon topic)
4 P.M.	Concurrent Meetings of NAIRO Commissions (on own topics)
6:30 P.M.	Free Dinner Period
8 P.M.	Clinics
10 P.M.	President's Reception

Friday, November 21

8 A.M.	Breakfast Meeting (of special interest groups)
9:30 A.M.	Business Meeting #2 (Report of Resources and Planning Committee; Report of Professional Standards Committee; Election of Officers and Directors)
12:30 P.M.	Free Luncheon Period
2:30 P.M.	General Session (Topic: "Population Movement and Political Change" Speaker: tentative; Samuel Lubell, political analyst.)
4 P.M.	Adjournment

Clinic topics will be developed by the Conference Program Committee and clinics scheduled for one of the two periods set aside for them. Resource people will be invited to lead informal discussion at each. There will also be opportunity for scheduling additional clinics on the spot, whenever interest warrants.

Mr. Mason outlined the arrangements that had been made by the (local) Conference Committee. He noted, among other points, that the Finance Subcommittee had raised $950 toward its goal of $2,000; that recorders had been recruited for all sessions and plans laid for publication of Conference Proceedings by January 15; that twenty-two agencies were currently planning Conference exhibits; and that a special effort would be made to encourage college students to register and attend sessions. The Board approved Mr. Mason's recommendation that college students be admitted to any one day's sessions for fifty cents; the regular non-member Conference registration fee will remain at $3.

It was agreed that the Board of Directors would hold its pre-Conference meeting on Tuesday afternoon, November 18, beginning at 3 p.m. That evening will be reserved for Committee meetings. The incoming Board will hold its post-Conference meeting on Friday evening and Saturday morning, November 21 and 22.

The reports of the Conference Program Committee and Conference Committee were accepted with a special vote of thanks.

VI. FUTURE DEVELOPMENT OF NAIRO

Mr. Aronson invited the Board's comments on possibilities for program development in a variety of areas, all within the framework of NAIRO's role as a clearinghouse for the field of intergroup relations and all within the context of a purpose briefly defined as: "to raise standards and improve performance of professional intergroup relations practice in this and allied fields." For purposes of discussion, the Board utilized a chart dividing these areas of interest as follows: Education (professional growth), Training & Recruitment, Research Services, Information Services, Consultation & Liaison, and Membership Services.

Education

(Conferences: National, Regional, Local; Professional Exchange: Local NAIRO GROUPS, Commissions, Departments; Workshops for Senior Practitioners, Junior Practitioners.)

Consensus that conferences are valuable, should be continued, even expanded. They have low priority in terms of foundation appeals, however, since they are largely self-supporting and can be organized locally without national office help.

Consensus that projects developed under the respective areas of Commission interest - on a staffed basis - offer fruitful possibilities for NAIRO expansion. Intensified exploration of intergroup relations concepts and knowledge by the Commissions is a natural function of NAIRO, is less competitive with national agency interests than many other possible NAIRO activities, and represents an area of great need in the field. Resources and Planning Committee was aked to give special consideration to such projects. Mr. Feild expressed the belief that Commissions should not be delving into questions of intergroup relations practice, as they have in the past, but should leave these to the Departments. Background knowledge rather than technique is the Commissions' focus, and they have only scratched the surface to date.

Discussing practitioner workshops, most agreed with Mr. Feild's contention that such workshops were not a proper function for NAIRO and that NAIRO's role was to help human human relations centers and intergroup relations agencies do a better job in training interns, junior practitioners, senior practitioners, and others. Priority should be given to consultation on training rather than workshop sponsorship. Mr. Aronson offered the example of the Council on Social Work Education, which advises all schools of social work but is an independent agency with no educational function beyond consultation and research.

Sidney Lawrence referred to a letter from the Encampment for Citizenship which contained suggestions for possible cooperation with the Encampment regarding intern and in-service training experiences. There was no objection to Sid Lawrence's recommendation that the Resources and Planning Committee communicate with Bill Shannon and review this matter.

Training and Recruitment

(Internship Program: for intergroup relations recruits, for junior professionals from other fields; Placement Services - personnel registry; Training Consultation with human relations centers, intertroup relations agencies.)

Consensus favored a third year for the Internship Program, and the Board authorized foundation appeals in support of same. The long-range goal should still be withdrawal from the training function, concentration on consultative help, and the development of criteria for both training centers and potential personnel. It was also suggested that consideration be given to human relations center fieldwork placements in intergroup relations agencies as an alternative to internships.

Development of more intensive placement services within the Personnel Registry would require staff, and this might be material for a foundation appeal. However, there should be further exploration of the placement services available from similar associations in other fields.

Research Services

(Conferences on Research: National, regional, specialized subjects; Compilations of Research and Research Needs; Consultation on Research)

Consensus favored development of all these functions as being appropriate for NAIRO and in keeping with the concept of a single clearinghouse on research. Research conferences are especially valuable insofar as they bring practitioners and researchers together.

Information Services

(Inquiry Service: referrals to agencies and other sources; Publications: Reporter, Journal, etc; Publicity services to mass media.)

Some feeling that NAIRO might - in this area - coopt the roles and services of other agencies unless it referred all inquiries to the appropriate sources and refrained from direct reply. This was emphasized especially in the area of service to mass media, with agreement that NAIRO should neither seek nor promote any role as a clearinghouse for intergroup relations publicity.

Consensus that NAIRO should not seek to expand informational services until and unless need requires. In the meantime, concentrate on inquiries from members only, referring others to appropriate agencies.

Consultation and Liaison

(Consultation on Practices, Organization, Community Problems; with independent local and state agencies, citizens' groups, governmental bodies, etc.; Liaison with other disciplines and professional bodies, with international agencies and groups in other lands.)

Consensus strongly favored development of a consultation service along the lines suggested initially by the Resources and Planning Committee. Independent local and state agencies (those lacking affiliation with a national agency), citizens' groups or governmental bodies interested in establishing such agencies, and other organizations would be offered the services of recognized authorities, selected by NAIRO or from a list supplied by NAIRO, for consultation on questions of agency organization, intergroup relations practices, or community problems. This would be on a fee basis to established agencies, as a "service to the field" in the case of citizens' groups. The fee might well be part of an annual retainer entitling the subscribing agencies to a certain number of consultations and to other NAIRO services. Largely subsidized at first, this service could become self-supporting in relatively short time; this should make it especially attractive to foundations.

Mr. Leskes suggested that this service might also include that of evaluation or audit, there being no other agency prepared to undertake that function at present. He suggested further that mediation of lay Board-professional disputes be considered in the same context. Mr. Allen noted that a consultation service that employed qualified professionals as consultants on an assignment basis would help them both by providing them with occasional fees and by standardizing same.

Membership Services

(Under this heading would be listed all those services that members now receive from NAIRO, such as Conferences, local NAIRO groups, publications, personnel registry, commissions, departments, etc.)

There being no proposal for direct expansion of services under this heading, it was simply noted as an area of continued activity.

It was agreed that the various proposals for expansion or inaguration of NAIRO services and activities should be refined by the Resources and Planning Committee and reported to the membership at the Annual Business Meeting in November. This Committee is scheduled to report at the Friday morning session.

In general discussion, several additional points were made: Special consideration should be given to ways in which agencies can be tapped to pay for services that NAIRO can now provide or proposes to. In considering new projects, priority should be given to those that will help NAIRO arrive at consensus on integroup relations concepts and practice. A helpful starting point would be a realistic appraisal of the needs that NAIRO now meets, followed by an attempt to develop proposals for expanding and staffing the services or activities that seem most valuable in that light. A specific problem deserving further attention is that of travel costs faced by professionals who should be attending intergroup relations conferences but often cannot because of budget limitations.

VII. NEW BUSINESS

Mr. Culberson, noting the excellent and dedicated service of NAIRO's office secretary during her first year, proposed a salary increment of $240 for the second year, retroactive to July 1. He observed that, while such an increase had not been contemplated when the budget was adopted, it seemed to be in order and could, at least for the remainder of 1958, be drawn from funds allocated (but not spent) for summer replacement secretarial services. The increase was approved without dissent.

The meeting adjourned after a special vote of appreciation to Mr. Culberson and the Commission on Human Relations for their two days' hospitality.

Respectfully submitted,

Sidney Lawrence

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO NAIRO BY-LAWS

(To be voted on at the Annual Meeting on Wednesday, November 19.)

A. Concerning Officers of the Association: Proposed by Paul Klein and Recommended to the membership by the Board of Directors.

- In Article VI, Section I, first sentence, place a period after the word "Secretary" and delete the rest of the sentence.

(The effect of this amendment would be to abolish the requirement that the six officers of the Association "shall be regular members of the Board at the time of their election to office, or shall have been regular members of the Board in the year immediately preceding their election to office." Under the proposed amendment, any member (in good standing) of the Association would be eligible for nomination and election to office.)

B. Concerning Regional Chairmen: Proposed by the Membership Committee and Recommended to the membership by the Board of Directors.

- In Article VII, Section I, sentence 1, change "twenty-eight (28) members" to "thirty-two (32) members;" and in sentence 3, change "four (4) Regional Chairmen of the Association, from four separate geographic regions of the country" to "eight (8) Regional Chairmen of the Association, from eight separate geographic regions of the country."

(The effect of this amendment would be to permit the President to appoint eight Regional Chairmen from as many Regions, instead of four. The maximum number of Directors would be increased from 28 to 32 to make this possible, since each Regional Chairman serves as ex officio member of the Board.)

C. Concerning Membership Categories: Proposed by George Culberson et al, and Recommended to the membership by the Board of Directors.

-In Article IV, Section I, sentence 1, change "two classes" to "three classes", and add after subsection (b) the following subsection:

"c. Student: Any person enrolled in a recognized college or university and working toward a degree with the intention of entering the field of intergroup relations."

- In Article V, Section I, change "two classes" to "three classes", and insert as Section 4 (the present Section 4 becoming Section 5) the following:

"4. Each Student member shall be entitled to receive all regular informational services and to participate in conferences of the Association."

(The effect of this amendment would be to establish a special class of membership for bona fide students of intergroup relations. NOTE: Although the dues schedule is not part of the By-Laws, it is the intention of the Board of Directors to recommend - if this revision is adopted - that Student dues be set at five ($5.00) dollars per year.)

D. Concerning election of Regional Chairmen: Proposed by Arnold Aronson.

- Under Article VII, Section 1, delete the last sentence beginning "Further, the President shall appoint ..." and substitute the following:

"Furthermore, eight (8) Regional Chairmen shall be elected, and shall serve ex officio if not otherwise members of the Board. Of the eight Regional Chairmen, one shall be from each of the following Regions: Northeast, Middle South, Southeast, North Central, South Central, Great Lakes, Southwest, and Northwest."

- Under Article VII, Section 2, after the first paragraph (a), add the following paragraph:

"b. The term of office of the eight elected Regional Chairmen shall be for three years, or until their successors are chosen, except that, of the eight first elected after this paragraph takes effect, the three receiving the highest votes shall serve for three (3) years, the three receiving the next highest votes shall serve for two (2) years, and the remaining two for one (1) year. Vacancies shall be filled as in the case of members of the Board."

- Under Article IX, Section 1, subsection a, change "a slate of officers and directors" to "a slate of officers, directors, and Regional Chairmen..."; and add the following sentence:

"However, whenever the majority of members in good standing of one of the Regions has certified to the Nominating Committee that it has chosen its own nominee for Regional Chairman from that Region, said nominee shall automatically be included in the slate presented by the Nominating Committee."

(The effect of this amendment would be to provide for the election, rather than appointment of the eight Regional Chairmen -- and for staggered three-year terms on the Board of Directors, rather than one year. After the first year, roughly one-third (2 or 3 Directors) would be replaced each year. This amendment would also provide for the nomination by the members in a given region of their own candidate for the Regional Chairmanship, the Nominating Committee offering a candidate only if the Region fails to do so.)

Dear Harold:

This will acknowledge receipt of your NAIRO dues covering the year 1959. Your membership card is enclosed.

You should be receiving the NAIRO Reporter (ten issues per year) and the monthly NAIRO Newsletter (our house organ). You will also receive our new bi-monthly publication, JOURNAL OF INTER-GROUP RELATIONS, comprising the regular reports of NAIRO's six Commissions.

As you know, each NAIRO member is automatically assigned to a Department according to his agency affiliation (Local Public, State and Local Private, State Public, National Private, or Federal Services). In addition, you may offer your services to one of our six Commissions: Education, Manpower Utilization, Housing and Family Life, Civil Rights, Interreligious Relations, or Nature, Scope and Theory of Intergroup Relations.

On behalf of the Association, let me take this opportunity to express our appreciation for your interest and support. If we can be of service to you, please do not hesitate to call on us.

Cordially,

NAIRO - 10/15/58

AMENDED BY-LAWS

of the

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

DATE: October 4, 1955

ARTICLE I. NAME

The name of this organization shall be the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials.

ARTICLE II. PURPOSE

The purpose of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials shall be:

1. To encourage the collection, compilation and dissemination of ideas, information and research among organizations and individuals engaged in the improvement of intergroup relations;

2. To facilitate the exchange of knowledge, experience and research among governmental agencies and private organizations dealing with racial, religious, ethnic and cultural relations;

3. To advance generally the science, processes, and art of intergroup relations and to improve the standards of work in that field, advancing technical and professional knowledge, standards and practice.

ARTICLE III. ORGANIZATION AND ELECTIONS

1. The Association shall consist of one organization representing the entire body of the membership. The Association shall maintain a central headquarters office as designated by the Board of Directors. The Association may establish divisions within the organization as required.

2. The membership of the Association shall determine policies of the Association at the annual meeting, and subject to the mail ballot provisions, shall elect in this order, the Board of Directors, the Officers, and the Nominating Committee for the following year.

ARTICLE IV. MEMBERSHIP

1. Membership shall be limited to individuals and shall be of two classes:

   a. Active: Any person primarily engaged in intergroup relations: in a professional staff capacity, whether salaried or voluntary; as a recognized authority; as a member of the governing body of any agency or commission, or otherwise substantially engaged in the intergroup relations work of an agency or commission related to this field.

   b. Associate: Any person subscribing to the basic objectives and program of the Association.

2. The Board of Directors shall have authority over admission to membership in NAIRO, but may delegate to the Membership Committee, or its Chairman, or to the Executive Secretary, the power to receive and act upon applications for active membership, provided that such delegatees shall, wherever feasible, consult with active NAIRO members in the area from which the application is received. Subject to review by the membership at the annual business meeting, the Board of Directors may suspend or remove from membership, after opportunity for hearings and fair notice thereof, any person whose conduct is deemed harmful to NAIRO.

ARTICLE V. DUTIES AND PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERSHIP

1. The Association shall establish and maintain a schedule of annual fees and dues for the two classes of membership.

2. Each Active member shall be entitled to: vote at any membership meeting; hold office; participate in conferences; serve, by appointment, on committees; receive all regular and special information services; and utilize the services of the Personnel Exchange and such other special services as shall be determined by the Board.

3. Each Associate member shall be entitled to: participate in conferences; serve, by appointment, on committees; and receive all regular informational services.

4. Any individual, organization or agency may subscribe to the regular informational services of the Association. Special information or other services may be rendered upon request, with or without charge, as the Board of Directors may determine.

ARTICLE VI. OFFICERS

1. The officers of the Association shall be a President, a President-elect, two Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer and a Secretary, all of whom shall be regular members of the Board of Directors at the time of their election to office, or shall have been regular members of that Board in the year immediately preceding their election to office. The President-elect, Vice Presidents, Treasurer and Secretary shall take office as soon as elected, and shall serve until their successors are chosen; the President shall succeed to his office from the position of President-elect, when the new President-elect shall have been chosen. Elections shall take place at each annual membership meeting (Article X, Sect. 1) or by mail ballot (Article X, Sect. 8).

2. An Executive Secretary may be appointed by the Board, to serve as the administrative officer of the Association, subject to the direction of the Board, which may, among other duties, delegate to the Executive Secretary the administrative functions of the Treasurer and Secretary. The Board of Directors may also appoint such other staff as it shall deem desirable to perform such duties as may be prescribed by the Board of Directors.

3. The President shall be the principal executive officer of the corporation and shall in general supervise and control all of the business and affairs of the corporation. He shall preside at all meetings of members and of the Board of Directors. He may sign, with the Secretary or any other proper officer of the corporation authorized by the Board of Directors, any deeds, mortgages, bonds, contracts, or other instruments which the Board of Directors have authorized to be executed, except in cases where the signing and execution thereof shall be expressly delegated by the Board of Directors, or by these by-laws, or by statute to some other officer or agent of the corporation; and in general shall perform all duties incident to the office of President, and such other duties as may be assigned by the Board of Directors from time to time. He shall make available to the President-elect whatever information in his judgment will enable the latter to succeed him most efficiently.

4. The President-elect, in addition to having the regular powers and duties of any member and of any member of the Board of Directors, shall also be responsible for familiarizing himself as much as possible with the functionings of the association.

5. In the absence of the President or in the event of his inability or refusal to act, the Vice-President (or in the event there be more than one Vice-President, the Vice-Presidents in the order designated, or in the absence of any designation, then in the order of their election) shall perform the duties of the President, and when so acting, shall have all the powers of and be subject to all the restrictions upon the President. Any Vice-President shall perform such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

6. If required by the Board of Directors, the Treasurer shall give a bond for the faithful discharge of his duties in such sum and with such surety or sureties as the Board of Directors shall determine. He shall have charge and custody of and be responsible for all funds and securities of the corporation; receive and give receipts for moneys due and payable to the corporation from any source whatsoever, and deposit all such moneys in the name of the corporation in such banks, trust companies or other depositaries as shall be selected in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws; and in general perform all the duties incident to the office of Treasurer and such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

7. The Secretary shall keep the minutes of the meetings of the members and of the Board of Directors in one or more books provided for that purpose; see that all notices are duly given in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws or as required by law; be custodian of the corporate records and of the seal of the corporation and see that the seal of the corporation is affixed to all documents, the execution of which on behalf of the corporation under its seal is duly authorized in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws; keep a register of the post office address of each member which shall be furnished to the Secretary by such member; and in general perform all duties incident to the office of Secretary and such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

8. A vacancy in any office because of death, resignation, removal, disqualification or otherwise, may be filled by the Board of Directors for the unexpired portion of the term, except that, if the office of President-elect shall become vacant, it shall remain unfilled until the next regular election of officers, at which time the members shall elect a President for the immediately following term, as well as all the regular officers.

ARTICLE VII. BOARD OF DIRECTORS

1. The affairs of the Association shall be managed by a Board of Directors which shall consist of not more than twenty-eight (28) members, and not less than eighteen (18). Eighteen Directors shall be elected by the membership, in accordance with the provisions of Article X; in addition, any of the six (6) officers who is not otherwise a member of the Board, shall serve ex-officio during his term in office. Further, the President shall appoint four (4) Regional Chairmen of the Association, from four separate geographic regions of the country, to serve for terms of one year or until their successors are chosen, and these persons shall also serve ex-officio on the Board of Directors, if not already members of the Board.

2. The term of office of the eighteen elected members of the Board shall be for three years, or until their successors are chosen. Six (6) members shall be elected to the Board of Directors yearly. Vacancies shall be filled by appointment of the Board, until the next regular election, at which time a member shall be elected for the unexpired term.

3. The Board of Directors shall report its actions at the Association's annual meeting and shall hold an annual meeting of the Board, immediately after the annual meeting of members, at the same place, without notice. The Board may call such special meetings as may be necessary, at such times and places as it may determine. Special meetings may be called by or at the request of the President or any five (5) directors. Notice of any special meeting of the Board of Directors shall be given at least five (5) days previously thereto by written notice delivered personally or sent by mail or telegram to each director at his address as shown by the records of the corporation. If mailed, such notice shall be deemed to be delivered when deposited in the United States mail in a sealed envelope, such notice shall be deemed to be delivered when the telegram is delivered to the telegraph company. Any director may waive notice of any meeting. The attendance of a director at any meeting shall constitute a waiver or notice of such meeting, except where a director attends a meeting for the express purpose of objecting to the transaction of any business because the meeting is not lawfully called or convened. Neither the business to be transacted at, nor the purpose of, any regular or special meeting of the Board need be specified in the notice or waiver of notice of such meeting, unless specifically required by law or by these by-laws.

4. a. The act of a majority of the Directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the Board of Directors, except where otherwise provided by law or by these by-laws.

b. At meetings of the Board, seven (7) shall constitute a quorum. If less than seven (7) of the directors are present, a majority of those present may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

ARTICLE VIII. EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE BOARD

1. There shall be established an Executive Committee within the Board of Directors consisting of the officers and three (3) other members of the Board elected by that body. The Executive Secretary, if any, shall be a non-voting member of this Committee.

2. a. The Executive Committee shall act for the Board between meetings of the Board.

b. A majority of the members of the Executive Committee shall constitute a quorum and a majority of those members present at a meeting shall prevail on all questions if a quorum is present.

ARTICLE IX. COMMITTEES

1. The standing committees of the Association shall be:

a. A Nominating Committee of not less than five (5) persons nor more than eleven (11) persons, the duties of which shall be to nominate for presentation to the annual meeting a slate of officers and directors, with at least one candidate for each vacancy, and a slate of candidates for the following year's Nominating Committee.

b. A Membership Committee, which shall aid in securing members and advise the Board of Directors (and Executive Secretary, if any) on problems relating to eligibility for membership in the Association. The Chairman of this Committee shall be a Member of the Board of Directors, and said Board shall appoint wuch Chairman and the members of the Committee.

c. A Conference Committee, which shall plan and organize the program for the annual meeting, subject to the Board's approval. The Board shall appoint the Chairman and members of this Committee.

2. The Board may authorize the formation of other Committees, not having and exercising the authority of the Board in the management of the Association. Subject to the approval of the Board, the President shall appoint the Chairman and members of such committees. The President shall have the power to make interim appointments to the committees authorized by the Board and to create interim Committees and make appointments thereto.

3. Persons not members of the Association may be appointed to serve on the Conference and special Committees.

4. Each member of a Committee shall continue as such until his successor has been appointed, unless the committee shall be sooner terminated, or unless such member be removed from the committee or fail to qualify as a member thereof. The appointing authority in each case shall have the power of removal, whenever in his or its opinion the best interest of the Association are thereby served. Vacancies in any Committee shall be filled in the same manner provided for the original appointments.

5. a. Unless otherwise provided in the resolution of the Board of Directors designating a committee, a majority of the whole committee shall constitute a quorum and the act of a majority of the members present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the committee.

b. Each committee may adopt rules for its own government not inconsistent with these by-laws or with rules adopted by the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE X. MEETINGS OF MEMBERS

1. The Association shall hold an annual meeting of members and such other meetings as may be necessary to conduct the affairs of the Association, the time to be fixed by the Board of Directors.

2. Special meetings of the members may also be called either by the President, or not less than one-tenth of the members having voting rights.

3. The Board of Directors may designate any place, either within or without the State of Illinois, as the place of meeting for any annual meeting or for any special meeting called by the Board of Directors. If no designation is made or if a special meeting be otherwise called, the place of meeting shall be the registered office of the corporation in the State of Illinois, provided, however, that if all of the members shall meet at any time and place, whether within or without the State of Illinois, and consent to the holding of a meeting, such meeting shall be valid without call or notice, and at such meeting any corporate action may be taken.

4. Written or printed notice stating place, day and hour of any meeting of members ahll be delivered, either personally or by mail, to each member entitled to vote at such meeting, not less than five nor more than forty days before the date of such meeting, by or at the direction of the President, or the Secretary, or the officers or persons calling the meeting. In case of a special meeting or when required by statute or by these by-laws, the purpose for which the meeting is called shall be stated in the notice. If mailed, the notice of a meeting shall be deemed delivered when deposited in the United States mail addressed to the member at his address as it appears on the records of the corporation, with postage thereon prepaid.

5. Any action required to be taken at a meeting of the members of the corporation, or any other action which may be taken at a meeting of members may be taken without a meeting if a consent in writing, setting forth the action so taken, shall be signed by all of the members entitled to vote with respect to the subject matter thereof.

6. The members holding one-tenth of the votes which may be cast at any meeting shall constitute a quorum at such meeting. If a quorum is not present at any meeting of members, a majority of the members present may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

7. At any meeting of members, a member entitled to vote may vote either in person or by proxy executed in writing by the member or by his duly authorized attorney-in-fact. No proxy shall be valid after eleven months from the date of its executive unless otherwise provided in the proxy.

8. The Board of Directors may authorize elections of directors and officers to be conducted by mail.

ARTICLE XI. CONTRACTS, CHECKS, DEPOSITS AND FUNDS

1. The Board of Directors may authorize an officer or officers, agent or agents of the corporation, in addition to the officers so authorized by these by-laws, to enter into any contract or execute and deliver any instrument in the name of an on behalf of the corporation and such authority may be general or confined to specific instances.

2. All checks, drafts or other orders for the payment of money, notes or other evidences of indebtedness issued in the name of the corporation, shall be signed by such officer or officers, agent or agents of the corporation and in such a manner as shall from time to time be determined by resolution of the Board of Directors. In the absence of such determination by the Board of Directors, such instruments shall be signed by the Treasurer or an Assistant Treasurer and countersigned by the President or a Vice-President of the corporation.

3. All funds of the corporation shall be deposited from time to time to the credit of the corporation in such banks, trust companies or other depositaries as the Board of Directors may select.

4. The Board of Directors may accept on behalf of the corporation any contribution, gift, bequest or devise for the general purposes or for any special purpose of the corporation.

ARTICLE XII. BOOKS AND RECORDS

The corporation shall keep correct and complete books and records of account and shall also keep minutes of the proceedings of its members, Board of Directors and committees having any of the authority of the Board of Directors, and shall keep at the registered or principal office a record giving the names and addresses of the members entitled to vote. All books and records of the corporation may be inspected by any member, or his agent or attorney, for any proper purpose at any reasonable time.

ARTICLE XIII. SEAL

The Board of Directors shall provide a corporate seal which shall be in the form of a circle and shall have inscribed thereon the name of the corporation and the words "Corporate Seal. Illinois."

ARTICLE XIV. WAIVER OF NOTICE.

Whenever any notice whatever is required to be given under the provisions of the General Net for Profit Corporation Act of Illinois, or under the provisions of the articles of incorporation or the by-laws of the corporation, a waiver thereof in writing signed by the person or persons entitled to such notice, whether before or after the time stated therein, shall be deemed equivalent to the giving of such notice.

ARTICLE XV. REGULATION OF INCOME

No part of the net earnings of the Association shall in any way inure to the benefit of any member, director or officer, but this shall not preclude to the reimbursement for expenses incurred as such or the payment of compensation authorized by the Board of Directors to the Executive Secretary and other persons for services rendered as such. The Association shall not engage in carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation.

ARTICLE XVI. AMENDMENTS

These by-laws may be amended by a majority vote at the annual meeting. Written notice of any proposed amendments shall be submitted to the membership at least 30 days in advance of the meeting; including either the verbatim proposal, or a fair digest which is sufficient to clearly indicate the contents of such proposal.

ARTICLE XVII. PARLIAMENTARY PROCEEDINGS

In official meetings of the Association, Roberts Rules of Order shall determine parliamentary procedures.

NAIRO NEWSLETTER

August - September, 1958

PLANS SET FOR NOVEMBER NAIRO CONFERENCE

NAIRO's Board of Directors, meeting in Pittsburgh on September 19-20, gave final approval to 1958 Conference plans submitted by the Conference Program Committee (IRVING GOLDABER, N.Y.C. Commission on Intergroup Relations, chairman) and the Conference Arrangements Committee (LOUIS MASON, JR., Pittsburgh Commission on Human Relations, chairman). These will be announced in detail in a special mailing to the membership, due around the first of October; further information on Hotel Penn-Sheraton arrangements and accommodations will be included in that announcement.

And if the planners will forgive a sneak preview of the program for NAIRO's Summit Conference on intergroup relations, look for a stirring and brilliant report on THE SOUTH TODAY, a stimulating discussion of some of the issues posed by INTEGRATION VS. NON-DISCRIMINATION, challenging insight into POPULATION MOVEMENT AND POLITICAL CHANGE, depth-analysis of several CASE STUDIES IN CONFLICT, and NAIRO's new Clinics on a host of important problems facing professionals at a community level.

HAVE YOU CIRCLED NOVEMBER 19, 20 and 21 ON YOUR CALENDAR? ?

And for those of you who want advance notice of scheduling details, we repeat that the Conference will begin at 9:30 A.M. Wednesday morning (November 19) and end at 4 P.M. Friday afternoon (November 21). Incidentally, no sessions will be held during the dinner period on Thursday (6 - 8 P.M., November 20) or the luncheon period on Friday (12:30 - 2:30 P.M., November 21), just in case you want to make an "outside" appointment.

OTHER BOARD ACTION

Among many other other items of business, the Board voted:

(1) to continue - for at least one year - the present system of rotating Commission cities. (The city in which each Commission "core group" is located will be changed as that Commission produces its issue of the JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS);

(2) to give extensive promotion to the new JOURNAL. (Subscriptions - at $6 per year - will be solicited as widely as possible by means of a special brochure and sample copies; members are invited to submit lists of potential subscribers- their Board members, libraries, colleges, faculty members, organizations, etc.);

(3) to recommend for adoption at the Annual Meeting a By-Laws change creating a Student category of membership. (The wording of this By-Laws revision, together with all others proposed this year, will be mailed to members one month in advance of the Annual Meeting); and

(4) to defer the final decision on the 1959 Conference site until November, in order to secure additional information from at least two of the potential host cities. (Bids have been received from Chicago, San Francisco, Miami, and San Juan, Puerto Rico).

The Board devoted a major portion of the meeting to discussion of tentative plans for future NAIRO development. These have been referred back to the Resources and Planning Committee (LOUIS RADELET, National Conference of Christians and Jews, chairman), which expects to report on them to the membership at the Annual Meeting.

PITTSBURGH'S CONFERENCE COMMITTEE

In his report to the Board, Conference Committee chairman LOUIS MASON paid tribute to the group of more than 40 Pittsburghers who have been working for almost a year on arrangements for the forthcoming meeting. Subcommittees are presently headed by: Roland M. Sawyer, United Steelworkers of America (Finance); ROBERT MAST and ELEANOR RYDER, Commission on Human Relations (Recording); HOPE MC DERMOTT and Michel Iskander, American Service Institute (Exhibits); GEORGE CULBERSON, Commission on Human Relations (Banquet); ALEXANDER J. ALLEN, Urban League (Publicity); LILLIAN FRIEDBERG and RITA BEERMAN, Jewish Community Relations Council (Registration); RICHARD ANLIOT, Pennsylvania FEPC (Physical Arrangements); FRANCIS SHANE, United Steelworkers of America (Special Events); MARGUERITE HOFER, Presbyterian Interracial Relations Council (Treasurer), and Herbert Aurbach, Commission on Human Relations (College Registration).

PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS QUESTIONNAIRE OUT

In your hands by now is that important Questionnaire on Functions, Standards and Qualifications for Practice of Intergroup Relations mentioned in the last issue. It was delayed somewhat by vacations, holidays, and circumstances, and you will notice an urgent and early deadline of September 30th. Chairman GRACE MARR (American Nurses Association) asks that you try your best to reply by that date but, IN ANY CASE, to reply!! The Committee will report at the November Conference and wants to base its findings on as complete a response as possible.

JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS

Wilting summer takes its toll in various ways, and one result is that two issues of of our JOURNAL are in the works simultaneously: Volume 1, No. 2 (Housing and Family Life) and Volume 1, No. 3 (Nature, Scope and Theory). The latter is being compiled under the chairmanship of S. JOSEPH FAUMAN (Detroit Jewish Community Council). Expect both in the mail before mid-October.

VATTEROTT SCHOLARSHIPS

Fordham University is now beginning the third year of the Vatterott Scholarship Program for the training of executives in the field of race relations, according to the Rev. PHILIP S. HURLEY, S.J. (Fordham University & Catholic Interracial Council of New York). There is opportunity for three new students to begin their training now, with a stipend for each student of $2,000 per year. "This program is conducted by the University in conjunction with the Catholic Interracial Council of New York. Already four students have completed the course work leading to the degree of Master of Arts in Political Philosophy and the Social Sciences. Their training has included the normal academic requirements leading to the degree along with field work under the guidance of the Council's staff in New York City." For information regarding this program, please write to: The Rev. Arthur A. North, S.J., Dean of Graduate School, Fordham University, New York 58, New York.

COOPERATION ASKED IN HOUSING SURVEY

EDNA A. MERSON (Committee on Civil Rights in Manhattan) asks the help of NAIRO members in gathering "facts about communities where integrated housing exists or where there are some non-whites living in a predominantly white neighborhood." The Committee is conducting a country-wide survey and wants to contact any person who has information on recent move-ins or long-standing residential integration. "Collection of this data on successful open occupancy throughout the country can help convince realtors, in New York City and elsewhere." If you have such information to contribute, please drop a card to Mrs. Merson, Committee on Civil Rights in Manhattan, 386 Fourth Avenue, New York 16, New York. A questionnaire will then be mailed to you.

UP AND DOWN WITH OUR MEMBERS

JOHN A. MC DERMOTT (late of NCCJ, Philadelphia) has become a program and policy consultant in open-occupancy housing, a new job set up with the Federal Housing Administration. He will be located in New York and Washington, D. C. .... EDWARD HOWDEN (late of the Council for Civic Unity, San Francisco) became the first Executive Secretary of the San Francisco Commission on Equal Employment Opportunity on September 15th. HELEN AMERMAN (Associate Director) becomes acting director of the San Francisco Council, pending selection of Ed's permanent successor. .... ABRAHAM KNEPLER (formerly with the National Community Relations Advisory Council) is now chairman of the Department of Sociology, University of Hartford (Connecticut) .... Lack of Council funds has forced DANIEL DONCHIAN to step down as Executive Director of the Human Relations Council of Greater New Haven; he is still very much on the scene, however, as Director of the Council's Puerto Rican Program (on a grant from the New Haven foundation) .... GALEN A. MARTIN writes to amplify his agency listing in NAIRO rosters ("Knoxville Area Human Relations Council"); he is actually a Field Representative of the Department of Community Service - USA, Unitarian Service Committee - which assigns him part-time as staff secretary of the Council .. .. NELSON WILLIAMS, JR. (1958 intern at the San Francisco Urban League) is now a Group Leader at the Booker T. Washington Community Center in the same city.

DEPARTMENTS AT WORK

Local Public Services (BURTON GORDIN, Philadelphia Commission on Human Relations, chairman) has just inaugurated a newsletter featuring an interesting round-up of local public agency program developments, a listing of some new publications, and comments on the departmental session at our forthcoming Conference. The Department has also set up a steering committee: RICHARD MARKS, Detroit Commission on Community Relations; HOWARD MC KINNEY, Erie (Pa.) Community Relations Commission; IRVING GOLDABER, NYC Commission on Intergroup Relations; NATHANIEL JONES, Youngstown (Ohio) F.E.P.

Committee; PHILIP WINKFIELD, Toledo (Ohio) Board of Community Relations; MARSHALL BRAGDON, Mayor's Friendly Relations Committee of Cincinnati; CORNEFF TAYLOR, Milwaukee Commission on Human Rights; LOUIS MASON, JR., Pittsburgh Commission on Human Relations; LOUIS ERVIN, Minneapolis F.E.P.C.; WILLIAM GREMLEY, Kansas City Commission on Human Relations; HELEN BURKE, Denver Commission on Human Relations; and DANIEL JACOBOWSKI, St. Paul F.E.P.C.

State Public Services (REBECCA BARTON, Wisconsin Governor's Commission on Human Rights, chairman) put out its first departmental mailing, including "The Interstate Special," a single sheet of information to be put out periodically "as the spirit moves and the occasion warrants." It brings news of the Missouri Commission on Human Rights (GREGORY E. SHINERT, Executive Secretary) and of the new Ohio Governor's Advisory Commission on Civil Rights (to which CHESTER GRAY and DONALD BEATTY, Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, have been attached temporarily - and what a job they have done in getting the Commission rolling!).

Local Private Services (LLOYD DAVIS, Catholic Interracial Council of Chicago, chairman) and National Private Services (WILLIAM SHANNON, Encampment for Citizenship, chairman) have spent the early fall soliciting their Departmental members' ideas for the 1958 Conference, Lloyd by postcard (have you returned yours?) and Bill by telephone sample and a New York City meeting (his membership is fairly concentrated, most being in that city). As in other years, each Department will plan a session of its own, and the Chairmen have the responsibility for selecting topic, speakers or panelists, etc.

SOME NEW MEMBERS

The summer brought in 11 new members, boosting our total to 4 1 8. Incidentally, anyone joining NAIRO from now until the last of December is automatically registered as paid through 1959; this annual "bargain offer" makes October and November very good months for membership recruitment!! Right now, we welcome:

BOB BLACKBURN, National Conference of Christians and Jews, Philadelphia, Pa.
ALICE LEV, Interracial Committee, Youngstown, Ohio
BENJAMIN N. LEVY, Executive Director, New Haven Jewish Community Council, New Haven, Connecticut
Mrs. DOROTHY S. BAUMAN, Executive Director, Panel of Americans, Inc., New York City

XX CAN WE HAVE 90 NEW MEMBERS BY CONFERENCE ?? XX
XX XX
XX CAN YOU GET ONE NEW MEMBER FOR NAIRO?? XX
XX XX
XX CAN WE TOP 600 BY THE YEAR'S END?? XX

THINGS IN PRINT

A new book by LEO PFEFFER (American Jewish Congress) has just been published by Harper and Brothers. Title: Creeds in Competition: A Creative Force in American Culture. Anyone who has heard him speak on interreligious relations (i.e., at our 1957 Conference) or who has read any of his writing will realize that Leo is much at home in this subject .... As is WILLARD JOHNSON (National Conference of Christians and Jews, Chicago), whose article "What is Religious Liberty?" appears in the July issue of Christian Advocate.

Through the kindness of the Rev. H. BENJAMIN SISSEL (Department of Social Education and Action, United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.), a complimentary copy of the latest issue of the Department's publication, Social Progress, is enclosed. More than half of it is devoted to "Residential Desegregation: The Church's New Frontier." If demand warrants, special reprints of that section (pp. 1-26) will be prepared, possibly with (your) agency's name. Contact Mr. Sissel after you exame it if this interests you.

Reading your copy of SSLS Book Notes (enclosed), sent regularly to all NAIRO members, you will notice that Editor Robert L. Oshins has instituted a section on Group Relations for books of special interest to us. Do not hesitate to recommend same to him, since he would like to know about all books that NAIRO members might later want to rent.

INTERNSHIP NEWS ITEMS

Interns have been chosen by six more of the 1958-9 Internship agencies, bringing to nine the total of trainees now on the job: Catholic Interracial Council of New York (Miss Ivis Calvet); Florida Council on Human Relations (Mrs. Jane Leeds); San Francisco Council for Civic Unity (Erwin L. Feiertag); Los Angeles County Conference on Community Relations (Mrs. Jean Drew Lightfoot); Urban League of Greater New York (Miss Roberta D'Amico); and Cleveland Baptist Association (Mr. Lee Lybarger).

Placed since the last issue of the Newsletter are the following members of the "Class of 1958": Joan Berry (former intern at the Urban League of Greater New York), who is doing a special community organization job at the East Harlem Project in New York City; Stanley Leibner (former intern at the American Jewish Committee in Miami), who becomes Assistant Director of the New Haven Jewish Community Council; Mrs. Wylda Cowles (former intern at the Chelsea Community Council, New York City), who will - with her husband - co-direct the Interns-in-Community-Service House (AFSC) in Berkeley, California; and Ralph King (former NCCJ intern in Boston) has become an Associate Director of the Philadelphia NCCJ.

A few 1958 interns are still uncommitted, but the supply is limited so place your job orders now! (This is not entirely facetious; have you any staff openings??)

A FEW MORE NEWS NOTES

CLARENCE SENIOR (Migration Division, Commonwealth of Puerto Rico) is back at his desk after three months' illness .... Your Executive Secretary (JOHN LASSOE) is serving on one of the Preparatory Study Commissions ("The Changing Dimensions of Human Rights") for the Fifth World Order Study Conference, sponsored by the National Council of Churches (Cleveland, November 18-21) .... MATTHEW AHMANN (Catholic Interracial Council, Chicago) is again a proud father. Congratulations! .... The Pittsburgh Commission on Human Relations is undertaking an interesting study of "the public relations programs in local and state public as well as private human relations agencies throughout the country." ROBERT MAST reports that the results will be shared with all participants - and possibly, through NAIRO channels, with others as well .... DEAN G. EPLEY (Dept. of Human Relations, University of Miami) spent a good part of the spring and early summer visiting intergroup relations practitioners and social scientists around the country as part of a foundation-supported research project "to delineate the field of human relations and assess its relationship to other disciplines and activities on the college campus."

COMMITTEES AT WORK

Membership Committee (THELMA BABBITT, Philadelphia AFSC, chairman) held the first of a series of pre-Conference meetings late in September; it has been asked by the Board to develop plans for an all-out membership effort and, adopting the Commission "core group" idea, has drawn together a cadre of interested members in the Philadelphia area.

GEORGE CULBERSON, NAIRO Treasurer, has named four Board members to our Finance Committee - with preparation of the 1959 budget as their first task; President-elect MARGARET GARRITY (President's Committee on Government Contracts, Chicago); ALEXANDER J. ALLEN (Pittsburgh Urban League); CHESTER GRAY (Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, Cleveland); and THEODORE LESKES (American Jewish Committee, New York).

The Nominating Committee (WILLIAM GREMLEY, chairman) has begun its deliberations - by mail - in preparation for the election of officers and directors at the Annual Meeting. Suggestions and recommendations should be sent to Bill at: Commission on Human Relations, City Hall, Kansas City, Missouri.

And SAMUEL SPIEGLER (National Community Relations Advisory Council, New York) hopes that many will respond to his request for suggestions for the Resolutions Committee, to help in its task of preparing a draft Statement of Purpose for consideration at the Annual Meeting.

LAST CALL FOR BY-LAWS CHANGES

This is the final reminder that all proposed revisions of our By-Laws must be submitted to the NAIRO membership before October 19, thirty days in advance of the Annual Meeting. Any member may propose such a change, and it need not be reviewed or approved by the Board or any committee; proposed revisions must be sent to this office by October 10 for inclusion in our official mailing. No revisions may be proposed from the floor at the Annual Meeting. (See Article XVI of NAIRO By-Laws -- and drop us a postcard if you do not have a copy of same.)

BRANDEIS UNIVERSITY
Waltham 54, Massachusetts

The Florina Lasker Fellows Program:

Civil Liberties and Civil Rights

THE FLORINA LASKER FELLOWS IN CIVIL LIBERTIES AND CIVIL RIGHTS WERE ESTABLISHED BY Mrs. Etta Rosensohn and Miss Loula Lasker of New York from the estate of their sister, Miss Florina Lasker. This memorial grant was assigned in recognition of "a great and continuing need in our American social scene for more effective and scientific handling of problems of civil liberties and civil rights." Its basic philosophy lies in the conviction that "while the legal aspects of problems of civil liberties and civil rights have in recent years received considerable attention, it is now necessary to buttress activity within these fields by training individuals to function more effectively in the social, economic, political, educational, and communal areas."

THE FLORINA LASKER FELLOWS IN CIVIL LIBERTIES AND CIVIL RIGHTS WILL BE SELECTED FROM AMONG men and women whose professional careers are directly or indirectly connected with the preservation of civil liberties and civil rights. Those whose lives are being devoted to the protection of our precious heritage will be given an opportunity to add depth and background for their future work. A Fellow will decide upon a program, in consultation with the Brandeis University Faculty, best suited to his or her own particular needs. Free of the usual academic requirements the Fellow will be left to read, to listen, to talk, and to write on those aspects of a given problem area in which he, himself, feels he can best broaden his intellectual horizons.

SIX FLORINA LASKER FELLOWS IN CIVIL LIBERTIES AND CIVIL RIGHTS WILL BE CHOSEN EACH YEAR on the basis of applications. To be eligible, applicants must have had two years experience either directly or indirectly engaged in the fields of civil rights and civil liberties, e.g., community relations councils, federal, state, and municipal agencies devoted to their protection, inter-group agencies, etc., or be constantly indirectly engaged in these problems by virtue of geographic location, or other circumstances. This latter group might include state and municipal police, labor officials, group workers, clergy, educators, city planners and managers, journalists, etc. In addition to experience the applicants must secure consent from their employers for a leave of absence for approximately fourteen (14) weeks during Brandeis University's Spring Term.

APPLICATIONS will be received by the Director, Florina Lasker Fellows in Civil Liberties and Civil Rights, Brandeis University, Waltham 54, Massachusetts, until December 1 of this year for the term opening in February. Application forms may be obtained from the above address. Applicants will be selected by a committee appointed annually by the President of Brandeis University specifically for this purpose.

FLORINA LASKER FELLOWS IN CIVIL LIBERTIES AND CIVIL RIGHTS ARE PRESUMED TO BE intellectually mature and professionally qualified. At Brandeis the Fellow will broaden his perspectives and widen his background knowledge through the study of anthropology, economics, history, politics, constitutional law, psychology, and sociology. All courses in the University, undergraduate and graduate, will be open to the Florina Lasker Fellow. The Brandeis faculty will welcome the opportunity to direct his reading, to broaden his thinking.

THE FLORINA LASKER FELLOWS IN CIVIL LIBERTIES AND CIVIL RIGHTS WILL ALSO BE GIVEN a seminar of their own to which Brandeis University will bring, as intellectual resources, the foremost leaders in the field, together with participating Brandeis faculty. The Fellows will thus be able to discuss a given aspect of the field with the person who knows it most intimately.

THE STIPEND, which the Florina Lasker Fellow in Civil Liberties and Civil Rights will receive for the fourteen weeks' term, is $2,000.00, tax exempt. The amount of the stipend has been determined on the basis of a survey indicating that it is reasonable to assume that the applicants' parent organization will, in many instances, supplement this amount in whole or in part, or, will make vacation time available.

Vol. 5, No. 4 118 October, 1958

FINALIZING CONFERENCE RULES AND PROCEDURES: At work on rules and procedures for the First National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice (left to right) George K. Hunton, New York, Charles W. Wexler, Detroit, Elmer Paul Brock, Wilmington, Helen Burke, Denver, Robert Sargent Shriver, Jr., Chicago and Mathew H. Ahmann, Chicago.

AN HISTORIC OCCASION. Participants in the first national gathering of Catholics active in race relations in the United States (left to right) Msgr. Daniel M. Cantwell, Chaplain of the Chicago CIC, Governer Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota, His Excellency, Bishop Raymond P. Hillinger of the Chicago Archdiocese and John J. Farrell, Chairman of the Board, Chicago CIC.

"CATHOLICS AND INTERRACIAL JUSTICE"

By Mathew H. Ahmann

Four weeks ago in Chicago over 400 Catholic laymen, priests and sisters, from over 40 states of the Union gave expression to a unified national Catholic moral voice applied to one of the great problems of Christianity and the world: the Mystical Body and race relations.

These Christians were gathered at the first National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice, a conference called by the New York and Chicago Catholic Interracial Councils for the Catholic Interracial Council movement. The meeting was held in the diocese of the late Samuel Cardinal Stritch, who blessed the meeting with his patronage and his good works.

It was an interesting and significant meeting for a number of reasons.

First, it placed the interracial problems of the United States in an international context. In doing so the conference, in a resolution, called on the "members of the Universal Church, the Mystical Body of Jesus Christ, here and abroad, to join with us in prayer for our nation at this time of profound crisis over the racial issue.

"May the Catholics of the young nations of Africa pray for us!

"May the Catholics of the historic lands of Latin America pray for us!

"May the Catholics of the ancient lands of Asia pray for us!

"We the children of God in the blessed land of the United States of America ask their prayers that our nation may attain interracial justice without which all of our achievements are hollow."

Second, it expressed a firm voice of appeal to the president and congress of the United States to exert the "full moral authority" of their office, and in particular to lead the country, as they have been chosen to do, in applying the civil rights laws and by administering under the constitution as interpreted in the 1954 Supreme Court decision on schools. This firm voice spoke of the moral and constitutional soundness of the decision on discrimination in education, and demonstrated one possible role of Catholic laymen gathered together in an association.

Third, it spoke of the firm conviction of the laymen and clergy gathered there, on the need for direct application of the truths of Christ, including the doctrine of the Mystical Body, to the present interracial situation in this country. The importance of well designed and extensive educational programs—directly pastoral, and stemming from the majesterium of the Church was expressed in the citation of the important role of the institution of the parish in teaching and reflecting the mind of Christ, and in showing forth the Christian community to the world.

"We support every effort to make the parish the spiritual home of all within its boundaries; regardless of race. Priests and people must co-operate together to put this into practice. They must realize that the members of minority groups in a parish often feel shy and unwelcome and that they need encouragement, a friendly invitation, a sign of welcome."

Bishop Raymond P. Hillinger, auxiliary bishop of the Archdiocese of Chicago, spoke clearly of Catholics who discriminate against others because of race: they just are not Catholic.

"On the occasion of the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice the Holy Father again expresses warm commendation for the praiseworthy work of the Catholic Interracial Councils in the United States. "Fervently invoking the guidance of the Holy Spirit upon the deliberation of your meeting, the Supreme Pontiff cordially imparts to the chaplains, officers, and members attending the conference his special apostolic benediction."

Msgr. Angelo Dell'Acqua
Vatican Under-Secretary of State

Finally, the laymen gathered there in Chicago in unanimous and fitting acclamation, showed the spirit of the layman in interracial work, by pledging to their bishops and all the American hierarchy "our continued loyal and devoted allegiance to their teaching authority and spiritual guidance," in the work of continuing the community of Christ.

A commission of the conference, studying interracial justice in the parochial and institutional life of the Church, discussed at length the role of the parish unit in the life of the Church. Its report indicated that the interracial problem centers in the parish, and that the role of the parish is key in determining the Catholic contribution to many aspects of the race question. The parish is the locus for forming a right conscience in Catholics on the race question.

This commission reported:

> "Every Catholic who is prejudiced or who discriminates against Negroes or members of other minorities thereby offends against the natural law and the Christian law of love. This sin hinders his own spiritual growth, lessens his chance of salvation, and contributes to the perpetuation of a practical heresy.
> "Racial prejudice and discrimination help to inflict severe and unnecessary suffering upon all Negroes. Further and more important, they constitute a severe trial of faith for Negro Catholics and place an obstacle against the sharing of God's truth and grace with non-Catholic Negroes."

The parochial life commission also outlined in some detail the methods for practical and educational work within the Christian community. It urged "greater corporate participation in the liturgy" as a practical Christian means to demonstrating the oneness of the Mystical Body of Christ. It pointed to the complete integration of Queen of the World Hospital in Kansas City, Missouri, as an example of the success and "apostolic effectiveness of complete fidelity to the spirit of Christ, the Healer."

Finally, this commission on the institutional life of the Church, called on the national Catholic lay organizations to adopt programs of interracial membership and interracial education. (This and other commission reports are now available at 50 cents.)

In relation to the problems faced by Negroes in employment, a commission studying the problem, spoke in these terms:

"The denial to any human being of the needs of his normal existence is a mockery to God's creation of the means for human existence. Such a denial essentially repudiates the dignity of each person, and, when perpetrated by one human being against another, denies the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God.

"When the excuse for such denial is the person's race, color, religion or national origin, the injustice is evil compounded. Foremost among the needs of normal existence is job opportunity, from which stems the means of obtaining other essential needs.

"Equality of job opportunities is a moral right which inheres in all men, created as they are in the image and likeness of God and endowed by Him with talents of mind and body. It is the sacred duty of every person to seek to fulfill these gifts and to use them . . . the denial of this right through refusal to hire, to upgrade or to promote, to admit into union membership or to professional associations, because of a person's race . . . breaches not only the principles of justice but that of charity or love which bind together in Christ all mankind."

In a commission studying the problem of housing, a report was prepared which spoke of the natural law, binding on all mankind, which rejects "as immoral any theory that maintains the superiority of one race of human beings over other races, and any practices of discrimination against a race that fixes the status of the members of that race as permanently and universally inferior to that of another race." This commission spoke of the clear duty of legislators, of real estate sellers and brokers, of all Christians, to accept their obligation and to take steady steps against the social evil of discrimination in housing and against compulsory segregation.

A final commission report studies the status of integration in schools. It speaks of the difficult problems in the great population movement across our land. These pose tremendous challenges to Americans to use their ingenuity and energy in accepting their moral obligation to seek with "all deliberate speed" to solve the problem of segregated schools across the whole country.

This conference should give courage to practical Christians everywhere, who are seeking the solution of Christ to a major moral problem. In a telegram from Vatican City received at the conference the Holy Father expressed "warm commendation for the work of the Catholic Interracial Councils," invoked the guidance of the Holy Spirit upon the deliberations of the conference, and imparted his "special apostolic benediction to the chaplains, officers, and members of the Councils" gathered there.

WANTED

Several community groups willing to try to integrate their neighborhood, have asked the council to help find families "who will put their money where their words are." These are neighborhoods just beginning to change from all White residents. These groups feel that hard-working white families moving into the neighborhood at this time will help stabilization and the possibility of an interracial neighborhood. If you know of good White or Negro families willing to move into a "changing neighborhood" — a good neighborhood—why not contact the CIC office: DE 7-7776.

The delegates to the first National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice also spent time considering means of more helpful unity between the growing number of Councils. In a resolution they pledged to work for the creation of fifty more councils throughout the United States.

The Conference established a twenty-two man interim committee to "study some form of closer association of the various Catholic Interracial Councils." This committee is to report to the presidents and chaplains of all Councils. It will employ a staff person if possible. Chicago persons appointed by the conference to the interim committee: Msgr. Daniel M. Cantwell, Robert Sargent Shriver, Jr., Lloyd Davis and Mathew Ahmann. Mathew Ahmann is secretary to the committee.

"WHAT THEY SAID"

"Of all public questions that are issues of controversy in our legislative and judicial halls, it (racial justice) is the one that has the greatest moral implication . . . It is one issue on which our religious leaders must take a positive and effective stand."

Governor Orville L. Freeman, of Minnesota

"The Catholic Interracial Movement is not motivated by mere humanitarianism, or mere legalism, or mere liberalism, or mere sentimentalism, but is inspired by the doctrine of the Mystical Body of Christ. The major problems we face are social problems existing in a pluralistic society, of which we are minority members, and of which the majority of our fellow-citizens do not know the Mystical Body of Christ, because they do not share our faith. But they do share our race problems, which are chiefly community problems demanding a community effort for solution."

Rev. William J. Kenealy, S.J.,
Loyola University,
New Orleans, La.

"This is not a question of white men laboring to improve the conditions of the Negro's life — or the Mexican's, or the Puerto Rican's, or the American Indian's, or the Oriental's. Nor is it the reverse, the minority element struggling angrily and unaided to obtain decency and justice. On the contrary, it is a question of all of us working for a common goal: the common good of the community, for those public matters which are our joint interest. For if one member of our body suffers, then all suffer alike."

ANNUAL COMMUNION MASS AND BREAKFAST OCTOBER 26!

Sunday, October 26
Feast of Christ the King
MASS: 9 a.m.
St. Peter's Church
110 W. Madison Street
BREAKFAST: 10 a.m.
Grand Ballroom
Morrison Hotel

The 1958 Communion Mass and Breakfast of the Catholic Interracial Council of Chicago will take place on Sunday, October 26th.

Holy Mass will be celebrated by the Very Reverend Comerford J. O'Malley, C.N., President, De Paul University, in St. Peter's Church, 110 West Madison Street.

The Breakfast this year will take place in the beautiful Grand Ballroom of the Morrison Hotel. Principal speaker will be Reverend Franklyn J. Kennedy, Editor of the "Catholic Herald Citizen" and newly appointed chaplain of the Catholic Interracial Council of Milwaukee. A special report on the recent National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice will be delivered by the youthful President of the Catholic Interracial Council of Detroit, Charles W. Wexler.

A highlight of the Breakfast will come with the presentations of the Council's "Thomas J. Crowe Interracial Justice Awards," presented each year to individuals, groups or institutions, in recognition of accomplishments and achievements in the furtherance of interracial justice and charity. Members of the Crowe Award Committee include: Robert H. Klein, Chairman, H. A. Renholm, Midwest Director, Radio Corporation of America, Irwin R. Tucker, President, Irwin R. Tucker and Company, Patrick F. Crowley, prominent attorney, Mrs. Stephen P. Ryan, Maurice B. Frank, President, Old Rose Distributing Company, and Attorney J. Harold Mosely, member of the Council's Advisory Board.

SCHOLARSHIP RECIPIENTS: Albert L. Nellum, CIC's Schools Consultant, shown issuing scholarships to 14 students from Catholic Grade Schools in the Archdiocese of Chicago. The new scholarships bring the total number of students under the program to 27. The program now in its fifth year helps desiring students to attain a Catholic high school education.

Newly elected officers and members of the Board of Directors will be presented to those attending the annual Breakfast.

Recipients of past Council Interracial Justice Awards have included:

1954: Human Relations Club, University of Detroit
Walter J. Baker, DePaul University

1955: James Rosol, Jr., Commander, Catholic War Veterans of Illinois
Rev. Martin Carrabine, S.J., Director, Sodality of Our Lady
Rev. Arthur E. Lovely, S.J., University of Detroit
Alverno College, Milwaukee, Wisconsin

1956: Human Relations Club, University of Notre Dame
Kathy Kelly, Barat College, Lake Forest, Ill.
Hon. George D. Kells, former Alderman

1957: National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students (New York)
Sister Mary Hortensia, Principal, Holy Angels Grammar School
John L. Yancey, former Commissioner, Chicago Housing Authority

Working Paper:

SOME AVENUES OF DEVELOPMENT FOR NAIRO

NOTE: The body of this Working Paper was prepared by the Executive Secretary for the September 19-20 meeting of the Board of Directors. Not all aspects were discussed, but the Board's consensus or comment is inserted here at appropriate points.

INTRODUCTION

NAIRO has described its aims and purpose in various ways and at various lengths (cf.: By-Laws, the various NAIRO brochures, publicity releases, etc.) but all can be boiled down to something in this vein: to raise standards and improve performance of intergroup relations practice in this and allied fields. While the reference to "allied fields" may be a relatively recent emphasis, the rest of the definition is as old as NAIRO itself. And, since 1947, every NAIRO program and project has had to pass a test of appropriateness through measurement by this yardstick.

As a result, NAIRO has consciously and quite consistently avoided activities in the realm of direct social action, services to the general public, and coordination of agency programs. Its services have been designed rather for those in professional and policy-making posts in the field, and its activities have attempted to meet their individual and collective professional needs. Parenthetically, NAIRO has sought also to avoid duplicating activities and services already provided for professionals by national intergroup relations agencies, even when those activities or services might be judged as falling within NAIRO's special field of interest (e.g. the ADL research surveys).

Gradually, NAIRO has achieved a certain degree of competence in many program areas that fall under its limited and specialized purpose; there is even a growing recognition of NAIRO's "eminent domain" in some of these, with a concomitant expectation that NAIRO will provide increasing leadership and guidance. This seems then to be the moment for serious exploration of program expansion, to provide better service in existing areas of operation and to enter new ones where the need seems acute and unmet.

Surveying demand and supply in the field of intergroup relations, it is possible to sketch out a comprehensive plan for NAIRO program development in six broad areas:

1. Education
2. Training and Recruitment
3. Research Services
4. Information Services
5. Consultation & Liaison
6. Membership Services

Program Area #1: EDUCATION

Education is seen here as encompassing all those activities designed to operate directly on the development of greater professional competence among those already working in this field. The key lies in exchange of know-how (intergroup relations concepts, techniques, and skills) among professionals on a structured and continuing basis.

For one, local and regional NAIRO conferences should be organized wherever the number of professionals and policy-makers warrants, probably in each of NAIRO's eight regions as well as in certain key metropolitan areas. These conferences could precede or follow the national NAIRO meeting each year, the timing to dictate whether the smaller meetings explored topics prior to consideration by the larger body or continued discussion after the national conference. To aid and encourage these smaller meetings, NAIRO should provide some (advisory) staff help, aid in securing speakers and resource persons, coordinate agendas, and arrange for distribution of conference proceedings. (Local and regional NAIRO conferences have been held in the past but on a random basis and largely without relationship to the national meeting.)

> BOARD: Consensus that conferences are valuable, should be continued, even expanded. They have low priority in terms of foundation appeals, however, since they are largely self-supporting and can be organized locally without national office help.

To promote continuing professional exchange, NAIRO should continue to assist in the formation of local NAIRO groups, and in the work of Commissions and Departments. Local groups need increased attention from a field secretary and a more regular exchange of information on their respective activities, perhaps through the circulation by national office of all local group minutes. Commissions are functioning well in their present framework, but their sound and valuable findings would have greater significance and circulation if the "Journal of Intergroup Relations" were printed rather than mimeographed, and promoted extensively. The NAIRO Departments are and probably will be relatively amorphous groupings of professionals of like function; their impact can best be strengthened by the encouragement and perhaps partial subsidization of Departmental newsletters.

> BOARD: Consensus that projects developed under the respective areas of Commission interest - on a staffed basis - offer fruitful possibilities for NAIRO expansion. Intensified exploration of intergroup relations concepts and knowledge by the Commissions is a natural function of NAIRO, is less competitive with national agency interests than many other possible NAIRO activities, and represents an area of great need in the field. Resources and Planning Committee was asked to give special consideration to such projects. Mr. Feild expressed the belief that Commissions should not be delving into questions of intergroup relations practice, as they have in the past, but should leave these to the Departments. Background knowledge rather than technique is the Commissions' focus, and they have only scratched the surface to date.

Workshops for both senior and junior practitioners should offer a relatively untried but long-needed opportunity for professional growth. Organized during summer months, the workshops would offer professionals at both levels (jointly or separately) a chance to withdraw from immediate job pressures and community problems for a conceptual look at their daily work responsibilities. This project is seen as a largely self-supporting venture, agencies paying for their staff members' attendance; NAIRO would have responsibility for organizing and planning the workshops (perhaps in conjunction with university Human Relations Centers), of recruiting participants, and - at least initially - of partially subsidizing workshop expenses. (The successful involvement of three fee-paying junior professionals in the recent Internship Seminar offers rich promise for an early extension of the workshop idea.)

> BOARD: Discussing practitioner workshops, most agreed with Mr. Feild's contention that such workshops were not a proper function for NAIRO and that NAIRO's role was to help human relations centers and intergroup relations agencies do a better job in training interns, junior practitioners, senior practitioners, and others. Priority should be given to consultation on training rather than workshop sponsorship. Mr. Aronson offered the example of the Council on Social Work Education, which advises all schools of social work but is an independent agency with no educational function beyond consultation and research.
> Sidney Lawrence referred to a letter from the Encampment for Citizenship which contained suggestions for possible cooperation with the Encampment regarding intern and in-service training experiences. There was no objection to Sid Lawrence's recommendation that the Resources and Planning Committee communicate with Bill Shannon and review this matter.

Program Area #2: TRAINING AND RECRUITMENT

Training and Recruitment of new intergroup relations professionals is essential for the continued development of the profession and the continued progress in the field. Promising young people - or older ones with experience in related fields - must be attracted to careers in intergroup relations, and they must be provided with a sound and reasonably standardized foundation of knowledge and skills in this field. Judicious job placement then follows as a third key element in this replenishment process.

NAIRO's present Internship Program should be continued, albeit improved and strengthened each year, as the best means yet devised for career preparation in this field. In addition, NAIRO could inaugurate a parallel training program for junior professionals from other fields (those such as social work, education, police, etc. now being brought into ever-increasing contact with intergroup situations), to prepare them for special intergroup challenges within their respective disciplines. After a year of on-the-job training in an intergroup relations agency, these other-dicipline professionals could be expected to return to their own agencies. The newer program would require from NAIRO all the attention and services given to the present Internship Program - and would almost certainly require from foundations full training grants for each trainee (this internship period representing a less direct contribution to the field of intergroup relations and, presumably, a less valuable asset to the training agency than is now the case).

Equally important to the improvement of training processes within the field would be greater consultation with human relations centers and the intergroup relations agencies, to assess the curricula and field assignments of the former, and the staff needs and in-service training opportunities in the latter. Training manuals and reports should be developed from NAIRO's experience and from the experience of the centers and agencies, and these should be circulated widely among all those concerned with this activity. In addition to consultation with existing centers and with agencies that now have training programs, NAIRO should assume the responsibility for aiding in the establishment of new centers and in the organization of new agency training programs. This program might also be on a fee basis, although subsidized at least partially in the beginning.

> BOARD: Consensus favored a third year for the Internship Program, and the Board authorized foundation appeals in support of same. The long-range goal should still be withdrawal from the training function, concentration on consultative help, and the development of criteria for both training centers and potential personnel. It was suggested that consideration be given to human relations center fieldwork placements in intergroup relations agencies as an alternative to internships.

Services of NAIRO's Personnel Registry must be strengthened and expanded. A true placement service should be substituted for the present (unscreened) job posting system, with a trained placement specialist - perhaps on a part-time basis - attempting to match job openings with available professionals on a more selective basis. This should probably involve some sort of fee for services rendered, and would require state licensing of NAIRO as a placement bureau. Improvement of the Personnel Registry would undoubtedly result in fuller use of it by agencies in the field. (The Personnel Exchange of the American Society of Public Administration is offered as a model.)

> BOARD: Development of more intensive placement services within the Personnel Registry would require staff, and this might be material for a foundation appeal. However, there should be further exploration of the placement services available from similar associations in other fields.

Program Area #3: Research Services

While it is not likely that NAIRO will or should undertake extensive research under its own auspices (except perhaps for such special surveys as the Housing Study and the Amerman-Barnes study of local public agencies), there seems to be a crucial need for some single agency to foster greater exchange of information about current and projected research. NAIRO seems best fitted to assume the tasks once performed so capably by the Committee on Education, Training, and Research in Race Relations (and the American Council on Race Relations) at the University of Chicago. Given the proper personnel, this service could range beyond simple exchange of information to ongoing consultation, even loose coordination.

Conferences on research - successfully sponsored by NAIRO twice in the past - should be organized annually at national and regional levels, and in various specialized areas (housing integration, school desegregation, problems of the American Indian, etc.) As was true some years ago, NAIRO would be responsible for planning and organizing these, for securing speakers and resource people, for recruiting participants, and for partially subsidizing the cost. Held in cooperation with various universities, these conferences would serve well in bringing together researchers and practitioners for an exchange of ideas on needs and means.

In like manner, NAIRO should undertake the regular compilation of research completed, ongoing research, and research needs. This could be publicized through a regular channel (such as the old Inventory of Research...) or through special bulletins and releases. This suggests that NAIRO should become the central clearninghouse for information on research in this field, which leads logically to the recommendation that NAIRO undertake extensive consultation with researchers, practitioners, foundations, and universities around research needs. This service is rendered, partially and informally, by various people in intergroup relations; its formalization would give greater promise of filling the many research gaps.

> BOARD: Consensus favored development of all these functions as being appropriate for NAIRO and in keeping with the concept of a single clearinghouse on research. Research conferences are especially valuable insofar as they bring practitioners and researchers together.

Program Area #4: Information Services

Practitioners, representatives of the mass media, students and researchers, human relations centers, even intergroup relations agencies need a central source to which they can turn for information on intergroup relations events, trends, laws, techniques, materials, personnel. It is not essential that such a central office possess all the answers but it is important that some single agency know where the information can be obtained. Again, NAIRO seems best suited to reinstitute this aspect of the American Council on Race Relations program, sorely missed since that agency's demise.

Keystone of this program would be an inquiry service to answer or refer requests for information. Selective and accurate referral of queries to appropriate agencies, universities, and others would prevent unnecessary duplication of work and resources; only simple or recurring questions need be answered directly by a central agency such as NAIRO. Further, in order to preserve its special role and to prevent any misunderstanding on the part of membership bodies, all inquiries from the general public might be referred elsewhere to an appropriate agency, as a matter of policy.

NAIRO's informational publications should be continued and expanded. The NAIRO Reporter fills a certain need in the field and could profitably be enlarged, both in size and in circulation; it needs a larger subsidy during a period of extensive promotion. In addition, there are gaps in the intergroup relations bibliographies available, and an agency such as NAIRO could profitably collect, coordinate, and supplement these with occasional listings of its own. This is equally true of compendia of civil rights laws, listings of intergroup relations agencies (i.e., NAIRO's forthcoming Directory), and chronologies of significant events. This phase of information services should become largely self-supporting.

Public understanding of some of the ramifications of the intergroup relations effort could be helped materially if there were a central and (presumably) neutral source to which mass media representatives could turn for authoritative information. Furthermore, such an agency could actively disseminate and encourage publicity on the field of intergroup relations, its agencies, its activities, and its accomplishments. NAIRO, cutting across all agency lines and tied to no single interest or group, seems best qualified to fill this potentially important role.

> BOARD: Some feeling that NAIRO might - in this area - coopt the roles and services of other agencies unless it referred all inquiries to the appropriate sources and refrained from direct reply. This was emphasized especially in the area of service to mass media, with agreement that NAIRO should neither seek nor promote any role as a clearinghouse for intergroup relations publicity.

Consensus that NAIRO should not seek to expand informational services until and unless need requires. In the meantime, concentrate on inquiries from members only, referring others to appropriate agencies.

Program Area #5: Consultation and Liaison

Consultation and Liaison are seen here as related functions of an enlarged NAIRO, not necessarily but perhaps conveniently joined together in one program phase. They represent service to the profession and the fields of intergroup relations through direct advisory contact with agencies, governmental bodies, and other disciplines; they also seem to be activities that NAIRO is uniquely suited to undertake or at least sponsor.

NAIRO should institute a consultation service, offering advice on agency organization, intergroup relations practices, and community problems to independent local and state agencies (those lacking a national parent body), and to citizens' groups and governmental bodies interested in establishing such agencies. Recognized authorities, selected by NAIRO or from a list supplied by NAIRO, would offer on-the-spot consultation on request - on a fee basis to established agencies, as a "service to the field" to citizens' groups. The fee might well be part of an annual retainer entitling the subscriber to a certain number of consultations in the community, unlimited access to consultants by mail, and such other services as seemed desirable (information, publications - perhaps in quantity, personnel registry (without fee), attendance at practitioner workshops, etc.). NAIRO would secure and coordinate the consultants' services, schedule visits to the community, enroll subscribers, and arrange for the other services. Largely subsidized at first, this service should become almost self-supporting in a short time if the need is as great as it seems.

BOARD: Consensus strongly favored development of a consultation service along the lines suggested initially by the Resources and Planning Committee. Independent local and state agencies (those lacking affiliation with a national agency), citizens' groups or governmental bodies interested in establishing such agencies, and other organizations would be offered the services of recognized authorities, selected by NAIRO or from a list supplied by NAIRO, for consultation on questions of agency organization, intergroup relations practices, or community problems. This would be on a fee basis to established agencies, as a "service to the field" in the case of citizens' groups. The fee might well be part of an annual retainer entitling the subscribing agencies to a certain number of consultations and to other NAIRO services. Largely subsidized at first, this service could become self-supporting in relatively short time; this should make it especially attractive to foundations.

Mr. Leskes suggested that this service might also include that of evaluation or audit, there being no other agency prepared to undertake that function at present. He suggested further that mediation of lay Board-professional disputes be considered in the same context. Mr. Allen noted that a consultation service that employed qualified professionals as consultants on an assignment basis would help them both by providing them with occasional fees and by standardizing same.

The work of NAIRO's Committee on Interprofessional Relations should be expanded as a staffed activity, with considerable emphasis given to establishment of continuing relations with the professional bodies in other disciplines (e.g., National Education Association, National Conference of Social Work, American Association of University Professors, etc.) Our present contacts with the American Nurses Association serve as a case in point. Interprofessional conferences or workshops, interprofessional exchange at national conferences, development of the training program for other-field junior professionals (see Training and Recruitment), interprofessional research projects, and regular exchange of professional materials are but a few of the possible activities in this sphere. In addition, and on quite a different plane, closer and more constant liaison with the national intergroup relations agencies might profitably be fostered by NAIRO as part of this program area.

Involvement of NAIRO on the international scene is probably long overdue. NAIRO should establish liaison with appropriate organs of the United Nations (application for Non-Governmental Organization status at the UN is now pending) and should be in a position to offer consultative services as required. Similarly, contact could profitably be established with intergroup relations efforts in other lands, leading perhaps to special consultations abroad (e.g., around the recent outbreaks of racial violence in Great Britain). Study tours abroad for intergroup relations professionals and policymakers, and the arrangements of tours here for foreign nationals in the same category, might follow logically from such liaison. This particular phase would necessarily require considerable subsidy, although aid from the United States and other governments is not improbable.

Program Area #6: Membership Services

NAIRO is and will remain a membership organization, and it has a constant responsibility to continue and even improve its services to its members. All will benefit, directly or indirectly, from the expansion of the other five program areas. But certain attention must be given to the special needs of members and to the internal organization of NAIRO.

NAIRO Committees must continue to be served and assisted by staff, especially where they are involved in the supervision of expanded program (e.g., Committee on Educational and Professional Training). The office of Regional Director should be continued, even strengthened to cope with increased activity of local NAIRO groups and the development of local and regional conferences. The National Office must, of course, continue to process memberships, publication orders, and organizational inquiries. In addition, members can expect to benefit materially from such activities in other program areas as conferences, local NAIRO groups, the Personnel Registry, Commissions, Departments, workshops, etc.

In addition to such publications as the NAIRO Reporter and the Journal of Intergroup Relations, members should continue to receive the NAIRO Newsletter as the official membership organ. This last-named becomes the responsibility of Membership Services.

> BOARD: There being no proposal for direct expansion of services under this heading, it was simply noted as an area of continued activity.

* * * * * * * * *

BOARD: It was agreed that the various proposals for expansion or inauguration of NAIRO services and activities should be refined by the Resources and Planning Committee and reported to the membership at the Annual Business Meeting in November. This Committee is scheduled to report at the Friday morning session.

In general discussion, several additional points were made: Special consideration should be given to ways in which agencies can be tapped to pay for services that NAIRO can now provide or proposes to. In considering new projects, priority should be given to those that will help NAIRO arrive at consensus on intergroup relations concepts and practice. A helpful starting point would be a realistic appraisal of the needs that NAIRO now meets, followed by an attempt to develop proposals for expanding and staffing the services or activities that seem most valuable in that light. A specific problem deserving further attention is that of travel costs faced by professionals who should be attending intergroup relations conferences but often cannot because of budget limitations.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

MINUTES

Meeting, NAIRO Board of Directors, November 18, 1958, Pittsburgh

Present: Arnold Aronson, presiding; Joseph Monserrat, Sidney Lawrence, Margaret Garrity, Frank Fager, Virginia Coffey, Frederick Routh, Edward Rutledge, George Culberson, Chester Gray, Theodore Leskes, John Hope, Alexander J. Allen, Thelma Babbitt.
Other: Dr. Helen Amerman, Douglass Turner, Marshall Bragdon, Louis Mason, Lloyd Davis, Carlos Gomez, Richard Anliot, Frankye I. Brown, John Lassoe, Jr.

I. Minutes of the previous Board meeting (September 19-20) were approved without dissent.

II. 1958 Conference: Report

Louis Mason, Jr., Conference Committee Chairman; Alexander J. Allen, Conference Publicity Chairman; and Richard Anliot, Conference Physical Arrangements Chairman, reported on Conference arrangements for the remainder of the week. Mr. Mason noted that $1,900 had been raised toward the local Conference Fund goal of $2,200; in addition, the Commission on Human Relations had secured donation of the Conference program printing by the City of Pittsburgh.

(Unanimous consent) A vote of heartfelt appreciation to Louis Mason and the entire local Conference Committee for their extraordinary efforts this past year.

III. Conference Sites, 1959 and 1960

Helen Amerman extended San Francisco's cordial invitation for 1959 or 1960, noting that local professionals would prefer having the NAIRO Conference there in 1960. Tentative reservations had been made at three hotels for November dates in both 1959 and 1960 - and, in response to a later suggestion, for October dates in 1960. Miss Amerman underscored the importance to NAIRO development on the West Coast of such a conference out there and expressed the hope that it would not be long in coming.

Joseph Monserrat extended San Juan's invitation for 1959 or 1960. He recommended selection of dates in late September or early October and, on that basis, had made tentative reservations at one of San Juan's newest resort hotels (rates: $10-$6.50-$6 per room, with 1-2-3 persons respectively). He noted that economy flights (round trip) from New York were $90, Miami - $90; Washington - $100; and Chicago - $150. He promised a cordial welcome by the Commonwealth Government and its representatives, and expressed the belief that such a Conference in San Juan would be mutually beneficial.

Douglass Turner and Lloyd Davis stated that it would be extremely difficult for Chicago to follow through on its original bid for 1959, due to Mr. McPeek's death.

Frederick Routh commented on the Miami bid for 1959, noting that hotel rates would be favorable before November 1 of any year, that segregation would not be a problem on Miami Beach, and that Miami contained a good core of intergroup relations professionals (although not yet NAIRO members).

Motion (Routh-Gray) Selection of San Juan as the 1959 site, and San Francisco as the 1960 site. CARRIED UNANIMOUSLY.

(Unanimous consent) The dates of October 13-16, 1959 (San Juan), and November 8-11, 1960 (San Francisco) were approved.

IV. DIRECTORY OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS AGENCIES WITH PAID STAFF: Report

Arnold Aronson reported that the DIRECTORY was in final draft form, the compilation of data having been completed by Mrs. Frances Cousens and other members of the Michigan FEPC staff. There are at least three alternatives on the printing of this:

(1) NAIRO's original understanding with the Anti-Defamation League (somewhat modified this fall) - Printing by ADL, free copy to each member, sale of remainder. ADL & NAIRO to split loss; profits to NAIRO after cost is paid. ADL printing estimate: $1,500.
(2) NAIRO to print on its own: Commerical printers' estimate: $1,600. All loss and all profit to be borne by NAIRO.
(3) (Exploratory) Wayne University Press, Detroit, has indicated interest in publishing both the DIRECTORY and the JOURNAL (the latter on a three-year contract). Wayne and NAIRO would split both loss and profit.

After discussion, this matter was referred to the Finance Committee and the incoming Board of Directors -- to be considered in the context of the 1959 Budget. It was suggested that John Feild be asked to investigate further the Wayne University Press proposal, and (John Hope) that other university and commercial presses also be contacted. Mr. Culberson suggested a review by the Finance Committee and the new Board of all publications, including - for example - reduction of Reporter issues from 10 to 6 annually.

The meeting adjourned after Mr. Aronson had expressed his appreciation to the members of the Board for their cooperation during his administration.

Respectfully submitted,

PRESIDENT'S REPORT
12th ANNUAL NAIRO CONFERENCE
November 19, 1958

by Arnold Aronson

By and large, the presidential reports of my predecessors have followed two main patterns. Some have dealt primarily with developments within NAIRO itself - that is to say, with activities undertaken by the association, problems encountered, progress achieved, unfinished work requiring completion, and the like. Others have focused on the external events against which the work of all agencies in the field, as well as NAIRO, has always to be projected - on broad national trends and developments and on their implications for intergroup relations, on appraisals of governmental policies and on needed legislative and administrative actions.

Excellent reports have been built upon both these patterns. Neither of them, however, is available to me. Obviously, this is not because the past year has been uneventful, either for NAIRO or for the nation. Quite to the contrary.

For NAIRO, this has been a most fruitful year. We have grown in numbers and in influence. Our committees, our commissions, our departments and our local groups all have been active and productive and - to me, most important - the participation of of the membership in the affairs of the association, as evidenced by the program of this conference, is more broadly based than ever before. To report on the progress we have made during the year, therefore, would be a deeply pleasurable and satisfying experience. But this felicitious task falls to our very efficient executive secretary whose capable and devoted efforts have been so largely responsible for the progress that we have achieved.

With respect to events in the world at large, also, the year has been an eventful, indeed a memorable, one. In our own nation, the struggle to secure genuinely to all citizens the equality guaranteed them in our constitution has been carried forward under intensely dramatic and historic circumstances. And this drama is being played upon a world stage that is shrinking constantly in size, and on which the struggle in our own land is seen as part of the surging movement of people everywhere for self-expression and self-determination. That we observe this drama in all its aspects and analyze and assess its implications for our work is, of course essential. The challenge and the opportunity of attempting such an appraisal would appeal to me greatly. But this course, too, is closed to me. For with our growing maturity, that task has very properly become one for the conference as a whole. It is a task to which we shall address ourselves tomorrow when we seek to formulate a statement of concerns.

These two tasks having been preempted, it seemed to me, especially in view of the crowded agenda of this conference, that a presidential report would be wholly superfluous. But do not let your hopes soar. My view did not prevail. It seems that even in an organization as young as NAIRO and as iconoclastic, precedent is not to be so lightly put aside. The program committee was adament. A presidential address is a must. Thus custom doth make victims of us all. And so, my dear friends and gentle captives, I shall employ this occasion to put forward a few observations, not about the state of NAIRO or about the state of the nation, but about the field of intergroup relations - the field in which each of us, whether as professional or as lay leader, is actively engaged and to the purposes of which all of us are in common committed.

We confront - as the theme of this conference suggests - both a great crisis and a great opportunity. If we are to meet the crisis, if we are to exploit the opportunity, we shall have to mobilize all the intelligence, all the skills, and all the resources of the intergroup relations field as a whole. Is the field so structured as to allow for the most efficient application of its combined assets? What are some of the gaps in the organization of the field that stand in the way of most effective utilization of all available resources? Can we devise means of closing these gaps? It is to these and related questions that I propose to address myself.

Within the brief span of years since NAIRO came into being, a tremendous expansion has taken place in the number and types of intergroup relations agencies, in the range of their activities and programs, and in the financial support given to intergroup relations work. Within that span of time, a whole new array of governmental agencies has been established - on the federal, state and local levels. The number of voluntary agencies under sectarian, non-sectarian and intersectarian auspices that has come into being during the same period in all sections of the country is even greater.

Most of these agencies came into existence in response to needs growing out of acute immediate and generally local situations. Some of them might even be regarded as having been created, so to speak, ad hoc. For the most part, they were conceived of as instrumentalities for dealing defensively with specific threats - threats of race riots, threats of violence, vandalism and defamation, with discrimination and with other related overt manifestations of prejudice. In the intervening years, intergroup relations work has matured, gradually sloughing off its purely defensive posture, and while continuing to combat discrimination and prejudice, orienting itself progessively toward positive programs for the improvement of intergroup relations.

But the steps in this process of maturation, and the steps toward organization of the field, like the multiplication and expansion of agencies, has taken place not as the result of overall planning or design but as a series of adjustments and adaptations to a random sequence of events. The result is an anachronistic disparity between purpose and means. Attainment of the goal of good intergroup relationships, in its broadest connotations, involves problems infinitely more complex and difficult than those involved in the purely defensive purposes that characterized the field in early years. Yet, though it now has a grand purpose, the field still has no grand design for moving toward that purpose. Though it has raised its sights, the field remains a conglomeration of essentially separate, or at best loosely related, agencies, sharing more or less the same broad general purposes, but lacking any effective means for concerted examination of the implications of those purposes or of the strategies most likely to insure their realization.

It seems to me that we can no longer afford to put off repairing this lack. The time has come for serious and genuine self-analysis - and I do not mean self-vindication. The structure of our field is a patchwork. It is time for us to begin thinking of how to organize and build it into a network. We must begin to think of how we can organize our resources so as to assure that every agency in the field contributes optimally toward the attainment of our common purposes, that the programs of each supplement and complement the programs of all the others in the common striving for the attainment of those purposes.

What are some of the means that we can devise for achieving this much needed organization of our field? I should like to venture five suggestions:

1. Creation of a central clearing house for information on trends, developments, materials, services, activities, research, etc.

2. Development of a systematic process for the formulation of policies, programs and relative priorities for the field as a whole, in the light of constantly shifting circumstances.

3. Establishment of some mechanism for assessing research needs, coordinating research activities, and for evaluating policies, approaches, programs, techniques, in the light of experience and the findings of the social sciences.

4. Elaboration and prosecution of a deliberate program of interpenetrating all the agencies of the society with an appreciation of the role of intergroup relations works and with intergroup relations approaches and techniques.

5. Creation of an international association for the advancement of intergroup relations.

Now, let me expand these ideas, taking them seriatim.

1. CLEARING HOUSE

Like myself, I am sure that all of you have been overwhelmed at times by the sheer volume of pamphelts, brochures, reports, studies and other materials that come to our desks. And yet, I dare say, all of you, like myself, have at times been equally frustrated by being unable to locate some much needed data or information in connection with a particular project. The rapid growth of our field, the multiplication of agencies and the wide range and variety of programs and services, has made urgent the early creation of a central clearing house in which information could be assembled, systematically collated, periodically reported, and available for the use of those who need it. In the absence of such a clearing house, our field faces a serious impediment to the effective utilization of available resources and must continue to suffer the costs in time, efforts and funds of the resultant waste and duplication.

Because of the lack of such an exchange, every problem confronted by every practitioner in every agency tends to be approached de novo, as if no practitioner anywhere else in any agency had ever dealt with the same or similar problem. Belaboring the point, I know, is unnecessary. Nor does it seem necessary to stress the need for the systematic complilation, classification and abstracting of research findings. While the total volume of research in the field is still inadequate, quite a substantial volume is being conducted, not only in the agencies, but in universities, under the auspices of foundations, and elsewhere. At the present time, there is no source to which one may turn to ascertain either the existing results in any particular area, or what research is currently in process, or what research is projected.

We could begin to find our way out of this hodge-podge if we could bring about the creation of a central informational clearing house for the field.

2. POLICY FORMULATION AND PROGRAM PLANNING.

All the clearance in the world will not obviate the need for the taking of decisions and the making of choices. Information is essential to these processes but it is no substitute for them.

The determination of policies, programs and strategies is the responsibility of each agency, in the light of its own purposes as it conceives them and of its accountability to its constituency. This is a vested responsibility. No agency can be relieved of it and nothing must be done to prevent or interfere with the exercise of this vital process of self-determination.

However, all intergroup relations agencies, notwithstanding differences in scope, structure and purpose, share in a commitment to certain broad objectives. All seek, ultimately, to create a society in which all men are freely equal to share in the opportunities afforded by the society, to achieve their highest levels of self realization, and to nurture their individual and group differences while retaining each other's acceptance and regard. However broad or limited the mandate of any particular agency, whatever the primary focus of its program, however it may construe its particular role or function, it must share in the commitment to this ultimate objective, else there is no way for it to justify its claim as an intergroup relations agency.

How can we, sharing such a commitment to common purpose, continue to scatter our energies, or conversely, to concentrate them in certain areas of activity to the neglect of others which may be in greater need? How can any of us assess the work of our own agencies in terms of their contributions to the purposes of the field as a whole? The answer is of course that we cannot: And that we need some mechanism that will enable us to do so.

There are some mechanisms in our field, but they are limited to specific goals. For example, the leadership conference on civil rights seeks to develop coordinated strategy in respect to the continuing battle for federal civil rights legislation. The American immigration conference similarly coordinates plans and activities in that area. The consultative conference on desegregation is an informal association of many groups committed to the promotion of compliance with the supreme court rulings regarding desegregation. There are a variety of coordinating bodies of varying levels of formality on the state and local level. These are all performing useful services. All should be encouraged and supported. But they do not in any sense dispel or offset the need for a similar mechanism for the field as a whole - a mechanism, through which the combined experience and thinking of the field can be brought to bear systematically upon common problems, in the light of the common objectives, through which the field as a whole can determine upon the strategy and tactics best calculated to advance the common goals and upon relative emphasis merited by particular programs and activities. No one, I think, will contend that the problems we face merit anything less than the full collective intelligence and wisdom that we can possibly bring to bear upon them. No one, I think, can doubt the advantage of a reasonably integrated strategy and program over a series of unrelated, overlapping, duplicating or even conflicting separate projects.

Obviously, what I am suggesting is not a one-shot high level conference to settle things, but a continuing, ongoing process. Our work is not carried on in the carefully ordered and controlled domain of the laboratory, but in the midst of the hurly-burly of the community. With us, the status is never quo. We must constantly adapt our strategies and our programs to changing circumstances and shifting events. Manifestly, no process directed toward a continuing evaluation of trends and adaptation of programs to meet them by an entire field of work, can supply day-by-day direction to the programs of individual agencies. As I said at the outset of my discussion of this proposal, such choices must be made in the individual agency in the light of the circumstances affecting its work and with due regard for the resources that it commands. But the judgments that can be and must be formulated at the higher level for the field as a whole are indispensible in providing an overview, a general frame of reference, a directional guide, against which individual agencies can check their own programmatic decisions.

3. RESEARCH AND EVALUATION.

T To some extent, of course, judgments in human affairs have to be based on what is believed rather than what is strictly known. But the difference between acting on knowledge and acting on hunch is the essential difference between professionalism and dilettantism.

Knowledge is acquired in many ways. One systematic way of acquiring it is by research. Research is a much overworked and frequently abused term. I decline to be drawn into a discussion of what is and what is not research. I know that we need more knowledge - knowledge about the extent and areas of discrimination, about the racial, ethnic, religious and cultural composition of our communities, about the mores, customs and values of the groups that make up our society, and a multitude of other facts. We need more knowledge - much more knowledge than we have - of the nature and causes of prejudice, of the factors that give rise to and that bring about the subsidence of intergroup tension. We need more knowledge of how we can test and evaluate our programs. We need more knowledge about the fundamental motivations that create group identification and lead to group rejection. We need knowledge of the impact of various kinds of communications upon people. The way to much of this knowledge is through research. I conclude that research is indispensible, that we cannot have enough of it, and that what we have is unorganized, disjointed, fragmentary, and uncoordinated. Much of the research being done today in the field of intergroup relations is being conducted on university campuses: too often it is academic research removed from the needs of practitioners.

No one, I think, will dispute these observations, and if they are conceded, they constitute their own eloquent argument for the establishment of some mechanism whereby the intergroup relations field as a whole can determine what priorities are to be accorded various kinds of research and whereby some order can be introduced into the present chaos of research activity. Through such a mechanism, the field might, among other things, outline areas of needed research, stimulate foundation or other funds for such research, and enlist the participation of agency and other researchers in complementary projects that would add up to a total planned and coordinated research program.

Research, I have suggested, should be related to programming. But knowledge is not wisdom. Research provides guidance but where human beings are concerned there are no immutable laws. And, in any case, research "will not give you today the solution of yesterday's problem." And even if it did, it would come too late.

Furthermore, as a practical matter, program-making cannot wait upon objective proof or definitive demonstration. Precisely because they are insusceptible of scientific evaluation, all our policies and programs, and the assumptions upon which they rest, as well as their relevance and efficacy to the objectives toward which they are directed, have to be constantly reexamined and reassessed. In the absence of objective criteria, the only available device is that of subjecting them to the joint judgment of qualified persons. I suggest, therefore, that we need some mechanism for periodic conferences of professional and lay leadership to analyze systematically the different approaches in intergroup relations work, the assumptions on which they rest, the methods by which they are conducted and, to the extent possible, the results that have been achieved.

By this means we would be enabled to make evaluative judgments as a guide to program planning, and to set them down in the form of guiding principles. Over a period of years, we might develop a body of such guides, which would provide reasonably reliable criteria against which individual agencies could test their own approaches and to which they could relate their own program plans. We might also, by this means, build up a body of principles and knowledge that would provide the core of a program for the training of practitioners and other agency personnel in our field.

Since many of the techniques used in intergroup relations and much of the methodology of the field are adapted from or common to other fields, it would seem to me essential that any instrumentality for research and evaluation in intergroup relations maintain close and continuing liaison with other disciplines in the social sciences, such as psychology, sociology, anthropology, community organization, social work, political science, communications, and that, insofar as possible, representatives of those disciplines participate in appropriate ways in our own research planning and reassessment processes.

4. INTERPENETRATION

But if we are truly going to seek the realization of our goals through the fashioning of our culture, we cannot and must not stop with the establishment of liaison among the various professions and disciplines on the level of research alone; we must, on the contrary, work for the interpenetration of all professions, all social sciences, all agencies concerned in any way with the behavior of human being, their welfare, their status, and their relationships, by the conceptions that have been developed in our own intergroup relations field. In the course of our dynamic development we have progressed from concentration upon defense against discrimination, through preoccupation with the promotion of equal rights, opportunity and status, to the beginning of a new phase on the threshold of which we now find ourselves. We need to begin to perceive our goals in terms of a society that is integrated in the deepest sense, yet infinitely varied, broadly permissive, accepting difference, and nurturing that species of conflict which, in a free society, is the only matrix of progress and change. In such a society, the old adjuration "live and let live" is quite inadequate. It is not enough that groups should live side-by-side in mutual toleration and without overt hostility or conflict. It is not enough that Negro children should be permitted to attend public schools that are also attended by white children. Isolation need not be physical. If it is destructive of the personalities of Negro children to be taught in segregated schools, if such segregation impedes their learning and militates against their development and growth, how much more harmful must be the humiliating and agonizing daily experience of rejection and exclusion. The great challenge now before us is how to achieve the effective participation of all groups on a basis of equality in the common life of the total community while conserving the complete freedom of each group to foster and cultivate whatever cultural, religious or other special values, customs and traditions it may choose.

As we have developed conceptualizations and approaches appropriate to each of the stages of development through which we have passed, so we must now address ourselves to the new strategies and the new tactics called for by our newly enlarged purposes. Intergroup relations are. They exist. They permeate every society. Good, Bad or neutral, they are inherent in the dynamics of people living together. Intergroup relations agencies have been instrumental in modifying these relationships, in helping to create conditions in which they are constructive rather than destructive of democratic social values. But we do not make intergroup relations. Intergroup relations are the product not only of what is done or not done by intergroup relations agencies, but of everything that is done and said, or not done and not said, in the community through all its agencies and institutions. We have, therefore, now to address ourselves to the greatest challenge we have yet faced - that of seeking to infuse into all the institutions and associations in our communities a sense of sharing and responsibility for the betterment of intergroup relations.

Translated into concrete operational terms, this means that we should fix our sights on getting skilled intergroup relations practitioners on the staffs of all the major institutions that contribute toward the shaping of our society - educational, recreational, public administration, industry, labor, social welfare - and at every level, national, state and local. For us as a field, this means the assumption of two different major tasks. First, that of interpreting this new broadened conception of intergroup relations to government, business, industry, labor and all the fields of social service. Secondly, that of recruiting and training the personnel that will be needed to staff these functions in the varied institutions, agencies and services in which they will be working. That these are formidable tasks needs no stressing. But they are tasks, I think, that we cannot shirk without at the same time shirking our basic responsibility to provide leadership in our field.

5. INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

Just as we cannot continue to regard the field of intergroup relations work as being confined to intergroup relations agencies, so we cannot remain insular in the geographic sense of regarding our concerns as being bounded by the borders of our nation. We have been saying for years that the state of intergroup relations in our country has a profound impact on American foreign relations. This is a sound observation. But intergroup relations have international significance in another sense, in the sense that the approaches that we in the intergroup relations field are developing toward the fostering of mutual acceptance with respect for difference, the techniques we are devising for the constructive direction of conflict, are major contributions to that art of living together, while being different, that is the essential ingredient in the quest for peace and security.

The problems of intergroup relations are universal. While, in the United States, government is constantly enlarging its assumption of responsibility for the integration of all our citizens, the government of South Africa is seeking to harden and solidify racial distinctions and segregation. While we seek to tear down the barriers that have stood in the way of the integration of Negroes into the fabric of our society, in India the same purpose is being pursued in relation to the ancient curse of untouchability. In Israel, a vast program aimed at the integration of immigrants of varied racial, ethnic, national and cultural origins and backgrounds is one of the primary preoccupations of the government. Throughout the world, men and nations are seeking for ways to overcome the tensions and hostilities that derive from old racial, ethnic, religious or national prejudices and to direct them into constructive channels.

The United Nations has taken cognizance of these conflicts as a threat to the purposes for which the United Nations was created. The constitution of UNESCO defines its purpose as being to "contribute to peace and security by promoting collaboration among the nations through education, science and culture in order to further universal respect for justice, for the rule of law, and for the human rights and fundamental freedoms for all." In pursuit of this purpose, UNESCO seeks to encourage research and studies on specific problems that contribute toward tension and misunderstanding between peoples and nations. There is a striking parallel between this purpose and these means, on the one hand, and our purpose and our means, on the other. Has the time not come when we should take the lead in forming an international association for intergroup relations, an association through which ideas, experiences, techniques, knowledge, insights could be exchanged? I can think of no better way of contributing toward the worldwide movement in the direction of improving relationships while at the same time enlarging and improving our own means and resources for seeking our objectives.

What is NAIRO's role in all this? To answer this question would require much more thorough exploration than could be given in this one speech, even were it double its already excessive length. All I have tried to do is to sketch out, in the barest outlines, what I consider to be some of the mechanisms needed in the field. Conceivably, NAIRO itself, might create and operate some of these mechanisms. Others might be more appropriately conducted by an agency, perhaps a specially created agency - and NAIRO is in no sense an agency. But of this I am certain: Whatever value there may be to the suggestions I have thrown out, whatever structural form may be decided upon for any of the functions I have suggested, NAIRO is the only forum in which they can be adequately examined, discussed, appraised, and - if found meritorious - expanded into concrete proposals for action.

Implementation of any one of the suggestions that I have thrown out will require substantial sums of money, extensive facilities, qualified staff and other resources, beyond the present capacity of NAIRO. To carry out all the proposals would demand expenditures in excess of the combined resources of many of our agencies.

This does not mean to me, however, that we should lower our sights. "A Man's reach should exceed his grasp," said Robert Browning. To aspire only to that which is readily attainable is to embrace defeat and invite stultification. We must have faith in the importance of our function in contemporary society. We must be resourceful and bold and persistent in our intepretation of that function. I am convinced that, as we succeed in enlarging public understanding of our purposes and our role, support will be forthcoming for the institutions, the agencies, and the services necessary to fulfill that role. For the proximate future, as I see it, this is the crisis and the opportunity that we face.

MINUTES

NAIRO Resources & Planning Committee
Meeting, November 18-20, 1958, Pittsburgh

Present: Louis Radelet, chairman; Frederick Routh; Maurice Fagan; Arnold Aronson; George Schermer; Herman Long; Frank Baldau; Charles Livermore; Sidney Lawrence; Marshall Bragdon; George Culberson (11/18); John Feild (11/18); Harold Lett (11/20); John Lassoe. Others (11/18): Shirley Guinot, Chester Gray, Burton Gordin, Douglass Turner.

A Working Paper was prepared by the Executive Secretary and distributed in advance of the meeting. Committee discussion centered around one phase of that report, relating to the possible establishment of a NAIRO consultation service. This idea had been advanced at the May meeting of the Committee, and was later discussed favorably at the September meeting of the NAIRO Board.

1. The Proposal

NAIRO would institute a nationwide consultation service, offering - through recognized authorities - professional advice on agency organization, intergroup relations practice, and community problems.

The recognized authorities would be experienced professionals, selected by NAIRO or from a list supplied by NAIRO, who would provide on-the-spot consultation as assigned. They would be paid consultants' fees on a per diem basis.

The service would be offered to independent local and state agencies (those lacking affiliation with a parent national), citizens' groups or governmental bodies interested in establishing an intergroup relations agency, business and industry, and organizations involved peripherally in intergroup relations. Established agencies would be expected to pay for consultative services, perhaps on an annual retainer basis; agencies in formation or those lacking funds would be served without charge, if foundation subsidies can be obtained.

An overall retainer fee might cover - in addition to specified consultation services - NAIRO publications in bulk, attendance at conferences or special workshops, informational services, research advice, etc.

Largely subsidized at first, this service might become self-supporting if the need is as great as it seems.

2. Committee Discussion: Pro and Con

* This service would be in line with that now offered by other professional associations in their respective fields; as such, it is appropriate for NAIRO.

2. *It is (or could become) a program activity; as such, it is inappropriate for NAIRO, since we agreed long ago to avoid program activities that might place us in competition with national intergroup relations agencies.

*There is no danger of competition with the national agencies, since no one in the field now provides this service on a systematic basis. We can raise the calibre of the consultation now available informally, by standardizing it through this service.

*How can we standardize it when we lack standards? There are many excellent professionals in this field, but what agreement have we reached on what constitutes good intergroup relations practice?

*However, consultative help is needed now and cannot await standardization of intergroup relations practice. We can depend on the experience and good judgment of the competent professionals chosen for this consultation.

*Who is going to choose the consultants, and on what basis? We must first set criteria for their selection or accreditation; otherwise, we run the risk of recommending an incompetent person.

* * * *

*Will agencies with a small budget pay NAIRO enough of a retainer to cover any of the operating expenses? How many consultants' trips can be squeezed out of a reasonable retainer fee? It is not going to bring in enough money to become self-supporting, and we do not want to begin on a piecemeal basis.

*Foundation grants would permit NAIRO to subsidize these consultations - partially or fully, depending on the agencies' ability to pay. We can certainly prove to foundations that a need exists; witness the requests received by all of us.

*We do receive requests but, in large measure, we handle those ourselves - by mail or through visits, sometimes even on a fee basis.

*A formal consultation service would, however, cause us to be paid for services that we are now asked to provide free or for irregular fees. It would serve to standardize those fees and perhaps help us to enlarge the list of available consultants. We would play an important role as broker or middleman.

*The key people are already overworked in their own jobs. Enlarging the list of competent consultants gets us back to the problem of accreditation. Our accreditation needs to be somewhat stricter than the certification of professional competence that we have discussed from time to time.

3. Toward Some Clarification: Consensus

Subcommittees were named to consider and report back on (1) the major outlines of a possible and feasible consultation service, and (2) the question of accreditation of consultants (and the development of standards for agency evaluation.

(1) "The major outlines of a possible and feasible consultative service, carried out under NAIRO auspices, were conceived by the sub-committee to embrace the following:

A. In the main, it would be a service rendered to local organizations and agencies in the intergroup relations field which are confronting decisions regarding their structure, purpose, function and program service in the communities and areas in which they operate.

Such matters of decision might involve, among others:

a. The nature and type of agency needed
b. The nature of staff and staff functions
c. The nature of Board and board functions
d. Relations with other agencies working in the area
e. Program focus, philosophy and scope.

B. The responsibilities which devolve upon NAIRO in conducting this program would include:

a. Direction of program
b. Organization of the services to be rendered
c. Organization of a panel of consultants to be made available to agencies seeking assistance
d. Assignment of consultants on the basis of consultant projects which NAIRO agrees to undertake
e. Determination of the fees and other financial arrangements under which service would be rendered.

C. In order that such a consultative service program be rendered, it would be essential that a corresponding information service be developed, with adequate resource material gathered and created to provide a body of organized knowledge on matters dealing with structure, organization types, statutes, constitutions and other enactments used as guides to agency development.

A library of special materials in their field would be needed. In addition, special research may be planned and undertaken which might provide the knowledge needed to guide consultative efforts aimed at the effective administration of intergroup relations agency programs, both public and private, large and small.

The development of such a library of materials and the initiation of research to provide this kind of information and insight, it was believed by the committee, constituted a practical and useful basis upon which to appeal for foundation grants in the development of the consultative service program.

D. If such a program of consultation is deemed feasible, along the lines suggested and with the limitations implied, it was suggested that a canvass be made of NAIRO agencies and professionals of the extent to which such a service ---

a. is needed in the geographic areas they serve,
b. might enhance or conflict in terms of their own agency central functions."

(SUBCOMMITTEE: Herman H. Long, Marshall Bragdon, John Hope, II, Sidney Lawrence, Louis A. Radelet, Frederick Routh) ./.

(2) "The sub-committee considered only standard-setting and accreditation as a possible function of NAIRO, without reference to the merits of the consultation service. It is the judgment of the sub-committee that we can go no further in setting professional standards for accreditation of consultants unless we can hire additional staff for NAIRO. It is our further judgment that we should not undertake a consultation service without such standard-setting and accreditation. It would seem that the possibility of a consultation service depends on our first obtaining foundation grants to support a carefully-planned project in which NAIRO can develop and agree on standards for accreditation."

There was further consensus on the need for a 2-3 day meeting of the Resources and Planning Committee, to consider this proposal and its ramifications, other aspects of the Working Paper (several program areas not yet considered by the Committee), and - perhaps most important - the long-range needs of the field, and the part that NAIRO might play in meeting them.

The Committee devoted considerable attention to the last point, as a prime reason for such a consultation. Many broad and important questions are faced by all professionals (and agencies) in the field, and there is no mechanism for resolving them. Many long-range and broad scale programs need to be undertaken, and since they go beyond the scope of any one of the operating agencies, there is no coordinated way in which they may be planned and carried out. NAIRO may not be the agent in each instance, but it can serve the field by exploring, describing, and finding resources for the several problem areas.

With careful advance preparation, a 2-3 meeting of the entire Committee could produce detailed proposals for NAIRO's future development through projects appropriate to its purpose and scope, as well as the outlines of broader needs and solutions for the field of intergroup relations.

* * * *

The Committee agreed that its report to the membership would be the entire Working Paper, with which it had not dealt in detail but which included most of the possible projects that had been brought to the Committee's attention. Reporting these various suggestions implied no formal approval by the Committee, although some had already received endorsement by the Board of Directors.

* * * *

Mr. Radelet, completing his term as chairman, expressed his appreciation of the time and energy expended by the Committee during the past year. He noted that definite steps had been taken toward some formal agreement on areas of development, a point that might be reached by the Committee in the year ahead.

Respectfully submitted,

A PROPOSED STATEMENT OF CONCERNS

Presented for action to the TWELFTH ANNUAL CONFERENCE

of the

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

November 19-21, 1958

Penn-Sheraton Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Preamble

No greater challenge faces the contemporary world than that of perfecting the means whereby free men may live together in mutual acceptance with respect for differences. Indeed, this is the crucial challenge of our time; and it confronts with evermounting urgency every international body, every government, every community, every institution of our society. Upon our success in meeting that challenge may rest our best prospects for world peace, domestic tranquility and the common welfare of mankind.

Intergroup relations work is focused on that challenge. Its goal is a society in which men and groups can live comfortably and creatively together notwithstanding the differences among them. This is possible only where men are equally free - free to share equally in the opportunities of a free society, free to achieve social and political change, free to worship as they will, free to be different.

While there has been movement in this direction, how lamentably far the world still is from having succeeded in building such a society is distressingly evident in our own land. Justifiably proud as we are to be the possessers of a Constitution guaranteeing equal rights and equal protections to all without regard to race, color, religion, or ethnic origin, and priding ourselves, as we justly may, upon being a nation of laws, we are yet faced with a grave challenge to those Constitutional guarantees and to the orderly processes of government that are designed to secure them equally to all our people.

Meeting in the twelfth annual conference, the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials views this immediate challenge as the first and most urgent concern at this time of all who are committed to the improvement of intergroup relations. We are convinced that, so long as equality is denied to any citizen or group of citizens in any of the states of the Union, so long as the authority of our highest courts are flouted, so long will our efforts be impeded and the realization of our aims delayed. This statement accordingly is limited to these currently urgent concerns.

Emerging Support for Desegregation in South

It may well be that a turning point recently has been reached in the struggle for racial desegregation of the public schools. Some of the costs of "massive resistance" have made themselves felt. Public Schools have been closed, imposing hardships upon white as well as Negro pupils. A comprehensive ruling by the United States Supreme Court has stricken every vestige of legality from all schemes and stratagems for evading its earlier desegregation ruling, whether now or in the future. The preposterous promises of some southern governors, attorneys general, and political leaders, that the mandate of the Supreme Court could be circumvented or countermanded by interposition of state authority have been shown to be empty. The growing wave of violence, unmistakably stemming from and given sanction by the defiance and evasion of law by public officials, has brought home the inevitable consequences of this course of action.

As a result, for the first time since 1954, an articulate segment of public opinion in the South has begun to advocate compliance with the Supreme Court rulings, even though many who contribute to this advocacy do so as proponents of what they regard as the lesser of alternative evils.

A growing number of intelligent people not only recognize that they have been misled by their political officials, but realize also that, in standing aside from the controversy heretofore, they have defaulted on their duty and contributed by their silence to the creation of an intolerable situation. For the first time, the monopoly upon public expression of views on desegregation, that has been held by the intransigent segregationists since the promulgation of the Supreme Court ruling of 1954, has been challenged.

Desegregation is being debated in the South. The beginnings of a dynamic shift of public opinion are discernible.

> The encouragement of this emergent sentiment and its channeling into constructive roles in the continuing conflict, will require the wise and effective utilization in the period immediately ahead, by both government and private organizations, of the processes of law and the approaches and techniques of intergroup relations.
> This will be best achieved if the processes of law and the approaches of intergroup relations are conceived, not as dichotomous and alternative, but as interrelated and complementary.

Law and Education as Instrument of Social Control

Both law and education are instruments of social change. Law operates not only as coercion, but as a conditioner of conduct and of attitude. This is especially so in a democracy. Authoritarian governments many use laws as repressive devices, but in our system law is looked upon as an expression of the popular will, and government as the instrument of its effectuation. Most people, accordingly, abide by law as a matter of course. Law against discriminatory behavior thus inhibits as well as prohibits such behavior by the prejudiced and even tends to reduce impulses to such behavior while it supports and encourages the unprejudiced in the practice of equality.

The reverse is likewise true: law imposing discrimination, so general in our South, has sustained and nurtured prejudice. It is ironically notable, indeed, that many who have decried the use of law against discrimination on the ground that prejudice must first be overcome by moral suasion are among the most vigorous defenders of law to enforce discrimination.

The sanction of law, in brief, is a potent factor in the promotion of equality of opportunity, complementing and in turn complemented by positive educational and intergroup relations approaches.

Nor are the sanctions of law exclusively punitive or coercive. Effective positive incentives to compliance may be provided, thus adding tangible rewards to the impact of the moral weight of law in fashioning conduct.

No law, however, is self-implementing, whether it be court ruling or legislative enactment. Law does not, of itself, effect change; it merely provides authority or mandate; it has to be used, otherwise it remains a dead letter.

Failure of National Leadership

Recognition of the dynamics of these relationships appear, unfortunately, to have eluded those who, like the President, have appealed to the hearts and consciences of men, exhorting them to change their attitudes, overlooking the possibilities of using law creatively as an instrument to bring about changes in conduct.

This failure is especially regrettable in the case of the President. In the course of evolution of our government, the office of the President has come to be regarded as the source of national leadership, the repository of the conscience of the nation, the originator of major policies and directions for the realization of overarching national purposes.

We believe that if the President had, from the outset, assumed the role of leadership, using the great moral authority, prestige and influence of his office, in interpreting the Supreme Court ruling as just, in asserting the duty of responsible citizens to comply and in making unmistakably plain the intent of the federal government to see that the ruling was implemented "with all deliberate speed," the "massive resistance" movement in the South could not have grown to its present alarming proportions.

We believe that it could not have grown to its present proportions if the legal and law enforcement agencies of the federal government had promptly - as they have belatedly during the past several months - been thrown into the task of seeing that the orders of the federal courts were not evaded.

The Justice Department's vigorous intervention in litigations during the past several months, the altered tenor of the public statements made by the President, the intensified activities of the Civil Rights Commission, the prompt and decisive action of the President in ordering the Federal Bureau of Investigation to make its facilities fully available in the investigation of dynamitings, all afford ground for hope that the determined federal action so long needed will at last be pressed.

Protecting the Right to Vote

It is particularly urgent that such action be taken to secure the full exercise of the franchise to all our citizens.

Political freedom in a democracy underlies all other freedoms. And nothing will more certainly alter the political climate in the South, the attitudes toward civil rights of elected officials from sheriff to governor, or the character of the southern representation in the Congress than an increase in Negro use of the ballot.

To a marked degree, law and education must be used in close concert in this connection. To make the ballot available to qualified Negro voters will require energetic and determined legal steps by both federal agencies and individual plaintiffs. To assure full use of the ballot by Negro voters will require extensive efforts to overcome the inertia and apathy that are the inevitable product of long repression.

On the legal side, the Civil Rights Commission should press its already initiated investigation with vigor and expedition; it should initiate similar investigations in all parts of the country, holding hearings and studying and analyzing voting laws in all states.

The Justice Department, through its Civil Rights Division should move swiftly and energetically to prevent interference with voting by intervening in suits challenging restrictive voting statutes on Constitutional grounds and with other appropriate steps.

Needed Federal Legislation

We believe further legislative action is necessary to clothe executive agencies of the federal government with authority to seek to compel compliance.

The Justice Department should be empowered to initiate actions in federal courts against denials of any civil right, as it now has authority to initiate actions in cases of infringements of voting rights.

To permit the burden of litigation in support of a declared public policy to rest upon those denied the protection of that declared policy and economically least able to bear the costs of the litigation is both unjust and illogical.

Congress should act also to enable appropriate agencies of the federal government to play a constructive part in moving communities toward compliance with the Supreme Court rulings on desegregation, by providing communities with data compiled and analyzed by federal agencies, supplying technical services, financial assistance, and other aids, all designed to ease the burden on those school districts that wish to take steps toward desegregation of their public schools.

Such legislation to provide incentives to compliance would be consistent with the creative use of law as one of the instruments available, to our society for moving in the direction of desirable economic, social and political conditions and inhibiting or impeding movement in undesirable or destructive directions. In considerable part, the laws enacted by the Congress creating and defining the functions of many of the agencies of government in the fields of health, education, social welfare, business, labor, agriculture are such laws.

The Senate Filibuster

Standing as a barrier to the enactment of every proposed civil rights law is the Senate filibuster. So potent is this weapon that the mere threat of its use has been sufficient on many occasions to cause pending legislation to be put aside without action or to prevent bills being taken up at all.

We believe therefore, that it is imperative that the Senate at the opening of the 86th Congress assert its right as a new body to make its own rules and adopt procedures that will permit a majority to bring any question to a vote after opportunity for full debate.

Opening Channels of Communication

In the South, perhaps the most immediate need is for the establishment and maintenance of channels of communication among the many groups and elements favoring or prepared to accept compliance with the desegregation rulings of the Supreme Court. We are convinced that the many groups and individuals, whose silence has been due to their fear of isolating and exposing themselves should they speak out, constitute a large and potentially influential part of the white population of the South and that they need only to be given the means of concerting their views and drawing a sense of security from each other, to become a major force for decency and racial justice.

Lessons from Experience

Segregation has been outlawed. But to end it will require sustained efforts to use the conflict over its prohibition in constructive ways within the framework of the law.

Experience with desegregation processes in a number of cities has reinforced knowledge long held by the intergroup relations field as to the actions and conditions that contribute toward the orderly application of these processes or that militate against such application.

1. Advance organization of the groups that can be relied on to support compliance with law is essential.

This is tremendously facilitated where such groups are established and where channels of communication among them operate. In the absence of such voluntary organizations or of established mechanisms for cooperation, the creation of them is almost a sine qua non of success in integrating the schools.

2. Public statements by ministerial and religious bodies, sermons, declarations of support for the authorities by civic, labor, business or other organizations are helpful.

3. Not less important is the clear unambiguous announcement of policy by the authorities.

Orderly compliance is aided, too, by planned interpretation under official and voluntary auspices. Demonstrations and disorder may be obviated by such means. Where they nevertheless occur, there must be prompt, firm action by police, and disciplinary action by school authorities against recalcitrant pupils.

4. Incitement to resistance to legal authority is everywhere a criminal act. Grand juries should investigate all evidence that such incitement has taken place and agitators should be brought to trial.

A show of intent by local authority to proceed in this way, made early enough, may be sufficient to deter potential trouble-makers.

Non-Legal Approaches

The inseparability of legal process and of non-legal approaches is clear in these lessons from experience. The non-legal approaches are uniquely those of the intergroup relations field; it is of the utmost importance that they be utilized. They are available, in some measure, through voluntary organizations, which may be enlisted by government in coordinated approaches. We believe they should be more extensively employed directly by government, in conjunction with legal process, in the creative utilization of the varied instruments of social control that is the true art of governing.

The creation of staff positions for intergroup relations advisors at policy-making and administrative levels in city governments, state education departments, federal agencies such as the Bureau of Education, the Department of Justice, the Department of Labor, etc., would do much to infuse government with an approach that does not rest exclusively on the coercive sanction of law to obtain compliance, but rather recognizes the value of law as an instrument for moving people toward acceptable modes of behavior and toward more desirable attitudes.

The Civil Rights Commission, as an example, has relied exclusively on legal approaches, notwithstanding the offer made by the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials "to help develop those non-legal approaches so important to the success of the Commission's work."

Civil Rights in the North

While segregation and other forms of discrimination are not unique to the South, it is of foremost importance that, while the sanctions of law are being misused in some southern states in unconstitutional attempts to perpetrate injustice, they are being used increasingly in some other states in other parts of the nation in support of Constitutional guarantees of equal rights and equal freedoms. Twenty states now have civil rights statutes of varying degrees of comprehensiveness, with administration and enforcement in the hands of official state agencies. In addition, a much larger number of ordinances are in effect in municipalities, many of which also have official agencies for their administration.

The enactment of such laws should be extended; existing laws should be strengthened, especially to give civil rights agencies power to initiate complaints, where such power is lacking; the work of agencies administering the laws should be enlarged; and the best skills and insights of intergroup relations should be employed in the creative utilization of the laws.

These suggestions have a special timeliness, for most state legislatures will be in session during the coming year.

Discrimination in Housing

In the South, the issue of equality of opportunity is being fought out primarily in the context of the school desegregation struggle. Elsewhere, equality of access to available housing is perhaps the major key to problems of segregation and discrimination. Imposed segregation by neighborhood is the inevitable breeder of every other form of segregation - in educational facilities, welfare services, public accommodations and community organization. Under the conditions that exist in virtually all our major urban centers, moreover, it is a means of perpetuating inequalities and contributing toward intergroup hostilities, antagonisms and resentment.

One of the major effects of residential segregation is to perpetuate and intensify feelings of status difference. No other difference, perhaps, militates more strongly against mutual acceptance.

Federal Housing Policies and Practices

Many factors and influences combine to sustain our present segregated neighborhoods and communities: group prejudices in the majority population group, practices current in the housing industry and among real estate brokers and builders, policies of lending institutions and, it should be especially noted, policies and actions of governmental agencies and public officials. The Federal Housing Administration, although committed in principle to "equality of opportunity ....irrespective of race, color, creed or national origin," makes no attempt to control the discriminatory practices of private builders or lenders. Thus, indirectly and by default, federal policies have stimulated segregation by making insured financing available - through FHA, FNMA, and VA - to private builders who build segregated housing.

While thus tolerating - which, in practice, means supporting - discriminatory practices, the federal government has created positions for "race relations advisors" in the housing agencies. Federal courts, meanwhile, have ruled that local governments may not establish racial residential segregation by law and that the courts, as branches of government, may not enforce private agreements for racial segregation.

The time has come for this hodge-podge of conflicting policies and practices to be replaced by a single consistent definitive policy, firmly administered, that will make the federal housing programs the instruments not only of more adequate housing for all but of housing for an integrated democratic society.

Aside from standing in the way of the improvement of intergroup relations, housing segregation bears within it the seed of deterioration and decay of our cities. Our cities are being gradually emptied of economically more self-sufficient elements, which are moving to racially and sometimes religiously exclusive suburbs. The central urban areas, thus abandoned, may grow into great ghettoes. The new political leadership of the cities is likely to be relatively inexperienced. Already much retail business and some industry, not dependent upon a mass supply of relatively unskilled labor, are moving to the suburbs. Declines in municipal tax revenues are inevitable. In these circumstances, deterioration of public services of all sorts is almost certain.

Population mobility is a characteristic of a healthy modern society. It should not be impeded. But a radically new and more imaginative approach to housing is imperative to deal with it. Such an approach would eschew the multiplication of housing projects designed to accommodate particular economic levels; such projects encourage racial and ethnic segregation. Rather, a new conceptualization is needed of the kinds of integrated communities we wish to create; we should plan for communities, not merely for shelter. In such an approach is to be found the hope for solution of our housing problem and, perhaps, for the problem of housing segregation.

Civil Rights a National Problem

Civil Rights are, in every sense, a national and not a sectional problem. In the dynamic currents of population movements in our nation, the effects of disfranchisement, unequal treatment, oppression, and degradation in any section are carried throughout all parts of the country, as an infection is carried in the body by the bloodstream.

Many of the heavy costs of racial discrimination are born inequitably by those sections of our country which are themselves most advanced in the assurance to all of equal opportunity.

Officials of northern states, who are in the forefront of leadership in behalf of civil rights, have tended to rely on local and state actions, while largely overlooking ways in which they might exert their influence upon national policy. They have failed also to perceive or to evaluate fully the grave implications for the economic and political future of their own cities and states inherent in the continued repressiveness and discrimination of parts of the South.

If the influence of the northern states were coordinated and thrown as vigorously into the struggle for federal action on civil rights as the influence of certain southern states has been mobilized in opposition, far-reaching changes might be effected.

The influence of the northern states, for example, might be directed toward securing more effective implementation of existing laws and regulations affecting non-discrimination in the employment policies of firms holding government contracts; to more effective pursuit of federal authority designed to assure the right of Negroes in the south to vote - perhaps the most important of all, since this, more than any other single factor, can set in motion forces that will elevate standards of working conditions, wages, social security, welfare services, and every other aspect of the structure of life in that section -; to the judicious requirement of non-discrimination as a qualification for federal grants in aid and loans for certain purposes; to the provision of grants in aid for civil rights programs.

The Conference of Governors of Civil Rights States, at present comprising the chief executives of those states having civil rights laws with enforcement features, and currently functioning through a continuations committee, should be made permanent; its membership should be augmented by the addition of governors of all other states having civil rights laws. All these states have a common interest in advancing civil rights as a national objective, both as a matter of principle and as a matter of self-interest. With appropriate organization and adequate staffing, such a permanent conference could function as a clearing house, an educational center, a research center, and a lobby, and could make a major contribution to the advancement of civil rights in our nation.

To secure civil rights equally to all our citizens, regardless of race, color, religion or ethnic or national origin is, indeed, the great unfinished business of our democracy. In the global struggle between the forces of totalitarianism and the forces of freedom, the United States stands as acknowledged leader, in the moral as well as the material sense, of the free world. We cannot maintain that leadership unless we demonstrate our will and our determination to make our own people free. Beyond the eventual triumph of freedom over tyranny lies the ultimate challenge of building a world in which men can live together in mutual acceptance with respect for differences. We must lay the foundations strongly and well in our land so that we may stand upon a solid base when, at last, that challenge is successfully met.

Integration Vs Non-Discrimination
a paper presented by Frederick B. Routh - at the 12th annual NAIRO Conference, Nov 19-21, 1958

"Intergroup relations is a field of action and study, organized to help bring about a more democratic society and to assist in the elimination of destructive human conflict, which is the greatest obstacle to the full development of the individual personality." This definition of our field was hammered out at New York University's Center for Human Relations Studies. It has found fairly ~~good~~ wide acceptance among professionals in the field.

Implicit in this definition are certain values -- among them: the desirability of a democratic society, the inherent worth of the individual, the need for eliminating destructive human conflict. It is a positional approach to the problems of man. Elsewhere at this conference we will be discussing the constructive use of conflict -- implying, I would assume, that not all conflict is destructive. I might add parenthetically I am in agreement with that concept.

Here we are discussing the goals and methods of our profession. ~~xbeliexexthatxitxxeeedxhavexbeenxbetter~~ First let me submit that the methods used and the intermediate goals set must be compatible with the long term goals. Second, we must recognize that our professional field does not exist in a vacuum but is a part of a ~~highly~~ complex and dynamic society holding democratic values. This society and the individuals who make it up are our primary concern and responsibility.

The cohesive element in any society is a mutually held value structure to which citizens give their allegiance. It would follow, then, that one of the goals of intergroup relations is to encourage the recognition of and allegiance to the value structure of a democratic society. All too often we confuse unity and uniformity; some politicians and super-nationalists call for uniformity; let us not be confused thereby into disbelieving in unity.

For more than two centuries we have been developing an American ethic -- a widly held, though not too well defined, set of values. Frederick Jackson Turner, in his various works dealing with the influence of the frontier on American history, proposed that Europeans who came to this continent with their own cultures soon modified them due to the overwhelming experience of conquoring a vast frontier -- that out of this experience came a new culture with a unique value structure.

Louis Raths has said that the American value structure is based upon individual liberty balanced with community responsibility. If this be so, and it is apparently valid, it provides for individual difference and group diversity so long as they do not conflict with the well being of the larger community. This is a point of which professionals in the field of intergroup relations must be aware.

Our respect for diversity must not include divisiveness. It is at the point where diversity becomes divisive that respect for community responsibility exerts its influence. For example, there are certain cultural structures which provide for the puting to death of widows that they might be cremated with their deceased spouses; with a profound respect for other aspects of their cultural structure, we simply could not permit wifecide. This is an extreme example you may say; so it is, but it is the extremes of sub-cultures which conflict most with the over all cultural structure of this society.

In other words, I would submit that there is a central core of values held by society at large and that so long as sub-cultural values do not conflict with them they should be encouraged or at least accepted. When there is a conflict of values, those spelled out in the law and supported by the vast majority of the people will prevail.

Significant differences among groups is created and perpetuated by seperation. When people are free to associate -- and we believe in freedom of association-- there is a leveling process. Historians and sociologists of a past era went over-board on this idea and developed the "melting pot" theory. Because of their excesses the whole concept of the leveling influence of a democratic society has fallen into poor repute. I would submit that this needs re-examination by the serious scholar and the professional practioner in the field of intergroup relations.

American society is so dynamic, so compelling that free association and full participation in it tends to overwhelm other practices. The danger here is uniformity not unity and the intergroup relations professional must with care distinguish between the two.

Things which keep people apart, which prevent freedom of association not only prevent uniformity they destroy unity. The baby must not be thrown out of the bassinet with the dirty water. Separateness, no matter whether it be called separation, segregation, self-segregation or apartheid is divisive. It may be argued that certain minority groups feel a security in "their own" neighborhoods -- that self-segregation is not in conflict with non-discrimination laws. I agree that it is not in conflict with non-discrimination laws; I would add, however, that it is in conflict with the conception of full participation in decision making, full use of public facilities, and freedom of association and movement. Some thing is wrong with a society in which ethnic groups must ban together in neighborhoods in order to feel secure. I would submit that we ought to find ways of correcting the "wrong" which makes for insecurity, not encourage the crutch of homogeneous neighborhoods. I reject the belief "They are happier with their own."

This brings up the question of "quota" housing, employment, schooling, and so forth. This is a managerial job, basically; one in which there is value conflict. We believe in open housing--but open public housing soon tends to become minority-group housing, not integrated housing. Open employment may lead to majority-group employment; open schools may lead to homogeneous student bodies. We need to carefully study this whole question of quotas; it may ~~well~~ be that we will find that during this transitional period through which we are passing that the judicious use of quotas will assist the long range goal of full acceptance of individuals without regard to their group -identification. The question to be determined is: does the use of quota systems conflict with the long range policy; or, properly used is it compatible with it ?

This brings us to the point made at the beginning of this paper: methods used and short-run goals must be compatible with the long range gaols. Very simply we do not hold that the end justifies the means. Whatever we do must reflect an abiding faith in the sanctity of the individual; our method must be one of working with people not on or for them. Working on people is manipulative; working for people is paternalistic. What ever is done must be done with the consent, the understanding, and the participation of those concerned.

Obviously, then, we are engaged in education and persuasion as well as action programs. What is called for is a massive effort to help the public understand the reasons for the existance of the professional field of intergroup relations, the desirability of a free and democratic society, and a commitment to the acceptance of individuals without regard to their group membership.

All too often we delude ourselves into thinking that at last we have found THE solution to intergroup problems. We need to recognize that our efforts are a part of a process-- a dynamic, changing process; one that is not static. This calls for constant re-examination and re-evaluation of what we are doing, how we are doing it, and what we hope to achieve. We must be alert that we do not fall into ruts in our thinking, our methods, our techniques, or our approaches to intergroup relations. Only in this way may we be in "tune" with the needs of the day.

In terms of strategy, different emphases must be used in different areas and at different times. Even as we emphasize one or more aspects of intergroup problems, we must not forget the others for there is an inter-relationship among all intergroup problems.

I am all in favor of "defence" organizations, "protest" organizations, and enforcement organizations. There is no question but that they are needed, but I would hope that each of these specialized organizations would be aware of the relationship of their efforts to the over-all picture, to other efforts being made in the field. Often, we are so involved in what our organization is doing that we fail to take into account what else is being done.

This would seem to call for a "clearing house" where all who work in the field of intergroup relations can exchange ideas and obtain a better perception of what the broad view is. NAIRO can and should serve this function. At our annual meetings and in our publications we are headed in this direction; the Board, however, should now undertake a study of how this professional organization might better meet the needs of its members in this critical area. In doing so it should examine the efforts of CCD -- the Consultative Conference on Desegregation, and the National Civil Liberties Clearing House in Washington, DC.

Recent efforts of state FEPC staffs to get together to exchange ideas has been an important step in the right direction. Some 64 million Americans now live in areas having some sort of FEPC's. Some have dentures, others are without teeth -- have no enforcement powers but rely on flapping the gums to resolve problems. The President has said repeatedly that "You cannot legislate the hearts and minds of men." The purpose of legislation, as I see it, is to regulate behavior; this we have done in other areas-- this we can do in the area of intergroup relations. Indeed, psychologists tell us that the quickest way to change attitudes (the hearts and minds of men) is to change their behavior. Experience in the armed forces indicates that when equal treatment is expected-behavior it soon becomes the accepted thing, as well. While we do not want in the general society the authoritarianism of the military we can learn from this experience. Law is an educational process as well as a regulatory process.

Law alone is not enough; this nation needs a consistent, long term policy of non-discrimination in all publicly supported institutions -- in schools, in hospitals, transportation facilities, government employment, employment with government contracts, public housing, government underwritten housing; in other words, wherever the public purse is involved there is no room for discriminatory practices. There is need for agressive enforcement of the legislation now on the books; there is equal need for new legislation to fill the gaps. This should be the first big step on a national policy level.

While NAIRO is, and must remain, a non-political organization, as a professional organization it has a responsibility to point up the needs in this area. We do not propose to loby for specific legislative acts; we can and should study the needs of the field and in broad, general terms offer suggestions to appropriate officials. This is not only our responsibility as a professional organization, it is also our duty as citizens who are alert to needs in the area of intergroup relations.

Finally, what seems called for is increased study of our field. We have not adequately defined the scope of the field, nor have we established professional standards. As we approach this crucial undertaking we need to re-examine and re-evaluate the needs, the resources, the application of resources to needs, and the gaps in the field. We need to look at the relationsship of what we do to what we propose to accomplish. As we do this, it would be my hope that we can go beyond mere non-dicrimination as a goal; that we can honestly and intelligently support a fully democratic society in which each individual is encouraged to develop all his potentialities so that he may give back to society the best that he has to offer. I would further hope that we might remember that the intergroup relations professional is an artist as well as a practioner and researcher.

This field calls for a high degree of professional and personal integrity; it calls for specialized skills; it calls for faith in people; it calls for belief in the democratic process; and it calls for ingenuity and daring. If we, the professionals in the field, can develope a composite of these requisites we will indeed be worthy of refering to our undertaking as a profession.

"Toward A Clarification of Goals: Integration or Non-Discrimination"

Topic for Luncheon Discussion (Charles Livermore and Frederick Routh), and for concurrent meetings of NAIRO Commissions to follow.

The questions below offer an outline of that topic's definition.

Which should take primacy as a goal of intergroup relations work - non-discrimination or integration?

What are some of the larger social values implicit in the choice of either of these goals?

Are these goals (a) mutually antagonistic, (b) compatible, (c) complementary?

Is there a consequential relationship? If so, which is cause, which effect? Always? Or varying with circumstances?

If a choice must be made, which should be given precedence?

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

Twelfth Annual Conference
Penn-Sheraton Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa.
November 19-21, 1958

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS

Functions of Committee

The functions of the Committee on Professional Standards are to assist NAIRO membership in arriving at a consensus on:

a. the functions, standards, and qualifications for practice by persons employed as intergroup relations workers; and on

b. the factors which contribute to job security for intergroup relations workers.

Economic or Job Security

The Committee gave little attention to the question of job security because of the amount of time required by its work on F.S. and Q. (functions, standards, and qualifications for practice). Yet the importance of intergroup relations workers need to obtain economic (or job) security and sound general welfare was fully appreciated.

The kind of economic security problems with which intergroup relations workers must contend appear to differ in public commissions against discrimination, private intergroup relations organizations, and non-intergroup relations organizations having an intergroup relations purpose. The most critical problems appear to exist in public commissions against discrimination, state and local.

These total problems relate, for example, to:

1. Tenure - especially staff changes precipitated by a change of political party in office.

2. Finances - adequate to provide decent wages for staff. adequate for effective programming, hence for optimism use by I.R. professionals of their competencies and the safeguarding of their reputations as I.R. professionals.

3. Personnel policies - need for sound personnel policies including contracts, fringe benefits, pensions, annuities.

4. Minimum employment standards - a wage-and-employment condition baseline equivalent to that for professionals in other fields who require a similar level of education and experience.

The Committee believes that:

1. Work resulting in economic security for I.R. professionals would be of obvious value to I.R. professionals; and that it would be of value to potential I.R. workers, I.R. agencies, and the public.

2. Ultimate agreement by NAIRO members on a set of F S and Q for I R professionals will facilitate efforts to obtain economic security for I R professionals.

3. The committee work necessary to develop minimum standards of employment and/or an effective economic security program will be time consuming.

Recommendation: The Committee on Professional Standards therefore recommends -

That a standing Committee on Economic Security and general welfare be appointed to study the economic and general welfare of I R professionals and to devise a plan for achieving economic security and sound general welfare.

F S and Q for Practice by I.R. Professionals

The committee held many meetings and subcommittee meetings to carry out its work on F S and Q for Practice. Also many other NAIRO members have given much time and thought to this subject; this fact is reflected for example, in correspondence to the committee and in discussions with committee members. It is hoped that most of the time available for discussion of this report will center on this subject.

In the interest of brevity, the procedures followed by the Committee will be reported verbally.

Responses to Questionnaire sent to NAIRO members.

The report of these responses has been prepared separately to facilitate its use. It is based on an incomplete, and therefore inadequate, analysis of the returned questionnaires. It is hoped, however, that it will serve as a good basis for planning next steps to achieve the goals for which the committee was appointed.

Recommendations:

1. That the committee send an adequate summary of the questionnaire findings to each NAIRO regional chairman, with suggestions for study by NAIRO members; and

   That the committee make plans to receive reports of NAIRO members' further thinking on this subject from regional chairman in time for study and presentation of appropriate recommendations to membership during the next annual NAIRO Conference.

2. That the chairman of the Committee give consideration to including the chairman of each NAIRO Department, or his representative, on the Committee; and

That effort again be made to include persons who represent different points of view on F S and Q for practice by I R professionals on the committee.

3. That considerably more time be set aside during the next annual NAIRO Conference for discussion of the Committees report.

Warmest Thanks To - Arnold Aronson, John Lassoe, and Mrs. Brown for excellent help!

To - NAIRO members for making a job stimulating and rewarding!

THE ANNUAL NAIRO BUSINESS MEETING
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania
November 19-21, 1958

Louis Mason, Jr., Conference Committee Chairman, presided over the Opening General Session during:

A. Welcome: The Honorable David Olbum, Councilman, City of Pittsburgh.

B. Presidential Address: ARNOLD ARONSON, National Community Relations Advisory Council, and President of NAIRO. (Reprinted in full in the 1958 Conference Proceedings.)

C. Report of the Executive Secretary: JOHN V.P. LASSOE, JR. (Full report to be sent to entire membership.)

D. Report of the Treasurer: GEORGE CULBERSON, Commission on Human Relations, Pittsburgh. (Report attached.)

Mr. Culberson estimated that 1958 Receipts will reach $34,000 by year's end (Anticipated Receipts, 1958 Budget: $39,730.), and that 1958 Expenditures will total $29,737.40 by year's end (Anticipated Expenditures, 1958 Budget: $32,250.). The balance on hand, as of November 8, 1958, was $23,932.97.

Mr. Mason relinquished the chair to Paul Klein, who presided over the remainder of the Business Meeting on November 19.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 19

I. Proposed Revision of the NAIRO By-Laws

A. Concerning Officers of the Association: Proposed by Paul Klein and Recommended by the Board of Directors.

- In Article VI, Section 1, first sentence, place a period after the word "Secretary" and delete the rest of the sentence.

ADOPTED, 54-0 (Motion: Alexander Miller-William Gremley)

B. Concerning Regional Chairmen: Proposed by the Membership Committee and Recommended by the Board of Directors.

- In Article VII, Section 1, Sentence 1, change "Twenty-eight (28) members" to "thirty-two (32) members;" and in Sentence 3, change "four (4) Regional Chairmen of the Association, from four separate geographic regions of the country" to "eight (8) Regional Chairmen of the Association, from eight separate geographic regions of the country."

ADOPTED, 47-0. (Motion: Theodore Leskes-William Gremley)

C. Concerning Membership Categories: Proposed by George Culberson et al, and Recommended to the membership by the Board of Directors.

- In Article IV, Section 1, Sentence 1, change two classes to three classes, and add after subsection (b) the following subsection:

"c. Student: Any person enrolled in a recognized college or university and working toward a degree with the intention of entering the field of intergroup relations."

- In Article V, Section 1, change "two classes" to "three classes", and insert as Section 4 (the present Section 4 becoming Section 5) the following:

"4. Each Student member shall be entitled to receive all regular informational services and to participate in conferences of the Association."

ADOPTED, 44-0. (Motion: Herman Long - John Hope)

D. Concerning election of Regional Chairmen: Proposed by Arnold Aronson

- Under Article VII, Section 1, delete the last sentence beginning "Further, the President shall appoint ..." and substitute the following:

"Furthermore, eight (8) Regional Chairmen shall be elected and shall serve ex officio if not otherwise members of the Board. Of the eight Regional Chairmen, one shall be from each of the following Regions: Northeast, Middle South, Southeast, North Central, South Central, Great Lakes, Southwest, and Northwest."

- Under Article VII, Section 2, after the first paragraph (a), add the following paragraph:

"b. The term of office of the eight elected Regional Chairmen shall be for three years, or until their successors are chosen, except that of the eight first elected after this paragraph takes effect, the three receiving the highest votes shall serve for three (3) years, the three receiving the next highest votes shall serve for two (2) years, and the remaining two for one (1) year. Vacancies shall be filled as in the case of members of the Board."

- Under Article IX, Section 1, subsection a, change "a slate of officers and directors" to " a slate of officers, directors, and Regional Chairmen..."; and add the following sentence:

"However, whenever the majority of members in good standing of one of the Regions has certified to the Nominating Committee that it has chosen its own nominee for Regional Chairman from that Region, said nominee shall automatically be included in the slate presented by the Nominating Committee."

Adoption was moved by Margaret Garrity, seconded by Irving Goldaber. Discussion followed, the major objection to the amendment being that the President would be in a better position than the membership to know which persons were suited to the specific duties of Regional Chairman. Some felt that the proposed three-year term was too long for this particular post.

Alexander Miller (seconded by Frank Fager) moved that this proposed amendment be referred to a committee - to be appointed by the President - which would reconsider the election process and report back at a future section of this Business Meeting.

Gregory Shinert requested a quorum call. There being fewer than 44 members in attendance (1/10 of the membership), the meeting adjourned until the next day.

THURSDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 20

The president, Arnold Aronson, presided.

I. (Unfinished Business: by-laws)

A quorum being present, Mr. Miller's motion was adopted without dissent, and Proposed Amendment D was referred to a committee for further consideration and a later report to the membership.

II. Report of the Nominating Committee

Alexander Miller reported for the Nominating Committee (those present at Pittsburgh meetings: William Gremley, chairman; Alexander Miller; Richard Marks; Jessamine Merrill; Louise Blackham; John Hope,II; Lillian Friedberg; John Yoshino; Joseph Robison; Clifford Rucker), offering the following slate of officers and directors:

President-Elect: FREDERICK B. ROUTH, Southern Regional Council
Vice-Presidents: GEORGE CULBERSON, Pittsburgh Commission on Human Relations
WILLIAM GREMLEY, Kansas City Commission on Human Relations
Secretary: JESSAMINE MERRILL, Trenton (N. J.) Council on Human Relations

THELMA BABBITT, American Friends Service Committee
HELEN BURKE, Denver Commission on Human Relations
DEAN G. EPLEY, Dept. of Human Relations, University of Miami (Fla.)
ELEANORE DUNGAN, Chicago Commission on Human Relations

It was announced that balloting would take place on the following morning.

III. Report of the Resolutions Committee

The chairman of the Resolutions Committee, Samuel Spiegler, presented the first draft of a proposed "Statement of Concerns." After considerable discussion, several sections of the draft were referred back to his Committee for rewording and resubmission to the membership on the following morning.

FRIDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 21

The president, Arnold Aronson, presided.

I. Proposed Amendment D

The Special Committee named to consider Proposed Amendment D (concerning election of Regional Chairmen) recommended that this be referred to the incoming Board of Directors for further study. Approved Without Dissent.

II. Conference Sites, 1959 and 1960

Joseph Monserrat, Migration Division, Commonwealth of Puerto Rico Labor Department, repeated the invitation from San Juan, already approved by the Board of Directors as the site of the 1959 Conference. He pledged the cooperation of his office in helping promote the attendance of those intergroup relations professionals who work with Puerto Ricans on the mainland; he also stressed the special rates that would be offered to those who sought to combine vacation with Conference attendance.

Helen Amerman, Council for Civic Unity, repeated San Francisco's bid for the 1960 Conference, pledging the cooperation of professionals in 15 Bay Area intergroup relations agencies. She emphasized the importance to NAIRO development on the West Coast of an Annual Conference there and expressed the hope that the membership would endorse the Board's recommendation for 1960 or, at least, 1961.

Motion (Frederick Routh - Corneff Taylor) Approval of the 1959 site (San Juan), and referral back to the Board of the decision on 1960 - with the recommendation that a more central city be chosen for that year, and San Francisco in 1961. Carried Without Dissent.

III. Report of the Resources and Planning Committee

Louis Radelet, chairman, discussed his Committee's deliberations on the financial and program development of NAIRO. Attention had been given to proposals in the areas of in-service education and professional exchange, training and recruitment of new professionals, research services, expanded information services, and consultation.

The Committee had given greatest attention to the possible development of consultation services, without prejudice as far as the other proposals were concerned. It was felt that continued exploration would be necessary and that the new Resources and Planning Committee should follow through on all of the proposals. Mr. Radelet expressed his appreciation of the efforts and energy of his Committee, and indicated that it had succeeded in defining the areas for further study, an important contribution to the final formulation of expanded program.

IV. Report of the Professional Standards Committee

Grace Marr, chairman, presented the report of her Committee in two parts: a general report and general recommendations, and a special report on the recent Functions,

Standards, and Qualifications questionnaire, with special recommendations. (Both of these documents were distributed to the membership at the Conference.) The reports and recommendations were accepted with appreciation, and were referred to the incoming Committee charged with further exploration of this area.

V. Report of the Membership Committee

Thelma Babbitt, chairman, reported her Committee's recommendations that: (1) a separate Department be established (or re-established) for researchers and academicians, and (2) a concentrated effort be made to recruit members from colleges and universities. Both were referred to the Board of Directors for implementation.

VI. Election of Officers and Directors

The Conference acted on the slate presented the previous day by the Nominating Committee. In each case, resolutions were offered and adopted (without dissent) closing nominations and instructing the Secretary to cast a unanimous ballot -- as follows:

Directors (6), three-year terms. (Martin Bickham - Frank Fager). Carried.
Director (1), unexpired term, one year. (Charles Livermore - Gregory Shinert). Carried.
Treasurer. (Charles Livermore - Lillian Friedberg). Carried.
Secretary. (Frank Fager - Abbott Rosen). Carried.
Vice-Presidents. (Gregory Shinert -- Charles Livermore). Carried.
President. (Frank Fager - Marshall Bragdon). Carried.
Nominating Committee. (Gregory Shinert - Charles Livermore). Carried.

In electing the Nominating Committee for 1959, several suggested that it would be more democratic if each Nominating Committee did not nominate its successors. The new Board of Directors was asked to consider a By-Laws revision (to be submitted to the membership for action in 1959) that would relieve the Nominating Committee of this charge, depending exclusively on floor nominations at each Annual Meeting.

VII. Report of the Resolutions Committee

Samuel Spiegler, chairman, reported on changes in wording arrived at by his Committee following the Thursday morning session. With minor changes, these were accepted and a final "Statement on Civil Rights" adopted by the membership. (Copies of the statement were circulated to the entire membership by mail.)

The meeting adjourned with a final expression of appreciation to the Pittsburgh Conference Committee for its work and imagination in arranging such a successful Conference.

Respectfully submitted.

Meeting, NAIRO Board of Directors, November 21-22, 1958, Pittsburgh

Present: Margaret Garrity, presiding; Virginia Coffey, Helen Amerman, William Gremley, Chester Gray, Arnold Aronson, Samuel Daniels, Lloyd Davis, Theodore Leskes, Frank Fager, Frederick Routh, Jessamine Merrill, Sidney Lawrence, George Culberson.
Others: Paul Klein, Louis Radelet, Galen Martin, John Lassoe.

I. Report of the Resources & Planning Committee (Louis Radelet, chairman)

NAIRO's future is in a state of "suspended ecstasy", awaiting further deliberation. Until and unless the Committee makes provision for a 2 or 3 day meeting (with careful advance preparation of and by its members), thinking on this subject will not move into concrete recommendations. And in the meantime, we need to solve the immediate problem of maintaining NAIRO's national office.

In its November 18-20 meetings, the Committee considered a Working Paper prepared by the Executive Secretary. (N.B. Distributed to all Board members as well.) Without prejudice to other ideas, attention was focused on the possible development of a Consultation Service through which NAIRO would offer professional advice to intergroup relations (and other) agencies, communities, business and industry, etc. Key professionals in the field would serve as the consultants - on a fee basis, NAIRO in turn collecting inclusive fees from the "clients" or, in instances of public service consultation, from foundation grants. Consensus in the Committee was that the idea was feasible but raised many questions: was it an appropriate function for NAIRO? was there a felt need for the service? could foundation support be obtained, even initially? how would the consultants be chosen? accredited? by what standards? (See attached Resources & Planning Committee minutes.)

Mr. Radelet added that he personally favored the principle of such a service, at least on a limited experimental basis during the coming year. However, in practice, he favored gradualism -- development of one step at a time, testing same through specific requests for aid. In terms of immediate revenue, he favored selection of New York City as the 1960 Conference site, in order to provide opportunity for a major fund-raising dinner.

Commenting on the consultation service idea, Mr. Aronson observed that NAIRO needed first to develop (a) criteria for evaluation and consultation and (b) criteria and means for accrediting the consultants. Without such standards for the service and its personnel, systematic consultation is impossible. Mr. Radelet noted that just such a conclusion had been reached by a Resources & Planning Committee sub-group (see Minutes), which felt that a consultation service should not be undertaken without prior standard-setting and accreditation, and that both required time and additional staff (perhaps the basis for a foundation appeal in itself).

Several expressed the belief that the service was an appropriate function for NAIRO, and Mr. Gremley noted that agencies (and professionals) were already being called upon to serve as consultants in specific instances. Their experience may provide a common core; perhaps the end result will be a regional responsibility for such consultation. Mr. Routh noted that other professional associations do provide this service on request but agreed that accreditation was basic to the plan.

(CONSENSUS) The Professional Standards Committee is charged with the responsibility of seeking the standards or criteria that will serve as a basis for accreditation of consultants (perhaps eventually of all professionals); the Resources & Planning Committee is directed to continue consideration of the consultation service idea, building - if it concurs - on the accreditation standards developed by the Professional Standards Committee.

Miss Garrity indicated her intention to reappoint all Past Presidents as members of the Resources and Planning Committee (together with present NAIRO Officers), in order to preserve its continuity. Responsibilities of this Committee and of Professional Standards will be spelled out carefully before they begin this year's deliberations.

II. Conference Sites: 1960 and 1961

Discussion centered around Mr. Radelet's suggestion of a major fund-raising dinner in conjunction with the 1960 Conference in New York City (if that site is approved). Noting that present NAIRO funds will be almost exhausted by Conference time in 1959, it was suggested that such a dinner might be planned - in New York - on the eve of the San Juan Conference (October, 1959). Consensus was that the problems of arranging such an event, especially without a corps of volunteers, made this impractical in 1959 when the Conference would be held elsewhere. It remains a possibility in 1960 if New York City is selected, although consideration of that site should not be contingent on a fund-raising dinner.

MOTION (Routh-Coffey) Selection of San Francisco as the Conference site in 1961, rather than 1960. Bids to be re-solicited for the 1960 meeting. CARRIED.

III. Membership Committee Report

Recommendations of the outgoing Membership Committee were referred to its incoming successor for consideration and implementation. That advocating establishment of a Department of Academic Services (for students and professors involved in intergroup relations research and study) was considered briefly in the light of another independent recommendation (from agency research personnel) that the Department of Research Services, abolished one year ago, be re-established. Helen Amerman and Dr. Don Hager, both past chairmen of the Research Services Department, were asked to consider both ideas and to present a recommendation to the Board.

IV. Finance Committee Report (George Culberson, chairman)

The Budget for 1959 was presented for Board action. Expenditures of $32,637 were anticipated, against receipts of $20,250. The anticipated deficit of $12,387 would have to be met with funds drawn from the Balance on Hand as of January 1, 1959 -- expected to total approximately $20,500. Mr. Culberson noted that anticipated receipts included: (1) a renewal grant from the Fund for the Republic of $5,000 for the calendar year 1959 (one-half of its present support; if not forthcoming, the deficit would total $17,387); (2) decreased income from Reporter sales, savings account interest, and 1959 Conference registrations; (3) increased income from membership dues, publications sales, and the proposed Directory; and (4) a more modest estimate of receipts from Special Funds Drive and Internship Pledges.

Among anticipated expenditures, Mr. Culberson noted salary increases (as of July 15) for the Executive Secretary and Office Secretary; increases in employee benefits brought about by Social Security and Blue Cross rate changes; increases in postage and telephone costs; increases to $150 apiece of the amount allocated to each Commission report; a Directory publication item of $1,600; and a decrease in the Executive Secretary's Severance Pay Reserve (it being the Finance Committee's understanding that this commitment - 5% of salary - was for the first two years only). Mr. Culberson also noted a decrease in the expenses of the Reporter, predicated on a reduction in the number of issues (10 to 6, annually).

Mr. Aronson expressed his belief that such program questions as the Reporter's future should be decided on their own merits, not as matters of budget economy. He also recommended a higher budget allocation for Commission reports (i.e. the JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS) to allow for printing rather than mimeographing, as at present. Mr. Culberson suggested that the Reporter allocation of $2,200 could be diverted to JOURNAL subsidization now or later, if the situation warranted.

MOTION (Aronson-Coffey) Increase Commission Reports item from $1,000 to $2,700. DEFEATED.

MOTION (Routh-Lawrence) Accept the 1959 Budget as presented. CARRIED.

In response to questions, Mr. Culberson commented that the DIRECTORY receipts item had been based on the assumption that free copies would not be provided for NAIRO members but that all would be sold. There was discussion without decision of single copy rates ($1, $1.50, $2) and of sliding scale bulk rates. Mr. Culberson also noted that there was no budget item for "contingencies" since the 1958 experience did not warrant same.

V. Student Membership Dues

MOTION (Lawrence-Routh) Set student dues at $5 per annum. CARRIED.

This membership shall be open to both full-time and part-time students but not to those already working in the field who are also pursuing part-time studies for advanced degrees.

VI. APPOINTMENTS AND ELECTIONS

Miss Garrity offered the following names as her appointments for 1959:

Resources and Planning	- William Karp, Bureau on Jewish Employment Problems, Chicago (Accepted)
Professional Standards	- George Schermer, Commission on Human Relations, Philadelphia (Accepted)
Resolutions	- Marshall Bragdon, Mayor's Friendly Relations Committee, Cincinnati
Interprofessional Relations	- Edward Olsen, NCCJ, Chicago
Finance	- Burton Gordin, Commission on Human Relations, Philadelphia. (This post is automatically filled by the Treasurer.) (Accepted)
Conference Arrangements	- Joseph Monserrat, Migration Division Department of Labor, Commonwealth of Puerto Rico (Accepted)

Publications (interim) - Arnold Aronson (Mr. Aronson was asked to chair this Committee until a decision had been reached on the publication of the JOURNAL) (Accepted)

Observer to the United Nations - Arnold Aronson (Accepted)

Department of Local Private Services - Elmer Brock, NCCJ, Wilmington, Delaware (Accepted)

Department of Federal Services - John McDermott, Federal Housing Administration (Accepted)

MOTION (Routh-Coffey) Approval of Committee chairmanship appointments. CARRIED

MOTION (Gremley-Merrill) Approval of Department chairmanship appointments. CARRIED

Following a discussion of possible names for remaining posts, Miss Garrity indicated that she would review the entire list for geographical and agency distribution before making the remainder of the 1959 appointments. Mr. Aronson observed that these would not in any case require Board approval and that Miss Garrity was free to name those that she deemed best for the job.

Commenting on his own experience as a Department chairman, Lloyd Davis noted the time wasted at the outset learning the mechanics, duties, and history of his Department; the problem of continuity in leadership and activity; the expenses involved in a Departmental newsletter; and the value of a local committee of Departmental members to advise on its activities.

The following were elected by the Board:

Executive Committee (in addition to the Officers): Lloyd Davis, John Feild, Arnold Aronson.

MOTION (Routh-Merrill) Close nominations and instruct the Secretary to cast a unanimous ballot. CARRIED.

Membership Committee Chairman: Samuel Daniels

Conference Program Chairman: Lloyd Davis

MOTION (Amerman-Merrill) Close nominations and instruct the Secretary to cast a unanimous ballot. CARRIED.

Selection of the membership of the Conference Program Committee (according to the By-Laws, a Board decision) was left to the discretion of the chairman in consultation with the President, subject to Board confirmation. Mr. Aronson suggested that the Board consider recommending a By-Laws revision to remove the stipulation that these members be named by the Board.

VII. NEXT BOARD MEETING

It was agreed that the Board of Directors would meet again on March 6 and 7, 1959. The only other Board meeting of the year would be in June at the time of the Internship Seminar. It was also agreed that at least one of these meetings would be in Chicago, the location of both to be announced when the site of the Internship Seminar is selected.

VIII. Professional Standards Committee

By consensus, the Board accepted the recommendation of the Professional Standards Committee establishing a separate Committee on Economic Security, charged with gathering and promulgating data on economic security of intergroup relations professionals (wage ranges, fringe benefits, pension plans, etc). It was decided that this committee would not concern itself with questions of hiring or firing, that it would not be a "vigilante group". The President will name a chairman.

IX. Legal Committee

By consensus, the Board established a Legal Committee to advise the association on legal matters. Theodore Leskes was appointed as chairman.

X. Local NAIRO Groups and Regional Chairmen

Discussion of the present make-up and activity of various local NAIRO groups (and other intergroup relations staff councils) underscored certain problems common to many; they need tightening in terms of scope and function, perhaps through a charter or constitution; they contain many non-members of NAIRO, who attend regularly without joining NAIRO -- and sometimes resent stress on NAIRO and its activities; there is some fear of professionalism; there is little contact with national NAIRO or with other local NAIRO groups; some feel that they receive few services from NAIRO.

There was agreement that the idea of having NAIRO Commissions develop questions for discussion by the local groups had not worked during the past year. It was also agreed that the role of Regional Chairmen vis-a-vis local NAIRO groups was still unclear. Mr. Culberson suggested that NAIRO was moving away from its original concept of local groups as a means of recruiting members and that a review of local group functions would be timely. The public agency and independent private agency professionals, both of whom lack the services of national affiliates, have a special need for a local NAIRO, as an aid in developing professional competence.

By consensus, the Board agreed that primary regional emphasis in 1959 should be on regional conferences and that these should be timed - probably in Spring - so as to feed ideas and concerns to the national meeting. Regional chairmen will be encouraged to use their regional promotion funds to aid these regional conferences. When NAIRO funds are so used, there should be no registration fee for NAIRO members. Conference topics should be drawn from (a) substantive questions developed by the Commissions, (b) general or organizational items suggested by the national office (emanating from the Committees or from the previous national meeting), and (c) special regional concerns. The Executive Secretary and the Regional Chairman should attend the conference in each region.

MOTION (Culberson-Leskes) To permit flexibility in the expenditure of funds allocated for regional promotion, the $800 budget item shall be treated as a whole -- the Treasurer (after consultation with the President and Executive Secretary) granting money to each Regional Chairman on the basis of need rather than on the basis of a fixed regional share. CARRIED.

By consensus, the Board also reaffirmed its understanding of the duties and responsibilities of the Regional Chairman, as follows: the Regional Chairman is the link between the local NAIRO groups and the Board of Directors; the groups' reports and the Board's decisions should flow through him. The Regional Chairman also recommends local membership representatives in his region but, once these have been approved by the Membership Committee, they shall relate directly to the Membership Chairman, not through the Regional Chairman. The responsibilities of the Regional Chairmen thus relate primarily to program, rather than to membership recruitment.

Miss Garrity expressed her intention of inviting Past Presidents to serve as consultants to various Departments and Committees, and suggested that they should also be utilized at the proposed regional conferences. As a further means of strengthening organizational ties, it was suggested that the Executive Secretary's midyear tour should include a visit with each Commission, Department, Committee, and Regional Chairman, to outline duties and help them develop program.

The meeting adjourned with an expression of appreciation to the Conference Committee for the arrangements made for the Board meeting and, again, for its splendid work in connection with the 1958 Conference.

OCTOBER - NOVEMBER, 1958

BY WAY OF INFORMATION

Ace quipster Bob Hope in Chicago to attend a testimonial dinner in his honor was relating his experience to some of the local intergroup folks. Stated Hope: "I haven't been so deeply honored since I was made an honorary slave by Governor Faubus." Bob thought that television as a medium could be useful in promoting better intergroup relations. "I go way back in television myself," Bob said, "I even remember the days when the performers got the money -- instead of the audience. My current status in television is somewhat doubtful. I started by doing an hour-and-a-half show. Then I was cut down to an hour, then a half hour. NBC must be warming me up for a station break!"

Levittown, New Jersey

When William Levitt boldly announced that Levittown, New Jersey, would be an all-white city, like Levittown, New York, and Levittown, Pennsylvania, he was not aware of the temper of the citizens of New Jersey. The people of good will of New Jersey immediately took a firm and determined stand against any such encroachment on human dignity in the state of New Jersey. The Trenton Council on Human Relations took the matter up with Governor Meyner, the State Division Against Discrimination and the Attorney General and assurances were given that the situation would be carefully studied with a view toward prosecution for violation of the state's anti-discrimination laws.

Champaign-Urbana

The Champaign-Urbana Council for Community Integration reports the following accomplishments during the first six months of 1958: In the area of employment--by following newspaper advertisements and employment service notices and by interviewing employers and others influential in the business life of the community, the Committee has uncovered a number of newly-opened job opportunities for Negroes. In April, the Committee arranged a visit to Champaign-Urbana by Jacob Seidenburgh, Executive Director of the President's Committee on Government Contracts. In the area of housing--the Committee reports a growing willingness to accept Negroes as tenants or as home buyers by private individuals. The Committee reports real progress with respect to housing over which the University of Illinois has some "say so." In the area of schools and servies--the Committee has worked with the school superintendent and school administrators in Champaign to further the integration of teachers throughout the school system. Thanks to the efforts of the Committee --most local services and accommodations are open to Negroes.

Knoxville

The Knoxville, Tennessee, Human Relations Council just completed an inventory of progress toward desegregation in their area and the results are most encouraging:

Education: Negro students have attended the University of Tennessee Graduate School and Law School since 1952. One Negro student has been pledged to a social-professional fraternity.

The student body of Knoxville College admitted its first white students in the fall of 1957. The faculty has been integrated since the beginning of the college.

Clinton High School at Clinton was desegregated in the fall of 1956. During the school year 1957-58 the desegregated status of the school was accepted in the school and community without incident.

Beginning in 1955, qualified Negro student practical nurses have been admitted to clinical training courses at St. Mary's Hospital.

Religion: The Knox Council of Church Women is desegregated.

The Immaculate Conception Catholic Church, the Holy Ghost Catholic Church, St. John Episcopal Church, First Lutheran Church, the Tennessee Valley Unitarian Church, and the First United Presbyterian Church have members from majority and minority groups. Some downtown "white" churches have Negro worshippers.

Groups and Associations: The professional associations of physicians, nurses, social workers, and lawyers are desegregated. The Knowville Academy of Medicine admitted its first Negro physician in 1955.

Public Accommodations: Knoxville Transit Lines began operations on a desegregated basis in April, 1956.

Seating at Knoxville Symphony concerts is unsegregated.

Knoxville's baseball club, "The Smokies," has had Negro players since 1956.

In July, 1955, Mayor George Dempster announced that there would be no discrimination at the University of Tennessee Hospital. The Sky Chief Restaurant at Municipal Airport was opened to Negroes in 1954.

Chilhowee, Tyson, and Cowan public parks were desegregated in 1956.

Employment: The Knoxville Police Department has hired Negro policemen for more than 50 years and the Fire Department has employed Negroes for more than 7 years.

The Tennessee Valley Authority has a policy of employing personnel without discrimination and has Negro workers with job titles of electrical engineer, statistician, duplicating machine operator, personnel clerk, and others in non-traditional jobs.

East Tennessee Tuberculosis Hospital, St. Mary Hospital, and the University Hospital employ Negro registered nurses and licensed practical nurses.

Claremore, Oklahoma

The National Congress of American Indians reports more than two hundred Indians, representing eighty-six tribes and from twenty states in the United States and Alaska were present at the 14th Annual Convention of the Congress at Claremore, Oklahoma, the birthplace of the beloved humorist and philosopher, Will Rogers, Cherokee. The entire membership of the new Commission on the Rights, Liberties, and Responsibilities of the American Indian (an independent Commission of the Fund for the Republic) attended sessions of the convention. The Executive Council voted to establish the National Congress of American Indians Fund which is designed to serve as the tax-exempt, non-legislative, educational and charitable trust. A delegation of the Congress recently returned from a trip to Puerto Rico to study "Operation Bootstrap," an over-all social and economic resources development program, which had its beginning in 1940 under the Roosevelt Administration. The trip was planned for the purpose of giving American Indians an opportunity to study what was understood to be a transformation of a whole group of people similar in many ways to American Indians; to learn something of the steps and methods by which the transformation was brought about, and to derive encouragement and inspiration to renew their efforts in behalf of American Indians.

Philadelphia

The Jewish Labor Committee (in the person of Steve Remsen) spent a full, long day in August at the Encampment for Citizenship. College age delegates from twenty-eight states and seven different countries spent six weeks learning to live, work, play, and study together.

Chicago

From the keynote address delivered by 78-year-old Reverend John LaFarge, S. J., to the concluding talk by Governor Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota, the first National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice showed a holy impatience with the nation's progress toward a just society. Before the 400 delegates and observers who assembled for the three-day meeting in Chicago Father LaFarge, founder of the Catholic Interracial Council movement, revealed his strong conviction that "many of the worst interracial situations that exist today would not have come to pass if reasonably prompt action had been exerted a couple of decades ago."

Robert Sargent Shriver, Jr., President of the Chicago CIC reminded delegates that:

> "A Catholic Interracial Council is not a council of one side against another; it is not a council for the advancement or protection of this people or that, but--to borrow the motto of one of our great foundations--it is a council for the advancement of man, for the advancement of man in his understanding of what it is to be a man--in himself and in others.
> "Charles Peguy, the great French author, in discussing the persecutions inflicted upon the Jewish people throughout the ages, penned these memorable words:
> > 'I know this people /the Jewish people/ well. On its skin it has no single spot which is not painful, where is not some old bruise, some old contusion, some silent woe, the meory of a silent woe, a scar, a wound, a laceration from Orient to Occident. . . .'
> "Let us dedicate ourselves to the binding up of those old wounds--whether they be on the backs of white men, Negroes, yellow men, or Jews. Let us erase the memory of those silent woes, those scars, those lacerations. Let us, with God's help and His Grace, create a new and larger 'Community of the Free', a new and even better 'Home for the Brave'."

Delegates from the following established CIC's participated in the historic Chicago meet:

Hartford	Boston	Raleigh, N. C.
New Haven	New York	Pittsburgh,
Wilmington	Brooklyn	Charlotte, N. C.
Washington, D. C.	Syracuse	Toledo
Indianapolis	New Rochelle	Milwaukee
Chicago	Buffalo	San Antonio
North Suburban (Ill.)	Davenport	Durham, N. C.
South Cook County (Ill.)	Twin Cities, Minn.	Richmond, Va.
Springfield	St. Louis	Detroit
Baltimore	Columbus	Providence, R. I.
Saginaw	Cincinnati

Un-official delegates participating from areas where councils are being organized included: Omaha, Denver, Seattle, Spokane, Portland (Oregon), San Diego, San Francisco.

In forwarding the moving message of congratulations sent by His Holiness, Pope Pius XII, Msgr. Angelo Dell'Acqua, Acting Papal Secretary of State, wrote that the "Holy Father again expressed warm commendation for the praiseworthy work of the Catholic Interracial Councils in the United States."

These words from the Holy Father, America magazine reported, were at once a seal of approval on the interracial council movement and a call to still more intensive effort. Delegates attending the conference not only supported strongly worded resolutions in favor of interracial justice in housing, employment, schools, and parochial and institutional life, but set up an interim committee to work out plans for some kind of "closer association" of the various councils. In tribute to the guidance given the movement by the late Samuel Cardinal Stritch, delegates pledge to bring into existence 50 new councils during the next year. NAIRO can be proud of its participation in the first National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice. On hand were such stalwarts as: Arnold Aronson, Margaret Garrity, Francis W. McPeek, Frederick B. Routh, John V. P. Lassoe, Dr. Charles M. Parrish, William H. Gremley, Helen Burke, Frances Levenson, John A. Sullivan, and Irene B. Miller.

New York

Families claiming to be victims of discrimination in seeking housing accommodations in New York City had in general higher than average education and income according to an analysis of complaints filed under the Fair Housing Practices Law by the Commission on Intergroup Relations. The report revealed that 70 verified complaints were received in the period from April 1 to June 30. Most of the complainants alleged discrimination based on either race or color; 4 alleged religious discrimination (Jewish); 2 because of national origin (1 Italian, the other Chinese); and 6 because of ancestry (all of Puerto Rican background). The Commission's report pointed out that there has been a tendency away from over-discrimination to various other devices. More significant, the Commission feels "is the growing evidence that many real estate operators -- including some of the leaders in the industry -- are now conducting their rental and sales practices in full conformity with the law or are taking steps to adjust their practices to comply with the principles of fair housing."

TALKING THE MATTER OVER

The National NAIRO Confab is just around the corner and the Department on Local Private Services is expected to plan and execute its own afternoon session November 19. Problem Number One - "What'll we talk about?"; Problem Number Two - "Who does the talking?"! Here are a few suggestions (you got any better ideas?):

* The Role of the NAACP in the Local Intergroup Relations Agency Efforts
* PROFESSIONALISM: Good or Bad? Luxury or Necessity?
* The Local Agency and Research
* Increasing Agency Effectiveness through Involvement of Lay Leadership
* Ethical Code for Intergroup Agency Officials
* Clarification of Basic Assumptions of Agencies in the Field of Intergroup Relations

We'll be waiting your reactions (if any) to the suggestions cited. NOW IS THE TIME TO SOUND OFF - IT'S LATER THAN YOU THINK - COME NOVEMBER AND IT'LL DEFINITELY BE TOO LATE!!

Into a world torn and divided has come a new ray of light--a new hope. NAIRO's Department of Local Public Services has published and distributed the first edition of its "poop sheet." Best wishes - good show ! (Formosa really doesn't seem so bad now!)

SOUNDING OFF

Last issue Charlie Livermore and Warren Lehman became reluctantly part of what may become an endless exchange of vituperations on "Professionalism." Faced, therefore, with the inevitable, SHOP TALK seizes upon this occasion to throw open its unique sounding board to David H. Scull, President, Turnkpike Press, Inc., Little River Turnpike, Ammandale, Virginia.

"We have recently had the experience of trying to fill the position of Executive Director of our Virginia Council on Human Relations. This has brought to our attention a problem which is, in one sense, the measure of the success of the intergroup relations profession. It is a fact that northern communities and those in the middle states have in recent years been developing so much in the way of public supported councils on human relations, etc., that the salary level for the profession as a whole has been markedly raised. However, in the South, where the need is most acute as far as deepest human relations problems are concerned, and where this activity must be entirely supported by private contributions, the general professional salary increase puts our area at an extreme disadvantage.

"I had commented on this in a recent letter to Mr. Lassoe but it was brought to mind by looking over a recent number of Shop Talk and seeing how much of the information comes from the northern areas. This is not in any way, of course, to discourage or minimize the activity done there and I am well aware, as so many Southerners are frequently fond of pointing out, that the need is still quite acute even in areas where on the surface nothing disturbing is happening. At the same time, it seems to me we need to keep in our minds the total picture and see whether as a profession we are working on it as well as we can.

"The only particular idea which came to me was that possibly some private foundation might be interested on an overall basis in a grant which would make up perhaps a 25% differential between the amounts raised locally and privately and the amount necessary to meet the overall professional salary levels which obtain.

"While I am not myself a professional, I am very much concerned about the future of the profession and therefore was interested in the comments in your last Shop Talk. I have not had the experience of eavesdropping on conference chit-chat but do read a good deal of the professional literature. I don't have anything on my desk at the moment to use as a basis for commentary, but I know that every now and again I run into something written in a kind of jargon which grates me the wrong way. I suspect I do not need to give examples for you to realize what I have in mind. I think that every periodical in this field ought to have an assistant anti-jargon editor armed with a particularly heavy pencil to delete everything which is said in a more difficult way than is required by the subject matter.

"This same tendency is found in other areas such as education and social work. It seems to me it is related to the problem of art vs. profession that Lehman and Livermore speak of. When you have an art or profession which deals with everyday people and their everyday reactions and feelings, there is a tendency when one wants to establish professional dignity and prestige to turn these into some kind of special language so that people will believe that the person speaking or writing has acquired some new insight which the audience would not feel if he used ordinary words. The important thing is the insight, and it seems to me that this has to be shown, not by obscuring language, but by the true depth of the perception.

"It may be that the debate of art vs. professionalism does not really lend light to the situation. What we are really after is an appreciation of the importance of the work and the contribution it can make to human happiness. When we look at a work of art, whether a painting or literature, we may well be impressed (if it is a great work of art) by the importance of the author and his work, and of the contribution he is making to human understanding and happiness. We do not have to stop to argue whether this is an art or profession, it doesn't matter. As a layman called upon to support professional activity in several organizations in this field, I am much more interested in an answer to the question, "What has this man done that is significant?", than I am to the question, "What particular training has he taken to qualify him for a job?".

"These are just a few random thoughts. It does reveal perhaps my concern that the point of view of lay directors, trustees, etc., needs to be kept fairly sharply in mind by members of NAIRO, particularly in the Department of Local Private Services."

Now turning our attention from David H. Scull, SHOP TALK is pleased to provide a forum for Mary G. Howard, Associate Director, National Conference of Christians and Jews, New Jersey Region:

"Two things that concern me greatly as a "professional" in this field are (1) inter-agency (and, if you will, interpersonal) rivalry, and (2) our inability to define our role(s) to the various communities with which and within which we operate. I suspect that these two items are greatly interrelated and that there are no real answers to this type of thing. I'm not sure how we could work this out in terms of a stimulating NAIRO program; but I, for one, would like to hear an informal panel conversation between people with whom we work, discussing their honest evaluations of us as professionals offering certain kinds of services to the community.

"Harry Ashmore has rather approriately dubbed us "those wistful human relations professional"; and, while I'm sure we appear anything but wistful when we shout our wares from the rooftops and proclaim our positions on everything from employment to religion, I suspect he has categorized us more aptly than we care to admit. Most of us appear to be forever caught between "being the guilty conscience of a nation" and trying to serve as experts in whatever our particular area of concern may be. Granted that both of these functions may be necssary, they make for rather difficult interpretetation to that wide portion of the community which appears to be most effectively resisting our services. It is hardly NAIRO's place to attempt to tell any of us who we are or what we are; but I feel quite strongly that NAIRO is the only logical medium presently available to help us do this as individual professionals and, where possible, as representatives of various agencies. If we can begin to do some honest self-evaluation, then I think our opportunities for real service where we are needed will be many times multiplied; and, I might add, our problems of rivalry will be greatly diminished.

"Perhaps I am overstating the case; but I find myself inclined to agree with the commentary that we suffer from inferiority--based most likely on the insecurities and frustrations that are attendant to our field. We tend, then, to overcompensate in attempting to be "all things to all men." Imagine with me, if you will, the comparative effects of two panel operations at a NAIRO Conference:

(1) "What I don't know about intergroup relations" an honest evaluation by a group of professionals.

(2) "What other professionals don't know about intergroup relations" the usual evaluation by a group of professionals.

"I suspect that most of us are much more prepared to cast our weight around on the second topic than on the first."

NAIRO members can be accused of many shortcomings but no one after reading the following bit can ever accuse them of not being opinionated.

"The undersigned, staff members of the Chicago Commission on Human Relations, have received your memorandum and questionnaire on qualifications for practice in the intergroup field. Each felt that the nature of the questionnaire limited the inquiry to a particular approach - an approach that seems unsatisfactory and unproductive to us. However, in our discussion of the questionnaire we are presenting for your consideration and with the hope that they might also be the subject of discussion at the NAIRO Convention this fall.

"1. The first reaction of each of us individually was that every point in the listing 'Values' could provide the starting point for an essay. In conversation we discovered that our essays would have gone in different directions because our interpretations of the statements differed. Further, some of the statements differed with the fundamental beliefs of people we know actively participating in the field. For example, a strict Calvinist could not accept a belief that progress is possible through 'shared human effort'. If he would concede the possibility of progress at all it would certainly not be through human effort.

"Our discussion concluded with the agreement that our field is a highly pragmatic one. It is not what or how one believes, but what one does, which is important. We could conceive of people beginning from widely differing philosophical positions acting in similar or equally effective ways upon the same practical problem. If this is so, there seems no necessity of attempting to set up a series of 'values', which only raise unending argument anyway, when those 'values' would not lead to valid judgments concerning an individual's effectiveness in our field. We fear that such a system of professional values is not only unuseful but that is a potential loyalty oath.

"2. Regarding personality traits, we felt that the traits listed were described in such a manner that almost no one would confess to their absence in himself. If that is so, the result would be that each person engaged in employment would hire according to what he himself is or thinks he is.

"3. That a possible alternative to a listing of personality traits and values would be the development of a code of ethical practice for the field of intergroup relations. Such codes have been developed by other major professional groups, but, to our knowledge, no other group sets up standards of personality and values as basis for admission or advancement. From observation of other professional fields such as social work and education we feel that the commonly accepted modes of professionalism need close scrutiny before our membership decides to trod the same paths. It seems to us that N. A. I. R. O. is rather uncritically trodding these paths already and that the questionnaire leads us one step further. For the sake of brevity we will not expand here upon our fears of the traditional modes of professionalism but would ask you to read the enclosed article from a N. A. I. R. O. publication.

"4. In lieu of a traditional professionalism, we feel that N. A. I. R. O. should investigate the possibility of performing for its members the services of a union in promoting job security, improved wages and working conditions. However, we do not feel that N. A. I. R. O.'s continued leadership in raising standards, not only through a code of ethics, but through the exchange of information relevant to the subject matter of intergroup relations.

"5. That N. A. I. R. O. should expand its apprenticeship program. This program allows the opportunity for operational judgement upon the skills possessed by an apprentice while he is learning the factual information necessary to an effective intergroup worker. Thus the person lacking in information but otherwise well equipped, and above all concerned, would not be excluded for want of some special training. Further, a person would not be rejected because of presumed absence of skills. Such rejection would depend upon the applicants actually having been tried in concrete situations.

Sincerely yours,

Warren W. Lehman, Human Relations Officer
John L. McKnight, Human Relations Officer
George L. Roberts, Human Relations Officer
Rachel R. Ridley, Human Relations Officer."

GROWING UP FOR CO-OPERATION OR CONFLICT

Editor's Note: The following excerpts are taken from an address given at the 10th Annual Meeting of the World Federation for Mental Health, in Copenhagen, by Otto Klineberg, Professor of Psychology at Columbia University, New York.

In the summer of 1948, when the World Federation for Mental Health was about to be born, a number of us spent a little time together outside of London to prepare a statement on mental health and world citizenship. We had a bold dream that if all of those concerned in one way or another with mental health would join forces, we might help to bring a little closer the kind of world in which people could really live together, in which co-operation would take the place of conflict and hostility would yield to understanding. If this issue was important then, the years that have elapsed have only added to that importance. There is no need to spell out in detail the urgency of the situation. No day goes by without a reminder of the serious problems which we all have to face. Co-operation to replace conflict has become all the more essential. All this is obvious. Not quite so obvious unfortunately, is what we can do about it.

I would suggest:

Can we do anything to bring the results of social science research to the attention of younger people, perhaps at what we would call high school age rather than when they get to college. Is it possible to rewrite some, at least, of the findings in this field so as to make them understandable and acceptable to younger people. Many organizations, for example UNESCO, have been concerned with this whole question of how to introduce social science teaching more effectively at the earlier ages?

Can international contact be increased, especially contact between equals and between people working to reach the same goals together?

Can we take better advantage of the mass media - newspapers, radio, television, cinema, to promote greater understanding?

Can we do something about the role of religion and of religious leadership? When we give attitude tests to children or students in various parts of the world (this is certainly true of the United States), we find that on the whole there is slightly less prejudice shown against Negroes, Jews, and other groups by those who do not go to church than by those who do. That is one side of the picture. On the other side, both in the United States and in South Africa, the groups that have stood out most strongly for friendliness, co-operation, elimination of prejudice and discrimination have been religious leaders. In many cases they have been able to bring many of their followers with them. Here, then, is a challenge, it seems to me. How can we explain the paradox that the leaders have so often taken a liberal and courageous position, and that those who attend church regularly have so often taken a narrow and bigoted position?

Can we come to a better understanding of the nature of the prejudiced and unprejudiced personality? What kinds of people develop into hostile, unfriendly persons; what kinds into those who will co-operate and work with others? What we need then, at one and the same time, is an understanding of what goes on in the individual and also an understanding of what goes on in the group. We need to change not only attitudes but also institutions.

Can we work in our community, in our schools, and through the mass media for increased confidence in the United Nations family?

As we look back over these past few years it is perhaps understandable that many of us feel some disappointment and disillusionment with what has been accomplished. We are rightly impatient. We see the world changing, but we do not always feel sure that it is changing in the right direction or at least that it is changing fast enough in the right direction. There is no place for an easy optimism, or for complacency on our part. Neither, however, in my opinion, is there any place for a feeling of defeatism or a conviction that nothing can be done. Perhaps the world is a little slow in beating a pathway to our door, but there are encouraging signs that it is not passing us by completely. What we need is, on the one hand sufficient worry and concern to keep on working and on the other hand sufficient optimism so that we may work with confidence.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

George Bernard Shaw once suggested that the golden rule should be amended somewhat to read: Do not do unto others what you would like others to do unto you--their tastes might be different.

Well, we've written, published, and are about to circulate our fourth edition of SHOP TALK. We hope this issue was provacative enough to get a few of you fighting mad, maybe in this way we'll pick up a few new slants on life. (You can't blame us for trying.) Here's hoping we see you at the Pittsburgh Conference!

Finally, for those who go about collecting "sick jokes". . .

The Supreme Court wants integration to go faster.
The Little Rock School Board wants integration to go slower.
It's really a RACE problem!!

A Review of Some Major Developments

The Year in Civil Rights

Dominating the intergroup relations picture throughout 1958 have been the sometimes dramatic, sometimes sordid, almost always depressing events in connection with the South's massive resistance to public school desegregation. The complexity and pace of developments make it impractical to attempt a recapitulation of those events in the space of this issue. While southern governors and legislatures continue to flout federal authority, and hoodlum elements take this as sanction for acts of violence, the very excesses seem to have evoked such revulsion as perhaps to have given some impetus to the efforts of decent people to reestablish respect for law and to reopen the closed public schools in Little Rock and in several Virginia communities. Future issues of NAIRO Reporter, it is hoped, will be able to report success in these efforts.

A hardening of the attitude of the federal administration on the integration issue during recent months contributes toward that hope. Not only has the President at last spoken up for equality of educational opportunity, but the Justice Department has intervened vigorously in litigations and has made the help of the FBI available in the investigation of recent bomb outrages and the apprehension of the alleged perpetrators. The Civil Rights Commission created by last year's Civil Rights Act, after losing nearly a year of its two-year life span to Senate obstructionism, administration apathy, and general foot-dragging, has initiated—or at least sought, against resistance by state and local officials, to initiate—investigations of interference with voting rights of Negroes.

On the federal legislative level, a move was made to enact a bill that would put the federal government affirmatively on the side of compliance with the U.S. Supreme Court desegregation rulings by making available various kinds of federal assistance, counsel, technical aid and other help to school districts that wish to desegregate their schools. The bill also contained provisions empowering the Attorney General to start civil actions for injunctions against interference with the equal rights of persons on account of race, color, religion or national origin. Such a section was removed from the 1957 Civil Rights Act before its enactment. The measure made small progress; an altered version is being readied for introduction in the new Congress.

In the states, few legislatures were in session during the year. Such civil rights developments as are worthy of reporting here took place, for the most part, in the courts.

Employment

No new laws barring discrimination in employment were enacted during the past year.

A court decision in New York State established the right of an aggrieved person to obtain judicial review of a decision adverse to him by the State Commission Against Discrimination. (As it happens, the adverse decision was confirmed by the court; the principle, however, is an important one.)

A ruling by the Attorney General of the State of Michigan, that the fair employment practices ordinances of four Michigan cities had been voided when Michigan in 1955 adopted a statewide FEPC law, ran counter to practice, supported by law in some cases, in several other states. (See NAIRO Reporter, Vol. IX, No. 1, October 1958.)

A step designed to strengthen and supplement the policy of non-discrimination of the executive branch of the federal government was taken in July, 1958 by the President's Committee on Government Employment Policy, when it urged the institution of training programs in the federal departments and agencies. The purpose of this proposed training program would be to provide key government personnel with a thorough grasp of all aspects of the policy of non-discrimination in order to make certain that they could most adequately insure its effectiveness.

Public Accommodations

In the South, efforts continued to evade U.S. Supreme Court rulings prohibiting segregation in recreational facilities operated by the state and its agencies. Mississippi passed a law authorizing the Governor to close any of the state parks when he believes such action to be in the best interest of the state or the county concerned.

Court Decisions

The federal courts in Florida and Louisiana applied the U.S. Supreme Court rulings barring discrimination in places of public accommodation under state control to a city-owned golf course in Miami, and to parks and recreational facilities in New Orleans. In the latter case the federal court declared unconstitutional Louisiana state laws and New Orleans municipal ordinances denying Negroes admission to certain parks and the recreational facilities of the city. The U.S. Supreme Court affirmed this decision.

Faced with the mandate to admit Negroes to municipal recreational facilities, some cities decided to sell those places rather than to make them available to all races. Such sales were upheld by the courts in at least two cases. One arose in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, where a federal court had issued an injunction requiring admission to the golf course without regard to race or color. Subsequently, Negroes in Ft. Lauderdale sought an injunction barring the city from selling its golf course to a private sports group. The state courts dismissed the suit, holding that the city had authority to dispose of the golf course, that the notice of the sale was sufficient and that the highest bid made was adequate consideration. The court held immaterial the fact that "some members of the [city] Commission may possibly have entertained a private individual thought that the sale of the golf course would avoid the problem of integrating it." Similarly, a federal court in North Carolina refused to issue an injunction against the city of Greensboro disposing of its swimming pool. The court argued that the municipality had no positive duty to operate a pool and disposal of it through a bona fide public sale was no unequal treatment or racial discrimination.

It has been held frequently by state and federal courts that a municipality could not divest itself of its duty to grant admission to public facilities without discrimination, by leasing them to private groups. However, six Negro citizens of Greensboro, North Carolina, were arrested and convicted for trespassing when they attempted to play on a municipally-owned golf course which had been leased to a private operator. This conviction was upheld, although a federal court had enjoined the city and the lessee of the golf course from denying admission solely on the basis of race or color.

Outside the South various cases arose under state laws prohibiting discrimination in places of public accommodation. A California court ruled that a retail shoe store is a place of public accommodation covered by the California civil rights law, although retail mercantile stores are not specifically listed in the statute as places of public accommodation. (See NAIRO Reporter, Vol. VIII, No. 9, June 1958.)

Also in California a Negro couple sought damages from six trailer parks in the San Diego area which had denied them accommodations. In a partial judgment by stipulation against four of the six defendants, damages in the total sum of $1,100 plus costs were recovered by the plaintiffs. In another San Diego case, a reducing parlor sued under the California civil rights law reached a settlement with two Negro complainants under which it agreed to pay them each $100.

A Michigan court granted an injunction barring a tavern from violating the Michigan civil rights law pending determination of an action to recover damages for failure to be served in the tavern. The court aligned itself with the highest courts in California and Pennsylvania, which had held that in civil rights cases injunctive relief can be granted where damages seem to be an inadequate remedy. (The Ohio Supreme Court takes the opposite view.)

Another injunction, this time permanent, was issued by a Pennsylvania court against a skating rink which had denied admission to Negroes on the ground that they were not "members" of the "club" operating the rink. The court found that the "membership" requirement was a subterfuge and the skating rink was a place of public amusement covered by the civil rights law.

In contrast to these cases involving complaints by Negroes, the issue in a District of Columbia case was whether a white woman could sue for damages against a restaurant for a violation of the District of Columbia civil rights ordinance. The court denied damages on the ground that the ordinance, being a criminal law, did not give rise to a civil action and that, apart from that, white persons were not included in the class of people sought to be protected by the ordinance.

Administrative Agencies

The state agencies charged in eight states with the enforcement of the ban on discrimination in places of public accommodation continued to receive and investigate complaints charging such discrimination. Some complaints were dismissed as unfounded. Those cases where investigation showed probable cause in most instances were settled by mediation and conciliation without the necessity of holding hearings and issuing cease and desist orders.

The first case to reach the hearing stage in the state of Washington arose in the case of a Tacoma tavern. The State Board Against Discrimination issued a cease and desist order barring further discrimination because of race. The order also required the tavern to post on its premises a placard stating that the establishment will deny service to no one because of race, creed or color, to keep a record for six months of any instances of refusal to serve any individual, and to pay the costs of the proceeding.

The director of the Colorado Anti-Discrimination Commission advised the University of Colorado that student rooming and boarding houses are places of public accommodation covered by the Colorado civil rights law. He noted with approval that the University refused to list rooming and boarding houses which are known to discriminate.

The New Jersey Division Against Discrimination, acting upon a complaint by eight Negroes, alleging that they had not been allowed to swim in a pool called a "private club," sought to subpoena records of the establishment to determine whether it actually was a private club. When the respondent brought a court action seeking to have the subpoena quashed, the court ruled that the Division had acted within its statutory powers and ordered the respondent to comply with the subpoena.

The New York State Commission Against Discrimination was faced with the question whether it has jurisdiction to handle a complaint against a Virginia resort allegedly discriminating against Jews, which maintained an office in the city of New York. In the course of the proceeding the hotel announced the closing of its New York office and moved that the Commission dismiss the complaint for lack of jurisdiction and as moot. The Commissioner charged with investi-

Housing

The major forward step in the housing discrimination battle in the past year was taken with the adoption by the City of New York of an ordinance directed against discrimination in the sale or rental of private housing. (See NAIRO Reporter, Vol. VIII, No. 5, February 1958.) This first piece of legislation forbidding discrimination in housing broadly, rather than in public and publicly assisted housing only, has resulted in movement toward adoption of similar ordinances in other communities and states. In Minnesota and Colorado, careful study of the possibility of state action against discrimination in private housing is under way.

Almost at the same time, the New York State Supreme Court, in an historic decision by Justice Samuel W. Eager, upheld the New York law banning racial and religious discrimination in publicly assisted housing. After an interval of several months during which it was assumed that the respondent in the case might be preparing an appeal to federal courts, the landlord capitulated completely, signing a stipulation that he would rent the first available apartment in his house to a qualified Negro tenant. (See NAIRO Reporter, Vol. VIII, No. 6, March 1958 and Vol. IX, No. 1, October 1958.)

Public Housing for All

Another court decision which was a major step forward in the fight against discrimination in housing was the ruling of the Superior Court of California on June 23, 1958 in the case of Ming vs. Horgan. This suit, which was sponsored by the NAACP, attacked the practice of real estate developers in the Sacramento area of refusing to sell houses to qualified Negro applicants even though the developments were in FHA and VA insured subdivisions. The court ruled that such real estate developers who advertised FHA or VA terms, conditions, financing and standards, may not refuse to sell houses to qualified Negro applicants. The court said that when the federal government entered into the field of housing to stimulate construction and make more and better houses available, it was prohibited by "the fundamental law" from differentiating between races. It said that this conclusion followed whether or not the statute establishing this program expressed such a limitation in so many words. It found that Congress must have intended the supply of housing for all citizens—not just Caucasians—and on an equal, not segregated basis. The court, therefore, granted the plaintiff the declaratory judgment he sought in this respect.

The other major developments in the area of housing discrimination involved Levittown, Pa., and Levittown, N.J. In Levittown, Pa., the Attorney General of the State of Pennsylvania, in order to put an end to riotous and violent efforts of a small number of Levittowners to drive from the community a Negro purchaser of a dwelling house brought an action to enjoin the troublemakers from demonstrating against or intimidating the Negro family or other residents of Levittown. The action was brought by Deputy Attorney General Lois G. Forer in behalf of the Attorney General, Thomas D. McBride. The Pennsylvania Court of Common Pleas granted a preliminary injunction restraining the named troublemakers from in any way harassing the residents of Levittown in an effort to interfere with the residence in Levittown of any Negro owner of property therein.

In Levittown, New Jersey, various state agencies are looking into ways and means of preventing the builder of that residential community from imposing a bar against Negro occupancy of homes therein.

Restrictive Covenant Issue

In Florida there was one adverse development. A real estate broker operating in Palm Beach sold some lots to a Jewish purchaser. The seller, after completing the sale, learned that the purchaser was Jewish and then charged the broker with disregard of his instructions not to sell to persons of the Jewish faith and sought to have the broker punished. The Florida Real Estate Commission, the agency responsible for licensing real estate brokers, investigated and brought the broker up on charges of failing to carry out his duty to his principal, the seller. The broker applied to the courts for an order estopping the Florida Real Estate Commission from proceeding further with the complaint on the ground that the United States Supreme Court restrictive covenant decisions prevented any state agency from punishing anyone who failed to comply with a racial or religious restriction. The Florida Supreme Court rejected this contention, ignoring the issue of religious discrimination and holding that a real estate broker must comply in good faith with the instructions of his principal. The Florida Real Estate Commission then completed its investigation and dismissed the charges against the broker on the ground that they had not been proved.

gating the complaint held that the Commission had jurisdiction in this case when the complaint was filed and that this jurisdiction continued despite the subsequent closing of the New York office. The Commissioner further refused to regard the matter as moot, but found probable cause to credit the charge of discrimination. He decided to close the case with the specific reservation that it could be reopened at any time upon evidence that the hotel has resumed its activities in the state of New York without complying with the New York law against discrimination.

A charge of religious discrimination brought to the New York State Commission Against Discrimination against the Lake Placid Club, an establishment in upstate New York, was dismissed for lack of probable cause. The Commissioner found that the respondent did discriminate against Jews, but was free to do so because as a private club it was not subject to the New York law against discrimination. A statement made by the Club during the proceeding, that it was private in nature and desired to continue this status unchanged, led the New York State Liquor Authority to require the Club to surrender its hotel liquor license and operate solely under a club license limiting the sale of liquor to members and guests. This ruling may affect the convention business of the Lake Placid Club, one of its chief sources of income. In addition, a number of organizations which used to hold conventions at the Lake Placid Club, including the New York State Conference of Mayors, decided to drop it as a meeting place for their conventions in view of its discriminatory policy.

Transportation

In 1956 the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that state laws requiring racial segregation in common carriers, including those operating exclusively within one state, are unconstitutional. In 1958 a federal court of Appeal applied this ruling to cases involving public transportation facilities in Miami and New Orleans.

On the other hand, a federal court in Memphis dismissed a suit against a state law requiring racial separation on the buses, holding that there was no actual controversy since plaintiff had not suffered irreparable damage necessary to justify issuance of an injunction.

Interfaith Relations

Certain seeming paradoxes in the area of interreligious relationships became increasingly evident during the past year.

Acceptance of the idea of difference in matters of faith and religious affiliation appeared quite general, marking perhaps a high point in the continuing movement toward true religious equality in our nation. Religious bigotry and prejudice seemed at an ebb point.

The prospect of Catholic candidates for the Vice Presidency in 1960 or for the Presidency in some not too distant election was widely discussed, without the rancor and villification that accompanied similar suggestions in previous times. The political campaign itself was relatively free from religious bias, notwithstanding some egregious examples of bigotry here and there.

Yet, at the same time, conflict among Catholic, Protestant and Jewish groups was at a crest. This conflict grew out of differences over a number of issues agitating the community—issues affecting the content of public school curricula and the conduct of public school instructional processes, issues over divorce, birth control, child adoption, compulsory Sabbath observance, the use of public facilities for religious purposes, and other matters. These differences, with roots deep in religious convictions and in derivative conceptions of social ethics (and colored by considerations—not always immediately discernible—of group interest) seem irreconcilable. The clash of viewpoints has engendered hostility and impaired amicable relationships.

Issues in Controversy

Illustrative instances may be cited by the dozens. Across the country, the Christmas season last year produced many protests by Jews against sectarian Christian observances of the holiday in the public schools; there will be similar protests this year. In Minnesota, a vigorous fight was waged against the incorporation of a cross in the official emblem and seal of the state's centenary observance. In New York, a legislative battle over a proposed "home rule" law to permit New York City to exempt seventh day Sabbath observers from the state's Sunday closing statute found Catholics opposed, Jews favoring and Protestants somewhat divided though predominantly opposed. Protestants and Jews (except for Orthodox elements), however, united almost completely in demanding that doctors in New York's municipal hospitals be allowed to give therapeutic birth control advice and to prescribe contraceptive devices, while Catholics were unitedly and immovably opposed.

School board elections and school budgets found communities sharply divided along religious lines over proposals for free transportation for parochial school pupils. In California, religious conflict over an initiative measure to withdraw tax exemption from parochial schools reached such a pitch that the Vatican was accused of influencing Catholic voters. The Catholic Bishop of Portland, Maine, forbade Catholic public high school students to attend baccalaureate services; the same issue was raised in many other places.

Despite the interfaith acrimony inevitably produced by such controversies, open expressions of religious bigotry were universally condemned and deplored. A series of bombings of synagogues and other Jewish institutions, accompanying similar depradations against integrated public schools, Negro homes, and other buildings, elicited shocked and outraged remonstrances by President Eisenhower and other public officials at all levels and by leading spokesmen of many Christian church groups. A concomitant increase in anti-Semitic agitation and in the dissemination of anti-Semitic literature prompted national legislators and executive officials to consider means of checking and countering the hate-mongers.

The "Dialogue"

What may prove the greatest contribution in many years to the modification of interreligious hostility stemming from differences among the faiths on public issues was made by the Fund for the Republic. Believing that conflicting views of sound public policy based on differing religious valuations and interpretations must contend freely in the public market place of democracy, where they can be resolved through the work of processes of democratic choice, the Fund sponsored a seminar in which outstanding religious spokesmen participated. The purpose was to stimulate the "dialogue," the frank exchange of opinions, the open clash of views out of which democratic decision must come. Implicit in the Fund's sponsorship of this seminar was its endorsement of a principle made explicit in a book by Leo Pfeffer, Creeds in Competition, published in the fall of 1958. The author calls for the continual pursuance of the "dialogue," with all parties adhering to a code of fair play that would bar villification, personal attacks, slurs, innuendoes, vituperation and other tactics irrelevant to a clarification of viewpoints, and that would eschew unfair use of power, patronage, economic sanctions and the like to force acceptance or rejection of a particular public practice or policy. Should interreligious debate over public issues be lifted to such a plane, the year 1958 may prove, indeed, to have witnessed the advent of a new era in interreligious relationships.

Dear Arnie:

Many thanks for your good letter of December 2, and for the many kind words about my participation at the NAIRO Conference.

I felt that the three highlights of the Conference were your Presidential address, Marion Wright's speech, and Dr. Scammon's presentation. I hope that the published procedings of the Conference will include these three in toto.

Maggie has tentatively asked me to head the Commission on Nature, Scope, and Theory. If this is confirmed, I would very much like to have you do an article for the Commission's edition of the Journal. I will be in touch with you about this later.

I hope that you have had your eye taken care of and that the operation was neither serious nor painful.

NAIRO has just completed one of its most significant and meaningful years, and the leadership you provided was instrumental to its success.

Best regards.

As ever,

Dear Fred:

It's taken me a week to recuperate from the hectic schedule in Pittsburgh, hence the delay in expressing my appreciation to you for all you did to make the conference the outstanding success that all reports deem it to have been.

Your presentation at the open luncheon session, your role in securing the participation of Marion Wright, your simple but moving tribute to Frank McPeek and Maurice Moss all contributed to the effectiveness of our program and I am truly grateful to you.

Your election as president for 1960 did much to restore my faith - so sorely battered in '52 and '56 - in the wisdom of the "peepul," for it demonstrated recognition by the membership of the leadership role you have consistently played in NAIRO's growth and development.

Many many thanks and warm regards.

Cordially,

Arnie

Civil Rights Legislation in 86th Congress at Stake

Rules Fights in Senate and House

Determined liberal contingents in both Senate and House will launch thoroughly prepared fights for changes in rules immediately upon opening of the 86th Congress when it convenes January 7. The fate of civil rights legislation in the new Congress will rest largely on their success.

IN THE SENATE

The rules of the Senate, for all practical purposes, allow debate on any proposal to continue as long as any Senator wants to speak. Debate can be closed only by voting "cloture" under Senate Rule 22. Under that rule, it takes the votes of two-thirds of the total membership of the Senate to put through a motion for cloture. (With the addition of Alaska, that number increases from 64 to 66.) Experience shows that it is virtually impossible to meet that requirement.

Normally, when the Senate wants to change its rules, it simply adopts a resolution by majority vote. But any resolution to amend Rule 22 is bound to run head on into a filibuster. This would bring into play a special provision in Rule 22 which provides that cloture cannot be used to clear the path for such an amending resolution or any other change in the Senate Rules. Thus, Rule 22 is safe against even a 64-vote majority. A small group of Senators can protect Rule 22 indefinitely against the usual amending procedure.

Where do these Senate Rules come from? The Constitution provides that "each House may determine the rules of its proceedings." In the House of Representatives, each new Congress elected every two years is a new body that adopts its own rules. This is accomplished, each time a new Congress convenes, by adopting a simple motion that the new House shall have the same, or slightly different, rules as its predecessors. Until that motion is adopted, the House has no rules of its own and must operate according to general rules of parliamentary procedure.

Continuing Body Theory

The situation in the Senate is different. Since only about one-third of the Senate is elected each two years, with the other two-thirds holding over, the theory has prevailed that the Senate is a "continuing body" that never needs to adopt new rules.

That theory was challenged in 1917 and again in 1953 and 1957. In 1957, the civil rights forces came within seven votes of curbing the filibuster, although the basic issue of the right of each Senate to adopt its own rules was evaded then as on previous challenges, the opinion was stated by Vice-President Nixon, as President of the Senate that:

"Any provision of Senate Rules adopted in a previous Congress which has the express or practical effect of denying the majority of the Senate in a new Congress the right to adopt the rules under which it desires to proceed is, in the opinion of the Chair, unconstitutional."

This opinion will be at issue again, in effect, when Congress meets in 1959. The issue will be presented simply in a motion to adopt a new set of rules. If a majority of the Senate agrees to do so, the "continuing body" theory will stand repudiated and a simple majority of the Senate will have the power to adopt a new rule to curb debate.

This means that there may be two key votes next month: first, on whether to adopt new rules and, second, on what the new rules should be. While it is possible that these two separate issues will ultimately be decided in a single vote on a "compromise proposal," what comes out ultimately will be shaped by the way the individual Senators line up on the two separate issues.

There is good evidence that the civil rights forces have the votes that they need to win on the first issue. The 1957 vote against adopting new rules was 55 to 38. All three of the non-voting Senators had expressed themselves as favoring new rules. Thus, the civil rights forces could count 41 supporters. Since then there have been changes, as a result of deaths, resignations and the 1958 election.

In order to succeed in the effort to adopt new rules when the new Congress convenes, 50 votes (or 49 votes plus the Vice President's vote to break a tie) will be needed. This means eight or nine more than the total of 41 who supported the move in 1957. Thirty-three Senators remain from that original 41. While it is not certain that they and the eight who replaced them will stand firm this time,

NAIRO Conference Proceedings

Proceedings of the Twelfth Annual NAIRO Conference — the largest and, by general agreement, the best in NAIRO's history—are being readied and will be available soon. They will include full texts of major papers and addresses and summaries of discussions and other functions. For information, please consult the Executive Secretary of NAIRO, Mr. John V. P. Lassoe, Jr., at 152 W. 42nd St., New York 36, N.Y.

there is, on the other hand, no reason to expect defections. Thus, at least eight or nine additional votes will have to be found. Possible sources are: the two new Alaska Senators, and the eight Democrats and one Republican replacing Republicans who were among the 55 Senators who were on the other side in 1957. It is possible also that some of the 44 of the original 55 who are still in the Senate may change their positions. Of these, 25 are Democrats all but three from the South, and 19 are Republicans.

Of course, efforts have been made to obtain commitments from the new Senators both before and since the election. It now appears that nearly all the new Senators (except the two southern Democrats) have committed themselves in favor of an effort to change the rules. This give the civil rights forces a slim but clear majority. And there is yet a chance that they may win over some of the members who voted against them in 1957.

Changes Expected

Apparently, this is now recognized on all sides. Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas has publicly said that some change in the rules will have to be made. So has Senator Everett Dirksen of Illinois, likely to be elected leader of the Senate Republicans, who voted against a rules change in 1957. Most significant, Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia, skillful leader of the southern Democrats, has conceded that some change is inevitable.

Russell can be expected to use all his powers to keep the change to a minimum. Johnson can be expected to use his position of leadership to try to win as many Senators as he can to a proposal that will be acceptable to the southern group.

The liberal bloc is calling for a proposal like that of Senate Resolution 17 which was approved by the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration in the 85th Congress but never came to a vote. This would provide for limitation of debate if, after 15 days' notice, a majority of the total membership of the Senate supported cloture. That would mean no less than two, and more likely four, weeks of debate on legislation before a majority of the total Senate could obtain cloture. To take care of emergencies, the proposal would also permit cloture, after only two days notice, by two-thirds of the Senators present and voting. Adoption of this proposal would be a clear victory for the civil rights forces.

The Southerners can be expected to offer a change from two-thirds of the total membership of the Senate to two-thirds of the Senators voting. This would be only a very slight gain, probably not enough to make it possible to get through a civil rights bill against a determined filibuster. But if this change is made after a vote firmly establishing the principle that the Senate has power to adopt new rules at the beginning of each new Congress by a simple majority vote, the civil rights forces will have made a start toward undermining the position of the southern bloc.

Deals and Maneuvers

Recognizing this, the Southerners are likely to offer a deal. They would go along with a change in the rules to cloture by two-thirds of the Senators voting, providing it is accompanied by a reaffirmation of the "continuing body" theory. To achieve this objective they must win over a significant number of the more than fifty votes now pledged to a change in the rules. If they do, the anti-filibuster forces will have suffered a serious defeat.

The genuineness of the commitment of individual Senators to civil rights—and to the rules change upon which effective civil rights legislation depends—will be measured by their refusal to be drawn into any "deal" or entrapped by any parliamentary maneuver to sidetrack the central issue.

IN THE HOUSE

As the opening day draws near, the liberal bloc in the House of Representatives is also beginning to stir. Proposals are being made to change the House Rules to curb the powers of the Rules Committee, long dominated by southern Democrats and conservative Republicans. Many civil rights and social welfare bills, although enjoying the support of a majority of the Representatives, have been kept from passage by the opposition of six Rules Committee members. A change in the present Rules can be made by a simple majority vote on the opening day.

Under present House Rules, bills approved by other committees must be cleared by the Rules Committee before they can be brought to the floor for action. A majority of the Rules Committee is required for such clearance.

Membership of the Rules Committee comprises eight Democrats and four Republicans. The chairman is Howard W. Smith of Virginia and ranking second to him is William M. Colmer of Mississippi. They will retain their posts in the new Congress. The four Republican appointees to the Rules Committee are expected to be staunch conservatives. (Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Henry J. Latham of New York, Republicans who occasionally voted with liberals in the committee in the last Congress are no longer in the House—Scott having been elected a Senator and Latham having retired.) In coalition, the Republicans and the two ranking Democrats on the committee can indefinitely prevent any bill from reaching the House for debate and action.

There are procedures for by-passing the Rules Committee, but they are cumbersome and have rarely been invoked successfully.

Proposals

Various proposals have been advanced for breaking the Rules Committee strangle hold. One is for revival, in a liberalized form, of the so-called twenty-one-day rule. This was adopted at the opening of the 81st Congress in January 1949 and repealed at the beginning of the 82nd Congress in 1951, after the liberal losses in the 1950 off-year election. It empowered the chairman of any committee to bring to the floor any bill previously approved by his committee after it had been before the Rules Committee without action for 21 days. It is now proposed that this rule be re-adopted, with a change authorizing a majority of committee members, rather than only the chairman, to bring bills to the floor if the Rules Committee fails to act on them within the three-week interval.

Another proposal is to make it easier to discharge a committee from further consideration of a measure pending before it. This, in effect, is a way of bringing bills to the floor by petition of a certain number of House members. It serves to offset the power of committee chairmen—not only of the Rules Committee—to control the flow of bills to the House floor. The agenda of committee meetings are determined by their chairmen, and any chairman can prevent action on any bill simply by keeping it off the agenda. Committee action to overcome a chairman's refusal to permit consideration of a measure is possible but enmeshed in complex procedures that are infrequently invoked and rarely successful.

Under present House rules, a constitutional majority — 218 members — must sign a discharge petition. Some liberal Congressmen are known to favor a down-

Housing Discrimination Conference

Theme of the annual conference of the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing, held in Philadelphia December 11 and 12, was "The Open Community—New Concepts for Metropolitan Areas."

Mayor Richardson Dilworth of Philadelphia, in welcoming the delegates, called on states to enact proper legislation to break the "white noose" which is strangling large cities.

Keynote speeches by Robert C. Weaver, Administrator, New York State Rent Commission, and William L. C. Wheaton, Director, Institute for Urban Studies, University of Pennsylvania, attacked the widely-held theory that the migration of nonwhites to most American cities automatically causes urban decay.

Dr. Wheaton told the delegates that the myth that whites will not buy homes in areas occupied by nonwhites has been demolished by recent Philadelphia studies.

Frank S. Horne, Executive Director, New York City Commission on Intergroup Relations, and Charles Abrams, Chairman, New York State Commission Against Discrimination, spoke on "Legislation—Its Role in Eliminating Discrimination in Housing."

Dr. Horne said New York City's experience has proved fair housing legislation is enforceable and can provide decent housing for people who would otherwise be relegated to the ghetto because of their race or religion.

Mr. Abrams called for administrative and executive action to bolster the courts in advancing civil rights. "If regulatory agencies had been functioning in the southern states in aid of the courts," he declared, "present chaos would have been avoided."

At a closing session, presided over by Maurice B. Fagan, Executive Director, Philadelphia Fellowship Commission, Alan Emlen, president of the Philadelphia Board of Realtors, stated he was in agreement with the principle of equal opportunity, but believed it could be attained only through educational processes. He opposed open occupancy legislation.

ward revision of this number to perhaps 150.

As this issue of NAIRO Reporter went to press a group of Congressmen were meeting in Washington to define objectives, concert strategy, and seek the cooperation of Democratic leadership in putting through reforms in House rules of procedure.

The impending struggle over majority rule in both the Senate and House overshadows all other civil rights issues in Congress at this time. The outcome will be known soon after Congress convenes. It will then be time to consider what civil rights legislation is likely to have a chance of enactment in the 86th Congress.

CIVIL RIGHTS COMMISSION: LIFE EXTENSION; CURRENT ALABAMA HEARINGS

President Eisenhower at a press conference early in December indicated he might be planning to recommend an extension of the life of the Civil Rights Commission. Under the 1957 Civil Rights Law that created it, the Commission will expire in September 1959.

The President coupled his comment on the continuance of the Commission beyond its present statutory life span with a denunciation of the resistance the Commission is encountering in the South as "reprehensible." His ire was directed at the Alabama voting registrars and state judges who refused to accept subpoenas from the Commission to surrender their records. The Commission is holding hearings in Montgomery into alleged denial to Negro citizens of their right to register and vote.

The allegations would appear to be well-founded. In Alabama's Macon County, 25,600 of the population of 30,500 are Negroes—yet only 1,110 of them have been registered as voters, compared with 3,000 whites. The white registration accounts for virtually all of the county's white residents of voting age who presumably have passed literacy tests. On the other hand, total Negro registration is estimated at less than half the number who have at least a high school education. Negro leaders have accused voting officials of various schemes, to hold down Negro registration, such as allowing only two Negroes in the registrar's office at once to copy long passages of the U.S. and state constitutions. The officials deny any racial discrimination and maintain that many Negroes have been rejected only because of "carelessness" in making out applications.

With the refusal of the county registrars to accept the subpoenas of the Civil Rights Commission and what looks suspiciously like the collusive action of county judges in impounding some of the sought-for records for local grand jury investigations (one, at least, initiated after the issuance of the Commission subpoena), a new battle between federal and state authority is shaping up. Undoubtedly this will mean another round of litigation leading to another Supreme Court decision.

Meanwhile a succession of Negro witnesses appeared before the Commission, piling up testimony as to means both subtle and open employed to prevent them from exercising their right to vote.

No Montgomery hotel, incidentally, would accommodate J. Ernest Wilkins, former Assistant Secretary of Labor, who is the only Negro member of the Civil Rights Commission. Therefore all the commissioners checked in at Maxwell Air Force Base, two miles from the city, for the duration of the hearings.

Dear Frankye:

Thank you for your letter of January 19 regarding Haskell Lazere's 1959 NAIRO dues. You raised the question about Haskell's owing 1958 dues and asked if you should re-enlist him as a member for 1959, canceling his 1958 indebtedness. What is the standard procedure used in handling other delinquent members?

I am returning the two bills. If the standard procedure is to charge delinquent members for dues in years past then one of these should be sent to him. If, on the other hand, standard procedure has been to reinstate delinquents as active members without charging them for past years, then you should simply reinstate him on the membership list for 1959.

Maggie Garrity and John have asked Haskell to be the Southeastern Regional Chairman, and he has accepted.

Best wishes.

Cordially,

Frederick B. Routh

19 January 1959

Dear Fred:

This is to acknowledge your letter to John and Mr. Lazere's check in the amount of $15 for payment of his NAIRO membership dues, 1959. Mr. Lazere owes NAIRO $15 for NAIRO membership dues in 1958. Would it be possible for us to receive a check for the 1958 dues or should I re-enlist him as a member for 1959, cancelling his 1958 indebtedness? I am enclosing a duplicate bill for him in this letter.

As you are probably aware, John is on his extended field trip at this time and will not be back to this office until February 9.

Thank you for the check and I will await further word from either you or Mr. Lazere before crediting his check.

Best wishes.

Sincerely,

Frankye

23 January 1959

Dear Fred:

Your letter of the 21st arrived today. In replying to your question concerning standard procedure in handling other delinquent members, I can only say that there has been no standard procedure.

In 1957, when the membership records arrived in the national office from Detroit, we found that there were some 210 members in NAIRO who were delinquent by two and three years. At that time, Mr. Marks listed the figure of 380 as members in NAIRO. You can readily see that if the policy of dropping members after two years' delinquency was executed, we would have had a membership of 170. We sent letters out to these people, requesting that they try to pay up. As a result, we received many responses in which members paid the two years; then we received requests from about ten people who wished to continue membership in NAIRO but who were unable to pay the entire two years' delinquency. Upon advice from the Finance Committee and others on the Board of Directors, these ten people were given the chance to resign and rejoin NAIRO under the new dues rate of $15.00 per year, which they did. The others who did not respond were dropped - some 190.

I am enclosing a letter which has recently been mailed to the two-year delinquent members which, to my way of thinking, explains this year's policy to delinquent members. I realize that Mr. Lazere has been asked to hold office as the Southeastern Regional Chairman, and that he has accepted. But, by the same token, Mr. Lazere received a statement of his NAIRO membership indebtedness in 1958, to which we received no reply; he was carried a full year and now that dues are collectable again, he owes NAIRO for two years, in order to be current.

However, in accordance with this letter, and without John's presence, the best that I can do is to credit him with payment of his 1958 dues. When John returns to the office, I shall explain the situation to him and abide by his decision. I certainly do not desire to be guilty of antagonizing any member, delinquent or not, as we now have a good working membership and we want to keep it that way. This year, we have only 50 people who are delinquent in their dues payment, and I feel that is a record with NAIRO. If we do not hear from these delinquent members, we will still have a working membership of over 400.

You know, Fred, I think this problem is a good point for discussion at the Board meeting as it arises every year and, according to the Finance Committee's calculations in 1957, the services to NAIRO members amounts to over $14 a year. By continuing this two-year delinquency policy, I feel that it is unfair to those who are currently paid-up members for they are the ones who have to bear the brunt of carrying the load.

Of course, you understand that what I have written you is strictly OFF-THE-RECORD as I do not want to create any ill-feelings concerning delinquent payment of dues. Nevertheless, there should be some clear-cut policy concerning same and as our future President and present Board member, maybe you could initiate a question around the policy of delinquent members.

It has been very hectic since John's departure for the Mid-west and West Coast cities. I certainly will be glad when he returns.

Thanks for replying to my letter. I certainly do hope that it will not be too long before this question of two-year delinquent members can be cleared.

Best wishes to you, Mr. Fleming and others on your staff.

Sincerely,

Frankye

N A I R O NEWSLETTER

DECEMBER, 1958 - JANUARY, 1959

EXTRA ! ! ! $ANTA CLAU$ VISITS NAIRO

Continuation of NAIRO's Internship Program has been virtually assured by an unexpected grant of over $15,000 -- received at the New York office on Christmas Eve from a businessman who chooses to remain anonymous. The gift, in the form of common stock, is to cover such administrative expenses as the Internship Seminar, the Executive Secretary's travel to training agencies, and part of NAIRO office overhead, during the program's third year (1959-1960).

Funds are now being sought by the Resources and Planning Committee (WILLIAM KARP, Bureau on Jewish Employment Problems, Chicago, chairman) to provide full or matching grants for the agencies that will actually train the interns during the twelve-month period. As in past years, agencies will also be encouraged to affiliate voluntarily with the program, paying trainees from their own funds but securing the special benefits of participation in a coordinated nationwise scheme.

Interested agencies will be invited at a later date to apply for any grants made available through NAIRO by sponsoring foundations. Agencies may, of course, contact other foundations on their own initiative, securing direct grants as several did in the program's early years.

BACKGROUND: In 1958-1959, fifteen interns are receiving training in fifteen agencies across the country. Three of the agencies received full $5,000 grants from single foundations; four received matching grants from each of two foundations (2 x $2,500, or $5,000); seven matched $2,500 grants with their own funds; and one voluntarily attached a trainee to the program (although it received no grant). The agencies were selected by the sponsoring foundations, not NAIRO; each agency then chose its own trainee. Further information? Contact John Lassoe.

MORE APPOINTMENTS AND ELECTIONS

NAIRO President MARGARET GARRITY (President's Committee on Government Contracts, Chicago) has announced appointment of the following chairmen, with others still to come:

* Commission on Housing and Family Life: HAROLD A. LETT (Division Against Discrimination, New Jersey State Department of Education, Newark)

* Commission on Nature, Scope & Theory: FREDERICK B. ROUTH (Southern Regional Council, Atlanta, Georgia)

* Commission on Interreligious Relations: LOUIS A. RADELET (NCCJ, New York City)

TIMELY WORDS AND WARNING

In his memorable Annual Banquet address at NAIRO's recent Conference, MARION A. WRIGHT (Vice-President, Southern Regional Council) warned of a well-financed, well-organized drive by Southern segregationist leaders to convert and subvert Northern public opinion to their point of view. This effort -- buttressed by countless pamphlets, paid newspaper ads, and itinerant speakers -- should not be taken lightly, he suggested; it will take many forms, some of them at least superficially persuasive: "They refer to it as education in states' rights, limitations of judicial power, and other euphonious terms. But what they mean is the preservation of a caste system in the South."

To point up his warning, Mr. Wright later passed along a recent newspaper column written by John Temple Graves. Under the heading, "South Should Seek More Understanding in North," it said (in part):

> "Suggestion here that the vast organization and power of Citizens Councils be put behind distribution of the Putnam letter has been taken up. 'We will be glad to send, with our compliments, a copy of the Putnam letter to anyone who requests it,' Secretary (Robert) Patterson (Association of Citizens Councils) advises. 'Of course, if they want it in quantity, we do permit them to pay for the quantity. As you may know, we have raised and spent over $250,000 in the past four years, and much of it has gone for literature which has been given away...' " (Editor's underscoring)

BACKGROUND: The "Putnam Letter" takes the form of an open letter to President Eisenhower from Carleton Putnam, Northern-born industrialist-quasi-historian. It is a persuasive but uncompromisingly racist defense of the Southern caste system, interwoven with most of the familiar arguments for non-interference.

On January 5, 1959, the Putnam Letter appeared - as a half-page advertisement - in the New York Times. This could almost be in answer to two other paragraphs from the John Temple Graves column:

> "Since Mr. Patterson will have no requests from the North, we would thank him most kindly for a small contribution - or large - to the Putnam Letter Fund for running it as an advertisement in Northern periodicals ....
> "Individual Putnam Letter contributions are ranging from two dollars to $500 thus far. If the Supreme Court's ruling for Alabama's placement law is the break, it may be this is the time to strike harder than ever for favorable national opinion. Nothing favors us more than this letter."

HERE AND THERE WITH OUR MEMBERS

JOHN G. FEILD has left his post as executive director of the Michigan FEPC to become Special Legislative Assistant to Michigan's junior Senator, Phillip Hart. Washington (D.C.) is John's new base of operations, although the family will remain in Detroit through the school year.

Mr. and Mrs. BURTON I. GORDIN (Commission on Human Relations, Philadelphia) are proud parents of a new human relation, their first son. Burt and Paula (Strobach) are one of three NAIRO husband-wife teams; in fact, since both belonged before they were married, they qualify as a NAIRO romance.

ABBOTT ROSEN (Midwest Regional Director, ADL) has received the 1958 Thomas Wright Award for distinguished professional achievement in intergroup relations. The trophy is given annually to a Chicago professional in memory of the first director of the Chicago Commission on Human Relations (and NAIRO's second president).

FRANK QUINN (American Friends Service Committee) has been named as the new executive director of the San Francisco Council for Civic Unity. Dr. HELEN AMERMAN, formerly the Council's assistant director, becomes associate director.

DAVID SAWYER (American Jewish Committee, Philadelphia) will become the first executive director of the Washington (D.C.) Council on Human Relations, a public agency established by the District's Commissioners.

ODDS AND ENDS

The American Federation of International Institutes and the Common Council for American Unity are merging their work early in 1959 (public announcement will be made on February 1). The new organization will be the American Council for Nationalities Service (20 West 40th Street, New York City 18).

GREGORY E. SHINERT (Missouri Commission on Human Rights) reports a meeting of Missouri intergroup relations professionals in Jefferson City on December 5th. Fourteen - most of them NAIRO members - came together from St. Louis and Kansas City for discussion of common civil rights and human relations problems at the professional level.

Nominations for the Lane Bryant Annual Awards for Volunteer Service to the Community will be accepted until March 15th. Each year, this New York store presents two separate Awards of $1,000 each, one to an individual and one to a group or organization. Nomination blanks may be obtained from Lane Bryant Annual Awards, 465 Fifth Avenue, New York 17, New York. (Incidentally, Bureau of Applied Social Research at Columbia University does the initial judging.)

NAIRO is among the (advisory) groups engaged in planning A Workshop on Group Work Practice in Intergroup Relations, to be held at the New York School of Social Work, January 26-30, 1959, under the sponsorship of the Group Work and Recreation Committee of the Community Council of Greater New York, and the New York School.

PERSONNEL REGISTRY MATTERS

The post of Field Representative, New York State Education Department (Albany) is still open. Originally circulated to the Registry (August) and listed in the REPORTER (October) at a salary of $6,732, it is now being offered at: "From $6,140 to $7,490 in five annual salary increases." Duties are to provide advisory and consultive services to local school officials in problems and programs dealing with intergroup tension and conflict. Applications (obtainable from N.Y. State Civil Service, Room 2301, 270 Broadway, New York 7, N.Y.) must be returned before February 13; there will be a written examination on March 14.

Thirty-five NAIRO members, plus this year's interns, are now listed with the Personnel Registry. For those who may not know, this service is open to any member, the names are revealed to nobody, there is no charge! Those listed simply receive a mimeographed announcement of each job officially posted with us; those interested and qualified then apply, if they wish.

YOUR PERIPATETIC EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

As this Newsletter is being mimeographed, John Lassoe is on a month's swing around the country, visiting NAIRO members and interns in ten cities: Chicago, Milwaukee,

Cincinnati, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland, and Erie (Pa.) ....

December took him to Philadelphia, Chicago, and Minneapolis-St. Paul. Chicago saw lengthy conversations with President MARGARET GARRITY, WILLIAM KARP, and LLOYD DAVIS (Catholic Interracial Council). Lassoe spoke at a CIC Board meeting, discussing NAIRO's activities and the trend toward professionalization in intergroup relations. (The "case" for professionalization was based on the analogy of an epidemic and a race riot; when either breaks out and the community sends for a specialist, it is vitally important that that specialist be a trained, qualified professional. This is no place for well-intentioned ignorance or inexperience.)

The visit to Minneapolis was highlighted by visits with NAIRO members ERNEST COOPER (St. Paul Urban League), LOUIS ERVIN (Minneapolis FEPC, and NAIRO's new North Central Regional Chairman), WILFRED LELAND and RICHARD FOX (Minnesota FEPC), DANIEL JACOBOWSKI (St. Paul FEPC), VIOLA MAY KANATZ (Regional NCCJ), CLIFFORD RUCKER (Governor's Human Rights Commission), SAMUEL SCHEINER (Minnesota Jewish Council), and MONROE SCHLACTUS (Regional ADL), as well as other local professionals.

Lassoe spoke there at a Dinner-Seminar of intergroup relations agency Board members and professionals, describing the development of the intergroup relations movement, the growth and philosophy of the agencies (with much credit to the thinking of Dr. ROBERT JOHNSON, NCCJ, on this subject), and the role of the Board member in interagency relations. At a subsequent meeting of the local professionals, an official Twin Cities NAIRO was born.

THE WRITTEN WORD

(1) Conference delegates received by mail a revised list of those attending the Pittsburgh meeting. (Copies of this list are available from the NAIRO office.)

(2) NAIRO members have received by mail their copies of the JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS: Volume I, No. 2: Housing and Family Life (report of the Commission headed by JOHN MC DERMOTT), and Volume I, No. 3: Nature, Scope & Theory (report of the Commission headed by Dr. S. JOSEPH FAUMAN, Eastern Michigan College, Ypsilanti). Additional copies may be purchased at $1.50 apiece from the NAIRO office, and they are both bargains at twice the price!!

(3) In the works and due late this month is JOURNAL Volume I, No. 4: Interreligious Relations (report of the Commission headed by ROY MC CORKEL, NCCJ). It will feature articles by ROBERT JOHNSON, ALBERT VORSPAN (Commission on Social Action of Reformed Judaism), the Rev. Albert S. Foley (Spring Hill College, Mobile, Alabama), and Dr. Will Campbell.

(4) Eventually if not sooner, the DIRECTORY OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS AGENCIES WITH PAID STAFF will be published! In the works for over a year, its release now becomes a certainty with the Board's decision to issue it as a NAIRO publication, rather than as a cooperative venture with other agencies. The copy represents a real labor of love by HELEN AMERMAN (Council for Civic Unity, San Francisco) and FRANCES COUSENS (Michigan FEPC), each responsible for an important stage in the compilation.

N A I R O NEWSLETTER (7)

ON THE MEMBERSHIP FRONT

NAIRO's membership -- since December 31, 1958 -- stands at an all-time high of 466. However (sob!), this figure may drop shortly when we are forced to weed out those who have not paid dues since 1957. NAIRO policy is to carry only members paid up for the current year (1959) or, at least, the year immediately preceding (1958). Some members will find bills tucked in with their Newsletter; R.S.V.P.

Anyway, we welcome the following new members:

Miss BELLE ALLEN, Administrative Assistant, Bureau on Jewish Employment Problems, Chicago
Mr. WILLIAM W. JACKSON, Bradfield Community Center, Lima, Ohio
Rev. J. METZ ROLLINS, Presbyterian Church, Nashville, Tennessee
Mr. HERBERT A. AURBACH, Research Analyst, Commission on Human Relations, Pittsburgh
Rev. JOHN H. MARION, Presbyterian Church, Richmond, Virginia
Rev. WILLIAM D. DEVINE, S.C.J., FEPC, East Chicago, Indiana
Mr. J. DENNIS CLARK, Commission on Human Relations, Philadelphia
Mr. ARTHUR J. EDMUNDS, Urban League, Flint, Michigan
Mr. HAROLD O. HATCHER, Executive Director, Association for Merit Employment, Indianapolis
Miss ANNA HOLDEN, Fisk University, Race Relations Department, Nashville, Tennessee
OSMA SPURLOCK, Commission on Human Rights, Indianapolis
Mr. WALTER J. DUCEY, Chicago Commission on Human Relations
Miss MARIAN HARGRAVE, Panel of Americans, New York City
Mr. EDWARD N. HODGES, III, Michigan FEPC, Detroit

A FEW MORE NEWS NOTES

One more 1958-1959 intern has been named, bringing to 14 the number now involved in this year's training program. He is Richard Shapiro, William Penn Center; he then celebrated by getting married the week before he began his internship, which is some sort of vote of confidence in the future of this profession of intergroup relations.

Those who attended the National Catholic Conference on Interracial Justice will be happy to hear that its Interim Committee is moving ahead with plans to aid new Catholic Interracial Councils and to help all CIC's establish working liaison. MATHEW AHMANN (CIC, Chicago) serves as Committee secretary.

MARION WRIGHT's speech at the NAIRO Conference is getting a big play. It will be reprinted in full in the NAIRO Conference Proceedings (due out this month) and in the February issue of the Crisis (NAACP). Excerpts will appear in the Interracial Review (Catholic Interracial Council, New York), and a national union is considering a 15,000-copy pamphlet edition of the full speech.

Office movement: Philadelphia-New Jersey Area office of the Jewish Labor Committee (STEPHEN REMSEN, Director) to 924 Walnut Street, Philadelphia 7; New York City Commission on Intergroup Relations (FRANK HORNE, IRVING GOLDABER, et al) to 80 Lafayette Street, New York 13; the New York office of the Migration Division, Puerto Rico Labor Department (JOSEPH MONSERRAT) to 322 West 45 Street, New York 36.

NAIRO has been accredited by the United Nations as a Non-Governmental Organization entitled to maintain an observer at UN Headquarters. (As noted on p. 2, ARNOLD ARONSON has been named to this post.) In addition to keeping tabs on UN developments on the human rights front - and these will be relayed to the NAIRO membership, ex-President ARONSON hopes to initiate contacts and lay the groundwork for an International Association of Intergroup Relations Officials.

Reminder! NAIRO voted to establish the category of Student Member, at annual dues of $5. Student members are those persons "enrolled in a recognized college or university and working toward a degree with the intention of entering the field of intergroup relations." (Editor's underscoring) They will receive all NAIRO publications and services but may not vote or hold office, are thus in the same category as Associate Members -- at a lower fee. PLEASE RECRUIT!!!

Statements of Support Heartening

Church Bodies on Desegregation

In the months immediately following the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling on public school desegregation in May 1954, there was a flood of statements by virtually all religious bodies in praise of the ruling. (See NAIRO Reporter, October 1954, and subsequent issues.) Dissent from these statements was expressed by some southern churches. Following the 1955 decrees of the Court for carrying out its ruling, the dissent within some church bodies grew more voluble and clamorous, seeking to overturn or revise the position of the parent organizations. In view of the intensity of this struggle within some of the churches, it is most heartening that the past few months have seen new and in many cases even stronger declarations of commitment by church groups to principles of racial equality and respect for law and order.

Such declarations have come from the President of the National Council of the Churches of Christ, from the Protestant Episcopal Bishops, the Roman Catholic Bishops, and the Methodist Bishops, and from a group of 312 ministers and rabbis of 16 different denominations in Atlanta, Georgia. These declarations have searingly laid bare the gap between profession and practice among many members of all faiths and have summoned men of good will and honest purpose to translate into the actuality of equal treatment their professed belief in the brotherhood of man.

STATEMENT OF 312 WHITE PROTESTANT AND JEWISH MINISTERS OF ATLANTA, GA.

One year after 80 Protestant ministers of Atlanta issued a "manifesto" asserting their support of the Supreme Court desegregation ruling, they were joined by others, this time including rabbis, to the number of 312, in a reaffirmation of that stand. Although no Roman Catholics were among them, the Most Rev. Francis E. Hyland, Bishop of the Atlanta Diocese, called their statement "a splendid and most timely document" and said he would have signed it had it incorporated "slight verbal changes in three points, required from the viewpoint either of Catholic doctrine or principles." Excerpts follow:

At all costs, freedom of speech must be preserved. . . . There are still forces which seek to deny freedom of thought and of expression to all who do not insist upon maintaining a rigid pattern of segregation. Economic reprisals, social ostracism, and even physical violence are constant threats to those who do not conform. . . .

We must obey the law. Those who insist that the decision of the Supreme Court on segregation in the public schools has no binding force do great injury to our people. . . . A policy of obeying only those laws or those rulings of the Court with which we agree leads inevitably to anarchy. . . .

We do not believe in the wisdom of massive integration and are sincerely opposed to the amalgamation of the races. We reaffirm our conviction that the integrity of each should be maintained on a basis of mutual esteem and free choice, rather than of force. There are some areas in which some integration in schools at this time would be possible without insurmountable difficulty, as has already been demonstrated in certain sections of the South; while there are other areas where such integration would involve needless hardship and grave danger. . . .

The Public School System must be preserved. . . . The choice which confronts us now is either the end of an enforced segregation in public schools or no public schools whatever. . . . It is inconceivable that the South should deliberately destroy its dearly bought system of public education. The results of such action in the impoverishment of countless lives, in the loss to our section, even from a purely economic viewpoint, would be a tragedy of the first magnitude. . . .

In this connection we . . . protest against any suggestion that church property be used as a means of circumventing the law of the nation. . . . We concur that churches and synagogues have the right, as they have always had, to engage as they may deem wise in educational enterprise in the interest of their constituencies. We

Congregationalist Plan for Financial Aid

The Congregational Christian Churches —alone, so far as NAIRO Reporter knows, among the church bodies—has buttressed exhortation to practice racial integration with the reassuring proffer of financial aid. Having found, as the result of a study of its urban churches, that only 12 per cent have accepted Negro members and only 49 per cent show a willingness to accept them, the Congregationalist Board of Home Missions voted to finance a campaign to bring about realization of the denomination's objective of "a non-segregated church in a non-segregated society." To this end, it has undertaken to make grants of money to any congregation that finds itself in straitened financial condition as a result of the acceptance of minority group congregants.

The denomination plans also, according to a recent announcement by the Rev. Truman B. Douglass, executive vice president of its Board of Home Missions, to support efforts to place associate pastors of a different race in churches in changing communities and to help such men give the churches an interracial status.

Furthermore, it plans to give financial aid to white conferences in the South that employ Negro staff to help coordinate activities with Negro conferences in the same areas, believing that this may prove a first step toward integration of the churches.

STATEMENT OF CATHOLIC BISHOPS OF THE UNITED STATES

The following are excerpts from the Bishops' statement, titled "Discrimination and the Christian Conscience."

Fifteen years ago . . . the Catholic Bishops of the United States . . . called for the extension of full freedom within the confines of our beloved country. . . . The statement of 1943 said in part:

In the Providence of God there are among us millions of fellow citizens of the Negro race. We owe to these fellow citizens, who have contributed so largely to the development of our country, and for whose welfare history imposes on us a special obligation of justice, to see that they have in fact the rights which are given them in our Constitution. This means not only political equality, but also fair economic and educational opportunities, a just share in public welfare projects, good housing without exploitation, and a full chance for the social advancement of their race.

In the intervening years . . . the Negro race . . . continued its quiet but determined march toward the goal of equal rights and equal opportunity . . . the barriers of prejudice and discrimination were slowly but inevitably eroded. . . .

Unfortunately, however, . . . in recent years the . . . march toward justice and equality has been slowed if not halted in some areas. The transcendent moral issues involved have become obscured, and possibly forgotten.

Our nation now stands divided by the problem of compulsory segregation of the races and the opposing demand for racial justice. No region of our land is immune from strife and division resulting from this problem. . . .

The heart of the race question is moral and religious. It concerns the rights of man and our attitude toward our fellow man. . . .

Our Christian faith is of its nature universal. It knows not the distinctions of race, color, or nationhood. . . .

Every man has an equal right to live, to justice before the law, to marry and rear a family under human conditions, and to an equitable opportunity to use the goods of this earth for his needs and those of his family.

From these solemn truths, there follow certain conclusions vital for a proper approach to the problems that trouble us today. First, we must repeat the principle—embodied in our Declaration of Independence—that all men are equal in the sight of God . . . discrimination based on the accidental fact of race or color, and as such injurious to human rights regardless of personal qualities or achievements, cannot be reconciled with the truth that God has created all men with equal rights and equal dignity.

Secondly, we are bound to love our fellow man. Christian love . . . is a firm purpose to do good to all men, to the extent that ability and opportunity permit. . . .

It is unreasonable and injurious to the rights of others that a factor such as race, by and of itself, should be made a cause of discrimination and a basis for unequal treatment in our mutual relations.

. . . Can enforced segregation be reconciled with the Christian view of our fellow man? In our judgment it cannot, and this for two fundamental reasons.

1) Legal segregation, or any form of compulsory segregation, in itself and by its very nature imposes a stigma of inferiority upon the segregated people. Even if the now obsolete Court doctrine of "separate but equal" had been carried out to the fullest extent, so that all public and semi-public facilities were in fact equal, there is nonetheless the judgment that an entire race, by the sole fact of race and regardless of individual qualities, is not fit to associate on equal terms with members of another race. We cannot reconcile such a judgment with the Christian view of man's nature and rights. . . .

2) It is a matter of historical fact that segregation in our country has led to oppressive conditions and the denial of basic human rights for the Negro. This is evident in the fundamental fields of education, job opportunity, and housing. Flowing from these areas of neglect and discrimination are problems of health and the sordid train of evils so often associated with the consequent slum conditions. . . .

Negro citizens . . . wish an education that does not carry with it any stigma of inferiority. They wish economic advancement based on merit and skill. They wish their civil rights as American citizens. They wish acceptance based upon proved ability and achievement. No one who truly loves God's children will deny them this opportunity.

To work for this principle amid passions and misunderstandings will not be easy. It will take courage. But quiet and persevering courage has always been the mark of a true follower of Christ.

We urge that concrete plans in this field be based on prudence. Prudence may be called a virtue that inclines us to view problems in their proper perspective. It aids us to use the proper means to secure our aim. . . .

It is a sign of wisdom, rather than weakness, to study carefully the problems we face, to prepare for advances, and to bypass the non-essential if it interferes with essential progress. We may well deplore a gradualism that is merely a cloak for inaction. But we equally deplore rash impetuosity that would sacrifice the achievements of decades in ill-timed and ill-considered ventures. . . .

For this reason we hope and earnestly pray that responsible and sober-minded Americans of all religious faiths, in all areas of our land, will seize the mantle of leadership from the agitator and the racist. It is vital that we act now and act decisively. All must act quietly, courageously, and prayerfully before it is too late. . . .

believe, however, their facilities should not be offered nor demanded as a means for defying the constituted authority of our national government. . . .

All hatred between races and groups within society carries with it the constant threat of violence and bloodshed. . . . Defiance of one law leads to disrespect for all law. We would call upon our political leaders scrupulously to avoid the type of inflammatory utterance which has characterized too many public pronouncements in recent months. . . . We believe that multitudes of voters in the South as in all America are far more prepared to respond to and support fair-minded and statesmanlike attitudes and policies in political life than these men have realized. . . .

Communication between responsible leaders of the races must be maintained. . . . Never has there been greater need than now for men of good will in both races to voice their convictions, to exert their influence, and to maintain open lines of communication. We are heartened by the intelligent concern and struggle of an increasing number of groups who are facing the issue and its implications. We are likewise heartened by the constructive results which are coming from those lines of communication which do exist between the races. . . .

We appeal to our community and state leaders to give their most creative thought to maintaining a sound public school plan. Such plan must be consistent with the law of the land, respect and preserve the rights of all citizens, and assure the preservation of our system of public education. . . .

PASTORAL LETTER FROM PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL BISHOPS

Pursuant to church policy, the pastoral letter from which the following excerpts were taken was read from the pulpit of every Protestant Episcopal church in the United States.

. . . In our world's travail toward unity . . . there is nothing that can take the place of . . . face to face meeting. . . . It is tragically easy to treat other people as "things" and without personal acquaintance to forget that all mankind desires, needs, hopes, and fears the same things. . . .

Because real meeting elevates the soul and purifies the mind, we ask you, as Christian people, amid all the tensions and divisions of our world, to meet and know and listen to your brethren of other races and groups . . . our own Episcopal Church has within its fellowship rich and poor, white and Negro, Orientals, Indians, and Latin Americans. Meet and know your brethren in Christ. . . .

In Christian thought government is a structure appointed by God for the common good. Its function and responsibility is to care for the outer order and framework of our common life. We, all, need to be protected. We need the orderly and impartial administration of justice for the protection of our property, our safety, and our hard-won rights.

. . . The law . . . makes civilized life possible, and enables us to live together in peace. It restrains our selfishness and wildness, and, while it cannot change our hearts, it does provide the indispensable outer framework of our unity.

The people of this land do not need to be reminded at this moment of the evils of tyranny, but we do need to be reminded now of the evils of anarchy. Anarchy, the absence of law and order, is a greater evil than tyranny, and leads to tyranny. . . .

We must remember that the majority of mankind belong to the colored races, and that the American racial problem is discussed the world over. . . . If America continues to lose friends as others become convinced that we do not mean what we say about justice and equality, the reason will be obvious. The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether. These judgments are the plain cost we pay in God's universe for not practicing what we preach, and for not being ready to grant to others the opportunity and equality we cherish for ourselves.

. . . There is only one way for free men to overcome conflict, and that is by talking together in reasonable self-control, and thus finding a third way which will lead to peace. Christians who believe in the God who is the source of all truth ought to be the first ones to claim this privilege of reason!

Therefore, we ask everyone in this nation . . . to recognize "the stubborn depths of the problem, the passionate fears and resentments that divide men." We ask everyone to recognize that reason and not emotion will unite our torn communities, that discussion must be carried on by all without any note of superiority or servility, and that when we confront one another, we are to do so in a brotherly fashion. . . .

In our world, as St. Paul wrote, two spirits contend one with another for the hearts of men. The first spirit is the self-centered spirit of man leading inevitably to hatred and division. The cries of "my class," "my race," "my clan" rend the world community. This is the spirit of the world; the spirit of pride, exclusiveness, and separation. . . .

The other Spirit, ever guiding the Church . . . is the Spirit of God drawing men together. It is the Holy Spirit who leads us to love our brethren, who humbles our spirit as they are convicted of sin, who leads us to a unity not of our making. This Spirit raises us above self to see God's will and plan for all men. It is the Spirit of humility, of inclusiveness, and of love ever warring against our hard hearts. In our work of reconciliation we must never think of ourselves as alone, but always as guided and sustained by Christ Himself present and working in our midst. . . .

. . . We have spoken about five great truths that can help us to see and do God's will wherever we may be: The creative meeting of souls, the sacredness of law, God's judgment on our divisions, the light of reason, and the membership we share together in the Church guided by the Spirit.

We said at the beginning that we were not attempting to tell anybody what to do in his specific situation. Provided they have a true perspective, we believe that God's children are quite able to make the necessary, creative decisions which are part of our reconciling tasks. If we suffer in that endeavor, count it always a privilege to suffer for God and His truth. Care for your souls, brethren, amid the passions and prejudices of our day, and remember that truth alone is strong.

METHODIST BISHOPS RESOLUTION

The following was adopted by the Methodist Bishops, meeting at Cincinnati, on November 13, 1958:

We reaffirm our support of the Supreme Court in the decisions relative to segregation in the public school system, and earnestly urge all our people to accept the rulings of the courts in good faith. We seek with the guidance of the Holy Spirit to create that kind of social climate which will work toward the elimination of friction between any and all racial groups and ultimately achieve the realization of Christian brotherhood in all community relationships—North and South and everywhere in the world. We heartily commend those lay people, pastors and Bishops who demonstrated Christian courage in critical areas. In these days of extreme tensions we commend our people who, while not always sharing the same attitudes on integration, are determined to demonstrate in their own lives the qualities of understanding, tolerance and brotherhood.

We are disturbed by a growing disregard of law evidenced by the bombing of synagogues, churches, schools and even private dwellings. We would remind our people that equal justice can be had only under law. To obey the law only when it suits us is to invite others to do likewise and that ultimately leads to anarchy. We, therefore, call upon our people to treat obedience to and respect for law as a Christian moral obligation, and to see to it that, if and when any law needs to be revised, strengthened or eliminated, it can be done not by resort to force or violence but by legally established legislative procedure.

The Board of Realtors of Providence, Rhode Island, probably created a precedent in endorsing a proposed state law to ban racial discrimination in private housing.

New Pittsburgh City Ordinance Against Private Housing Bias

Pittsburgh adopted a far-reaching ordinance banning discrimination in private housing on December 6, 1958. The new law goes into effect June 1, 1959. Based on New York City's pioneer ordinance, Pittsburgh's is broader in coverage.

Whereas the New York City ordinance applies only to owners of real property, the Pittsburgh ordinance specifically covers real estate agents or lending institutions also. Furthermore, the New York ordinance does not apply to owners of one- or two-family houses unless those houses are part of a development of at least ten contiguous units. In contrast, the Pittsburgh ordinance binds any owner who controls five or more housing units, regardless of whether or not those housing units are contiguous. Hence, a person owning two two-family houses and one one-family house in different parts of Pittsburgh is subject to the ordinance. New York's coverage is broader only as regards apartment houses. Under the New York ordinance any multiple dwelling, which is defined as a house with at least three units, is subject to the prohibition of discrimination. In Pittsburgh, an owner of an apartment house who owns no other real property is bound by the local measure only if the house has at least five units.

However, the applicability of the Pittsburgh ordinance to real esate brokers, salesmen, agents and lending institutions provides an impediment to discrimination, regardless of the number of units controlled by the owner. Administration of the Pittsburgh ordinance is in the hands of the Pittsburgh Commission on Human Relations. Procedures are similar to those in employment discrimination cases and are less cumbersome than those prescribed in New York. Orders issued by the Commission after public hearings are enforceable, failure to comply being punishable by fines of up to $100 or up to 30 days imprisonment. The New York statute contains no such criminal provisions.

. . . and what will poor Jim Crow do then?

According to no less an authority than Dr. Morris Fishbein, former editor of the technical publications of the American Medical Association, science may some day learn how to control skin color. Dr. Fishbein told the Missouri Academy of General Practice at St. Louis that as the medics learn more about the functioning of the endocrine glands they may be able to modify skin pigmentation quite extensively.

Bits and Pieces

Fourteen Negro colleges have been admitted to full accredited membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Formerly, Negro colleges meeting the standards of the Association were placed on an "approved" list, but were accorded no voting rights and lacked other privileges of membership.

The Pennsylvania Commission on Constitutional Revision turned down a proposed constitutional amendment that would guarantee "equal protection of the law" and "no discrimination in civil or political rights based on race, color, creed or religion" after the sponsor of the proposal, former State Chief Justice Horace Stern, in what can only be regarded as a model of passionate advocacy, called it "a tactful assertion that would please the people, particularly the minority groups." He added: "It is a good thing to put in. We want the support of as many people as possible in order to gain acceptance generally of our proposed constitutional changes. This basically doesn't provide anything that everybody doesn't have, but it adds emphasis."

The Legal Counsel of the State University of New York ruled recently that a state-supported college may not furnish office space for religious counselors in the college buildings, but that such a college may "assign available facilities for the use of students for personal consultations which may include those in which they seek religious guidance." The Counsel based his ruling on federal and state court rulings in various relevant cases.

Negro Police Chief

Payton L. Flournoy, 36-year-old Negro Marine Corps veteran has been named chief of the Palmyra, N.J. police force. The Palmyra Borough Council, in electing Chief Flournoy, named the first Negro to such a post in Burlington County. A member of the force, Mr. Flournoy had been acting chief since the death last August of the former police head.

Exam Date Extended

The New York State Commission Against Discrimination has extended to March 20, the deadline for applications for the post of Director of Research, announced in last month's Reporter. Applications and inquiries may be addressed to Dept. of Civil Service, Room 2301, 270 Broadway, New York City 7.

From: Frances R. Cousens

Subject: Proposal submitted to NAIRO Executive Board

Date: February 6, 1959

While John Lassoe was in Detroit this week I spoke with him about our proposal to the NAIRO Board that the Department of Research Services be reactivated.

He informed me that at the last Board meeting, following the Conference in Pittsburgh, there was discussion on this point. The reason for discontinuing the Department of Research Services was the consensus of Board members that the research function does not properly belong in a department because it is not analagous with the type of jurisdiction of the other departments which are organized on the basis of type of agency, e.g., state public, local private, etc. Since research cuts across such lines of demarcation, it more properly belongs in a committee just as does membership, professional standards, and the like.

Personally, I cannot see that there is any significant difference in status or prestige between a committee and a department since activities of NAIRO are categorized within the organizational structure on the basis of function, but I wanted to share this information with you because our discussion in Pittsburgh was addressed to the goal of a department.

I do not anticipate that any member of our group will feel too strongly about this distinction, but if any of you do want to take exception with the change in designation, please let me know and I shall be happy to call the matter to the attention of Maggie Garrity, or a member of the Board. This should be done very soon because I understand that our proposal will receive consideration at the next Board meeting on March 6.

Very shortly you should receive from me the analysis of our agency's claims experience over its three years of operation. I am looking forward to any reports of research being undertaken or completed by you folks. Please remember that I am thinking of a study of Puerto Ricans in Michigan. Some of you have been very kind in sending along clues and I shall be calling on you for additional help as soon as I have the design a bit more "jelled."

Best wishes to you all.

NOT FOR PUBLICATION 16 February 1959

A REPORT ON THE STATE OF THE ASSOCIATION

There follows an informal and subjective report on some trends and developments within NAIRO and the intergroup relations field, observed by your Executive Secretary in field trips since our November Conference.

IN CONTEXT

Since November, various field trips have taken me to twelve cities, five of them for the first time (*):

Chicago	Seattle	Detroit
*Milwaukee	San Francisco	Cleveland
*Minneapolis-St. Paul	Los Angeles	*Erie, Pennsylvania
Cincinnati	*St. Louis	Philadelphia

In each city I met -- individually and collectively -- with our members, other intergroup relations professionals, foundation executives, agency Board members, our interns and their supervisors, and a variety of peripheral people (by that, I mean professionals in related fields).

Casually at first, and then more or less doggedly, I tried to uncover the major trends in the profession and NAIRO, in the agency framework, and in the field of intergroup relations at large. Quite a few things emerged or were emphasized, and, while each if true is but a truism, I note them below:

THE PROFESSION AND NAIRO

(1) There is increasing professional identification among workers in our field. For some, it is a quest for status; for others, simply a recognition that our work is acquiring more earmarks of a profession; perhaps a few have been pushed into this by those of us who converted earlier to professionalization. Sometimes this identification is accompanied by fear of the rigidities of a full-blown profession or by concern over the possible deflowering of our dedication. And some, of course, still resist this professionalization -- or doubt that it can ever be accomplished. Nonetheless I note a marked contrast to attitudes expressed on earlier field trips.

(2) NAIRO is enjoying new prestige within our field -- and growing recognition outside it. Some of the causes? Our JOURNAL, the Pittsburgh Conference, our decision to go to San Juan and San Francisco, the Internship Program, my field trips (believe me, it's the uniform, not the man!), our field's growing professional identification, increasing interest in professional standards. All contribute to a marked tendency -- among both members and non-members -- to look to NAIRO for professional leadership, and -- as NAIRO's representative -- I can attest to a much more cordial reception by non-members than on earlier field trips.

- m o r e -

(3) There is especially keen interest in intergroup relations education and training -- and, concomitantly, in professional standards. This has been sparked by our Internship Program, and helped along considerably by the Nature, Scope & Theory issue of the JOURNAL. The greatest impetus comes, of course, from the rapid expansion of our field. Our professionals are beginning to care very much about minimum requirements for employment in the burgeoning new public agencies.

(4) NAIRO clearly has greatest meaning and interest for professionals in local public, independent local private, and state public agencies (probably in that order); it needs to develop new activities for, or sell itself anew to, professionals in national agencies and their affiliates. There is much evidence on this point! And while it is understandable, I wonder if it need be inevitable or insoluble????

(5) NAIRO seems to be losing whatever interest and value it ever had for agency Board members. They are dropping out of the Association at a fairly steady rate, and many are quite vocal about their feeling that they do not "belong" in NAIRO and get little from membership or from attendance at our Conferences. There seems to be more resignation than bitterness surrounding this feeling; most have simply decided that NAIRO is for professionals only. If this trend is not inevitable, it should be reversed through positive action now!

(6) There are encouraging signs of new life for local NAIRO groups, and the most significant development seems to be the increasing understanding of the difference between a professional body and an interagency staff council. Several cities now have both, including Pittsburgh and Minneapolis-St. Paul, sites of our two newest local NAIROs. This seems clearly to be the time for careful consideration and perhaps refinement of NAIRO's policy regarding its local affiliates!

(7) There is steadily mounting pressure (well, at least desire) for NAIRO to assume certain clearinghouse functions -- in such areas as research, informational services, consultative services, referral, placement. (Further comment here might be construed as lobbying, but there is more evidence on this point!)

(8) With growing satisfaction over the role and function of local NAIRO groups and of our Commissions, and with high hopes for the development of some regional conferences, NAIRO's weakest link now seems to be the Departments. Attention needs to be given to their rationale and function, and to new program ideas for each. I have the feeling, for example, that local public agencies will one day organize their own Conference of Commissions unless NAIRO's Department can be strengthened to fill the void....

THE AGENCY FRAMEWORK

(1) There seems to be no let-up in the growth -- in number and size -- of local public agencies, a development that is also occurring in the South (e.g. West Palm Beach, El Paso, Charlotte, N.C.). And 1959 seems likely to bring the creation of as many as three new state public agencies -- FEPCs in Ohio, California, and/or Illinois.

(2) This is and will be a year of considerable professional movement, with many more changes of personnel than in at least the past two years. There promises to be new jobs at many professional levels, with concomitant shifts up the ladder and between agencies. It should be a prosperous year for our present interns, and

(2) may involve some of last year's group who were shunted to peripheral fields by the recession choke-up in intergroup relations.

(3) Without going into the many philosophical and practical reasons for it, the tendency for both the NAACP and the NCCJ to move outside the mainstream of interagency life seems to be increasing, as a general rule and in most but not all cities. I am not certain that our professionals always understand why these agencies are going their own way -- or what that way is. This separation therefore becomes complete in many cities, but painful in some.

(4) Conversely, the Urban Leagues are - in an increasing number of cities - moving closer to the center of the interagency mainstream. This seems to be a function of the new orientation and program of many local Leagues; it is certainly furthered by the League's enormous "alumni association." (I wonder just how many public agency professionals are ex-Leaguers??)

THE FIELD OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS

(1) There seems to be a noticeable shift in program emphasis and concern away from employment discrimination, especially in cities and states with an FEP law. Few agencies outside of the FEPCs and Urban Leagues seem to be giving it the attention that they once did (although NAACPs seem to be doing more), and there is a prevalent if implicit feeling that this area needs a "mop-up" operation that can be left to the governmental bodies. And yet, many professionals admit that this program shift is probably premature.

(2) This attention has shifted, of course, to housing, and almost every agency is in on the act. The focus may be on "first," on the stabilization of changing neighborhoods, on campaigns for anti-bias housing legislation, or on urban renewal and its relocation aspects; but just about every Northern agency has a program in this area -- with some degree of success in almost every city visited recently.

(3) Most of our professionals have been forced to give some attention to what is loosely labeled "race and crime." Increasing publicity is being given to statistics showing that, in most Northern cities, the percentage of Negroes involved in certain types of crime is disproportionately high. And while the problem is neither a Negro problem nor an intergroup relations problem, the interpretation of the statistics and, often, the problem of police attitudes become matters of concern to intergroup relations agencies. Furthermore, municipal agency professionals occasionally find themselves pressed, however irrationally, to "do something about this crime."

(4) There is increasing evidence in Northern cities to support Marion Wright's contention that we are being subjected to a well-organized, well-financed campaign by Southern segregationists to sell the North on their point of view. The publicity being given to Northern crime statistics (see almost any issue of U.S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT) is not unrelated to this drive, and its subtle and persuasive traps have caught such big game as Chet Huntley. It is clearly not without its effect on Northern intergroup relations, and we will hear more of this before we hear less....

- m o r e -

(5) There seems to be a greater concern about interreligious relations, although the Jewish agencies and (often but not always) the NCCJ admittedly continue to bear the major program burden in this area. Still, one hears increasingly from public and secular private agency professionals that interreligious relations should be of greater common concern in this field. This might be an area in which NAIRO can provide a special brand of professional leadership.

(6) And yet, some of these trends notwithstanding, the general picture of Northern intergroup relations looks better this year than last. Like John Gunther, John Lassoe is never inside a city long enough to dig into the specifics or experience the setbacks; but the overall developments as reported and weighed look promising...

(7) A final truism: the inseparable and often causal relationship to intergroup relations problems of such broader issues as inner city decay, automation and worker displacement, and overcrowded schools, has never been more evident to me. I find more and more of our professionals forced to become at least knowledgeable in problem areas that range far beyond the strict definition of intergroup relations. I am not sure what this means for NAIRO, but it bears increasing study.

JUST FOR THE RECORD

On recent field trips, I spoke at the following meetings and gatherings -- all arranged by or through NAIRO members (often at considerable effort):

--MINNEAPOLIS: Combined staffs and Boards of Twin Cities IR agencies
Twin Cities IR professionals (now a NAIRO group)

--CHICAGO: Chicago NAIRO
Board of Directors, Catholic Interracial Council

--MILWAUKEE: Milwaukee IR professionals

--SEATTLE: Civic Unity Committee Annual Meeting
Seattle IR professionals
Radio & TV interviews

--BERKELEY: Interns-In-Community Service, AFSC

--LOS ANGELES: Interagency staff council

--ST. LOUIS: St. Louis IR professionals

--DETROIT: Detroit NAIRO
Community Relations Commission staff

--CLEVELAND: Interagency staff council
Community Relations Board
Internship advisory committee, Cleveland Baptist Association

-- ERIE: Erie NAACP Board (informal)
Erie Community Relations Commission

REPORT (5)

I hardly need stress the fact that these visits would be improbable if not impossible without the special cooperation of key NAIRO members in each city; and the number of such key members is growing to the point where it sometimes becomes a problem as to which to ask to serve as schedule coordinator. And I will just note gratefully that personal hospitality has been extraordinary!

TO BE VISITED

A March field trip will cover Cleveland (Western Reserve University), Chicago, Milwaukee (Commission on Human Rights meeting), Cincinnati (MFRC Annual Meeting; Cincinnati interagency staff council), Atlanta, and Miami. April visits will cover Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, and Boston, thus exhausting both the Executive Secretary and his travel budget. (March and April will add two new cities to the list of those visited in NAIRO's behalf).

SUBJECT: Our Stock: To Sell or Not To Sell ?

(I wrote most of the following in a letter to Burt Gordin, and then decided that you might all wish to think about the following before the Finance Committee and Board meet in Chicago.)

We own 125 shares of Gulf Oil stock. It is listed as paying a $2.50 per share dividend annually plus stock dividend. I noted in the TIMES that a quarterly dividend of $0.62½ per share was voted last month -- payable in March to holders of record on, I believe, February 13.

In March we will realize $78; the year will net $312.50 -- plus the possibility of an unspecified stock dividend.

When received, the stock was at $126.50, for a total of $15,800; it is today quoted at $112.75, for a total of $14,093.75. It seems to have dropped gradually but steadily since mid-January.

FORBES Magazine and one top broker both rate it as a good stock, and a reliable one. Aces high, according to FORBES. The broker pointed out, however, that an organization that knows it will need the cash within a year or so runs a risk in holding almost any stock; it may have to sell at a time when the market is low. (This was stated before we "lost" $1,700 through stock fluctuation; it is fortunate that we do not have to sell at this moment.) He advised selling them.

We need answers to some questions. I will try to get answers but hope that you will, too.

(A) Is this present drop a normal seasonal one? Is there a normal seasonal rise? Can we anticipate it in any way?

(B) When are stock dividends normally declared -- at least for Gulf? And should we anticipate this? By waiting for it, or by selling as the market rises beforehand?

(C) Since I note that the 1958-9 low for Gulf was 101: was that a normal fluctuation, apt to occur again? is it seasonal?

(D) In short, when should we sell?

United States Civil Rights Commission in New York

Hearings on Housing Discrimination

The federal Commission on Civil Rights turned its attention in early February from its hearings in Montgomery, Alabama, where it had been investigating interference with voting rights, to New York City, where it conducted two days of hearings into discrimination in housing.

New York was chosen as the site of the hearings, not because of complaints of discrimination there, but—as Commission Chairman Dr. John A. Hanna made clear in a press interview—because of the city's size, varied population, and extensive anti-discrimination laws.

Father Theodore M. Hesburgh, who presided at the hearings gave expression to his own bias in these words:

"To the extent that racial discrimination in housing exists in our midst, progress that is made on other problems such as the protection of voting rights or the desegregation of public schools will be in jeopardy."

That such jeopardy is substantial, not only in New York—or even especially markedly in New York—but in many parts of the nation, was attested to by most of the forty-one witnesses that appeared before the Commission on its invitation.

Bias and Its Consequences

The picture drawn by the public officials, heads of anti-discrimination agencies, spokesmen for voluntary organizations advocating equality of opportunity and others who testified was one of widespread exclusion from desirable housing of Negroes and Puerto Ricans and of discrimination against Mexicans, Orientals, Jews, and other racial, ethnic and religious minorities on varying scales. State and municipal anti-discrimination laws were represented as mitigating this picture somewhat where they existed, but as not yet having been able to change it drastically. The federal government was charged with culpability in not explicitly stating and enforcing a policy of non-segregation in federally-aided housing projects. Only a few witnesses, representing real estate interests, protested against certain types of fair housing legislation as interference with the private rights of property owners.

> "Discrimination, racial or religious, can become the hangman of any free nation."—Cardinal Francis I. Spellman of New York, in testimony before the Civil Rights Commission.

Predominant theme in the testimony was the injustice done to Negroes and Puerto Ricans by segregation and other discriminatory housing practices. While most of the documentation presented to the Commission on this point dealt with New York, it was shown that in Detroit, New Orleans and Chicago areas even larger than New York City's Harlem are Negro ghettos.

In New York City, according to the testimony of Dr. Frank Horne, executive director of that city's public Commission on Intergroup Relations, 80 per cent of the 950,000 Negro families are concentrated in four areas.

"The resultant overcrowding and congestion has reached unimaginable extremes in some areas," said Dr. Horne. If the density of population in some of Harlem's most congested blocks were duplicated, the entire population of the United States could be fitted into three of the city's five boroughs, he added.

Charles Abrams, whose resignation from the New York State Commission Against Discrimination, of which he was chairman, already had been tendered to Governor Nelson D. Rockefeller at the time, testified to the same effect about cities in up-state New York. Citing various studies, Mr. Abrams said that concentrations of non-white families in central urban neighborhoods had been increasing as white families moved to the suburbs.

He reported that over 50 per cent of houses occupied by Negroes in Syracuse lack private baths or flush toilets or need major repairs, as compared to 13.5 per cent for the city as a whole. Forty-two per cent lack central heating, which is missing in only 10 per cent of all houses in the city. Over 25 per cent are without running water, as compared to less than six per cent in the city as a whole.

"These are the kinds of homes which the majority of Negro citizens of New York State inhabit and it is the same elsewhere in the nation," said Mr. Abrams. "The startlingly high disease, death and crime rates common to these areas represent the social cost we pay for them."

Mr. Abrams said that, while economic incapacity of non-white families to buy or

> We were no sooner in print with our statement last month that the Congregationalists were the only denomination to offer financial aid to its churches that suffered losses as a result of integrating their congregations than the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. voted an initial sum of $30,000 for precisely the same purpose. The Board of National Home Missions report setting forth the program said:
> "The church should serve its neighborhood without discrimination, . . . meeting the challenge of integration wherever it is posed. This may cause the withdrawal of parishioners, resulting in financial loss . . . Denominational resources will be made available to compensate for this loss."

rent in more desirable areas accounted for some of this concentration and overcrowding, discriminatory practices were to blame in many cases.

In Rochester, for example, Mr. Abrams said, in an area scheduled for renewal, where the housing was among the worst in the city, forty-two per cent of the non-white residents had incomes of $350 or more per month — "certainly enough money to enable families to afford housing in much more desirable areas of the city." Studies of the home-hunting experiences of Negro professional men, "all of whom were in the upper fourteen per cent of the United States population with respect to education," revealed that they encountered overt or thinly disguised discrimination, Mr. Abrams said.

Bias Laws Work

Even though they are the most extensive in the nation, New York's housing discrimination laws were reported by Mr. Abrams to apply to only about five per cent of the state's five million housing units. By contrast, New York City's Fair Housing Practices Law, which became effective April 1, 1958, brings about seventy per cent of the city's housing under the prohibition of discrimination.

The effectiveness of fair housing legislation in opening housing to minorities was testified to by many of the witnesses. Dr. Alfred J. Marrow, Chairman of the New York City Commission on Intergroup Relations, for example, asserted that:

"Outright discrimination has gone underground in New York City because the body of law and the positive assertions of our governmental policy have made it very clear that it has no proper place in our normal course of affairs."

Dr. Horne added that there is definite evidence "that dispersion of minorities and their integration into the housing supply occur principally where public non-discriminatory policy is in force. This is so whether the housing is private or publicly assisted."

Citing publicly-assisted cooperative housing as an example, Dr. Horne testified that some 40,000 New Yorkers, representing all colors and races, live in such housing, with the proportion of non-whites varying from three per cent to twenty per cent.

Discrimination vs. Jews

Three major national Jewish organizations were among those appearing at the hearings and all three, while emphasizing the incomparably more serious impact of housing segregation on Negroes and other racial minorities, presented testimony about extensive discrimination against Jews in the sale and rental of dwellings. The most comprehensive survey of such anti-Jewish discrimination was presented by Eugene L. Sugarman, chairman of the New York Regional Advisory Board of the Anti-Defamation League. It detailed information gathered from all the League's twenty-seven regional offices in many parts of the country, which indicated, Mr. Sugarman said, that areas and communities are to be found "almost everywhere in the United States" that seek to maintain themselves as "judenrein preserves."

Irving M. Engel, testifying for the American Jewish Committee, of which he is president, presented evidence to the same effect, adding details on the ruses and strategems frequently employed by real estate operators and property owners to maintain their exclusionist practices without openly avowing them. Over one-third of the fashionable cooperative apartment houses in New York's borough of Manhattan exclude Jews, Mr. Engel testified.

Stanley Lowell, recently resigned as assistant to New York City's Mayor, testified for the American Jewish Congress. Concentrating on an examination of the role of government and laws in combatting discrimination in housing, the American Jewish Congress statement also included testimony as to refusal to rent or sell housing to Jews in widely separated cities in the United States.

Irving M. Engel, American Jewish Committee president, in testifying before the Civil Rights Commission deplored the "mischievous meddling of real estate brokers in the District of Columbia and its environs in perpetuating a pattern of residential discrimination against American Jews." He added:

"Perhaps the most disquieting aspect of the current situation in the District of Columbia consists in the significant number of high officials of our Federal Government, in the Executive, Judicial, and Legislative branches, who reside in these exclusionary areas. It probably is unnecessary to remark that, as officeholders in our government, they are trustees of an important and precious tradition, namely, that equality of opportunity should exist in all departments of American life, regardless of religion.

"It is, we think, vital that a principle so hard won should also be protected by officials of our government. Living in a community which is the very seat of our government constitutes an action that should be exemplary to the rest of the nation; also, Washington, being our national capital, is the mirror of our nation exposed to world public view."

Federal Responsibilities

The federal government's failure to assert a firm policy of requiring non-discrimination in housing aided or assisted by federal financing or other support was deplored or denounced in the testimony of many witnesses, including that of most of those already cited. Algernon D. Black, chairman of the New York State Committee on Discrimination in Housing, was one of the most vigorous in his strictures. Mr. Black spoke of "twenty-five years of government sponsored segregation and the continued support and sanctioning of housing segregation by the federal government."

It is "an inescapable fact," he declared, "that the federal government, through its far-flung housing operations, is today supporting and reinforcing the spread of residential segregation. Urban renewal developments which include plans for new segregated housing continue to receive federal approval and funds. In federal housing, the majority of the projects are segregated. FHA and VA continue to underwrite racially exclusive suburbs. . . .

"FHA has continued to insure loans with the full knowledge that builders and developers were excluding racial or religious minorities," he said, pointing as examples to "whole new cities—the Levittowns of Long Island, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey; Lakewood, near Los Angeles; Park Forest, near Chicago. . . ."

U.S. Actions Urged

Recommendations for federal action were offered by many of the witnesses. The one perhaps most often advanced was that put forth some weeks ago by the Commission on Race and Housing in its report "Where Shall We Live?" The report was repeatedly cited and praised and its recommendations endorsed. Earl B. Schwulst, president of the Bowery Savings Bank of New York, who was chairman of the Commission, testified personally, criticizing the federal housing agencies for their "policy of neutrality or nonresponsibility toward the question of discrimination" and pressing the recommendation of the Commission for creation by the President of a committee on the elimination of discrimination in federal housing and urban renewal programs. It was this recommendation that was most frequently offered during the hearings. As formulated by the Commission on Race and Housing it would require the proposed committee to "present to the President its recommendations for a complete program and time schedule looking toward the elimination of discrimination in the distribution of federal housing benefit at the earliest time practicable."

Other recommendations for federal action were for:

- Federal legislation guaranteeing free and unrestricted access for all citizens, regardless of race, religion or national origin, to all housing assisted by the federal government
- An Executive Order establishing a policy of non-discrimination and non-segregation for all federal housing programs
- A broad-gauged federal Commission Against Discrimination, created by Executive Order, to "impose affirmative responsibility for improving racial understanding on federal agencies," work with race relations advisers, disseminate information among the agencies, intervene in tension cases, etc. in furtherance of a non-discrimination policy
- Strengthening of the Racial Relations Service in the federal housing agencies
- Incorporation in all future federal housing legislation of an explicit nondiscrimination provision
- Empowerment of the Urban Renewal Administration "to police its contract terms relating to adequate provision for displaced families"
- A federal low-interest mortgage program for low income families

Anti-Bias Laws Assailed

The desirability of federal, state and local legislation to assure non-discrimination in housing, urged by most witnesses, was challenged at the hearings by a spokesman for the Real Estate Board of New York. James Andrews, a director of the Board's brokerage division, said government should not interfere with private housing. "Each of us should be allowed under law to lead his life as he chooses," he said. "To introduce compulsory integration into private housing seems to us monstrous." Mr. Andrews indicated that a court action was being considered to try to have the New York City Fair Housing Practices Law of 1958 declared unconstitutional. He added:

"There are many good people who believe that private housing can be integrated racially today. To those who have the financial means we suggest that they translate their conviction into action and construct housing for integrated occupancy. Perhaps we all will learn something. But let them undertake the experiment with their money and not the investments of others. And let them not intimidate legislators into enacting laws to compel others to do what they will not do themselves."

Doubts about the economic soundness of integrated private housing were expressed also by Emil Keen, past president of the State Home Builders Association.

Declaring that builders were reluctant to "enter a field fraught with more than ordinary risk," he proposed that President Eisenhower release $250,000,000 of special assistance money to enable the National Federal Mortgage Association to purchase mortgages at par to underwrite such construction as an experiment.

. . . And Defended

At least one of the witnesses before the Commission was able to testify from his own experience in response to Mr. Andrews. That was James H. Scheuer, president of the Citizens' Housing and Planning Council of New York and sponsor

The 150th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln marked the 50th anniversary of the founding of the NAACP. The occasion was observed with fitting ceremony in New York City. Following is the full text of the call, issued February 12, 1909, that gave birth to the NAACP:

The celebration of the Centennial of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, widespread and grateful as it may be, will fail to justify itself if it takes no note of and makes no recognition of the colored men and women for whom the great Emancipator labored to assure freedom. Besides a day of rejoicing, Lincoln's birthday in 1909 should be one of taking stock of the nation's progress since 1865.

"How far has it lived up to the obligations imposed upon it by the Emancipation Proclamation? How far has it gone in assuring to each and every citizen, irrespective of color, the equality of opportunity and equality before the law, which underlie our American institutions and are guaranteed by the Constitution?

"If Mr. Lincoln could revisit this country in the flesh, he would be disheartened and discouraged. He would learn that on January 1, 1909, Georgia had rounded out a new confederacy by disfranchising the Negro, after the manner of all the other Southern States. He would learn that the Supreme Court of the United States, supposedly a bulwark of American liberties, had refused every opportunity to pass squarely upon this disfranchisement of millions, by laws avowedly discriminatory and openly enforced in such manner that the white man may vote and black men be without a vote in their government; he would discover, therefore, that taxation without representation is the lot of millions of wealth-producing American citizens, in whose hands rests the economic progress and welfare of an entire section of the country.

"He would learn that the Supreme Court, according to the official statement of one of its own judges in the Berea College case, has laid down the principle that if an individual State chooses, it may 'make it a crime for white and colored persons to frequent the same market place at the same time, or appear in an assemblage of citizens convened to consider questions of a public or political nature in which all citizens, without regard to race, are equally interested.'

"In many states Lincoln would find justice enforced, if at all, by judges elected by one element in a community to pass upon the liberties and lives of another. He would see the black men and women, for whose freedom a hundred thousand of soldiers gave their lives, set apart in trains, in which they pay first-class fares for third-class service, and segregated in railway stations and in places of entertainment; he would observe that State after State declines to do its elementary duty in preparing the Negro through education for the best exercise of citizenship.

"Added to this, the spread of lawless attacks upon the Negro, North, South, and West — even in the Springfield made famous by Lincoln— often accompanied by revolting brutalities, sparing neither sex nor age nor youth, could but shock the author of the sentiment that 'government of the people, by the people, for the people; should not perish from the earth.'

"Silence under these conditions means tacit approval. The indifference of the North is already responsible for more than one assault upon democracy, and every such attack reacts as unfavorably upon whites as upon blacks. Discrimination once permitted cannot be bridled; recent history in the South shows that in forging chains for the Negroes the white voters are forging chains for themselves. 'A house divided against itself cannot stand'; this government cannot exist half-slave and half-free any better to-day than it could in 1861.

"Hence we call upon all the believers in democracy to join in a national conference for the discussion of present evils, the voicing of protests, and the renewal of the struggle for civil and political liberty."

of integrated housing projects worth nearly $10,000,000. Urging legislation banning discrimination in all federally-assisted housing and slum clearance projects, both publicly-owned and privately-owned, Mr. Scheuer said:

Discrimination Bad Business

"As a business man, it seems to me that discrimination is bad business. While I also happen to believe that it is morally wrong, I shall leave the moral argument to others. My argument rests on the dollars and cents impact of discrimination on the cities and business community of America."

Opening government-assisted housing to all who could afford it would "scatterize" minority peoples throughout a metropolitan area instead of concentrating them in the few blighted neighborhoods to which they now have access, Mr. Scheuer said. This would inhibit the growth of new slums, and would tend to prevent persons dislocated by slum clearance projects (usually members of minority groups) from overcrowding and thereby blighting the margins of those projects.

Mr. Scheuer rejected Mr. Keen's arguments, too. In this he was joined by Frank Lowe, vice-president of the Metropolitan Insurance Co., among others. Mr. Scheuer denied that open occupancy destroys property values, drives whites from neighborhoods opened to non-whites, discourages new construction, and that lending institutions refuse to finance housing equally available to all.

Under the provisions of the Civil Rights Act of 1957, which created it, the Commission is required to submit its final report by September 1959. However, President Eisenhower has said he favors extension of the Commission's life, and administration-sponsored legislation already introduced would provide for such extension.

The Commission will next hold public hearings on school segregation, sitting in Nashville.

JOB OPENINGS

Dear Member:

It isn't often that we say "Hello" and "Goodbye" but circumstances, at the moment, dictate that this must be done.

I feel that I can make some small contribution to NAIRO, with your assistance. Following the Annual Meeting of the Association, the Members of the Board of Directors elected me as Chairman of the Membership Committee. I have recently withheld any action pursuant to the duties of that Committee because I was considering a change of jobs.

I have now completed negotiations and will be working in a different area of responsibility, therefore, I have submitted my letter of resignation to NAIRO.

I am asking, however, that you will join with me in making every effort, in the interest of NAIRO, to obtain a member within the next ninety days in order that we might realize one of our major objectives, the expansion of our membership.

I am hoping that events of the future will permit my communicating with you again.

Sincerely,

Sam Daniels

NAIRO

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

PURPOSE

The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials (NAIRO) was established in 1947 as an organization of individuals concerned with advancing intergroup relations knowledge and skills, improving the standards of intergroup relations practice, and furthering the understanding and acceptance of the goals and principles of intergroup relations work.

To carry out these purposes, NAIRO seeks to further:

- EXCHANGE OF EXPERIENCE AND KNOWLEDGE among individuals and agencies concerned with racial, religious, ethnic, and cultural relationships.

- STUDY, ANALYSIS, AND CONDUCT OF RESEARCH on problems and developments affecting intergroup relations.

- COLLECTION, COMPILATION, AND DISSEMINATION of information and ideas regarding programs, methods and techniques.

- ADVANCEMENT OF THE SCIENCE, PROCESSES, AND ART of intergroup relations, and improvement of the standards of work in the field.

MEMBERSHIP

Membership in NAIRO is open to any individual subscribing to its basic purposes. There are two classes of membership, ACTIVE and ASSOCIATE, and dues are $15 per year.

- ACTIVE or voting membership is open to any individual primarily engaged in intergroup relations: in a professional staff capacity, as a recognized authority or as a member of the governing body of an agency in this field.

- ASSOCIATE or non-voting membership — open to all others — carries with it all privileges of participation and services, except the right to vote or hold office.

ORGANIZATION

NAIRO's program is carried out through its:

- ANNUAL CONFERENCE. NAIRO members meet annually to exchange ideas, formulate policy, develop program, and elect officers. The 1958 Conference will be held in Pittsburgh.

- BOARD OF DIRECTORS. Elected by the membership at the annual meeting, the Board of Directors governs the Association, determining policy between the yearly sessions.

- COMMISSIONS. Six Commissions, organized around areas of common interest in intergroup relations, discuss and study basic professional considerations underlying major issues in education, housing and family life, manpower utilization, other civil rights, interreligious relations. Any member may participate in the activities of the commission of his choice.

- DEPARTMENTS. NAIRO's Departments seek to aid professionals in their work through the exchange of information on developments, techniques, and approaches in similar types of agencies, i.e., muncipal, local private, state public, national private, and federal services. All NAIRO members automatically become affiliated with a department according to their agency identification.

- LOCAL NAIRO GROUPS. In cities or areas where there are a number of NAIRO members, local NAIRO groups have been organized to promote regular discussion of matters of common concern to intergroup relations workers.

- STANDING COMMITTEES. Organizational development and program are guided by various appointive committees of the membership, including those dealing with such substantive topics as professional standards, educational and professional training, and interprofessional relations.

- NATIONAL OFFICE. NAIRO maintains a central headquarters office in New York City to serve its members, committees, and conferences. Its Executive Secretary travels extensively around the country, meeting with NAIRO members and local groups.

ACTIVITIES

Activities and publications of NAIRO are designed to advance its purposes and serve its members.

- PROFESSIONAL TRAINING PROGRAM. Six foundations cooperate in a NAIRO-initiated program of on-the-job training for professional recruits to the field of intergroup relations. Sixteen young people were trained in agencies across the nation during the first year of operation.
- PERSONNEL REGISTRY. Available without charge to members seeking employment, and to intergroup relations agencies seeking personnel, this service regularly publicizes job openings among those who have requested listing.
- SPECIAL MEETINGS. In recent years, NAIRO has sponsored several special conferences, two on research in intergroup relations and one on policy-community relations. As the need arises, others will be arranged.

PUBLICATIONS

- NAIRO REPORTER, a bulletin of events and trends in intergroup relations. Published monthly except August and September. Free to members; non-members, $3.00 per year.
- JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS, comprising the substantive study reports of the six NAIRO Commissions. Published bimonthly. Free to members; non-members, $6.00 per year.
- NAIRO NEWSLETTER, a monthly review of NAIRO activities and membership news.

Dear Lloyd:

Thanks for your recent letter containing the minutes from the last meeting of the Program Committee. I am favorably impressed with what the committee has thus far done. I am attaching some random thoughts I have on each of the areas. These are in rough form, but I wanted to throw them in the hopper for whatever they may be worth. No pride of authorship...throw them out if you feel they don't fit into the Committee's thinking.

Spring in Tara has been beautiful; the red-bud trees are in full bloom, the forsythia is extravagant, and we are awaiting the coming of the dogwoods. The days are in the warm 70's and the nights in the snappy 40's, and life is pleasant.

Hu'man Tamadge (as we say down here) even admitted the other night that the Supreme Court Decision was an accomplished fact and couldn't be wished away; he even went so far as to admit that his proposed constitutional amendment didn't have much hope in the national arena.

Best regards to all my friends up there.

As ever,

Frederick B. Routh

I. POLITICAL CHANGES IN THE DECADE AHEAD

Dr. Scammon's speech at the closing session of last year's Annual Meeting would be a good reference for this section. Basically, what we should be examining is the role of agencies and professionals in view of the expected changes in the decade ahead. In the area of political change we have some rather good bench-marks; our questions should be aimed at what this means in terms of the total society, what it means for minority groups, and what tentative suggestions we have for developing creative, flexible programs that will be effective in increasing the equal participation of all people in decision making, in shared responsibility, and in the benefits which come from a growing deomcratic society.

In the area of political change, the other area of inquiry should be aimed at how we, as professionals, can assist the electorate and public office-holders in establishing a national policy which demands the recognition of the equal human dignity and worth of each of our people as citizens of the United States and children of God.

II. ECONOMIC CHANGES IN THE DECADE AHEAD

Obviously there is considerable over-lap between this area and the one on Socio-Cultural changes.

We are in the midst of a rapidly expanding economy and all indications point to a vastly increased gross national product in the decade ahead. Big Business and Big Labor are playing an increasing role in decision making of national policy. How can the intergroup relations agencies and professionals help both these powerful groups become more sensitive to intergroup relations considerations? For instance, do we professionals believe that national policy should be aimed at the creation of a national FEPC or an even broader agency USCAD covering employment, housing, public facilities, education, etc., etc.?

The decade won't be without its ups and downs. Does experience in the recent recession indicate that the old adage, "The first to be fired and the last to be hired" have any validity? If so, what can we do about it for future recessions?

What does automation mean for working people? Will it displace large numbers of workers? If so, how can we help prevent an unfair share of lay-offs for minority group workers?

Another basic area of consideration is the changing farm economy and the mass migration of people off the farms and into the city. Should we be concerned about keeping people "down on the farm?" What can we do to help prepare those who leave the farm for city-living and non-agricultural employment?

III. SOCIO-CULTURAL CHANGES IN THE DECADE AHEAD

We have not had a major presentation in this area at a NAIRO Annual Meeting. Obviously we need a full-blown interpretation of what to expect in the next decade; our discussions, however, should be aimed at what this change will mean in terms of the roles of agencies and professionals.

I have contended for some time that socio-economic class distinction can be, and often is, the proper concern of intergroup relations agencies and professionals. General attacks on labor or general attacks on management are no more acceptable in a democratic society than attacks on minority groups.

One of the very basic questions which faces this nation is the extent to which social mobility is possible. I suggest that some of the information contained in WHO SHALL BE EDUCATED be worked into this section. There are indications that American society is becoming more class-rigid; that the children of workers shall be workers, the children of professionals shall be professionals, and the children of the managerial elite shall be leaders.

At the same time, we recognize that we are more than ever a "middle class" society we must also recognize that through the development of a caste system based on race, nationality or religion, we have limited the ability of some to move into middle class status. The question which faces the intergroup relations agencies and professionals is how to remove the artificial barriers which keep people frozen in their "assigned" class. We should also seek to find who does the "assigning."

Hi Fred!

Need your help - really!

Enclosed please find the minutes of the last meeting of our Program Committee, and please note our theme and our goal. We are really at this point trying to find our way. We realize how involved you are with other NAIRO business, but we would be deeply grateful if you would give us your thinking with respect to this all important 1959 conference. Our Committee at this point is seeking to define precisely what we have in mind when we talk of economic, political and socio-cultural change in the decade ahead, as it relates to our field.

Your suggestions with respect to any and all aspects of this confab will be deeply appreciated.

Thanking you in advance for this additional help and assistance.

With warm regards:

Lloyd

1959 N A I R O PROGRAM COMMITTEE March 17, 1959

NEXT MEETING:

Wednesday, March 25, 1959
12:30 P.M. (This is not a luncheon meeting)
Room: 516
320 North Clark Street
For additional information call Ollie Diggs

The decisions of the Committee thus far as approved by the NAIRO Board:

Theme: "Intergroup Relations - The Decade Ahead"

Goal : The conference will attempt to examine the problems and needs - the potentialities and resources, available to our field in light of expected social, economic, cultural and political changes in the decade ahead.

With the above in mind, this afternoon, we commenced the exacting job of defining precisely what we have in mind when we talk of: economic, political and socio-cultural change in the decade ahead. Some of that initial discussion is recorded below. For the next several meetings of the Committee we will concentrate on this particular problem. Members of the Committee are urged to put "in writing" any comments which they have with respect to this matter.

POLITICAL CHANGE IN THE DECADE AHEAD

As professionals in the field of intergroup relations, we are constantly involved with political structures which impede or advance our work. Ability to understand these forces which are constantly at work and to deal with them competently, should be a matter of real concern.

Will the South solve its racial problems in the decade ahead. What will conditions be like in the South come 1970. How about seniority rule in the Congress. What affect will the South solving its major racial problems, have on conditions in the North.

Will the decade ahead see emerging a Third Political Party with strong appeal to minority group members.

How will our new states - Hawaii and Alaska, affect our political situation in the United States. Are we apt to see a "dark skinned" American once again in the United States Senate. Will Hawaii with its varying racial strains affect and improve upon the attitudes of Americans toward the race problem.

What can we expect politically from the large numbers of Northerners moving South at retirement age.

Will the decade ahead still find minority group bloc voting.

Where will Puerto Ricans be politically in the decade ahead.

What can we expect by way of the role of ethnic political leadership in the decade ahead.

What about world communism and intergroup relations in the decade ahead.

What about the disappearance of state boundaries through the trend toward greater metropolitanism, as relates to "States Rights."

ECONOMIC CHANGE IN THE DECADE AHEAD

What affect will the movement of industry from the North to the South have on our work in the decade ahead.

What about the relationship of union organizing activities to intergroup relations problems in the decade ahead.

What can we expect in the decade ahead by way of an advancing "economic status" for our major minority groups.

What about specific economic problems like the replacement of Negro teachers and the disappearance of the traditional "Negro college."

What about our problem of Housing in the North in the decade ahead.

What about employment in the decade ahead - will it be available and what kind can we expect.

Will we have solved the problem of inspiring minority group members to new economic heights.

SOCIO-CULTURAL CHANGES IN THE DECADE AHEAD

What will be the effect of increased educational opportunity on our field in the decade ahead.

What effect will increase leisure time activity have on intergroup relations problems in the decade ahead.

Will there be "minority groups" in the decade ahead. What symbols will we use to identify them.

RECEIVED APR 24 1959

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS
ROOM 1508, 152 WEST 42ND STREET, NEW YORK 36, N. Y. • LO 3-6757

20 April 1959

TO: ALL NAIRO MEMBERS

FROM: John V.P. Lassoe, Jr.

SUBJECT: Internship Program, 1959-1960

As you already know, NAIRO has received grants covering administration of our National Internship Program in its third year, 1959-1960. Although we have not yet secured training grants similar to those awarded to some agencies in the first two years, we are anxious to set machinery in motion for the year ahead.

We would like to hear from your agency in the very near future if it is interested - however tentatively - in participating in the program next year.

In the past, agencies have financed their participation in various ways, each of them quite appropriate to the program's overall purpose:

(a) By means of a full $5,000 training grant, secured by the agency from some national or local foundation. (None of these were disbursed through NAIRO, and probably will not be; NAIRO did and will, however, cooperate with agencies applying for such grants, buttressing their applications with an appropriate statement about the nationwide scope of the program.)

(b) By matching a $2,500 half-grant awarded by foundations through NAIRO. (In each of the past two years, the Fund for the Republic awarded twelve half-grants, matched by agencies from their own budgets or through local foundations. Although it is not yet certain, NAIRO hopes that similar grants will be available from some foundation again this year.)

(c) Entirely with their own funds, simply attaching a new staff member to the program -- to secure the training benefits of the Internship Seminar and NAIRO's general experience in this field. (The advantages of such affiliation have proved to be substantial, and will be expanded in the year ahead.)

Details about the operation of the program, the criteria for selection of participating agencies, the respective commitments of NAIRO and these agencies, and other information can be supplied on request.

SPECIAL BULLETIN TO NAIRO MEMBERS

ANNOUNCING ANOTHER GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY

FOR SOME JUNIOR MEMBER OF YOUR STAFF!

NAIRO is again opening its forthcoming Internship Seminar to approximately six non-interns -- junior professionals with, ideally, no less than six nor more than eighteen months' paid experience.

The Seminar-Workshop will be held in New York City at International House during the period, June 6-13. All participants must live in.

Organized by NAIRO for the fourteen interns now completing their year of on-the-job professional training under our Internship Program, it will include: (1) discussion of basic intergroup relations concepts and assumptions, (2) analysis of today's problems and practices in the field, (3) self-evaluation by the workshoppers of their professional practice and personal adaptation, and (4) practical training in some of the tools and approaches of our profession.

With the help of a skilled workshop leader, the participants will plan and direct the seven days' sessions, drawing on the impressive array of resource people available in the New York area and on the experienced professionals from other parts of the country -- NAIRO Board members and intern supervisors -- who will be in the city that week. (NAIRO's Executive Secretary will serve as overall coordinator.)

The total cost of room, board and tuition for the week will be only $90 per person. And even this modest sum can be covered by sources other than your own agency -- local foundations, business firms, concerned individuals, even a group of intergroup relations agencies pooling resources to send a junior staff member. NAIRO's Board has suggested that local NAIRO groups might raise the money to send one or more professionals from their area.

If you are interested in enrolling a junior professional in this Seminar, write immediately to NAIRO -- outlining the applicant's professional experience and educational background. Applications from qualified persons will be accepted in the order received, and non-intern registration will be limited! (The Seminar is open to non-members as well as members of NAIRO.)

THIS SEMINAR-WORKSHOP IS GEARED FOR JUNIOR PROFESSIONALS! IT IS A PERFECT IN-SERVICE TRAINING OPPORTUNITY FOR A PROMISING MEMBER OF YOUR STAFF!! ACT NOW!!!

NAIRO

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

PURPOSE

The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials (NAIRO) was founded in 1947 as an organization of individuals concerned with advancing intergroup relations knowledge and skills, improving the standards of professional intergroup relations practice, and furthering acceptance of the goals and principles of intergroup relations work.

NAIRO seeks to further these purposes through:

- EXCHANGE OF EXPERIENCE AND KNOWLEDGE among professional workers and others concerned with racial, religious, and ethnic relationships.
- STUDY, ANALYSIS, AND RESEARCH on problems and developments affecting intergroup relations.
- COLLECTION, COMPILATION, AND DISSEMINATION of information and ideas regarding programs, methods, and techniques.

MEMBERSHIP

Membership in NAIRO is open to any individual subscribing to its purposes. There are three classes of membership.

- ACTIVE membership is open to any individual primarily engaged in intergroup relations: in a professional staff capacity, as a recognized authority, or as a member of the governing body of an agency in this field. Annual dues are $15.
- ASSOCIATE (non-voting) membership is open to all others. It is designed for those who, although not eligible for Active membership, wish to support NAIRO's work and receive its regular publications and other services. Annual dues are $15.
- STUDENT (non-voting) membership is open to any person enrolled in a recognized college or university and working toward a degree with the intention of entering the field of intergroup relations. Student members will receive all regular publications and other services. Annual dues are $5.

ACTIVITIES

NAIRO's program is carried out through its:

- ANNUAL CONFERENCE. NAIRO members meet yearly to exchange ideas, formulate policy, develop program, and elect officers. The 1959 Conference will be held in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

- COMMISSIONS. Organized around areas of common interest, members discuss and study basic professional considerations underlying major intergroup relations issues in education, housing and family life, manpower utilization, other civil rights, and interreligious relations. Any member may participate in the activities of the Commission of his choice.

- DEPARTMENTS. NAIRO's Departments seek to aid professionals in their work through the exchange of information on developments, techniques, and approaches in similar types of agencies, i.e., municipal, local and state private, state public, national private, and federal services. All NAIRO members affiliate automatically with a Department according to their agency identification.

- LOCAL NAIRO GROUPS. In cities where there are a number of NAIRO members, local NAIRO groups are organized to promote regular discussion of matters of common professional concern. Regional NAIRO Conferences are also held each year in various sections of the country.

- PROFESSIONAL TRAINING PROGRAM. Six foundations cooperate in a NAIRO-initiated program of on-the-job training for professional recruits to the field of intergroup relations. Thirty-one young people were trained in agencies across the nation during the program's first two years of operation.

- PERSONNEL REGISTRY. Available without charge to members seeking employment, and to intergroup relations agencies seeking personnel, this service regularly publicizes professional job openings.

To: NAIRO Regional Chairmen

From: Frances R. Cousens, Chairman, Membership Committee

Subject: Local Membership Representatives

Date: May 7, 1959

Since being named as national membership chairman at the NAIRO Board meeting on March 6, I have intended to contact all of you for help in building an effective membership committee. Unfortunately, NAIRO business is often doomed to delay as agency work demands priority of time and energies. Here, at the Michigan FEPC, we have been seriously understaffed for the last four months, thus the unavoidable postponement of addressing myself to what I consider a challenge, namely, building NAIRO membership.

The extent to which the membership committee succeeds will depend largely on assistance and good counsel of many loyal NAIRO people who feel as the Board does, that membership recruitment is an item of top priority. At the last three meetings, the Board addressed itself to techniques of recruitment.

One device has been to further decentralize the structure by increasing the number of regions. In addition, they asked the Regional Chairmen to name people to represent the region on the Membership Committee, as described in the following excerpts from minutes of the last three Board meetings:

January, 1958: "the regional chairmen and regional representatives are....responsible for appointing people within their regions to handle membership recruitment and renewals in cooperation with the membership Committee."

- more -

May, 1958: "the Membership Committee will consist of a core planning group...plus the eight Regional Chairmen and Regional Representatives; that the Regional Chairmen and Representatives will choose local liaison people in each likely locality, these not to be subject to Board confirmation although the Board may be consulted;...that the Regional Chairmen and Representatives will then report to the Membership Chairman on membership and the President on program and policy."

November, 1958:..."The Regional Chairman also recommends local membership representatives in his region but once these have been approved by the Membership Committee, they shall relate directly to the Membership Chairman, not through the Regional Chairman. The responsibilities of the Regional Chairmen thus relate primarily to program, rather than to membership recruitment."

Many of us feel that this is NAIRO's year of decision. Earlier membership committees had a much more difficult time. Now, the field of intergroup relations is practically "busting out all over". All we have to do is make sure that NAIRO grows right along with it!

Will you please send me at your very earliest opportunity but no later than May 20 a list of the people you wish to appoint to represent your region on the Membership Committee. I must submit their names to the Board meeting at the beginning of June.

Thank you for any help you can give me and the committee.

NOTE: Please address your reply the Fair Employment Practices Commission, 900 Cadillac Square Building, Detroit 26, Michigan.

NAIRO

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

PURPOSE

The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials (NAIRO) was founded in 1947 as an organization of individuals concerned with advancing intergroup relations knowledge and skills, improving the standards of professional intergroup relations practice, and furthering acceptance of the goals and principles of intergroup relations work.

NAIRO seeks to further these purposes through:

- EXCHANGE OF EXPERIENCE AND KNOWLEDGE among professional workers and others concerned with racial, religious, and ethnic relationships.

- STUDY, ANALYSIS, AND RESEARCH on problems and developments affecting intergroup relations.

- COLLECTION, COMPILATION, AND DISSEMINATION of information and ideas regarding programs, methods, and techniques.

MEMBERSHIP

Membership in NAIRO is open to any individual subscribing to its purposes. There are three classes of membership.

- ACTIVE membership is open to any individual primarily engaged in intergroup relations: in a professional staff capacity, as a recognized authority, or as a member of the governing body of an agency in this field. Annual dues are $15.

- ASSOCIATE (non-voting) membership is open to all others. It is designed for those who, although not eligible for Active membership, wish to support NAIRO's work and receive its regular publications and other services. Annual dues are $15.

- STUDENT (non-voting) membership is open to any person enrolled in a recognized college or university and working toward a degree with the intention of entering the field of intergroup relations. Student members will receive all regular publications and other services. Annual dues are $5.

ACTIVITIES

NAIRO's program is carried out through its:

- ANNUAL CONFERENCE. NAIRO members meet yearly to exchange ideas, formulate policy, develop program, and elect officers. The 1960 Conference will be held in Cincinnati, Ohio, and the 1961 Conference in San Francisco.

- COMMISSIONS. Organized around areas of common interest, members discuss basic professional considerations underlying major intergroup relations issues. Any member may participate in one or more of these commissions: education, housing and family life, civil rights, manpower utilization, interreligious relations, research, and nature, scope and theory.

- DEPARTMENTS. NAIRO's Departments seek to aid professionals in their work through the exchange of information on developments, techniques and approaches in similar types of agencies, i.e., municipal, local and state private, state public, national private, and federal services. Each NAIRO member is automatically assigned to a Department according to his agency affiliation.

- LOCAL NAIRO CHAPTERS. In cities where there are a number of NAIRO members, local chapters are organized to promote regular discussion of matters of common professional concern. Regional NAIRO Conferences are also held in various sections of the country.

- PROFESSIONAL TRAINING PROGRAM. A group of foundations are cooperating in a NAIRO-initiated program of on-the-job training for professional recruits to the intergroup relations field. Thirty-eight young people were trained in agencies across the nation during the program's first three years of operation.

- PERSONNEL REGISTRY. Available without charge to members seeking employment, and to intergroup relations agencies seeking personnel, this service regularly publicizes professional job openings.

PUBLICATIONS

- JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS, a quarterly comprising articles and reports on intergroup relations issues, developments, theory and practice. Free to members; non-members, $6 per year.

- NAIRO NEWSLETTER, a monthly review of NAIRO activities and membership news. Distributed to members without charge.

- SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS. Issued from time to time, these have included surveys of municipal intergroup relations agencies (1955 and 1957), a directory of intergroup relations agencies with paid staff (1959), and a report on civil rights in Washington, D. C. (1959).

ORGANIZATION

- BOARD OF DIRECTORS. Elected by the membership, the Board governs the Association and determines policy between Annual Meetings.

- STANDING COMMITTEES. Organizational development and program are guided by various appointed committees of the membership, including those dealing with such substantive matters as professional standards, educational and professional training, interprofessional relations, and international exchange.

- NATIONAL OFFICE. NAIRO maintains a central office in New York City to serve its members, committees, and conferences. Its Executive Secretary travels extensively around the country, meeting with NAIRO members and local NAIRO chapters.

Of Agency Intergroup Relations Training Needs and interest in a proposed national training facility.

The demand for experienced intergroup relations specialists is growing at an unprecedented rate and the shortage of such qualified intergroup relations specialists already great, threatens to become much more acute. This situation is due in largest measure to an almost-total absence of opportunities for intergroup relations training. There are, in fact, practically no programs or services geared to train people for work in intergroup relations agencies or to meet existing Federal and non-Federal agency needs. This condition has placed heavy responsibility on the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials as well as on private and public agencies, to see that urgent training needs of the field are met swiftly and well.

NAIRO has been working in close cooperation during the past several months, with officials of the Institute of Human Relations, of the American Jewish Committee and with representatives of federal, state, county, municipal and private agencies, toward the development of a first-rate national training facility. The development of an acceptable training design, selection of faculty and the securement of financial support for such a training facility, are all dependent upon our ability to quickly as possible, determine the training needs of agencies and access their interest in the establishment and utilization of a national training facility. In this regard, we are asking your cooperation in providing answers to the few brief questions on the attached questionnaire. Your response to these questions, will help immeasurably to expedite our efforts to establish such a national training facility.

We recognize that before any final form can be given to any intergroup relations training program, that consultations must be held with governmental and private agencies and with senior faculty members at the universities having programs in this field. We have therefore, requested that if you are interested in such a training facility, that you designate a member of your staff, with whom members of our training project committee can confer about your specific needs.

Finally, along with the questionnaire, we have enclosed a memorandum outlining for your information, current training needs in the field and what we propose to do in order to meet these urgent needs.

Your coopration in this effort will be greatly appreciated.

Cordially yours,

Lloyd Davis
President

A PROPOSED NATIONAL TRAINING PROJECT

Of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials in cooperation with the Institute of Human Relations of the American Jewish Committee.

INTRODUCTION

The field of intergroup relations, fluid and evolving, comprises an amalgam of governmental and private agencies functioning nationally, regionally, locally, even at the neighborhood level. From a variety of fields, intergroup relations workers, have drawn and adapted the necessary techniques, and around these skills has developed a body of knowledge that incorporates both the research findings of the social sciences and the fruits of accumulated practical experience. To some degree all of the 1,600 professional intergroup relations workers possess something more than good-will and a commitment to basic democratic values. Important as the qualities are to advancement of civil rights goals, something more must be added or developed if "trial-and-error" methodology is to be avoided.

The time for almost exclusive reliance on learning through direct experience has passed. For one thing, the pace of social change is too rapid. Advances that once took months or even years of constant pressure and patient negotiation now occur overnight -- with the passage of a law, the decision in a law suit, the impact of a boycott or the issuance of an administrative order. For another thing, the problems of intergroup relations become more complex under the pressures of migration, urban renewal, automation, mass living, and world events. "Simple" matters of overt discrimination become complicated by population shifts in the center city, by patterns of demolition and relocation, by increasing demands for skilled workers, by by-products of ghetto isolation, and by independence granted to distant African nations.

Intergroup relations workers today must be taught more and must learn faster. If experience is the best teacher, it is also the slowest. Training is needed, and training opportunities are lacking, woefully lacking at a time when the field faces a critical manpower shortage. This demand for experienced intergroup relations workers, is growing at an unprecedented rate. Within the last few months, the Department of Defense, the Atomic Energy Commission, the Post Office Department, and other Federal agencies have created some forty new positions that require professionals from this field. With the anticipated full scale development of Federal fair employment, housing, educational, and other civil rights programs, we anticipate within the next year the creation of at least one hundred more such positions.

TRAINING CRISIS

Federal intergroup relations positions are presently being filled mainly from the top ranks of the state, county, municipal and private intergroup relations agencies -- at a time when these same agencies are themselves seeking to increase their own staffs. This problem will assume proportions of a crisis at the junior professional level, since there are no continuing flow of people qualified to fill jobs that will be vacated by junior workers moving into high echelon posts. In fact, intergroup relations agencies are already hard-pressed to find applicants who can meet minimum entrance requirements.

The dearth of qualified entrance-level applicants is due in largest measure to the almost-total absence of opportunities for intergroup relations training. There are, in fact, practically no programs or services geared to train people for work in intergroup relations agencies. When the field needed only 25-50 new junior professionals each year, it was possible to recruit these from allied fields and to offer intergroup relations training on the job. As the annual replacement need rises to 200-250, formal training programs become both possible and vitally necessary.

FEDERAL TRAINING NEEDS

In service training and orientation will be needed for new workers in Federal intergroup relations posts. Those with intergroup relations experience must be introduced to contract compliance and employment policy procedure; those coming from other fields will also need intergroup relations exposure. While this may be an internal function, it is one in which the Federal government needs and is seeking outside help, on a voluntary or contractual basis.

The need for intergroup relations training programs and services -- outside or inside the Federal structure -- will be magnified when (a) intergroup relations orientation is expanded to include government personnel who do not have primary intergroup relations responsibilities, (b) personnel are to be hired and trained for such intergroup relations program services as technical assistance in school desegregation situations, and (c) Federal recruitment of intergroup relations workers is extended to junior professional levels requiring less previous experience.

Federal training needs compound these long felt by private agencies, and perhaps especially by state and municipal agencies, on at least two levels: entrance or pre-professional training that includes some experience (e.g. internship programs, academic-field work programs), and in-service or professional advancement training. There is likely to be a distinct need for transitional or "re-thread" training for those who come to intergroup relations with professional experience in peripheral fields.

TRAINING RESOURCES

There are no intergroup relations training programs or services presently equipped to meet Federal and non-Federal agency needs. This situation has placed heavy responsibility on NAIRO, which as no other body can, symbolizes the breadth and scope of intergroup relations, and which must act and speak for the field, as its professional association, as well as upon private and public agencies, to see that the urgent training needs of the field are met swiftly and well.

NAIRO has been working in close cooperation during the past several months, with officials of the Institute of Human Relations of the American Jewish Committee, and with representatives of Federal, state, county, municipal and private agencies, toward the development of a first-rate training facility, which can service persons newly entering the field at the junior professional level, who require entrance or pre-professional training, those already in service, who have come to intergroup relations with experience in peripheral fields, those who require professional advancement training, those who do not have primary intergroup relations responsibilities, but who need some training and orientation and the specialized needs of evolving government and private agency programs.

The American Jewish Committee has conducted extensive training programs for its own professional and volunteer members over a period of years and NAIRO itself, has already conducted several very successful internship programs.

It is recognized that before any final form may be given to the intergroup relations training program, consultations must be held with governmental and national private agencies and with senior faculty members at the universities having programs in the field. It is further recognized that any such program must be sufficiently flexible to meet the varying needs of the agencies which will make use of it, and at the same time provide the necessary information to make it professionally sound. Such a program must among other things, be concerned with: (a) generic knowledge relating to the field of intergroup relations (b) various programmatic approaches to the problems in the field with special emphasis on the approach used by the agency employing the intergroup worker and (c) sensitizing the intergroup worker to the subleties of prejudice and discrimination; instructing him in methods and techniques used in the field and assisting him in an awareness of his own feelings and role in various situations likely to confront him.

It is believed that the design of any intergroup relations training program should reflect what is today known as the essential characteristics of an effective training experience. These are sensitivity training, skill training and knowledge derived from theory and practice. Wherever the objective of learning is a change in the behavior of the student, it is essential that all three phases of this unique learning process be reflected in the training design. Therefore, the training program should ideally enable the student to secure additional insight into his own behavior in group situations and also, the phenomena which are reflected in his work situation, although this phenomena may frequently be invisible to the uneducated eye. Hopefully, the student will emerge from this experience with a greater capacity to make more professional use of himself in the many group situations into which his work throws him.

It is presently anticipated that training programs will be scheduled for at least two week periods. In order to increase the impact of the training effects, it is thought, that such training should take place in a location sufficiently far removed from the work locations of the participants in order to create what is technically known as a "cultural island". It is estimated that tuition, including room and board, for a given training course would be approximately $200-$250 per participant. Agencies would have to meet travel, salary and other needs of their personnel.

It is expected that staff would consist primarily of persons thoroughly acquainted with the intergroup relations field, but who also have substantial experience in the implementation of training programs. Visiting consultants with special contributions would be brought in and university personnel would be used as supplementary resources rather than primary ones. Seminars would be utilized three to six months after the training program in order to have participants evaluate its effectiveness and realitivity to their on-the-job experiences. The Institute of Human Relations will administer this proposed national training program and NAIRO would serve in an on-going advisory and cooperative capacity and in this regard, both NAIRO and the Institute, will convene a broadly based and representative national advisory committee, to assist with matters of organization and programming.

SURVEY OF AGENCY TRAINING NEEDS AND INTEREST

In order to get this proposed nation-wide training program underway, three ad-hoc committees have been established for the purpose of (a) working out a proposed training design and selection of faculty (b) accessing training needs in the field and determining agency interest in the establishment and utilization of a national training facility and (c) securing adequate financial support for initial project planning and on-going training program needs.

Both items (a) and (c) are in large measure dependent upon item (b) "accessing training needs in the field and determining agency interest in the establishment and utilization of a national training facility" and in this regard, agencies are being requested to provide answers to a brief questionnaire which has been developed by the training committee. Agencies are further being requested to designate a representative to confer with members of the training committee about further aspects of the proposed training program. It is anticipated that these consulations will expedite the development of an acceptable training design and the implementation of the first initial training "pilot" project.

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

May I have your assistance in the following procedural matter:

The Southeastern Region is required to nominate three persons to a slate from which a national Nominating Committee will be selected. The duties of the Nominating Committee are to present a slate of officers and directors at the annual meeting.

Attached to this letter, you will find a list of NAIRO members from the Southeastern area. Please check the names of the three persons whom you wish to have nominated to the slate for selection to the Nominating Committee. I would appreciate your return of this ballot to me no later than September 17th.

I look forward to seeing you at the Annual Meeting in Washington, November 28 - December 1st.

Kindest regards.

Fred Routh, Executive Director

SUBJECT: NAIRO Board Meeting

This is short notice for those of you who were not present at the post-Conference Board Meeting when we set this date. Fred Routh has just returned from vacation and was without a secretary in December following Jane Leeds untimely death.

The NAIRO Board of Directors will meet in New York City at the Harlem Branch of the YMCA for 6:30 p.m. supper on Friday, January 24th and will continue its meeting that evening at the offices of the Urban League of Greater New York. Saturday, January 25th the NAIRO Board will meet from 9:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. at the Urban League of Greater New York. The Harlem Branch YMCA is located at: 180 West 135th Street in Manhattan; The Urban League of Greater New York is located at: 202 West 136th Street, New York 30, N. Y.

Will you please drop a note to Joe Allen at that address indicating whether or not you plan to attend the Board Meeting. We will have minutes from the Board Meetings and the Business Session of the Conference sent to you before this Board Meeting.

All good regards; we hope to see you as part of a large turn-out of Board Members and NAIRO Leaders to get the Association off to a running start for 1964.

MEMO to: NAIRO Nominating Committee, & to proposed nominees

From: Marsh Bragdon, Nominating Committee chairman

SUBJECT: The proposed 1964 slate, as shaped by telephone consultations among the Committee members.

Dear ~~Friends~~ Les —

Our slate-making is 11th hour, for which I apologize, without citing mitigating, or damning, reasons. . . The results, below, do answer (we believe) some criticism of the geographical 'skew' in the '63 leadership list; it also blends new talent and veteran strength. The Board list must be read in combination with those continuing as Directors: Will Campbell, Nashville; Geo. Culberson, D.C.; John Feild, D.C.; Harold Fleming, D.C.; Geo. Grier, D.C.; John Hope, D.C.; John Lassoe, N.Y.; Herman Long, Nashville; Lou Mason, Pittsburgh; John McDermott, Chicago; Paul Rilling, Chicago.

(Retiring: Fran Levenson, N.Y.; Fran Cousens, Detroit; Bill Berry, Chicago; Malcolm Higgins, Seattle; Alan Reitman, N.Y.; David Danzig, N.Y.)

Now, the slate: --

OFFICERS: President-elect, Kenneth C. Jones, Jr., Atomic Energy Com. DC

Vice-Presidents (2): Chester Gray, USAF, Cleveland; John Hope II, PCEEO, D.C.; Galen Martin, Kentucky HRC; Louis Mason, Jr., Pittsburgh HRC.

Treasurer: Irving Goldaber, N.Y. Commission on Human Rights.

Secretary: Barbara Moffett, AFSC, Philadelphia; Muriel Snowden, Freedom House, Roxbury, Mass.

BOARD (3 years; 7 to be elected):

John Buggs, Los Angeles HRC executive director.

Clifford ~~James~~ Campbell, Portland, Ore.; Ford Foundation consultant; ex-Chicago planner.

Leslie Dunbar, Executive director, Southern Regional Council, Atlanta.

Walter R. Greene, US Army; Detroit.

Arthur L. Johnson, executive secretary, Detroit NAACP.

Irving Levine, Ohio director, American Jewish Committee; Cleveland.

John McKnight, US Airforce; Chicago.

Robert Pitts, HHFA Region 6 deputy administrator; San Francisco.

James Reynolds, director Colorado Anti-Discrimination Comm.; Denver

Joseph Robison, American Jewish Congress, New York City

A. Abbott Rosen, Midwest director, Anti-Defamation League; Chicago.

Seymour Samet, Southeast director, American Jewish Committee; Miami.

Donald Slaiman, asst. director, AFL-CIO Civil Rights dept.; Washington

Wyatt T. Walker, exec. director, Southern Christian Leadership Conf., Atlanta

The Role of the Private Agency

There are a multiplicity of private agencies, local, regional, and national, concerned with some facet of intergroup relations and most of them are growing substantially. So, too, new agencies -- particularly on the local level -- are being created at an unprecedented rate. The resources which these agencies represent should be of particular concern to those interested in social reform.

This is particularly true since it is generally assumed that, whatever the response to social ills from the public sector, there will not be adequate resources and programs from that sector to meet the needs of the country. To the extent that this assumption is correct the recognition of the private agency, its contribution and its potential, becomes all the more important.

Considerable and appropriate consideration is now being given to the skills and resources which can be brought to bear on social issues from the business sector. Further, President Nixon has called on all citizens and groups to join the Administration's efforts to eradicate need and prejudice in the country. In this situation, the existence and role of the private agency looms much larger than many are aware.

There are a number of ways in which the private agency can contribute. In considering these, two things should be kept in mind. The private agency by the nature of its structure and support is generally free of many of the pressures which exist with the public agency. And, the private agency more often than not is tax-exempt and thereby removed from the immediate area of politics and partisanship which to some degree are inevitable parts of the public agency.

The most conspicuous,and important, resources of the private agency are the funds and talent which they command. These funds, to be sure, are small compared to those for the public agency. Nevertheless, they are significant particularly in a time when all resources are limited and inadequate. The talent is an even greater resource. The field of intergroup relations is a relatively new one and it is from the private agency that this field has been developed and these skills have been learned; more often than not by trial and error.

The public agency which has a program with which it is less than satisfied, or the public agency which is developing a new program, would be in error not to determine the private skills available for consultation and to utilize those skills to the fullest possible extent. So, too, within this public-private relationship, review and critique of public agencies and programs from the private intergroup relations sector should be not only tolerated but welcomed. We have seen a number of instances when public programs have been greatly strengthened by this process.

Frequently, over a period of years, the private agencies have developed programs and experience in "pioneer" areas which are later adopted by public agencies. Pre-school training and minority entrepreneurship represent examples, and the range, of these private agency explorations. As existing public programs are examined and new ones are developed, every effort should be made to assess the experiences and results of these private explorations.

Finally, private agencies can, in many instances, play a unique role in determining the nature and extent of our social and economic problems and of informing the public of the need to respond with urgency to these ills. No public program, no matter how soundly conceived, will, over the long run, be adequately funded or have an opportunity for success if the general public does not understand the need for such a program. Public agencies should give high priority to forming partnerships with private agencies toward the end of determining the nature and extent of problems, and their solutions. And, within this partnership, private agencies should give the highest priority to informing the public of the particulars of our current national crisis.

Dear Penny:

This will confirm that I will be in Washington on Monday, August 25th and would like to discuss a number of specifics with you and Fred and reach a number of conclusions about individuals to be' involved in the program. On that date please make arrangements for you, Fred, and I only to have lunch and please ask Fred to reserve some time following lunch so that the three of us can conclude these matters.

I will probably come up that morning and return that evening, but my schedule will depend, in part, on whether or not I will have other things to be taken care of while I am there.

Thanks, and best to you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mitchell Sviridoff
Vice President
Division of National Affairs
The Ford Foundation
320 East 43rd Street
New York, New York 10017

Dear Mike,

This year I have had the opportunity to serve again as President of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials. I have been the first person to be accorded this special honor in the history of the organization and this has placed a grave responsibility upon me to provide the kind of leadership which can keep the organization abreast of changing times and conditions.

I have called this year in the life of my NAIRO administration, a time of "Critical Self-examination". A period in which we must determine the relevancy of the organization, the field and the worker. I have had a national commission composed of some of our most distinguished practitioners looking into this matter and to hold hearings from one end of the country to the other. I expect to receive this report in early October and make it the basis of what will be a working national conference in November in Rochester. I have also had an Ad Hoc Committee of 18, which grew out of a Black Caucus meeting at our last national conference, probing this matter of relevancy.

F.Y.I.

We expect next month to meet with President Nixon to present to him the findings of a special Task Force which I appointed to examine the present state of the art of equal opportunity in the Federal Government and to make some very pointed recommendations.

I appointed a previous Task Force of this nature for President Kennedy and our recommendations became his guide to executive responsibility and intergroup relations.

As you know, one problem which has consistently plagued NAIRO during its twenty-one year history has been that of money; securing those funds necessary to enable it to have staff and perform membership services to such an extent that it can attract numbers and really become self-sufficient. Also, NAIRO has never had the advantage of NAHRO which has in fact received a HUD subsidy these many years. To help with funding, I secured the services of Francis P. Cotter, Vice President of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation. Frank has been going after corporate sources but this effort takes time and work done this year by Cotter may not pay off until next year or the year after.

I have recited the above in some detail because NAIRO faces an immediate financial crisis and a continued long-range unmet financial need. Immediately, we need $25,000 to see us through the current fiscal year which ends on December 31, 1969. Over the long run, 100 or 200 thousand dollars could provide us with the whatwithall to really gear up to not only be relevant to the times and the needs of our members, but to build that inhouse capability to finally become self-sustaining and sufficient.

I hope the Ford Foundation can be of some assistance to NAIRO. I believe it has performed a most useful purpose. I believe it can do better -- and must! I also believe it would have to be created if it did not already exist. I have enclosed some remarks which I recently made at Michigan State University and I hope they will give you some insight into my thinking about the organization, our field and our workers in these troubled but challenging times.

With warmest regards,

Lloyd Davis, Project Manager

DEGHETTOIZATION

BY CLARENCE FUNNYÉ

CHOICE OF THE NEW MILITANCY

When blacks were slaves on southern plantations, liberal northern whites consoled themselves with clever rationalizations about the comforts provided the "coloreds," and the happiness they enjoyed in their "own little areas watched over by (generally) benevolent white owners."

To further reconcile slavery with Christian teachings, missionaries were dispatched to obtain first-hand statements from "boss leaders" who, indeed, said in their own words that they were "carefree and contented people."

Since those early days, largely because of economic reasons, slavery and the plantation have changed form. Now we say deprived, underprivileged and disadvantaged for slaves, and ghetto or "the community" for plantation. Ghetto dwellers are supposed to have all rights of other citizens, but since blacks do not have such mobility, America, consistently Christian, has moved to salve conscience once again.

Immediately after fraudulent attempts failed to get blacks off these latter-day plantations and into the mainstream, original missionary rationalizations were updated. Black spokesmen were found who screamed into TV cameras that blacks wanted no part of the mainstream outside the ghetto. Under not-so-gentle prodding from new missionaries —now known as white liberals— some black "boss leaders" actually developed rational theories for not leaving the plantation.

One very popular theory is that confinement in all-black ghettos equals power—that allowing blacks out would deflate the power since there is a direct relationship between the number of blacks per square foot and the power enjoyed.

This theory was developed by Dr. Frances Piven, a white female from Columbia University's liberal School of Social Work who, strangely, has assumed the role of chief intellectual advocate of black manhood. Piven is usually assisted by a white male, Dr. Richard Cloward, and, as a team, they have been leaders in the ghettos-are-good for blacks school. One of Piven's main theses is that black men need time to develop full "manhood," and that mixing them up with whites at this point in history would be premature. They need the security of the ghetto.

The separatist line is a very popular one among white media people.

Black "boss leaders" have outdone themselves in speaking for "the community" in furtherance of ghettos forever. They were only supposed to back up white separatist notions and, as a spin-off, enjoy such other benefits as accrue to "leaders."

However, the new separatists have gone even further into the "militants as entertainment" bag. TV discussions on raising black armies, forcing a separate state, etc., provide a certain thrill for whites much like what the colonists got from watching Africans doing a war dance with paper spears. The white liberals appreciate this additional dividend and blacks who are suckered into such performances are rewarded with return engagements on prime TV. Their presentation is solely along the "hate whitey—we got our own bag—your house is burning down" sort of thing, much of which is true certainly. (But does a revolutionary army leader announce detailed plans for expansion of his army over the enemy's communication lines?)

The very nature of most performances belies seriousness—they call for no program, not even an "unreasonable response," no action, and, worst of all, are based on rather flimsy mandates.

There are other less sophisticated versions of the "ghettos forever" theory, but most hinge on the assumption — loudly backed up by chosen spokesmen

Mr. Funnyé is director of planning for the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing, and principal in the firm of Funnyé Associates, Architectural Engineers and City Planners, Brooklyn, N.Y. He is also a lecturer and design critic at the Pratt Institute school of architecture. Idea Plan Associates, mentioned in his article, is a nonprofit organization concerned with urban planning. Mr. Funnyé was one of its original founders, and is its Executive Director.

—that blacks now regard themselves somehow as natives to the ghetto, that they really don't care much for having their own little plot of land, with green grass and fresh air, not to mention good public services, safe streets, access to jobs, etc.

Some brothers have become so caught up in mumbolistic rhetoric that even when recalling "Africa and black heritage" they forget that blacks in Africa had all the green grass, open space and pollution-free air in the world, while American whites are mostly descendents of people who came from dim, dark, damp, smelly, overcrowded European ghettos. If anyone is to "reassert his heritage" by being confined to American ghettos it should be . . . . Anyhow, once the "boss leaders" got the cue about which lines would insure maximum media coverage, they were off and running.

They pushed ghettoization with a vengeance, denouncing everyone and anyone who suggested, even indirectly, that blacks were getting the shaft in ghettos while non-ghetto areas at least enjoy some of the fruits of . . . . Attending schools with whites became a "white thing," in addition to living downtown (outside), or studying economics.

White intellectual guardians of the black boss, of course, raked the cream of this new direction. They published hundreds of articles on how whites were generally benevolent and kind and good and just and would give money for housing, welfare, etc., so long as no one "pushed integration," especially in northern cities and suburbs. Dozens of new urban alternatives poured out of universities—all justifying a sort of updated Atlanta Compromise (recall Booker T.'s separate fingers theory.)

While one can understand and even sympathize with the few brothers who are used as tools in the imprisonment game, it is less easy to excuse some of the absolutely moronic nonsense coming out of supposedly intelligent white media.

Much of it is not even vaguely camouflaged. In August of 1968, a "planner" allegedly employed at Columbia University (again Columbia) seriously suggested that blacks could be passively led into the ultimate ambush by accepting, as their "own," black new towns built on portions of U.S. Army bases. The base, according to this "planner," would also provide employment and a feeling of security (again security). In further demonstration of the inexhaustable arrogance of the new missionaries (friends of the Negro), he even outlined a budget and a development program complete with suggested black leaders.

Now the tragedy of all this is not the time and energy wasted in writing and reading, printing and distributing such obvious non-solutions. The tragedy is that the momentum of ghetto preservation is being translated into long- and short-range urban planning and development programs. The myth is becoming the method. Urban poverty programs, Model Cities, newly updated ghetto economic development programs like the new-jobs-in-the-ghetto syndrome (as reflected in the so-called CORE plan, sometime derisively called the CORE-Nixon Plan for Black Capitalists), and the Kennedy effort in Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant, are examples of ghetto preservation programs.

All these non-solutions give the illusion of movement, cooling the ghetto — even "involving" the militant/separatist — while, in fact, they often aggravate the basic problem.

A closer look is instructive. The war on poverty has all the fury of two giants dueling with powder puffs. It was supposed to divert pressure from integration of labor unions and divert blacks' attention from City Hall. Both objectives have been accomplished, and old-line civil rights activists are now establishment folk with five-foot desks, secretaries, and mimeograph machines on which to run off endless proposals for special projects.

When a few thinking brothers questioned the war on poverty, they were given Model Cities. It is supposed to involve the community in planning for its own neighborhood.

Here is the ultimate absurdity; who the hell ever heard of involving blacks in anything, much less city planning. New York City has had a City Planning Commission since 1937. No black person has ever been seriously considered for membership, yet badly-needed housing programs in at least three ghetto areas are being stalled while the City tranquilizes "the community" with illusions of power under Model Cities.

The Kennedy effort in Brooklyn is a kind of private Model Cities program. It seeks to fix up and bring industry into the ghetto, and do those other nice things necessary for "economic development." In true missionary spirit, the first large contract (that for architectural and planning services) went to a "monumental" architectural firm which is alleged to have employed its first black architect after signing the contract. Some local leaders timidly noted that the design and planning contract could have been used to develop some black A-E (Architect-Engineer) firms, which after a time would be selling services to a larger community, thus forming an economic base. The leaders observed that blacks make up an insignificantly small part of the active design industry, and that development of this economic activity was as important as allowing black trainees to participate in painting of brownstone facades.

The response was that the scale of the work required an architect-planner of stature to inspire investment, etc., so the quarter of a million dollars for this service went—while much ado was made of the employment of black draftsmen or their use in minor rehabilitation work.

The Kennedy effort in Brooklyn is plodding bravely ahead even though the Senator himself is gone.

To date, they have planned a superblock, used 32 Bedford-Stuyvesant craftsmen and 272 "B-S youths" to rehabilitate 394 brownstones (exteriors only).

They are fixing up an old bottling plant (abandoned several years ago for good economic reasons) as a multiservice center, and they laud IBM's moves to construct a plant "in the community." For all the fanfare, the plant is not an economic bootstrap of the ghetto—it will provide jobs only, not investment or ownership potential. The plant is close to workers of the "B-S" ghetto, but why all the concern to bring new plants and national industries into the ghetto? That's where the least land exists, and where problems of relocation are most severe.

Neighborhood people in candid moments express grave doubts about the investment, noting that blacks can travel to jobs anywhere in the city, or city-fringe for that matter. That if the Kennedy people really wanted to be helpful, they could have bought the Brooklyn Navy Yard and turned it over to the community corporation to develop. That IBM, like Xerox in Rochester, could have built the plant and turned it over to the community with a guarantee to purchase all products for the first ten or fifteen years, if they wanted to get serious.

The most recent ghetto preservation scheme is one close to the heart of President Nixon—and Rosemary Gunning, New York Conservative. That is the CORE plan, essentially a "self-help" project to pool ghetto resources with government subsidies in so-called Community Development Corporations.

Broadly, these CPCs would be responsible for everything which is now done in black communities by anti-poverty, Model Cities, Medicare et al as a sort of umbrella coordination-direction. The bill, H.R. 18715, proposed in the last session of Congress, aims at creation of ghetto jobs in the ghetto. The sole unique quality is a mechanism for individuals from the ghetto community to participate by purchasing shares or by sweat equity (work).

One source estimates the cost of carrying out the proposal's objectives at $20 billion, a reallocation of economic resources that has only happened during major war mobilizations. Few have any illusions about this proposal being taken seriously either by government or local people. A few brothers, not those of mini-vision, have begun to see all of these programs as divisionary at best and, at worst, as an updating of that old plantation mentality.

Some of these brothers only a few years ago were mesmerized by the West 114th Street demonstration project in Harlem, which demonstrated that if one had $6.5 million one could rehabilitate 36 buildings for 380 families without moving out a soul and only raise the rent 30 or 40 per cent. The full cost of this demonstration has not yet been made public. (To be fair, I should point out that the outlay included money for social services—construction of a day-care center, and counseling in the care of rehabilitated buildings.) But even if we use the low figure of $6.5 million for 380 families, it is over $17,000 spent to insure continued confinement in what one black police inspector calls the worst crime area in the city—where each night at least three locks and a police bar are clicked on each of the newly rehabilitated apartment doors; where older ladies dare not venture out after dark, except in groups of two, three or four; and where, even by day, a varied assortment of criminals and drug addicts intermingle with children at play on this demonstration street. This is "security?"

114th Street is more or less typical of the "security" of ghetto confinement. It seems that the only people who are able to romanticize the urban ghetto as a power base or as an incubator of black manhood are people who don't have to live there—people like Roy Innis who moved out years ago, Fran Piven who never lived there, and preachers and politicians who continue to run their game on trapped subjects and maintain a ghetto address as fronts—and still others who recall the glory days of the twenties when Harlem was the city's brothel and its streets were safer for everybody because they were used by whites.

If there were any relationship between blacks per square foot and power enjoyed, Harlemites would be the most powerful people in the world. Last time heard from, they didn't even have a Congressman and were forced to accept from New York City a sewage treatment plant rejected by even the weakest white community. Big universities, which they do not attend, were gobbling up their real estate and being paid millions of foundation dollars just to acknowledge the existence of "the community." Its politicians have sat flat-assed while a city-owned university in its midst remains lily-white and yearly hands out thousands of free automatic "middle-class" admission cards to white people who will, a few years later, mournfully "lament the lack of qualified black people to fill positions of importance." This is power?

It is way past time to call a spade a spade and get on to where we have to go. First, blacks in America do not regard the ghetto as their special preserve.

While all get a certain special feeling from acknowledgement of African heritage, none is seriously thinking of returning to Africa—even if the African brothers wanted them to. The fact is that the black man in America is as western in values and orientation as the western white man. He has the same standards of success, moral code and gods, both secular and otherwise. He seeks access to the same system of rewards and aims to provide his family with the same modicum of security.

When helplessly trapped in a low status, he feels as frustrated and angry as any other man. And while he does not reject blackness and community (self-seeking separatists notwithstanding) he sees that a community of culture and spirit is not dependent on physical confinement. Moreover, even before the planners noticed, the word was already out that manufacturing jobs in the city were going out to the suburbs. Pitifully inadequate reverse-commuter car pools have been going from Harlem to Westchester and Putnam Counties for years. NCDH (the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing) recently documented the widespread character of this trend and predicts that it will accelerate in spite of puny efforts to the contrary. Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Baltimore, Philadelphia and San Francisco are just a few of the major cities experiencing rapid dispersal of jobs in manufacturing, trade, and personal services.

Blacks have tried manfully, and to little avail, to hold on by car pools and reverse commuting. NCDH studies show that reverse transportation is not available, or too time-consuming, and too expensive. The NCDH study belittles efforts to bring jobs into the ghetto and says future job creation is going to be primarily in suburban areas, but the unskilled population is going to be more and more concentrated in central city ghettos unless there is a national strategy of deghettoization and movement of many nonwhites to outlying areas.

Deghettoization — a designed and deliberate process for programmed elimination of the forced urban ghetto — was first developed by Idea Plan Associates more than four years ago. Essentially it involves a two-pronged attack on vast ghettos. Ghettos exist at least in part because of poverty—not only group poverty, but the sum total of individual poverty, and individual poverty is eliminated by a good job followed by better housing choices, usually outside the ghetto.

Cities have, over the years, developed very good mechanisms to transform relatively poor, rough people into qualified members of the middle class. Even the smallest city operates at least one junior or senior college—usually free or almost free—and a host of "special program schools." These systems worked in urbanizing the present white middle class but have been preempted by established "elitist" or would-be elitist fiefdoms and special interest groups to the detriment of blacks and Puerto Ricans (who ironically constitute the bulk of raw material for any new urban middle class).

New York City, because it is biggest and claims to have the worst problems, may be a good illustration of a city committing suicide with its urbanization resources. Its famed city university system contains an estimated 150,000 students, only 2 per cent of whom are black and Puerto Rican. Preliminary attempts of the new underclass to cut into the action are met with all kinds of evasive delaying and diversionary mumbo jumbo cloaked in finest academic rationalization about why blacks are not qualified to participate more fully in this university of all the people.

While over half of the city's civil service workers, including its teachers, are products of the city university, its admission standards have been escalated toward keeping down the number of "undesirables." An institution which should be narrowing a very dangerous gap is, in fact, moving full steam ahead in widening the gap and, of course, making more cataclysmic the eventual confrontation.

There is an alternative: Set aside at least 25 per cent of all city university seats for blacks and Puerto Ricans. One quarter of 150,000 is 37,500 seats. If after two to four years 25 per cent of that figure were graduated with A.A. or B.A. degrees, there would be nearly 10,000 new taxpayers. Five years after the start-up period, 50,000 black and Puerto Rican families would be subtracted from the welfare-services-consuming class and added to the revenue-producing class. At 2.5 children per family, this would mean 175,000 people. Given present policies, one could expect the welfare burden to increase by 175,000 persons during the same period.

It is not expected that professors at C.U. will welcome this kind of cost-benefit approach to a city problem. One could, of course, question whether their "welcome" is relevant. They are, after all, only employees of the city—contrary to popular opinion. They do not own the system, and their desires for an ampli[illegible] developments—unrelated to requirements of real life—do not serve the city's interest. The same kind of directed approach must be applied to all other systems directly owned, or indirectly influenced by the city.

Deghettoization implies a political savvy not yet evidenced by ghetto people who now only vaguely appreciate the importance of their political weight. It will require a widely-developed system of political trade-offs and group bargaining in City Councils and Boards of Estimate downtown, not uptown fiddling around with peanuts in Model Cities or poverty programs.

Deghettoization requires that ghetto dwellers be converted to city dwellers with city-wide concerns and involvement at least on a political level. Ghetto dwellers must turn outward to the larger city, not inward.

Housing policies in deghettoization must be regional. Some things are immediately obvious: 1) Cities cannot continue to contain a disproportionate share of the regional poor; 2) suburban land policies must be thrown out or sharply brought around to the new realities, namely that regional land and policies thereof are concerns of all the region's citizens (states with big-city problems and uncooperative suburbs should take back their zoning powers from the cities and suburbs and, on a state level, zone areas to maximize opportunities and choices for all citizens); and 3) building codes should be treated just like zoning ordinances—abolished and/or returned to state hands with only the barest requirements consistent with health and safety (building codes are often used to prevent the construction of low-income housing).

These requirements would be certified as met when the drawings are stamped or sealed by a registered engineer or architect. There are other impediments to the rapid production of housing required for deghettoization—such as labor shortage, or tax structures which favor [illegible] land and speculation. State zoning could fix the latter, while a halt in subsidizing of union discrimination, and nationalization of the apprentice-training programs, would fix the former.

With preliminary steps laid out, the metropolitan area that wants to plan rationally can get on with solving its ghetto (housing) problem through planned deghettoization.

To illustrate: Take a sample metropolitan area of 1,600,000 people, including a ghetto of 400,000 (a metropolitan area is deemed to include a central city and its inner-ring suburbs). Using a system of planned new towns in the outlying areas, housing could be built to provide flexibility for deghettoization.

METROPOLITAN AREA ghetto	non-ghetto	NEW TOWNS
400,000	1,200,000
−100,000	−300,000	+400,000

By building one new town of 400,000 (or two of 200,000 each) in the outlying area and moving in 25 percent of the ghetto and non-ghetto metropolitan population, then moving the remaining ghetto population into vacancies created in non-ghetto metropolitan areas, by the 300,000 white moveouts we would theoretically have zero people in the old ghetto. Very conceivably, all residents of the ghetto will not want to move out, and the success of deghettoization does not require it.

If only 50 per cent chose to move, either to outlying areas or into the filter-down housing, it would still result in drastic loosening up of the rental market, requiring landlords to compete for tenants or go out of business. Thus, even ghetto dwellers who elected not to move are benefited by deghettoization. The new town component is not essential to deghettoization but does afford a compacted controlled housing situation, and from a planning standpoint in terms of land economics, anti-sprawl measures, efficiency of scale, etc., would seem to be most advantageous. But the important thing is that the housing surplus is built for and directed toward the goals outlined.

The city could take several internal steps to enhance the benefits from deghettoization.

Surplus in-city land, federal facilities, or closed military bases are excellent sites for in-city new towns of 50,000 to 60,000 persons for major cities; 10,000 to 20,000 for middle-sized cities. In 1967, partly at the suggestion of Idea Plan Associates, the federal government did a study of the quantity of federal land that for all practical purposes is surplus land within the city. This study has not yet been released, but this land is thought to be considerable—in one large Eastern city some 1,800 acres have been located in five government installations of various sizes, either partly or totally abandoned.

To sum up deghettoization benefits:

1. Reduction of city rents; stabilization of the housing market.
2. Better flexibility in in-city planning and development.
3. Enhancement of the city as a viable, balanced place to live should encourage return of the middle class.
4. Accelerated reduction in dependent welfare population both through increased urbanization and access to suburban-based employment.
5. Reduction in cost of city services provided to former ghetto.

To deghettoize, we must close out the present phase of thoroughly inadequate response to city-metropolitan problems of city-metropolitan scale.

Black separatist "entertainers" should not let themselves be used to deceive whites into believing they can solve "the problem" merely by updating old plantation techniques.

Brothers and their friends who know better should stop romanticizing Harlem and the other unsafe, spirit-killing, ambition-stifling, anachronistic residential pockets of blight and neglect which "militant entertainers" now call "our community."

The crisis calls for a newer, higher form of militancy—one that avoids getting snared in the diversionary Model Cities trap and one that keeps an eye on the big ball where the power is, and that's not in a model neighborhood headquarters.

Any community which turns away from the real fight—the fight at city hall, in state capitols, and in Washington—and turns in on itself will certainly lose out to find itself out-foxed again.

Good reasonably-priced housing, access to jobs and job opportunities, fresh air and green grass—insofar as there is any left—should be shared by all equally. We are now talking about survival as men running free, not people consigned forever to modern plantations just because some men with mini-visions believe it the right course, or lack the courage to try what they know to be the hard course.

Perhaps what the country needs most of all is to acknowledge that blacks are here to stay and intend to force solutions to problems of residual slavery. It is tranquil to toy with non-solutions such as community development corporations, Model Cities, or anti-poverty. If "the community," meaning black America, is to participate in planning for itself, the tools are already there on the urban scene, citywide—the city council, city planning boards and commissions, boards of education, central and local, regents, state education systems, etc. Diversionary programs sap energy and merely give a fleeting illusion of sharing in power. The new militancy will correctly assess these diversions. The momentum of the civil rights struggle was yielded for too low a return—two or three billions in urban programs is peanuts. An updated and enlightened militancy will recognize this and move toward creation of a real urban lobby at least as powerful and tenacious as the gun lobby. Blacks can form the nucleus of such a lobby.

Blacks need not reject interim diversionary programs outright. A small sub-committee in the community could be left to haggle over and amuse themselves with division of the crumbs from the tables of power. But the real thinkers will keep their eyes on where it's at.

"All I can say is we should check out the action wherever it is.
We don't all have to be in the ghetto
just to be brothers.
Calling a prison a community don't make it so."

BLACK POWER AND DEGHETTOIZATION

a retreat to reality

by CLARENCE FUNNYÉ

EVERYONE TALKING ABOUT revolution ain't making none — and those making it ain't talking — so sometimes a revolution being made or in the making is hard to spot.

But not so at Philadelphia last weekend when brothers and sisters met at the Third International Conference on Black Power. The first revolutionary sign one noticed was the dress. African gowns, bubos, dashikis were worn by 75 per cent of the conference. Fifty per cent of the brothers and nearly all sisters wore Afro hairdos — even those sisters whose hair, having been spoiled by miscegenation or something, required artificial curling.

There were brothers from Africa who sort of blended right in, identified only by clip British or French accents or more modified Afro hair style.

But the presence of the African brothers was most important for the internationalization of the black question in America. This was revolutionary. Both Malcolm and King had been put away for trying to or seeming to accomplish this simple act. But it was being done anyway.

The gathering had many interesting facets. Recalling that less than five years ago even the Africans in America sported only the close-cropped "American boy" hair style, one finds it hard to believe that attitudes could change so radically especially among the black middle class. These were the "style setters" making it fashionable to think black — not just out of reaction to white rejection but to embrace blackness, a spiritual return to the African soil. It felt damn good.

The conference was officially to deal with the "how" of black power acquisition. The list of conference subject areas read like a university catalog: everything from "economic control of the black community" to "the white man's war in Vietnam" and "Zionism and black genocide." Like most university catalogs the subjects were largely unrelated to what was taught or talked about.

This is understandable. It is always easier to control the printing of the program.

The traditional conference in America is a peculiar institution having a variety of purposes rarely realistically related to the title. They are used to maneuver for professional or technical status, employment, or an opportunity to blow hard. Few listen, everyone awaits his turn to talk. Blacks in the United States are American — by and large more American than most — and their institutions often unintentionally mimic the structure of white institutions. So it was that the BPC ended up being a reduced (or amplified, depending on one's point of view) version of a conference of city planners, economists, sociologists, the U.S. Army Reserve Association, an international fashion bazaar, and cheer-leader rally — all rolled into one.

This was no poor people's conference. A $10 registration fee and $1 to $2 fees for participation in major group events, including the keynote speech by Karanga, was paid by largely middle-class college students, teachers, lawyers, program directors, et al. — some militant, some radical, some revolutionary, some looking for something to be. All came to get the new word, to press the flesh of the "grass roots," and establish via attendance alone credentials of awareness or at least of concern. Concern for the plight: rapidly deteriorating conditions of black men in America — and some to talk revolution.

The program may have been too ambitious. For, aside from the very good feeling of fraternity and fellowship, most of the workshops and, more importantly, the informal sessions off the floor showed inconsistent understanding of the depth or seriousness of the black condition, or why and how it is getting worse.

The Workshop on Economics — Black Self Help, which was to deal with the "formation of black economic concepts and developing an independent black economic system in which the Black Nation can survive collectively," was led by Sonny Carson of Brooklyn CORE who admitted "I don't know nothing about economics" and a sociology student from the University of Chicago who blew hard about East African history while rejecting any suggestion of irrelevance of Tanzania land and mineral wealth to the plight of urban Black Americans, who have neither land nor wealth.

Elsie Y. Cross presented a competent paper on cooperatives which, like other papers, was received tolerantly but quickly pushed aside to discuss "slave debt" owed by the Federal Government. Reginald Jones of Brooklyn, whom Carson described as one of the brightest men on the scene, noted that 10 acres and a mule, promised each free slave family and never delivered by the Federal Government, was at 4 per cent interest now worth over a quarter of a million dollars and the blacks could use this money to develop their own community. Jones also suggested that "can-shaking" (appealing to ghetto dwellers to put some coins in a can) could yield millions of dollars which could be used to bring industry into black communities, which could then become self-sufficient. Traditional cheer-rally rhetoric — hardly ever taken seriously.

Not all of the audience applauded. Several actually challenged Carson's qualifications to lead the discussions. Carson was honest — he didn't expect to have to lead the number one workshop. Cyril Tyson of New York was supposed to be chairman. But he never showed up.

Sonny was only doing what he could to pinch hit, but the challenges pressed on . . .

One delegate shouted that the assembly was continuing to bulls - - t, that people didn't come hundreds of miles to hear jive-time clichés about ghetto gilding and economic development of ghettos while ghetto income continues down in both absolute and relative terms — blacks are locked into central cities while industries and jobs move out — and new industrial development accelerates in all-white suburbs.

A brother from Detroit angrily asked: "How in hell we're gonna talk about economic development when the bulk of black people are being separated by training or distance from jobs which have formed the base economy of black people? We going to just feed on each other?"

A cute sister chimed, "Yeah how? Driving into here we saw dozens of factories outside the city . . . no brothers out there making any that bread . . . we can't all live on the industry that can be built in ghettos."

The panel leaders were reeling now. They did not expect to talk about regional or even citywide considerations. Previous black power rhetoric had only programmed them for "bringing industry into our own community." Alfred Rhodes shot back that those were "white men's factories out there in the suburbs"— and all hell broke loose.

"What the hell you mean white men's factories?" a brother from Chicago shouted. "When your government takes from tax money 40 billion bucks and gives it to some 'private' airplane company to build some goddam SST plane, baby that factory is yours no matter where he builds it — west hell or an all-white suburb — and you better start getting your stuff together and figure out some way to get out there and get some that action."

Carson called for order, but the assembly chorused "let's hear the brother." The brother paused and pressed on. "We been sold a lot a junk about bringing industry into our own communities . . . Check it out. See how much land a modern factory takes up, how much vacant land is there in 'our communities'? Man, just to build a tot lot we have to tear down three houses and move 30 families . . . and the already overcrowded ghetto — what you call 'our community' — gets even more crowded. It's land-locked by white suburbs, not getting bigger just getting higher, and babies keep being born and needing more space and where they gonna live? Where will their apartment buildings be? Where we gonna put those damn factories you gonna bring in?

"While some of you untogether niggers fighting each other about control of a lousy $400,000 poverty program, another white factory gets $4 billion in government funds to build a space ship or some such stuff — and they set up in the wide open country, build houses for whites, and you don't even notice. I say we got to get our eye back on the ball. Sure, control your own communities — but don't just stop there. You're not just citizens of the ghetto. Watch what the man is doing in economic, national and regional affairs. Watch where the subsidies are going for construction of bridges, highways, regional sewer plants, waterworks, missile test centers, anything and everything.

"Don't buy this bull that just because you might want some clean air and green grass for your kids that makes you some kind of imitation white man. Dig it, we ain't no more native to the ghetto than the white man is native to America. Fact is, if it weren't for him, we'd be back in Africa where we'd have more fresh air, open space and green grass than anyone in the world."

(Cheers and applause.)

Now the brother was slowing down — pacing himself for effect — he had the audience — now thoughts were being planted. "All I say is we should check out the action wherever it is. We don't all have to be in the ghetto just to be brothers. Calling a prison a community don't make it so."

This was it, out in the open on the floor: the long smoldering ideological conflict between people interested in "how now?" Between cheer-rally types whose forte is the anti-white or pro-black "blow hard," who see the future of black communities limited to "control" of Model Cities or anti-poverty boards and the government funds coming into the community — between these people and those who see both anti-poverty and Model Cities as diversionary non-solutions intended to absorb community energy and obscure the fact that the traditional urban ghetto ("our community") is fast becoming the western white man's instant concentration camp, and who also see community survival directly related to the number of brothers who can escape the ghetto and that a community of culture and spirit does not depend on geographical confines — especially if those confines facilitate physical destruction.

The brother had brought it out into the open — that sub-surface struggle which had been straining to get a full hearing. For three years now — since the decline of the traditional civil rights phase — the latter forces had been in partial retreat, while ghetto builders sneeringly asked "what's so good about being next to a white man?" (integration) Now the answer is, "nothing — except being able to watch that mother . . ."

A planner from Brooklyn noted that "Harlem is already efficiently encircled and could be completely isolated and closed off in 20 or 30 minutes by a single regiment," but that if half of the present residents — say 200,000 — lived strategically all over the city, such an obvious capture would be less tempting to white planners and blacks could still "control Harlem."

Already white planners are developing black new town schemes to re-confine the brothers who have escaped to the suburbs. An article appearing in the August 1968 issue of Progressive Architecture urges that a black new town be built on 6,000 acres of Fort Dix land in New Jersey. The fort would serve a double purpose, providing training and employment for black workers and instant urban stability.

Julius Brown, a Los Angeles economist, said the separatist brothers were buying a virgin pig in a blanket — that the few dozen non-thinking cliché peddlers were leading some unsuspecting people down a garden path. It's no accident that the articles most loudly espousing total black ghettoization have been in white publications including the liberal New Republic. The intellectual basis for Floyd McKissick's and Roy Innis's separatist positions were said to have been formed by Fran Piven and Dick Cloward, white sociologists from Columbia University's School of Social Work.

The separatist brothers were taken aback by vigorous attack of brothers who urged blacks to "become city dwellers as opposed to ghetto dwellers." The new breed brothers had made a good point about turning one's back on the billions of dollars given suburban plants for development of SST while squabbling over Model Cities peanuts. Previously such thoughts would have been put down by anti-white clichés ("the brother just wants to rub shoulders with whitey") but the separatists had done no homework and slogans were being battered down in the face of reality.

Ron Karanga, the West Coast version of the new Malcolm, led the attack in his keynote speech. Partially repudiating Omar Ahmed's opening call for acquisition of guns and formation of a black militia, Karanga said, "Sometimes brothers get so hung up in the myth of revolution that they talk about bringing America to her knees and can't even wipe out one police station."

Two, three years ago activists with an education were the subject of subtle ridicule — "middle class-bourgeois." Karanga told the delegates that "Negroes" who envy leaders who have an education don't understand revolution — Mao had an education; Nkrumah had an education; all people who have waged revolution have had an education. He called for abandonment of sloganism, for hard thinking, planning, and action. In one-and-a-half hours Karanga was interrupted by applause 30 times, and the tone of the conference was set. Issues were to be confronted, and stage made ready for moving into a newer more serious phase.

Hundreds of man-hours were spent talking and thinking about . . . serious things . . . how to move the untogether nigger from jive-time rhetoric to action . . . how to evolve a kind of collective racial therapy to get black men to act more manly toward their women, children, and families. Most particularly, how to get black men to be real fathers to their sons, spend more time guiding and providing leadership and positive examples for them.

Manhood means responsibility, said Philadelphia's Walter Palmer, and "black manhood is not just a penis and a gun." Palmer was roundly cheered. Only two years ago this was taboo talk — not in public, certainly!

Now serious facts were being faced — and at a militant black power conference. This group had within two years made the African bubo, and the dashiki and Afro hairdos not just acceptable but very popular and even commonplace in the black community — which is wherever black people move. Now they were moving out into more difficult areas: responsible community security, manhood and family responsibility were being decreed not just desirable but necessary for black survival.

The smokescreens of ghetto rebuilding poverty projects and Model Cities programs were seen for what they are — at best, temporary "band-aid" solutions; at worst, diversionary non-solutions. Conference recommendations took note of regional planning and citywide concerns, calling for a national black institute to monitor planning and economic programs for their impact on the black community; for a national black army to control white violence. Black intellectuals and professionals are being accorded new status and responsibility while they extend new respect, fraternity, and understanding to the black masses — in other words, the growth of real community.

One of the poems presented by black poets at the conference was entitled "niggers are very untogether people" — but there is ample evidence that this is becoming less and less true.

My dear Senator McGovern:

While I certainly understand, we are deeply disappointed that you cannot be with us in Rochester on November 21st.

I am passing your letter on to Mr. Frederick B. Routh, Executive Director, NAIRO, with the suggestion you make about Mr. Wolinsky.

We are grateful for the consideration you have given this matter.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Anthony:

I have been trying to hold my schedule open for the luncheon in Rochester on November 21, 1969. It now appears, however, that Senate business in Washington will make it impossible for me to be present.

I indicated in my earlier letter that this might be a possibility, but I was anxious to accept your invitation. I hope this late change in plans does not cause too great a problem.

If I may, I suggest Mr. Adam Walinsky as an alternative. Mr. Walinsky was legislative assistant to the late Senator Robert Kennedy. He is now in New York State and is extremely knowledgeable in the areas of interest to your membership.

Once again thank you for your consideration throughout.

With best wishes for a successful meeting,

Sincerely,

George McGovern

Dear Marshall:

I was unable to attend the last meeting of the NAIRO Board in Rochester. However, the program plans which I submitted were done orally by Fred following the trip I made to Washington to brief him on it. These plans were a direct outgrowth of my having discussed them with the board in St. Louis in the spring and having had, I thought, its unanimous agreement to proceed with them. In fact, my only disappointment during the summer was that few of the board followed through on their promises to do specific things to help me supplement the original outline. The essense of this was that except for necessary business sessions the entire meeting, in relative small groups, would be an attempt to have the NAIRO members grapple with the most immediate problems of our profession at this time. These included, for instance, school integration, police-community relations, the new administration, the role of youth, economic development, the emerging Mexican-American movement, etc. In rejecting these plans at the Rochester meeting the Board decided the state of NAIRO -- financially and otherwise -- was such that the entire meeting should be devoted to the questions, "Who Are We?", "Where Do We Go From Here?", etc., which sounds to me both highly repetitious and an open invitation for the kind of meaningless rangling that was clearly evident in Philadelphia. I am confident this will be even more in evidence at the Rochester meeting unless some real meat is put into the program.

Quite candidly, I was an idiot to take on this responsibility since I have had so little time, and in one sense I am very relieved to no longer have it.

As I indicated in the letter, my only point of anger and embarrassment was to have to un-invite those persons who had agreed to participate, some of whom having accepted only after substantial arm-twisting.

I sincerely hope I am wrong, but I have the greatest doubts about the future of NAIRO.

Warmest regards.

Sincerely,

Dear Paul:

The copy of your letter to Lloyd Davis, just received today, is the only information I've gotten on the Board's action on to reject the program plan you submitted. Is there a copy of the plans you submitted which I could see? I'm mystified & concerned.

Dear Fred:

As a long-time personal friend beginning in our college years, and Lord knows how long ago that was, as a colleague here in the South and in the Council during the dark '50's, and as a continuing friend and colleague, I want to rewffirm my affection and friendship. Also, for all of the Members of the Southern Regional Council and the staff, please know we wish you well in whatever you select as your next worthwhile endeavor.

You have served NAIRO long and well, and those of us here who have been able to work with you in that organization are genuinely grateful.

A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO NAIRO MEMBERS AND FRIENDS from Ed Howden, President

As indicated in the enclosed memorandum, NAIRO is losing Fred Routh after almost eight years' distinguished service.

Some of us are putting together two kinds of expression of appreciation of Fred's many important and lasting contributions to our common cause: first, a compilation of letters, appropriately bound or otherwise assembled; second, a hand-lettered scroll, mounted and framed.

Those of you who wish to write one of these letters to Fred and/or share in the cost of the volume and scroll may do so by sending same to NAIRO Treasurer

MARK ISRAEL
5611 Glenwood Road
Bethesda, Maryland 20034.

In view of the modest cost involved and the large number of colleagues expected to respond, a dollar or so each should suffice.

Quick response would be most helpful. Final date for receipt of the letters will have to be Monday, January 12, 1970.

Dear Paul:

Greetings from the Capital City on the Potomac; it was good to talk with you earlier this afternoon. This will confirm our invitation to you to be a panel speaker at the luncheon session, Thursday, March 26th, at the Annual Conference of the National Civil Liberties Clearing House. The topic is (roughly) "Civil Rights in the '70s: Where We Are, Where We're Going." We would like you to address this matter from the Southern perspective. We will let you know, well in advance, who are the other two panelists.

Meanwhile, warmest and best regards to all my friends at SRC and in-and-about Atlanta and, of course, a lion's share for you.

Cordially,

Fred

MEMORANDUM

TO All Members of the NAIRO Personnel Committee

FROM Alfred E. Cowles, Chairman of the Personnel Committee

DATE February 5, 1970

SUBJECT NAIRO Personnel Interviews for the position of Executive Director

Three members of the Personnel Committee participated in interviews in New York City on Monday, February 2, 1970. We are planning to have additional interviews in Chicago and San Francisco by March 1, to provide an opportunity to personally interview every applicant for this position. I am hereby inviting all members of the Personnel Committee to take part in the interviewing process as your time and other commitments permit.

The Personnel Committee will meet at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago on Monday, February 23, 1970, from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., to interview candidates from the Midwest and the South. Interviews will take place in a suite that I have reserved at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. I am inviting you to assist us in Chicago on this date. I am very grateful to have had the assistance of Mr. Galen Martin, from Kentucky, and Mr. Tyre Broomfield, from Dayton, Ohio, during our interviews in New York earlier this week. We will complete our interviews by the end of this month by spending one day in San Francisco, where we will interview all the candidates from the West Coast.

I want to present to the NAIRO Board the recommendations of the Personnel Committee by March 1, 1970.

FROM: Penny Wright, NAIRO Office

Ed Howden has asked me to remind everyone of the forthcoming Board Meeting.

PLACE: Chicago, Illinois - The Lake Tower Inn (At Lake Shore Drive and Ohio) (312-787-4700)

TIME: Friday and Saturday, June 26th and 27th, beginning promptly at 10:00 a.m.

(Friday evening will be free and the Saturday meeting should be over in the early afternoon.)

Ed says "This is an urgent and possibly crucial meeting," and he asks that everyone make every effort to attend.

He also asks that anyone wishing to bring up matters under the heading of "New Business" be in touch with him in advance of the meeting. His address is: 191 Upper Terrace, San Francisco, California 94117, and his office telephone number is: (415-556-2485).

He would like to remind everyone that one of the items on the Agenda will be the proposal for a new name. To quote from the President's Box in the forthcoming Newsletter he says,"Many of our members are not 'officials,' some are not encompassed by 'National'. And many feel that Intergroup Relations does not today go to the guts of the problems with which we wrestle."

PLEASE INDICATE ON THE ENCLOSED POSTCARD WHETHER OR NOT YOU CAN ATTEND.

Dear Ed:

At some future date I would like very much to talk with you about why I cannot in good conscience make a personal pledge to NAIRO. This has not been an easy decision because of the incredibly hard and competent work you are doing.

I can, however, in good conscience for the Council pledge $500 toward your goal. I think it perfectly appropriate that we as an organization should make some commitment to the existence of a functioning professional organization. If you see any merit in trying to get other private agencies to make similar commitments, feel perfectly free to use our pledge as an example.

Sincerely,

" TO REBUILD AND REVITALIZE THIS ASSOCIATION"

Some Straight Talk About NAIRO

NAIRO?

1970 NAIRO Campaign

National Association of
Intergroup Relations Officials
2027 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20036

IT'S TIME FOR CANDOR

"Confession is good for the soul," they say. So let's be candid. The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, in recent years, has dropped more balls than Charlie Brown's gang.

NAIRO has had its moments to be proud of—the influential report on Executive Responsibility in Intergroup Relations, the Intern Training Program, the referral and recruitment program.

Yes, NAIRO has had its moments. But not recently. The Journal of Intergroup Relations is—let's face it—defunct. Most members can't remember those directories and special reports. Members have not been served as they have a right to expect.

RIGHT ON!

Our times have changed. Our profession has grown. But NAIRO has not kept pace.

But let's also confess that one of the things most in need of change is our concept of the Association's financing. Long gone are the days when the professionals in our field were a few beleaguered, dedicated, grudgingly tolerated (and paid) souls. (We're not so few now!) Long gone are the days when encouragement and support of such a band was a reasonable objective of enlightened philanthropists. We're a grown-up profession now. If we want a professional association, we can have it, but we'll have to be realistic about footing our own bills.

We haven't been. In 1969, 938 members of NAIRO paid a total of $18,611 in dues. That's an average of less than $20 each. Little wonder the Association has become seedy!

NOW YOU'VE QUIT PREACHING AND GONE TO MEDDLING.

NAIRO's members know this won't do it. At last year's Annual Conference in Rochester action was taken on initiative from the floor to raise membership dues, on a sliding scale according to salary range.

Even so, $50 per year is still tops. And that's for people drawing $20,000 per year or more! That's a little on the absurd side, when you stop to think about it. A union secretary typically pays $50 per year in union dues!

WHAT ARE WE GONNA DO?

CONSIDER THE ALTERNATIVES

What can be done about NAIRO?

Well, we could just take our bats and go home. Chuck it. Forget it. Some already have.

But, as NAIRO's President, Edward Howden, has written, we need a professional association. . .

> . . . because we need to be in the best possible communication with each other if we are to serve as responsible and effective professional workers in our cause. If there were no such mechanism as NAIRO, we would have to get ourselves together and create one. I suggest to each member—and to all other workers in our field—that despite the organizational and financial problems which have recently beset NAIRO, it is far more responsible and efficient to rebuild and revitalize this Association than it would be to wipe it out and then try to put something together from scratch.

"To rebuild and revitalize this Association. . . ." That's the alternative to folding and forgetting it. And that's the direction in which NAIRO's Board of Directors has determined to lead.

The first step is to find sound financial footing for the Association's operation. A realistic method of funding. An adequate level of support. Sustained income. That's only the first step. But it is the first step.

So the Board has launched the "1970 NAIRO Recruitment, Re-enrollment, and Funding Campaign."

WHAT IT WILL TAKE

$75,000 in the first 15 months. That's what is needed to begin to carry out our membership's mandate for effective services efficiently rendered. A top-notch staff. A good, on-time newsletter. A NAIRO Journal resurrected, revamped, filled with germinal thought and ideas, and published regularly. A job-opportunities clearinghouse. An effective grievance committee. In sum, to begin anew to be an Association "serving the field or profession through efforts to improve and upgrade the level of practice and performance of individuals and organizations working in the field and the calibre of those being recruited to it."

$75,000 in the first 15 months. That's an average $5.00 per month from at least 1,000 members. That's an annual rate of $60 per member on the average. That's not an unreasonable level of support for one's professional association. That's just realistic. So that's the goal of the 1970 NAIRO Recruitment, Re-enrollment and Funding Campaign.

—I WAS AFRAID OF THAT!

A SPORTING PROPOSITION

—If you are a current member of NAIRO, a past member of NAIRO, or any other individual who sees the need for a strong and effective Association of workers in the field of human rights, human resources and intergroup relations, we ask you to make a conditional pledge to donate a specific sum each month to NAIRO during the 15-month period, October, 1970, through December, 1971. We hope the pledges will average $5.00 per month. Some may need to give less. Many can and should give more. If the condition is met and the pledges are activated, NAIRO would send you a statement each month or each quarter, whichever you prefer. In this way you can support the Association at a realistic level without having your budget strained by a lump-sum payment of annual dues.

OKAY. I'M A GOOD SPORT. LIKE... A COMPULSIVE GAMBLER — SEE?

—You pay nothing unless the Campaign succeeds to the extent that at least $50,000 in similar pledges is raised by the end of NAIRO's Annual Conference in Tulsa, October 26-30, 1970. That's the condition. We won't take your money unless enough people will join us in the effort, so that the Association will have a reasonable chance of giving you your money's worth. (If you make your October payment with your pledge, we'll refund it in the event this minimum goal is not reached.)

—If you are not now a member of NAIRO a pledge of $3.00 per month or more, if activated, will enroll or re-enroll you as a member. If you are a dues-paid member, payment of such a pledge will take the place of your next annual dues.

IT'S YOUR MOVE

We think that's as low-risk a proposition as we can honestly make to you in the interest of rebuilding and revitalizing the Association.

NAIRO's Board of Directors is strongly determined, given the support of the members, to make NAIRO go. "There'll be some changes made," as the old song used to go. For starters, nearly all members of the Board pledged their own investment in NAIRO, with monthly donations beginning in July, 1970, when the Campaign was launched. Moreover, the Board knows that, if the membership moves and the Board members don't there won't be another chance.

A colleague will visit you (or—in a few cases—write to you) on behalf of NAIRO sometime before the Annual Conference. He'll give you a pledge card and ask you to fill it out and sign it. When he does, ask yourself this question—If it were up to me to make possible a vital and viable Association of professional colleagues by signing this pledge, would I do it?'

Because it is.

Professional association dues and contributions to NAIRO are tax-deductible.

BUT NAIRO BETTER BE A WINNER THIS YEAR!!

Dear Al:

Our contribution of $500 has been forwarded to NAIRO. I am happy that we are in a position to do this, and hope that somehow the agency can resolve its problems. Certainly you have every good wish from me as you undertake this extremely difficult job!

I really don't have a personal grievance with NAIRO as I believe the contribution indicates. I did attempt last year to spend a great deal of time helping the agency, largely as chairman of two important committees, one being the program committee. In the late spring I reported to the board on the plans we had for the program, and in the early fall after most of these plans were implemented (including having invited a number of speakers, and offering to have SRC pay the way of those who could not otherwise afford to participate), the board rejected these plans, and in effect dismissed the program committee. Again, no grievance, just a rebut.

I would personally like to commend you and the Southern Regional Council for your pledge of $500 toward the financial goal of NAIRO. I agree with you that this represents a potential of funds which NAIRO has not solicited in the past. Many private agencies might consider an agency contribution rather than have staff people solicit individual donations.

I do not know all the facts relative to your personal grievance with NAIRO, but from what little I do know I believe that your grievance is a valid one. If there is anything I can do to resolve this problem, please feel free to contact me. Dear George:

It is distressing news to know of the tax problems of NAIRO.

It is a long story and one which I do not wish to dwell on, but some time ago I felt that NAIRO dropped me at a time when I was trying very hard to assist the organization. Therefore, I cannot send a personal contribution.

However, I feel that SRC has an interest in seeing the continuation of a professional organization in this field. Therefore I feel it appropriate that we make some effort to see that the tax problems of the organization are resolved. Accordingly, enclosed is our check for $500 toward the obligation you have to the Internal Revenue Service.

At your convenience please acknowledge receipt of these funds on the enclosed carbon. For the purpose of our own records with IRS, we will also need a copy of the NAIRO audit at the end of the year.

Dear Paul:

This is a personal and very urgent communication in which I am joined by those whose names are listed below. We are writing you as one of a hundred or so colleagues who have shared a long-standing commitment to the human rights movement and have contributed to the leadership of NAIRO.

We are not appealing for support to NAIRO's operating budget, or even to NAIRO's survival. We are asking your help in averting punitive action against three of our colleagues that will take a disastrous toll on them, personally and financially.

The Internal Revenue Service has made a joint and several personal assessment against two former NAIRO treasurers -- Phil Sadler and Bob Coates -- and against the former executive director, Fred Routh, for NAIRO's 1968-69 tax delinquencies in the amount of almost $11,000.

Our earlier effort to raise this amount before June 10, 1971, in an effort to stave off these claims of personal liability, fell far short of the goal. We raised approximately $1500 and used it to discharge the basic tax obligation owed the D.C. Government; our effort to negotiate additional time from IRS failed.

Those of us subscribing to this appeal feel most strongly that we cannot stand passively by while three former NAIRO officers are legally compelled to bear the crushing burden of what is essentially a collective responsibility. To this end, each of us has contributed $100. But we need approximately 100 contributions of this amount to discharge the basic liability. We earnestly hope you will share our conviction that this should be a group obligation and will find it possible to contribute equally. We ask you to consider the following points:

(1) These personal levies are not the result of any wrongdoing on the part of the individuals against whom IRS has taken action. Part-time bookkeepers (not officers of NAIRO) failed to prepare quarterly reports and payments of taxes that were properly withheld from staff salaries. These funds did not accrue to any individual's personal benefit, but rather were used for NAIRO's operating expenses.

(2) Although IRS has at this time chosen to move only against these three particular individuals, it has the legal power to take the same action against a much larger group -- that is, officers and board members who served during the period in which this delinquency was incurred. This underscores the fact that the obligation is a collective organizational one, rather than a limited personal one.

(3) The claims against these three individuals, based on their organizational positions, would have devastating personal consequences. None has significant personal assets or income, aside from his professional earnings.

(4) This problem, resulting from a diffusion of organizational responsibility, could well occur in any organization that relies heavily on voluntary leadership. If these three individuals are held personally liable for an organizational obligation from which none of them benefitted personally, NAIRO will have set an example that is a disservice to voluntary organizational activity. Whether or not NAIRO survives, we can hardly accept this as our legacy to citizen organization and effort on behalf of the public good.

(5) Although $100 is a substantial sum for most of us, it is a small financial sacrifice compared to the thousands of dollars of liability with which our three colleagues are faced. As a contribution to NAIRO, it will, of course, qualify as a tax deduction. Far more important, to retire this debt with honor will demonstrate that degree of responsibility to which we are all committed in our work and in our personal lives.

Please make your check payable to NAIRO and mail it to George Culberson at the above address.

Sincerely, (AND URGENTLY)

George W. Culberson

Notes from Dr. Scammon's NAACP address —

I. There has been a significant movement of people and political power since the end of World War II. Political power moves with people but at a slower rate. The following trends are significant:

(a) Westward movement of great numbers of people.

(b) The flight from the farm to urban areas.

(c) Megalopolis -- a continuous urban strip with fuzzy lines of demarkation between rural and urban areas.

(d) Negro migration from rural to urban South; out of the South to the North and West.

(e) White migration from rural to urban South; out of South to the North and West.

(f) Movement of Jewish population from "inner-city" to suburbs.

(g) Movement of Catholic "workers" from "inner-city" to suburbs.

II. These trends are causing changes in voting patterns throughout the nation; and causing shifts of political power. The more significant meanings of these trends are the following:

(a) The ending of the immigrant vote.

(b) The growing importance of the Negro vote; in part replacing the immigrant vote. (There are 4 Negroes in Congress in '58, we may expect from 10 to 12 in the next decade.)

(c) The farm vote has continued to lose its power -- this will be accelerated, the loss that is.

(d) Serious decline of power of Southern States in national politics. First really noted at Democratic convention of '36.

(e) As these groups have lost power others have gained; among them:

1. Negro voters in urban North.

2. Catholic voters (divided among Italian, Irish, and Canadian.)

3. Voters in urban industrial areas; and influential groups within these areas.

III. How do these trends show themselves? Basically, American politics is a measuring device of numbers of like-minded people, hance political power. Three bench marks of changing or shifting political power to be noted:

(a) Position of minority-group office holders -- appointed or elected. Minority-group members usually start at aldermanic level proceed through state house, US Congress, state-wide office. Watch who gets nominated and elected; also who gets appointed.

(b) The thinking process of those nominated and elected; who lines-up with whom; who "counts," etc.

(c) Minority groups usually do not vote as movable or sellable blocks. They tend to vote for those whom they feel represent their interests. "A brown skin won't of itself, capture the Negro vote."

IV. We are beginning to "nationalize" American politics. We tend more and more to see things on a national rather than a local or state level. This is one of the most important trends of the future; not widely or fully felt yet. It will tend to lessen the influence of minority group voters; lessen the influence of states and regions.

V. State influence is losing. Rural areas hanging on to excessive power through malproportionment force mayors and other city officials to turn to the federal government for assistance. The state government's inability and unwillingness to deal with problems faced by larger metropolitan areas is weakening the whole structure of state power.

Dear Paul,

Many thanks for our long talk a few days ago.

Clarence Fuunyé is a good black militant cat! I thought you might want to add his name to your list of candidates.

Looking forward to seeing you.

GROWTH OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS AGENCIES

Within the past twenty-five years the problems involved in the relations among the many racial, nationality and religious groups that compose the American society have led to the formation of several hundred agencies and organizations on a national, state and local level, dedicated to resolving these problems. Many of these agencies employ professional staff and nearly all of them depend upon the leadership of organizations that do. In addition to many private organizations, some of which have served for nearly a century, the past decade has seen the development of a number of public agencies and services on all levels of government.

PURPOSE AND ORGANIZATION OF NAIRO

The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials (NAIRO) is an organization of the people who work for these public and private agencies or who have a direct interest in the development of the professional and social concepts which guide these activities. NAIRO is directed by a Board which is elected by the membership at an annual meeting. Through the Board and the committees which it establishes, the organization carries out an extensive program of service to the people working in the field of intergroup relations. This includes conferences, reports, exchange of information and consultant services and the monthly publication of the "Reporter".

DEPARTMENTS

The membership of NAIRO is organized into six departments which are the following: Department of Local and State Private Services; Department of Local Public Services; Department of State Public Services; Department of National Private Services; Department of Federal Services; Department of Research Services. Through these departments people working in various kinds of agencies are able to develop standards, ethics and techniques which are adapted to the particular problems their agencies face.

COMMISSIONS

The concepts on which all professional people working in this field depend and the broad social problems with which they deal are studied and analyzed by commissions which are established by the Board. At present there are five commissions which are: Commission on Housing and Family Life; Commission on Manpower Utilization; Commission on Nature, Scope and Theory of Intergroup Relations; Commission on Civil Rights; Commission on Education.

MEMBERSHIP PARTICIPATION

Membership in NAIRO is to the fullest extent possible a working membership. The organization is financed by the dues of its members and the sale of its publications, except for grants which it receives for special purposes and projects. Most of the work of the organization is carried out through the appropriate channels of the organization, by the membership itself.

NAIRO speaks for no group other than its members. The problems with which they deal are of trememdous significance in American life and in the world. Through NAIRO it is possible for people working in the field of intergroup relations to share their experience and to evaluate their methods and appraise the problems that they face. The agencies for which they work and the techniques which they develop constitute a major share of America's program for resolving the conflicts that exist because of social cleavages due to race, religion and nationality.

NAIRO is busting out all over!

HERE ARE SOME EXCITING "FIRSTS" FOR THE ASSOCIATION:

. . . a national office with full-time professional and secretarial staff eager to answer your questions; helpful in providing information and materials about our field . . .

. . . a new prestige within the field and growing recognition outside it. It's only natural--if the public wants to know about fluoridation, it asks a dental society, doesn't it? More and more lay people are looking to us for information and interpretation in the field of civil rights. . . .

. . . a brand new JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS which is adding immeasurably to our professional status . . .

. . . a crop of local units working with and for agency people and those in related fields and organizations . . .

. . . an ever increasing membership which is bringing new life to annual conferences. Also, plans for regional conferences so we can get together between the annual meetings . . .

. . . a new nation-wide and international flavor and appeal--the 1959 Conference in Puerto Rico, 1961 in San Francisco . . .

CAN YOU AFFORD NOT TO BELONG?

You don't need NAIRO if

(a) you have no problems in your agency or your city
(b) you have all the answers to your professional questions!

Dear Fred:

Since you at one time expressed an interest in the NAIRO Internship Program and the possibility of a foundation grant to enable your agency to participate in it, I am taking the liberty of sending you this reminder.

Applications for second-year grants are now being accepted, and the foundations have set February 28 as the deadline. At that time, they will review all applications, announcing their selections by April 30.

As in the past, agencies will choose their own interns and establish their own training program. The enclosed memo lists the basic criteria to be used in the selection of agencies, and the few commitments expected of agencies receiving grants.

The application should be in the form of a letter or memo, touching on the points raised in the enclosed document and outlining the type of training proposed. It may be sent to NAIRO for forwarding to the foundations.

It is expected that all the grants this year will be half-grants of $2,500 a piece. This will be matched by the agency - from a local foundation, from local contributions or from the agency budget.

Please do not hesitate to write or call if any points are unclear or troublesome. I want to be of assistance to any agency interested in taking part.

Sincerely,

JOHN V.P. LASSOE, JR.

MEMO

TO: Members of NAIRO National Private Service Department

FROM: William G. Shannon, Chairman of Committee

RE: Department Sessions at NAIRO Conference in Pittsburgh

On October 1, ten members of this Department attended a meeting to consider appropriate topics for our Department sessions at the coming NAIRO convention. Comments and suggestions, solicited by mail, were received from twelve additional persons and were read at this meeting.

John Lassoe gave a briefing on the conference scheduled to help us plan our sessions more effectively.

Departments will have two blocks of time for their respective discussions. One on Wednesday, November 19, from 4 to 6 PM, the second on Thursday, November 20, from 2 to 4 PM.

The subject for this second day has already been arranged by the Conference Planning Committee and the Board of Directors. Each Department will hold discussions on "Case Studies in Conflict" following the theme of that day's luncheon program.

Our planning group concentrated, therefore, on the Wednesday session. Two main ideas emerged from our discussion and from the suggestions received by mail:

(1) A major concern over dangers to civil liberties;

(2) The challenge to develop new and more effective approaches to solutions and better inter-agency cooperation in this and other crisis-laden situations.

(Although the several other topics examined by the group were highly important ones, we felt that these two items would fit quite logically, and without duplication, into the total conference framework and would wisely supplement the programs that follow.)

Mr. Patrick Malin, Executive Director of the American Civil Liberties Union, has generously agreed to begin the session with a brief statement on civil liberties issues in the South, where he has recently made a tour. Several resource people will also be prepared to participate as the meeting progresses.

Emphasis is to be placed on open discussion and a full exchange of ideas among members of the Department.

"DESEGREGATION AND FREEDOM OF ASSOCIATION
.....attacks on civil liberties growing out of school desegregation

.....the need for new approaches."

My sincere thanks to each person who contributed time and thought to planning this session. Your cooperation is greatly appreciated.

I would like to suggest that each member be prepared to present ideas at the coming convention regarding Department programs or activities for 1959. Such preliminary discussion can be most helpful in using the coming months to best advantage and would, I believe, be a valuable aid to the new chairman.

I look forward to working with you at the NAIRO Convention.

Draft Statement of Concerns for Presentation to the Twelfth
Annual NAIRO Conference

No greater challenge faces the contemporary world than that of perfecting the means whereby free men may live together in mutual acceptance with respect for differences. Indeed, this is the crucial challenge of our time; and it confronts with ever-mounting urgency every international body, every government, every community, every institution of our society. Upon our sucess in meeting that challenge may rest our best prospects for world peace, domestic tranquility and the common welfare of mankind.

Intergroup relations work is focused on that challenge. Its goal is a society in which men and groups can live comfortably and creatively together notwithstanding the differences among them. This is possible only where men are equally free - free to share equally in the opportunities of a free society, free to achieve social and political change, free to worship as they will, free to be different.

How lamentably far the world is from having achieved success in building such a society is distressingly evident in our own land. Justifiably proud as we are to be the possessers of a Constitution guaranteeing equal rights and equal protections to all without regard to race or color or religion, and priding ourselves, as we justly may, upon being a nation of laws, we are yet faced with a grave challenge to those Constitutional guarantees and to the orderly processes of government that are designed to secure them equally to all our people.

Meeting in twelfth annual conference, the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials views this immediate challenge as the first and most urgent concern of all who are committed to the improvement of intergroup relations. So long as equality is denied to any citizen or group of citizens in any of the states of the Union, so long as the authority of our highest courts are flouted, so long will our efforts be impeded and the realization of our aims delayed.

It may well be that a turning point recently has been reached in the struggle for racial desegregation of the public schools. Some of the costs of "massive resistance" have made themselves felt. Public schools have been closed, imposing hardships upon white as well as Negro pupils. A comprehensive ruling by the United States Supreme Court has stricken every vestige of legality from all schemes and stratagems for evading its earlier desegregation ruling, whether now or in the future. The preposterous promises of some southern governors, attorneys general, and political leaders that the mandate of the Supreme Court could be circumvented or countermanded by inter-position of state authority have been shown to be empty. Their emptiness has been made more evident by the recently increased vigor of federal intervention in litigations arising out of efforts to avoid compliance with federal court orders and by the firmer stand taken by the President. At the same time, there has been some reckoning of possible economic costs to recalcitrant states, arising from hesitancy on the part of industries to establish plants or offices in communities torn by racial strife. And the growing wave of violence, unmistakably stemming from and given sanction by the defiance and evasion of law by public officials, has brought home the inevitable consequences of this course of action.

As a result, for the first time since 1954, an articulate segment of public opinion in the South has begun to advocate compliance with the Supreme Court rulings, even though many who contribute to this advocacy do so as proponents of what they regard as the lesser of alternative evils. While some of the political leaders who have cynically misled their followers continue to command the support by which, for the present, they maintain themselves in office, a growing number of intelligent people not only recognize that they have been misled, but have realized also that, in standing aside from the controversy heretofore, they have defaulted on their duty and contributed by their silence to the creation of an intolerable situation. For the first time, the monopoly upon public expression of views on desegregation, that has been held by the intransigent segregationists since the promulgation of the Supreme Court ruling of 1954, has been challenged. Desegregation is being debated in the South. The beginnings of a dynamic shift of public opinion are discernible.

The encouragement of this emergent sentiment and its channeling into constructive roles in the continuing conflict, will require the wise and effective utilization in the period immediately ahead, by both government and private organizations, of the processes of law and the approaches and techniques of intergroup relations. This will be best achieved if the processes of law and the approaches of intergroup relations are conceived, not as dichotomous and alternative, but as interrelated and complementary.

Both law and education are instruments of social change. Law operates not only as coercion, but as a conditioner of conduct and of attitude. This is especially so in a democracy. Authoritarian governments many use laws as repressive devices, but in our system law is looked upon as an expression of the popular will, as government is looked upon as the instrument of its effectuation. Most people, accordingly, abide by law as a matter of course. Law against discriminatory behavior thus inhibits as well as prohibits such behavior by the prejudiced and even tends to reduce impulses to such behavior while it supports and encourages the unprejudiced in the practice of equality. The reverse is likewise true, and law imposing discrimination, so general in our South, has sustained and nurtured prejudice. It is ironically notable, indeed, that many who have decried the use of law against discrimination on the ground that prejudice must first be overdome by moral suasion are among the most vigorous defenders of law to enforce discrimination. The sanction of law, in brief, is a potent factor in the promotion of equality of opportunity, complementing and in turn complemented by positive educational and intergroup relations approaches.

Nor are the sanctions of law exclusively punitive or coercive. Effective positive incentives to compliance may be provided, thus adding tangible rewards to the impact of the moral weight of law in fashioning conduct.

No law, however, is self-implementing, whether it be court ruling or legislative enactment. Law does not, of itself, effect change; it merely provides authority or mandate; it has to be used, otherwise it remains a dead letter.

Recognition of the dynamics of these relationships appear, unfortunately, to have eluded those who, like the President, have employed exhortation to right conduct as if this were an approach wholly divorced from law, instead of using both in an integrated way to bring about changes in conduct. This failure is especially regrettable in the case of the President.

In the course of evolution of our government, the office of the President has come to be regarded as the source of national leadership, the repository of the conscience of the nation, the originator of major policies and directions for the realization of overarching national purposes. Had the President, from the outset, assumed the role of leadership, using the great moral authority, prestige and influence of his office, in interpreting the Supreme Court ruling as just, in asserting the duty of responsible citizens to comply and im making unmistakably plain the intent of the federal government to see that the ruling was implemented "with all deliberate speed," the "massive Resistance" movement in the South could not have grown to its present alarming proportions.

Nor could it have grown to its present proportions had the legal and law enforcement agencies of the federal government promptly - as they have belatedly during the past several months - been thrown into the task of seeing that the orders of the federal courts were not evaded.

The Justice Department's vigorous intervention in litigations during the past several months, the altered tenor of the public statements made by the President, the intensified activities of the Civil Rights Commission, the prompt and decisive action of the President in ordering the Federal Bureau of Investigation to make its facilities fully available in the investigation of dynamitings, all afford ground for hope that the determined federal action so long needed will at last be pressed.

It is particularly urgent that such action be taken to secure the full exercise of the franchise to all our citizens. Political freedom in a democracy underlies all other freedoms. And the practical political effects of an effectively enfranchised Negro citizenry in the South must not be overlooked. Nothing will more certainly alter the political climate in the South, the attitudes toward civil rights of elected officials from sheriff to governor, or the character of the southern representation in the Congress than an increase in Negro use of the ballot. To a marked degree, law and education must be used in close concert in this connection. To make the ballot available to qualified Negro voters will require energetic and determined legal steps by both federal agencies and individual plaintiffs. To assure full use of the ballot by Negro voters will require extensive efforts to overcome the inertia and apathy that are the inevitable product of long repression and to increase the number of qualified voters among them. On the legal side, the Civil Rights Commission should press its already initiated investigation with vigor and expedition; it should initiate similar investigations in all parts of the country, holding hearings and studying and analyzing voting laws in all states. The Justice Department, through its Civil Rights Division should move swiftly and energetically to prevent interference with voting by intervening in suits challenging restrictive voting statutes on Constitutional grounds and with other appropriate steps.

Further legislative action is necessary to clothe executive agencies of the federal government with authority to seek to compel compliance. The Justice Department should be empowered to initiate actions in federal courts against denials of any civil right, as it now has authority to initiate actions in cases of infringements of voting rights. To permit the burdent of litigation in support of a declared public policy to rest upon those denied the protection of that declared policy and economically least able to bear the costs of the litigation is both unjust and illogical.

Congress should act also to enable appropriate agencies of the federal government to play a constructive part in moving communities toward compliance with the Supreme Court rulings on desegregation, by providing communities with data compiled and analyzed by federal agencies, supplying technical services, financial assistance, and other aids, all designed to ease the burden on those school districts that wish to take steps toward desegregation of their public schools. Such legislation to provide incentive to compliance would be consistent with the creative use of law as one of the instruments available to our society for moving in the direction of desirable economic, social and political conditions and inhibiting or impeding movement in undesirable or destructive directions. In considerable part, the laws enacted by the Congress creating and defining the functions of many of the agencies of government in the fields of health, education, social welfare, business, labor, agriculture are such laws.

Standing as a barrier to the enactment of every proposed civil rights law is the Senate filibuster. So potent is this weapon that the mere threat of its use has been sufficient on many occasions to cause pending legislation to be put aside without action or to prevent its being taken up at all. It is therefore imperative that the Senate at the opening of the 86th Congress assert its right as a new body to make its own rules and adopt procedures that will permit a majority to bring any question to a vote after opportunity for adequate debate.

In the present juncture of events, as the voices of the so-called "moderates" in the South, hitherto largely unheard, have begun to be lifted, the most immediate need is for the establishment and maintenance of channels of communication among the many groups and elements favoring or prepared to support compliance with the desegregation rulings of the Supreme Court. There are many such groups, and many individuals, whose silence has been due to their fear of isolating and exposing themselves should they speak out. They are now beginning to take courage. We are convinced that they constitute a large and potentially influential part of the white population of the South and that they need only to be given the means of concerting their views and drawing a sense of security from each other, to become a major force for decency and racial justice. Time is of the essence, for the enemies of desegregation are determined and resourceful; and, if the present revulsion against their excesses is not used as a basis for the building of a force against them, they may again quickly succeed in imposing their rule of intimidation upon the South.

It is to be anticipated, as well as hoped, that there will now be a resumption of the movement toward school desegregation virtually halted since last year. Much firmness, patience, determination and skill will be required on the part of the authorities and private groups to make this movement an effective and genuine movement toward desegregation, rather than the token gesture that has been made in some communities, and to carry it forward with a minimum of conflict and bitterness. It is necessary to recognize that the leadership of the "massive resistance" to desegregation represents what is, for the present, the major viewpoint in a conflict with deep roots in the cultural tradition and social structure of the region. Segregation has been outlawed. But to end it will require sustained efforts to use the conflict over its prohibition in constructive ways within the framework of the law.

Experience with desegregation processes in a number of cities has reinforced knowledge long held by the intergroup relations field as to the actions and conditions that contribute toward their orderly application or that militate against such application.

Advance organization of the groups that can be relied on to support compliance with law is essential; this is tremendously facilitated where such groups are established and where channels of communication among them operate. In the absence of voluntary organizations or of established mechanisms for cooperation, the creation of them is almost a sine qua non of success in integrating the schools. Public statements by ministerial and religious bodies, sermons, declarations of support for the authorities by civic, labor, business or other organizations are helpful.

Not less important is the clear unambignous announcement of policy by the authorities, sufficiently in advance to allow adequate public discussion. Orderly compliance is aided, too, by planned interpretation under official and voluntary auspices for a considerable period prior to the effective date of the policy. Demonstrations and disorder may be obviated by such means. Where they nevertheless occur, there must be prompt, firm action by police and disciplinary action by school authorities against recalcitrant pupils.

Incitement to resistance to legal authority is everywhere a criminal act. Grand juries should investigate all evidence that such incitement has taken place and agitators brought to trial. A show of intent by local authority to proceed in this way, made early enough, may be sufficient to deter potential trouble-makers.

The inseparability of legal process and of non-legal approaches is clear in these lessons from experience. The non-legal approaches are uniquely those of the intergroup relations field; it is of the utmost importance that they be utilized. They are available, in some measure, through voluntary organizations, which may be enlisted by government in coordinated approaches. But they should be more extensively employed directly by government, in conjunction with legal process, in the creative utilization of the varied instruments of social control that is the true act of governing. The creation of staff positions for intergroup relations advisors at policy-making and administrative levels in city governments, state education departments, federal agencies such as the Bureau of Education, the Department of Justice, the Department of Labor, etc., would do much to infuse government with an approach that does not rest exclusively on the coercive sanction of law to obtain compliance, but rather recognizes the value of law as an instrument for moving people toward acceptable modes of behavior and toward more desirable attitudes. The Civil Rights Commission, as an example, has relied exclusively on legal approaches, notwithstanding the offer made by the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials "to help develop those non-legal approaches so important to the success of the Commission's work."

Segregation and other forms of discrimination are not unique to the South. Indeed, the widespread practice of discrimination against individuals because of race, color or religion in employment, education, housing, places of recreation and public accommodation, and other aspects of our society still constitutes the major impediment to progress toward our goal of an integrated society.

It is heartening however to observe that, while the sanctions of law are being misused in some southern states in unconstitutional attempts to perpetrate injustice, it is being used increasingly in some other states in other parts of the nation in support of Constitutional guarantees of equal rights and equal freedoms. Twenty states now have civil rights statutes of varying degrees of comprehensiveness, with administration and enforcement in the hands of official state agencies. In addition, a much larger number of ordinances are in effect in municipalities, many of which also have official agencies for their administration.

It is gratifying to observe that many of these state laws and municipal ordiances not only prohibit discrimination but assert that public policy is to assure equal opportunity to all and to promote amicable relationships among people of all races, colors, and faiths. It is gratifying, too, that in the administration of these laws, many of the agencies charged with their administration are making creative use of legal authority in conjunction with research, educational and interpretive techniques and intergroup relations methods and approaches in conscious, organized efforts to effect changes in practice and in the attitudes of the general public toward non-discrimination.

While the elimination of discrimination on racial, ethnic and religious grounds remains a far off goal in our society, the efficacy of laws and administrative procedures against discrimination has been demonstrated. The enactment of such laws should be extended; existing laws should be strengthened, especially to give civil rights agencies power to initiate complaints, where such power is lacking; the work of agencies administering the laws should be enlarged; and the best skills and insights of intergroup relations should be employed in the creative utilization of the laws. These suggestions have a special timeliness, for most state legislatures will be in session during the coming year.

In the South, the issue of equality of opportunity is being fought our primarily in the context of the school desegregation struggle. Elsewhere, equality of access to available housing is perhaps the major key to problems of segregation and discrimination. Imposed segregation by neighborhood is the inevitable breeder of every other form of segregation - in educational facilities, welfare services, public accommodations and community organization. Under the conditions that exist in virtually all our major urban centers, moreover, it is a means of perpetuating inequalities and contributing toward intergroup hostilities, antagonisms and resentment. Restricted access to housing causes overcrowding and deterioration of neighborhoods. This in turn breeds delinquency, crime and disease. These results of segregation are too often interpreted as attributes of the groups living in the restricted neighborhoods and thus serve to reinforce existing attitudes of hostility and rejection. At the same time, the groups forced into the restricted areas are made increasingly frustrated and resentful.

The intergroup relations goal of an integrated society cannot be approached without a progressive elimination of residential segregation. This is not only because the physical segregation of groups poses an almost insuperable obstacle to their joining in any common experience or undertaking; but because one of the major effects of residential segregation is to perpetuate and intensify feelings of status difference. No other difference, perhaps, militates more strongly against mutual acceptance.

But aside from standing massively in the way of the improvement of intergroup relations, housing segregation bears within it the seed of deterioration and decay of our cities. New Housing, cheap housing, adequate housing may not, by themselves, be sufficient to prevent the burgeoning of this seed. Our cities are being gradually emptied of economically more self-sufficient elements, which are moving to racially and sometimes religiously exclusive suburbs. The central urban areas, thus abandoned, may grow into great ghettoes. Political leadership must meanwhile pass into the hands of new and relatively inexperienced leadership. Already much retail business and some industry, not dependent upon a mass supply of relatively unskilled labor, are moving to the suburbs. Declines in municipal tax revenues are inevitable. In these circumstances, deterioration of public services of all sorts is almost certain. This is a dark prospect, yet it is what we will may face unless our practices in regard to housing are drastically revised.

Many factors and influences combine to sustain our present segregated neighborhoods and communities: group prejudices in the majority population group, practices current in the housing industry and among real estate brokers and builders, policies of lending institutions and, it should be especially noted, policies and actions of governmental agencies and public officials. The Federal Housing Administration, although committed in principle to "equality of opportunity to receive the benefits of the mortgage insurance system...irrespective of race, color, creed or national origin," and officially encouraging open occupancy in housing developments, makes no attempt to control the discriminatory practices of private builders or lenders. Thus, indirectly and by default, federal policies have stimulated segregation by making insured financing available - through FHA, FNMA, and VA - to private builders who build segregated housing.

While thus tolerating - which, in practice, means supporting - discriminatory practices, the federal government has created positions for "race relations advisors" in the housing agencies. Federal courts, meanwhile, have ruled decisively that local governments could not establish racial residential segregation by law and that the courts, as branches of government, may not enforce private agreements for racial segregation.

The time has come for this hodge-podge of conflicting policies and practices to be replaced by a single consistent definitive policy, firmly administered, that will make the federal housing programs the instruments not only of more adequate housing for all but of housing for an integrated democratic society.

Not only is it true that discrimination is not unique to the South; it is also true that civil rights are, in every sense, a national and not a sectional problem. In the dynamic currents of population movements in our nation, the effects of dis-franchisement, unequal treatment, oppression, and degradation in any section are carried throughout all parts of the country, as an infection is carried in the body by the blood stream. Thus, Negroes fleeing the oppressive atmosphere of the South swell the populations of northern industrial cities. This ever increasing tide is made up very largely of the victims of discrimination, humiliation and intimidation, of the products of inadequate educational systems, without vocational training or, in most cases, industrial experience. They are, therefore, through no fault of their own, marginal contributors to the economies of the cities to which they come. Having learned to regard the machinery of government as oppressive and the police authorities as harsh and unjust, they gravitate toward the fringes of lawful behavior, and this is encouraged by the conditions under which they often find it necessary to live in segregated areas. In consequence, such newcomers are disproportionately represented on relief roles, on police blotters, among recipients of welfare services, and so on.

This cycle, which so gravely impedes progress toward the goals of intergroup relations, illustrates strikingly the extent to which the heavy costs of racial discrimination are borne inequitably by those sections of our country which are themselves most advanced in the assurance to all of equal opportunity. Officials of northern states, who are in the forefront of leadership in behalf of civil rights, have tended to rely on local and state actions, while largely overlooking ways in which they might exert their influence to influence national policy. They have failed also to perceive or to evaluate fully the grave implications for the economic and political future of their own cities and states inherent in the continued repressiveness and discrimination of parts of the South.

If the influence of the northern states were coordinated and thrown as vigorously into the struggle for federal action on civil rights as the influence ofcertain southern states has been mobilized in opposition, far-reaching changes might be effected.

The influence of the northern states, for example, might be directed toward securing more effective implementation of existing laws and regulations affecting non-discrimination in the employment policiesof firms holding government contracts; to more effective pursuit of federal authority designed to assure the right of Negroes in the south to vote - perhaps the most important of all, since effective enfranchisement of southern Negroes, more than any other single factor, can bring about fundamental changes in the political climate of the South and set in motion forces that will elevate standards of working conditions, wages, social security, welfare services, and every other aspect of the structure of life in that section -; to the judicious requirement of non-discrimination as a qualification for federalgrants in aid and loans for certain purposes; the provision of grants in aid for civil rights programs.

The Conference of Governors of Civil Rights States, at present comprising the chief executives of those states having civil rights laws with enforcement features, and currently functioning through a continuations committee, should be made permanent; its membership should be augmented by the addition of governors of all other states having civil rights laws. All these states have a common interest in advancing civil rights as a national objective, both as a matter of principle and as a matter of self-interest. With appropriate organization and adequate staffing, such a permanent conference could function as a clearing house, an educational center, a research center, and a lobby, and could make a major contribution to the advancement of civil rights in our nation.

To secure such civil rights equally to all our citizens, regardless of race, color, religion or national origin is, indeed, the great unfinished business of our democracy. In the global struggle between the forces of totalitarianism and the forces of freedom, the United States stands as acknowledged leader, in the moral as well as the material sense, of the free world. We cannot maintain that leadership unless we demonstrate our will and our determination to make our own people free. Beyond the eventual triumph of freedom over tyranny lies the ultimate challenge of building a world in which men can live together in mutual acceptance with respect for differences. We must lay the foundations strongly and well in our land so that we may stand upon a solid base when, at last, that challenge is successfully met.

NEW YORK 36, NEW YORK
LONGACRE 3-6757

PRESIDENT
ARNOLD ARONSON

EXECUTIVE SECRETARY
JOHN V.P. LASSOE, JR.

Dear

It's that time of year again; please find enclosed a bill for your 1958 and 1959 dues. Our records show that you have not yet paid for either year.

We should be happy to receive your check for $30 covering both years. But please! be sure to send us at least $15 (your 1958 dues) as soon as you conveniently can.

Otherwise, we shall be forced to drop your name from our roster and suspend services to you...just at a time when NAIRO activities and publications are beginning to blossom. The new JOURNAL is in full swing ... a surprize grant insures continuation of the Internship Program for a third year ... the Personnel Registry is increasingly active ... local and regional NAIRO activities are expanding ... new projects are in final planning stages.

This is no time to lose you, or for you to lose us! And yet, NAIRO policy forces us to suspend members who are more than one year in arrears. Please pay the full bill if you can, but do not fail to send us at least your 1958 dues!!

May we hear from you by January 30?

Sincerely,

JESSAMINE C. MERRILL

RECEIVED APR 27 1959

AMENDED BY-LAWS

of the

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

DATE: March 31, 1959

ARTICLE I. NAME

The name of this organization shall be the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials.

ARTICLE II. PURPOSE

The purpose of the National Association of Intergroup Relations shall be:

1. To encourage the collection, compilation and dissemination of ideas, information and research among organizations and individuals engaged in the improvement of intergroup relations;

2. To facilitate the exchange of knowledge, experience and research among governmental agencies and private organizations dealing with racial, religious, ethnic and cultural relations;

3. To advance generally the science, processes, and art of intergroup relations and to improve the standards of work in that field, advancing technical and professional knowledge, standards and practice.

ARTICLE III. ORGANIZATION AND ELECTIONS

1. The Association shall consist of one organization representing the entire body of the membership. The Association shall maintain a central headquarters office as designated by the Board of Directors. The Association may establish divisions within the organization as required.

2. The membership of the Association shall determine policies of the Association at the annual meeting, and subject to the mail ballot provisions, shall elect in this order, the Board of Directors, the Officers, and the Nominating Committee for the following year.

ARTICLE IV. MEMBERSHIP

1. Membership shall be limited to individuals and shall be of three classes:

   a. Active: Any person primarily engaged in intergroup relations: in a professional staff capacity, whether salaried or voluntary; as a recognized authority; as a member of the governing body of any agency or commission, or otherwise substantially engaged in the intergroup relations work of an agency or commission related to this field.

   b. Associate: Any person subscribing to the basic objectives and program of the Association.

c. Student: Any person enrolled in a recognized college or university and working toward a degree with the intention of entering the field of intergroup relations.

2. The Board of Directors shall have authority over admission to membership in NAIRO, but may delegate to the Membership Committee, or its Chairman, or to the Executive Secretary, the power to receive and act upon applications for active membership, provided that such delegatees shall, wherever feasible, consult with active NAIRO members in the area from which the application is received. Subject to review by the membership at the annual business meeting, the Board of Directors may suspend or remove from membership, after opportunity for hearings and fair notice thereof, any person whose conduct is deemed harmful to NAIRO.

ARTICLE V. DUTIES AND PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERSHIP

1. The Association shall establish and maintain a schedule of annual fees and dues for the two classes of membership.

2. Each Active member shall be entitled to: vote at any membership meeting; hold office; participate in conferences; serve, by appointment, on committees; receive all regular and special information services; and utilize the services of the Personnel Exchange and such other special services as shall be determined by the Board.

3. Each Associate member shall be entitled to: participate in conferences; serve, by appointment, on committees; and receive all regular informational services.

4. Each Student member shall be entitled to receive all regular informational services and to participate in conferences of the Association.

5. Any individual, organization or agency may subscribe to the regular informational services of the Association. Special information or other services may be rendered upon request, with or without charge, as the Board of Directors may determine.

ARTICLE VI. OFFICERS

1. The officers of the Association shall be a President, a President-elect, two Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer and a Secretary. The President-elect, Vice Presidents, Treasurer and Secretary shall take office as soon as elected, and shall serve until their successors are chosen; the President shall succeed to his office from the position of President-elect, when the new President-elect shall have been chosen. Elections shall take place at each annual membership meeting (Article X, Sect. 1) or by mail ballot (Article X, Sect. 8).

2. An Executive Secretary may be appointed by the Board, to serve as the administrative officer of the Association, subject to the direction of the Board, which may, among other duties, delegate to the Executive Secretary the administrative functions of the Treasurer and Secretary. The Board of Directors may also appoint such other staff as it shall deem desirable to perform such duties as may be prescribed by the Board of Directors.

3. The President shall be the principal executive officer of the corporation and shall in general supervise and control all of the business and affairs of the corporation. He shall preside at all meetings of members and of the Board of Directors. He may sign, with the Secretary or any other proper officer of the corporation authorized by the Board of Directors, any deeds, mortgages, bonds, contracts, or other instruments which the Board of Directors have authorized to be executed, except in cases where the signing and execution thereof shall be expressly delegated by the Board of Directors, or by these by-laws, or by statute to some other officer or agent of the corporation; and in general shall perform all duties incident to the office of President, and such other duties as may be assigned by the Board of directors from time to time. He shall make available to the President-elect whatever information in his judgment will enable the latter to succeed him most efficiently.

4. The President-Elect, in addition to having the regular powers and duties of any member and of any member of the Board of Directors, shall also be responsible for familiarizing himself as much as possible with the functionings of the association.

5. In the absence of the President or in the event of his inability or refusal to act, the Vice-President (or in the event there be more than one Vice-President, the Vice-Presidents in the order designated, or in the absence of any designation, then in the order of their election) shall perform the duties of the President, and when so acting, shall have all the powers of and be subject to all the restrictions upon the President. Any Vice-President shall perform other duties as from time to time be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

6. If required by the Board of Directors, the Treasurer shall give a bond for the faithful discharge of his duties in such sum and with such surety or sureties as the Board of Directors shall determine. He shall have charge and custody of and be responsible for all funds and securities of the corporation; receive and give receipts for moneys due and payable to the corporation from any source whatsoever, and deposit all such moneys in the name of the corporation in such banks, trust companies or other depositaries as shall be selected in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws; and in general perform all the duties incident to the office of Treasurer and such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him by the President by the Board of Directors.

7. The Secretary shall keep the minutes of the meetings of the members and of the Board of Directors in one or more books provided for th purpose; see that all notices are duly given in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws or as required by law; be custodian of the corporate records and of the seal of the corporation and see that the seal of the corporation is affixed to all documents, the execution of whic on behalf of the corporation under its seal is duly authorized in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws; keep a register of the post office address of each member which shall be furnished to the Secretary by such member; and in general perform all duties incident to the office of Secretary and such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

8. A vacancy in any office because of death, resignation, removal, disqualification or otherwise, may be filled by the Board of Directors for the unexpired portion of the term, except that, if the office of President-elect shall become vacant, it shall remain unfilled until the next regular election of officers, at which time the members shall elect a President for the immediately following term, as well as all the regular officers.

ARTICLE VII. BOARD OF DIRECTORS

1. The affairs of the Association shall be managed by a Board of Directors which shall consist of not more than thirty-two (32) members, and not less than eighteen (18). Eighteen Directors shall be elected by the membership, in accordance with the provisions of Article X; in addition, any of the six (6) officers who is not otherwise a member of the Board shall serve ex-officio during his term in office. Further, the President shall appoint eight (8) Regional Chairmen of the Association, from eight separate geographic regions of the country, to serve for terms of one year or until their successors are chosen, and these persons shall also serve ex-officio on the Board of Directors, if not already members of the Board.

2. The term of office of the eighteen elected members of the Board shall be for three years, or until their successors are chosen. Six (6) members shall be elected to the Board of Directors yearly. Vacancies shall be filled by appointment of the Board, until the next regular election, at which time a member shall be elected for the unexpired term.

3. The Board of Directors shall report its actions at the Association's annual meeting and shall hold an annual meeting of the Board, immediately after the annual meeting of members, at the same place, without notice. The Board may call such special meetings as may be necessary, at such time and places as it may determine. Special meetings may be called by or at the request of the President or any five (5) directors. Notice of any special meeting of the Board of Directors shall be given at least (5) days previously thereto by written notice delivered personally or sent by mail or telegram to each director at his address as shown by the records of the corporation. If mailed, such notice shall be deemed to be delivered when deposited in the United States mail in a sealed envelope, such notice shall be deemed to be delivered when the telegram is delivered to the telegraph company. Any director may waive notice of any meeting. The attendance of a director at any meeting shall constitute a waiver or notice of such meeting, except where a director attends a meeting for the express purpose of objecting to the transaction of any business because the meeting is not lawfully called or convened. Neither the business to be transacted at, not the purpose of, any regular or special meeting of the Board need be specified in the notice or waiver of notice of such meeting, unless specifically required by law or by these by-laws.

4. a. The act of a majority of the Directors present at a meeting at which quorum is present shall be the act of the Board of Directors, except where otherwise provided by law or by these by-laws.

b. At meetings of the Board, seven (7) shall constitute a quorum. If less than seven (7) of the directors are present, a majority of those present may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

ARTICLE VIII. EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE BOARD

1. There shall be established an Executive Committee within the Board of Directors consisting of the officers and three (3) other members of the Board elected by that body. The Executive Secretary, if any, shall be a non-voting member of this Committee.

2. a. The Executive Committee shall act for the Board between meetings of the Board.

b. A majority of the members of the Executive Committee shall constitute a quorum and a majority of those members present at a meeting shall prevail on all questions if a quorum is present.

ARTICLE IX. COMMITTEES

1. The standing committees of the Association shall be:

a. A Nominating Committee of not less than five (5) persons nor more than eleven (11) persons, the duties of which shall be to nominate for presentation to the annual meeting a slate of officers and directors, with at least one candidate for each vacancy, and a slate of candidates for the following year's Nominating Committee.

b. A Membership Committee, which shall aid in securing members and advise the Board of Directors (and Executive Secretary, if any) on problems relating to eligibility for membership in the Association. The Chairman of this Committee shall be a Member of the Board of Directors, and said Board shall appoint such Chairman and the members of the Committee.

c. A Conference Committee, which shall plan and organize the program for the annual meeting, subject to the Board's approval. The Board shall appoint the Chairman and members of this Committee.

2. The Board may authorize the formation of other Committees, not having and exercising the authority of the Board in the management of the Association. Subject to the approval of the Board, the President shall have the power to make interim appointments to the committees authorized by the Board and to create interim Committees and make appointments thereto.

3. Persons not members of the Association may be appointed to serve on the Conference and special Committees.

4. Each member of a Committee shall continue as such until his successor has been appointed, unless the committee shall be sooner terminated, or unless such appointing authority in each case shall have the power of removal, whenever in his or its opinion the best interest of the Association are thereby served. Vacancies in any Committee shall be filled in the same manner provided for the original appointments.

5. a. Unless otherwise provided in the resolution of the Board of Directors designating a committee, a majority of the whole committee shall constitute a quorum and the act of a majority of the members present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the committee.

b. Each committee may adopt rules for its own government not inconsistent with these by-laws or with rules adopted by the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE X. MEETINGS OF MEMBERS

1. The Association shall hold an annual meeting of members and such other meetings as may be necessary to conduct the affairs of the Association, the time to be fixed by the Board of Directors.

2. Special meetings of the members may also be called either by the President, or not less than one-tenth of the members having voting rights.

3. The Board of Directors may designate any place, either within or without the State of Illinois, as the place of meeting for any annual meeting or for any special meeting called by the Board of Directors. If no designation is made or if a special meeting be otherwise called, the place of meeting shall be the registered office of the corporation in the State of Illinois, provided, however, that if all of the members shall meet at any time and place, whether within or without the State of Illinois, and consent to the holding of a meeting, such meeting shall be valid without call or notice, and at such meeting any corporate action may be taken.

4. Written or printed notice stating place, day and hour of any meeting of members shall be delivered, either personally or by mail, to each member entitled to vote at such meeting, not less than five nor more than forty days before the date of such meeting, by or at the direction of the President, or the Secretary, or the officers or persons calling the meeting. In case of a special meeting or when required by statute or by these by-laws, the purpose for which the meeting is called shall be stated in the notice. If mailed, the notice of a meeting shall be deemed delivered when deposited in the United States mail addressed to the member at his address as it appears on the records of the corporation, with postage thereon prepaid.

5. Any action required to be taken at a meeting of the members of the corporation, or any other action which may be taken at a meeting of members may be taken without a meeting if a consent in writing, setting forth the action so taken, shall be signed by all of the members entitled to vote with respect to the subject matter thereof.

6. The members holding one-tenth of the votes which may be cast at any meeting shall constitute a quorum at such meeting. If a quorum is not present at any meeting of members, a majority of the members present may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

7. At any meeting of members, a member entitled to vote may vote either in person or by proxy executed in writing by the member or by his duly authorized attorney-in-fact. No proxy shall be valid after eleven months from the date of its execution unless otherwise provided in the proxy.

8. The Board of Directors may authorize elections of directors and officers to be conducted by mail.

ARTICLE XI. CONTRACTS, CHECKS, DEPOSITS AND FUNDS

1. The Board of Directors may authorize an officer or officers, agent or agents of the corporation, in addition to the officers so authorized by these by-laws, to enter into any contract or execute and deliver any instrument in the name of an on behalf of the corporation and such authority may be general or confined to specific instances.

2. All checks, drafts or other orders for the payment of money, notes or other evidences of indebtedness issued in the name of the corporation, shall be signed by such officer or officers, agent or agents of the corporation and in such a manner as shall from time to time be determined by resolution of the Board of Directors. In the absence of such determination by the Board of Directors, such instruments shall be signed by the Treasurer or an Assistant Treasurer and countersigned by the President or a Vice-President of the corporation.

3. All funds of the corporation shall be deposited from time to time to the credit of the corporation in such banks, trust companies or other depositaries as the Board of Directors may select.

4. The Board of Directors may accept on behalf of the corporation any contribution, gift, bequest or devise for the general purposes or for any special purpose of the corporation.

ARTICLE XII. BOOKS AND RECORDS

The corporation shall keep correct and complete books and records of account and shall also keep minutes of the proceedings of its members, Board of Directors and committees having any of the authority of the Board of Directors, and shall keep at the registered or principal office a record giving the names and addresses of the members entitled to vote. All books and records of the corporation may be inspected by any member, or his agent or attorney, for any proper purpose at any reasonable time.

ARTICLE XIII. SEAL

The Board of Directors shall provide a corporate seal which shall be in the form of a circle and shall have inscribed thereon the name of the corporation and the words "Corporate Seal. Illinois."

ARTICLE XIV. WAIVER OF NOTICE.

Whenever any notice whatever is required to be given under the provisions of the General Net for Profit Corporation Act of Illinois, or under the provisions of the articles of incorporation or the by-laws of the corporation, a waiver thereof in writing signed by the person entitled to such notice, whether before or after the time stated therein, shall be deemed equivalent to the giving of such notice.

ARTICLE XV. REGULATION OF INCOME

No part of the net earnings of the Association shall in any way inure to the benefit of any member, director or officer, but this shall not preclude the reimbursement for expenses incurred as such or the payment of compensation authorized by the Board of Directors to the Executive Secretary and other persons for services rendered as such. The Association shall not engage in carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation.

ARTICLE XVI. AMENDMENTS

These by-laws may be amended by a majority vote at the annual meeting. Written notice of any proposed amendments shall be submitted to the membership at least 30 days in advance of the meeting; including either the verbatim proposal, or a fair digest which is sufficient to clearly indicate the contents of such proposal.

ARTICLE XVII. PARLIAMENTARY PROCEEDINGS

In official meeting of the Association, Roberts Rules of Order shall determine parliamentary procedures.

3. To advance generally the science, processes, and art of intergroup relations and to improve the standards of work in that field, advancing technical and professional knowledge, standards and practice.

ARTICLE III. ORGANIZATION AND ELECTIONS

1. The Association shall consist of one organization representing the entire body of the membership. The Association shall maintain a central headquarters office as designated by the Board of Directors. The Association may establish divisions within the organization as required.

2. The membership of the Association shall determine policies of the Association at the annual meeting, and subject to the mail ballot provisions, shall elect in this order, the Board of Directors, the Officers, and the Nominating Committee for the following year.

ARTICLE IV. MEMBERSHIP

1. Membership shall be limited to individuals and shall be of three classes:

   a. Active: Any person primarily engaged in intergroup relations: in a professional staff capacity, whether salaried or voluntary; as a recognized authority; as a member of the governing body of any agency or commission, or otherwise substantially engaged in the intergroup relations work of an agency or commission related to this field.

   b. Associate: Any person subscribing to the basic objectives and program of the Association.

c. Student: Any person enrolled in a recognized college or university and working toward a degree with the intention of entering the field of intergroup relations.

2. The Board of Directors shall have authority over admission to membership in NAIRO, but may delegate to the Membership Committee, or its Chairman, or to the Executive Secretary, the power to receive and act upon applications for active membership, provided that such delegates shall, wherever feasible, consult with active NAIRO members in the area from which the application is received. Subject to review by the membership at the annual business meeting, the Board of Directors may suspend or remove from membership, after opportunity for hearings and fair notice thereof, any person whose conduct is deemed harmful to NAIRO.

ARTICLE V. DUTIES AND PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERSHIP

1. The Association shall establish and maintain a schedule of annual fees and dues for the two classes of membership.

2. Each Active member shall be entitled to: vote at any membership meeting; hold office; participate in conferences; serve, by appointment, on committees; receive all regular and special information services; and utilize the services of the Personnel Exchange and such other special services as shall be determined by the Board.

3. Each Associate member shall be entitled to: participate in conferences; serve, by appointment, on committees; and receive all regular informational services.

4. Each Student member shall be entitled to receive all regular informational services and to participate in conferences of the Association.

5. Any individual, organization or agency may subscribe to the regular informational services of the Association. Special information or other services may be rendered upon request, with or without charge, as the Board of Directors may determine.

ARTICLE VI. OFFICERS

1. The officers of the Association shall be a President, a President-elect, two Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer and a Secretary. The President-elect, Vice Presidents, Treasurer and Secretary shall take office as soon as elected, and shall serve until their successors are chosen; the President shall succeed to his office from the position of President-elect, when the new President-elect shall have been chosen. Elections shall take place at each annual membership meeting (Article X, Sect. 1) or by mail ballot (Article X, Sect. 8).

2. An Executive Secretary may be appointed by the Board, to serve as the Administrative officer of the Association, subject to the direction of the Board, which may, among other duties, delegate to the Executive Secretary the administrative functions of the Treasurer and Secretary. The Board of Directors may also appoint such other staff as it shall deem desirable to perform such duties as may be prescribed by the Board of Directors.

3. The President shall be the principal executive officer of the corporation and shall in general supervise and control all of the business and affairs of the corporation. He shall preside at all meetings of members and of the Board of Directors. He may sign, with the Secretary or any other proper officer of the corporation authorized by the Board of Directors, any deeds, mortgages, bonds, contracts, or other instruments which the Board of Directors have authorized to be executed, except in cases where the signing and execution thereof shall be expressly delegated by the Board of Directors, or by these by-laws, or by statute to some other officer or agent of the corporation; and in general shall perform all duties incident to the office of President, and such other duties as may be assigned by the Board of Directors from time to time. He shall make available to the President-Elect whatever information in his judgment will enable the latter to succeed him most efficiently.

4. The President-Elect, in addition to having the regular powers and duties of any member and of any member of the Board of Directors, shall also be responsible for familiarizing himself as much as possible with the functionings of the association.

5. In the absence of the President or in the event of his inability or refusal to act, the Vice-President (or in the event there be more than one Vice-President, the Vice-Presidents in the order designated, or in the absence of any designation, then in the order of their election) shall perform the duties of the President, and when so acting, shall have all the powers of and be subject to all the restrictions upon the President. Any Vice-President shall perform other duties as from time to time be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

6. If required by the Board of Directors, the Treasurer shall give a bond for the faithful discharge of his duties in such sum and with such surety or sureties as the Board of Directors shall determine. He shall have charge and custody of and be responsible for all funds and securities of the corporation; receive and give receipts for moneys due and payable to the corporation from any source whatsoever, and deposit all such moneys in the name of the corporation in such banks, trust companies or other depositaries as shall be selected in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws; and in general perform all the duties incident to the office of Treasurer and such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

7. The Secretary shall keep the minutes of the meetings of the members and of the Board of Directors in one or more books provided for that purpose; see that all notices are duly given in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws or as required by law; be custodian of the corporate records and of the seal of the corporation and see that the seal of the corporation is affixed to all documents, the execution of which on behalf of the corporation under its seal is duly authorized in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws; keep a register of the post office address of each member which shall be furnished to the Secretary by such member; and in general perform all duties incident to the office of Secretary and such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

8. A vacancy in any office because of death, resignation, removal, disqualification or otherwise, may be filled by the Board of Directors for the unexpired portion of the term, except that, if the office of President-Elect shall become vacant, it shall remain unfilled until the next regular election of officers, at which time the members shall elect a President for the immediately following term as well as all the regular officers.

ARTICLE VII. BOARD OF DIRECTORS

1. The affairs of the Association shall be managed by a Board of Directors which shall consist of not more than thirty-two (32) members, and not less than eighteen (18). Eighteen Directors shall be elected by the membership, in accordance with the provisions of Article X; in addition, any of the six (6) officers who is not otherwise a member of the Board shall serve ex-officio during his term in office. Further, the President shall appoint eight (8) Regional Chairmen of the Association, from eight separate geographic regions of the country, to serve for terms of one year or until their successors are chosen, and these persons shall also serve ex-officio on the Board of Directors, if not already members of the Board.

2. The term of office of the eighteen elected members of the Board shall be for three years, or until their successors are chosen. Six (6) members shall be elected to the Board of Directors yearly. Vacancies shall be filled by appointment of the Board, until the next regular election, at which time a member shall be elected for the unexpired term.

3. The Board of Directors shall report its actions at the Association's annual meeting and shall hold an annual meeting of the Board, immediately after the annual meeting of members, at the same place, without notice. The Board may call such special meetings as may be necessary, at such time and places as it may determine. Special meetings may be called by or at the request of the President or any five (5) directors. Notice of any special meeting of the Board of Directors shall be given at least five (5) days previously thereto by written notice delivered personally or sent by mail or telegram to each director at his address as shown by the records of the corporation. If mailed, such notice shall be deemed to be delivered when deposited in the United States mail in a sealed envelope, such notice shall be deemed to be delivered when the telegram is delivered to the telegram company. Any director may waive notice of any meeting. The attendance of a director at any meeting shall constitute a waiver or notice of such meeting, except where a director attends a meeting for the express purpose of objecting to the transaction of any business because the meeting is not lawfully called or convened. Neither the business to be transacted at, nor the purpose of, any regular or special meeting of the Board need be specified in the notice or waiver of notice of such meeting, unless specifically required by law or by these by-laws.

4. a. The act of a majority of the Directors present at a meeting at which quorum is present shall be the act of the Board of Directors, except where otherwise provided by law or by these by-laws.

   b. At meetings of the Board, seven (7) shall constitute a quorum. If less than seven (7) of the directors are present, a majority of those present may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

ARTICLE VIII. EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE BOARD

1. There shall be established an Executive Committee within the Board of Directors consisting of the officers and three (3) other members of the Board elected by that body. The Executive Secretary, if any, shall be a non-voting member of this Committee.

2. a. The Executive Committee shall act for the Board between meetings of the Board.

b. A majority of the members of the Executive Committee shall constitute a quorum and a majority of those members present at a meeting shall prevail on all questions if a quorum is present.

ARTICLE IX. COMMITTEES

1. The standing committees of the Association shall be:

a. A Nominating Committee of not less than five (5) persons nor more than eleven (11) persons, the duties of which shall be to nominate for presentation to the annual meeting a slate of officers and directors, with at least one candidate for each vacancy, and a slate of candidates for the following year's Nominating Committee.

b. A Membership Committee, which shall aid in securing members and advise the Board of Directors (and Executive Secretary, if any) on problems relating to eligibility for membership in the Association. The Chairman of this Committee and its members shall be appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Board. The Chairman, if not otherwise a member of the Board, shall serve ex officio during his term in office.

c. A Conference Committee, which shall plan and organize the program for the annual meeting, subject to the Board's approval. The Board shall appoint the Chairman and members of this Committee.

2. The Board may authorize the formation of other Committees, not having and exercising the authority of the Board in the management of the Association. Subject to the approval of the Board, the President shall have the power to make interim appointments to the committees authorized by the Board and to create interim Committees and make appointments thereto.

3. Persons not members of the Association may be appointed to serve on the Conference and special Committees.

4. Each member of a Committee shall continue as such until his successor has been appointed, unless the committee shall be sooner terminated, or unless such appointing authority in each case shall have the power of removal, whenever in his or its opinion the best interest of the Association are thereby served. Vacancies in any Committee shall be filled in the same manner provided for the original appointments.

5. a. Unless otherwise provided in the resolution of the Board of Directors designating a committee, a majority of the whole committee shall constitute a quorum and the act of a majority of the members present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the committee.

b. Each committee may adopt rules for its own government not inconsistent with these by-laws or with rules adopted by the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE X. MEETINGS OF MEMBERS

1. The Association shall hold an annual meeting of members and such other meetings as may be necessary to conduct the affairs of the Association, the time to be fixed by the Board of Directors.

2. Special meetings of the members may also be called either by the President, or not less than one-tenth of the members having voting rights.

3. The Board of Directors may designate any place, either within or without the State of Illinois, as the place of meeting for any annual meeting or for any special meeting called by the Board of Directors. If no designation is made or if a special meeting be otherwise called, the place of meeting shall be the registered office of the corporation in the State of Illinois, provided, however, that if all of the members shall meet at any time and place, whether within or without the State of Illinois, and consent to the holding of a meeting, such meeting shall be valid without call or notice, and at such meeting any corporate action may be taken.

4. Written or printed notice stating place, day and hour of any meeting of members shall be delivered, either personally or by mail, to each member entitled to vote at such meeting, not less than five nor more than forty days before the date of such meeting, by or at the direction of the President,or the Secretary, or the officers or persons calling the meeting. In case of a special meeting or when required by statute or by these by-laws, the purpose for which the meeting is called shall be stated in the notice. If mailed, the notice of a meeting shall be deemed delivered when deposited in the United States mail addressed to the member at his address as it appears on the records of the corporation, with postage thereon prepaid.

5. Any action required to be taken at a meeting of the members of the corporation, or any other action which may be taken at a meeting of members may be taken without a meeting if a consent in writing, setting forth the action so taken, shall be signed by all of the members entitled to vote with respect to the subject matter thereof.

6. The members holding one-tenth of the votes which may be cast at any meeting shall constitute a quorum at such meeting. If a quorum is not present at any meeting of members, a majority of the members present may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

7. At any meeting of members, a member entitled to vote may vote either in person or by proxy executed in writing by the member or by his duly authorized attorney-in-fact. No proxy shall be valid after eleven months from the date of its execution unless otherwise provided in the proxy.

8. The Board of Directors may authorize elections of directors and officers to be conducted by mail.

ARTICLE XI. CONTRACTS, CHECKS, DEPOSITS AND FUNDS

1. The Board of Directors may authorize an officer or officers, agent or agents of the corporation, in addition to the officers so authorized by these by-laws, to enter into any contract or execute and deliver any instrument in the name of and on behalf of the corporation and such authority may be general or confined to specific instances.

2. All checks, drafts or other orders for the payment of money, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness issued in the name of the corporation, shall be signed by such officer or officers, agent or agents of the corporation and in such a manner as shall from time to time be determined by resolution of the Board of Directors. In the absence of such determination by the Board of Directors, such instruments shall be signed by the Treasurer or an Assistant Treasurer and countersigned by the President or a Vice-President of the corporation.

3. All funds of the corporation shall be deposited from time to time to the credit of the corporation in such banks, trust companies or other depositaries as the Board of Directors may select.

4. The Board of Directors may accept on behalf of the corporation any contribution, gift, bequest or devise for the general purposes or for any special purpose of the corporation.

ARTICLE XII. BOOKS AND RECORDS

The corporation shall keep correct and complete books and records of account and shall also keep minutes of the proceedings of its members, Board of Directors and committees having any of the authority of the Board of Directors, and shall keep at the registered or principal office a record giving the names and addresses of the members entitled to vote. All books and records of the corporation may be inspected by any member, or his agent or attorney, for any proper purpose at any reasonable time.

ARTICLE XIII. SEAL

The Board of Directors shall provide a corporate seal which shall be in the form of a circle and shall have inscribed thereon the name of the corporation and the words "Corporate Seal. Illinois."

ARTICLE XIV. WAIVER OF NOTICE

Whenever any notice whatever is required to be given under the provisions of the General Net for Profit Corporation Act of Illinois, or under the provisions of the articles of incorporation or the by-laws of the corporation, a waiver thereof in writing signed by the person entitled to such notice, whether before or after the time stated therein, shall be deemed equivalent to the giving of such notice.

ARTICLE XV. REGULATION OF INCOME

No part of the net earnings of the Association shall in any way inure to the benefit of any member, director or officer, but this shall not preclude the reimbursement for expenses incurred as such or the payment of compensation authorized by the Board of Directors to the Executive Secretary and other persons for services rendered as such. The Association shall not engage in carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation.

ARTICLE XVI. AMENDMENTS

These by-laws may be amended by a majority vote at the annual meeting. Written notice of any proposed amendments shall be submitted to the membership at least 30 days in advance of the meeting; including either the verbatim proposal, or a fair digest which is sufficient to clearly indicate the contents of such proposal.

ARTICLE XVII. PARLIAMENTARY PROCEEDINGS

In official meeting of the Association, Roberts Rules of Order shall determine parliamentary procedures.

ARTICLE XVIII. LOCAL NAIRO CHAPTERS

1. Members, and only members, of the Association living in the same vicinity may form a local NAIRO chapter to carry out, in their locality, the purposes stated in Article II of the by-laws.

2. Such a chapter shall be recognized as an official local chapter of the Association when, after application to the Board of Directors, it receives a charter from the Board of Directors.

3. Such a chapter, having been chartered by the Board of Directors is entitled to call itself the _____ Chapter of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials.

4. Every local chapter affiliated with the Association shall abide by the principles set forth in the by-laws of the Association as interpreted by the Board of Directors.

5. Every local chapter shall elect a chairman, a vice-chairman and a secretary. It may elect or appoint such other officers as it deems necessary to function effectively.

6. Every local chapter shall report once a year to the Board of Directors, through the Executive Secretary, the following:

   a. Names and addresses of its officers for the coming year.

   b. A summary of its activities for the preceding year.

7. No local chapter may levy dues, fees, assessments or fines upon its members except by written permission of the Board of Directors.

8. No local chapter shall engage in any activity which may be construed as carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting, to influence legislation; nor shall any local chapter participate in, or intervene in (including the publishing or distributing of statements), any political campaign on behalf of any candidate for public office; nor act in any manner contrary to the by-laws or policies of the Association.

9. The charter of a local chapter may be revoked after due process for due cause when, by decision of the Board of Directors, its continued existence is deemed detrimental to the integrity, effectiveness, or professional standards of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials. Such revocation of a charter shall in no way affect the membership status of persons in the Association.

Dear Miss Amerman:

Here is the present list.

Observe that Tennessee for the moment has no Executive Director. It is merely the chairman as given. Will soon we hope.

The Kentucky show is called the Kentucky Council on Human Relations. It's Executive Director is Galen Martin, whose address is at 208 West Main Street, at Frankfort, Kentucky.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

Dear George:

In compiling the mailing list for NAIRO's survey of intergroup relations practitioners for the Commission on Race and Housing, we would like to include the executives of the committees on human relations which have been set up in Southern states under your guidance. Can you send me such a list by return mail?

I think we have most of them, but want to be sure our file is complete and up-to-date. I am especially anxious to have the executives' names and the addresses of the Louisiana and Texas committees. Also are there two Kentucky Councils on Human Relations - one in Frankfort and one in Louisville? Which is correct?

Sincerely yours,

Helen

Dear Helen:

George has turned your letter of July 17 requesting information or correction on the list of human relations agencies in the South over to me. I have made corrections on the list and return it herewith.

In the South, unlike perhaps other areas of the nation, there are several other groups which perhaps play an important role in intergroup relations, and I wonder if you would want to include them.

These would include:

1. State Councils of Churches
2. State Negro Teachers Associations
3. YWCA's.

You, of course, are aware of the race relations officials of the Federal Housing Administration and some of the local specialists who deal with racial problems in housing.

If we in SRC can be of any further help to you, please yell.

I hope to see you at the NAIRO Annual Meeting.

Dear George:

To double check our mailing for the NAIRO survey I am asking NAIRO members in each locality to scan our list and add any agencies and executives which we may have missed.

Our study is concerned with those intergroup relations organizations which have paid staff. We hope to include all below the national level - both public and private. We are also interested in private housing and planning groups with paid staff, which are concerned with intergroup relations problems.

I would appreciate it if you would note any additions or corrections on the enclosed list and return it to us. Please indicate postal zones wherever you can. It would be especially helpful if you would tell us more about any in our doubtful group - do they have paid staff, and if so, what is the executive's name.

Our project is scheduled for completion within six weeks, so please let me hear from you soon.

Sincerely yours,

Helen

FROM: Frederick B. Routh

As Chairman of the Southern Region of NAIRO, I have been asked to contact you to remind you of the importance of filling out and returning as quickly as possible the housing survey questionnaire developed by Dr. Helen E. Amerman, Director of Research for NAIRO.

I recognize that this is an inconvenient time for many executives but the quality of the returns thus far indicates we shall have a significant report. We need to make the report as fully representative of the intergroup relations field as possible.

Please send your reply to the NAIRO Research Office, 2180 Milvia Street, Berkeley 4, California.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Up-Dating the Report on

The State Legislatures

ARIZONA: Legislature adjourned; no action on equal accommodations bills noted in March issue.

CALIFORNIA: While A.B. 758, to bar discriminatory fraternities and sororities from the campuses of publicly-supported colleges and universities, continued to languish in committee, the constitutionality of the formal recognition of such organizations by the University of California was challenged in a brief filed with the state's attorney general (see elsewhere in this issue). . . . The major FEP bill of the session, A.B. 2000, met defeat in the Senate Labor Committee by a vote of 4-2 on May 13, after having passed the Assembly by the overwhelming majority of 61-15 on April 15. Prospects for other fair employment measures waned. . . . Several bills were introduced since the March roundup: S.B. 2566, to authorize establishment within the State Board of Education of a Commission to assist and advise local school districts concerning problems of discrimination based on race, religion or other factors in connection with the employment of certified employees, had passed the Senate and was awaiting action in the Assembly at press time. . . . A proposed new section would be added to the Education Code by A.B. 2939; this would prohibit the asking of any questions "relating to political party registration, religious opinions, beliefs or evaluations, race or marital status" of any applicant for a position requiring certification. . . . The Government Code would be amended by A.B. 3372, which would add a new section prohibiting any appointing power under the Civil Service Act from discriminating against any person or class of persons because of race, religion, sex or marital status. . . . The only housing bill to make any progress was one declaring it to be the policy of the state that space in redeveloped areas of cities shall be open to everyone regardless of creed, race, color or national origin. This passed the Assembly unanimously on May 4, while effective legislation against discrimination in publicly-assisted housing remained dormant. . . . Another pious measure also was introduced: A.B. 3687, to declare it a purpose of the state government "to promote the establishment of city and county agencies designed to foster peaceful relations among citizens of different races, religions or national origins." . . . And A.B. 2690 would create a Civil Rights Commission of sixteen members to inquire into the need for legislation to eliminate racial discrimination.

COLORADO: Governor McNichols signed S.B. 126 into law on March 14 (just after our March issue went to press). The law makes an enforceable FEP statute of Colorado's former law applying only

College Fraternity Bias and the 14th Amendment

The Attorney General of California has been asked to rule on the constitutionality of official recognition by the University of California of fraternities that restrict membership on the basis of race or religion. A number of interested organizations have joined in submitting a brief to the Attorney General, supporting the contention that this action by the University is both unconstitutional under the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and contrary to the public policy of the State of California. This is believed to be the first time that fraternity bias has been projected as a constitutional issue and the sequel to this inquiry of the California atttorney general will be awaited with much interest.

In this issue, NAIRO Reporter seeks to bring up to date the roundup of legislative activity on civil rights presented in the March issue. Information given here relates only to action since the March roundup was completed, and of which news has been received up to June 10. Bills originally mentioned in March and further reported on here are designated in italic type in the text.

At press time, the score on state legislation, as reflected in information available to the Reporter, stood as follows:

FEPC: Plus — Colorado and Wisconsin laws made fully effective and enforceable

Minus — FEP defeated in California, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, New Mexico

CIVIL RIGHTS: Plus—Wyoming adopted a general civil rights law (see this issue)

PUBLIC ACCOMMODATIONS: Plus—New laws passed or old laws strengthened in Colorado, Oregon, Vermont, Washington

Minus — Defeats in Kansas and New Mexico

PROHIBITION OF DISCRIMINATION IN HOUSING BUILT WITH FEDERAL MORTGAGE GUARANTEES: Plus — Such laws enacted in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Oregon, Washington

Minus—Defeated in Minnesota.

NOTE: The constitutionality of such laws is being challenged in New York. A full account of the case and an analysis of the issue will be given in the July Reporter.

REPEAL OF LAWS BARRING INTERRACIAL MARRIAGES: Passed in Colorado and South Dakota to public employment. . . . On the same date, the Governor also signed H.B. 39 repealing Colorado's long-standing law against interracial marriages. . . . Both houses passed H.B. 426, to bring violations of the public accommodations law under jurisdiction of the Anti-Discrimination Commission, and the Governor signed the bill in April. Included is an additional $11,500 for the Anti-Discrimination Commission's budget.

CONNECTICUT: Both fair educational bills noted in the March issue, S.B. 571 and H.B. 1852, died in committees. . . . While H.B. 295 was not taken up, three other bills were introduced for the same purpose, viz., to empower the Connecticut Commission on Civil Rights to order employment or reemployment, with or without back pay, of complainants under the FEP law. The three bills are H.B. 304, S.B. 417 and S.B. 655. . . . A proposal to extend the Commission's jurisdiction to employers of three or more (it is now five or more) was introduced in the House (H.B. 1868). . . . All died with adjournment.

ILLINOIS: By a vote of 131-8, the House on May 1 passed H.B. 474, to authorize boards of education to consider race, color and nationality of children in establishing school district zones so as to achieve integration of pupils regardless of race, color, or religion. . . . The House Industrial Affairs Committee approved the bill (noted in the March issue) to prohibit discrimination in employment by a vote of 24-9 on May 1; but the companion measure was rejected by the Senate Industrial Affairs Committee by 8-4 on the same day without hearings. . . . A proposed amendment to the School Code (H.B. 254) would limit school aid to school districts whose boards file sworn statements that they do not discriminate in the employment of teachers on the basis of color, creed, race or nationality. . . . Discrimination in the sale or rental of public or publicly-assisted housing would be made unlawful by H.B. 528. . . . Voters unable to get to the polls on election day because of their observance of a religious holiday would be permitted to use absentee ballots by H.B. 434.

INDIANA: The FEP bill noted in the March issue was defeated.

KANSAS: After it passed the House, H.B. 54, which would have materially strengthened the State Anti-Discrimination Commission, was emasculated in the Senate Federal and State Affairs Committee before it was favorably reported to the Senate, which adjourned without acting on it. . . . Another bill, which would have provided injunctive relief for persons discriminated against in employment or places of accommodation, was defeated in the House State Affairs Committee.

MASSACHUSETTS: S. 328, giving the State Commission Against Discrimination power to enforce a prohibition against discrimination in public and publicly-assisted housing, passed both houses; Governor Furculo signed the measure into law on June 7; it becomes effective September 5, 1957. . . . A bill to ban from the University of Massachusetts fraternities or sororities that discriminate in membership on the basis of race, creed or color was rejected by the House.

MISSOURI: Missouri's FEP bill, H.B. 161, advanced in the House when it received a favorable report from the Committee on Governmental Organization and Related Matters on May 16. . . . Passed by the House was H.B. 164, to prohibit discrimination in employment by state agencies; the measure has remained in the Senate Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence since it was referred there on April 15. . . . A bill to repeal the statute providing for segregated public schools and specifying color as a factor in computing school attendance (H.B. 163) passed the House. The Senate passed a slightly modified version on May 16. . . . H.B. 125, to create a state Commission on Human Rights, came up three times in the House and was defeated each time by a failure to muster the necessary 79 affirmative votes. Finally, following the intervention of Governor James T. Blair, the House voted its approval on April 30, by 83 to 38 and sent the bill to the Senate.

MICHIGAN: A bill introduced into the Senate would prohibit discrimination on account of race, color or creed in publicly-assisted housing.

MINNESOTA: A bill to prohibit discrimination in publicly-assisted housing was permitted to die after the Senate Judiciary Committee had approved it. . . . On April 29, the House concurred in a Senate-approved bill which would create an interim commission to study and investigate discrimination and segregation because of color, race, creed or national origin in the sale or leasing of housing accommodations. The bill carried an appropriation of $10,000 for the two-year study.

NEW HAMPSHIRE: Public hearings were held April 24 on H.B. 340. The bill would establish a state Commission Against Discrimination and give it all the customary powers to enforce prohibitions against discrimination in employment and public accommodations.

NEW MEXICO: A bill to strengthen the state's FEP law, H.B. 32, and another to put teeth into the equal public accommodations law, H.B. 123, died when the legislature adjourned. The latter measure had passed the House.

Some Civil Rights Developments in Canada

On April 15, the City Council of Windsor, Ontario, adopted a resolution requiring builders to sell without discrimination any housing built on land purchased from the city. The text of the resolution follows:

That all future sales of City-owned land, including those approved by Council at this meeting, to persons who propose to construct houses thereon for resale to the public be made subject to the condition that the prospective purchasers of such land, or any person acting on their behalf, will not discriminate against any person in the resale of such land, or any part thereof, or in the sale of any of the aforementioned houses by reason of race, creed, colour, nationality, ancestry or place of origin of any person, and that a proper covenant to this effect be inserted in all future agreements for sale or conveyances, as the case may be.

Meanwhile, an amendment to the Fair Accommodations Practices Act of Ontario Province, that would bring apartment houses under its coverage, was lost in the Ontario legislature, without discussion.

Georgia Ban on Interracial Organizations

Any organization that invites citizens of the sovereign state of Georgia to any meeting anywhere to which Negroes also are invited—regardless of who actually attends the meeting—will be banned from the Georgia public schools under an action taken by the Georgia Board of Education on April 23. The scope of the ban is somewhat ambiguous. It was intended, according to William Bodenhamer, Baptist minister and Board of Education member on whose motion the action was taken, to apply specifically to the YMCA. The YMCA is planning a nine-state meeting in North Carolina this summer, which is to include Negroes as delegates. But the ban would seem to apply also to such national groups as the 4-H Clubs, Future Teachers of America, and many fraternities and sororities.

NEW YORK: On April 19, 1957, Governor Harriman signed into law an amendment to the State Labor Law to prohibit discrimination on the grounds of race, creed, color or national origin in the apprenticeship training programs under the joint sponsorship of labor unions and trade management groups. . . . The Legislature adjourned on March 30 without acting on S. 336, which would have authorized the State Commission Against Discrimination to initiate complaints on its own motion. Instead, the Legislature passed a bill appropriating $100,000 for the creation of a Civil Rights Bureau in the office of the State's Attorney General to file complaints involving discrimination with the State Commission Against Discrimination. Governor Averill Harriman vetoed this bill on the ground that it would "whittle down the authority of the State Commission Against Discrimination." . . . With adjournment, the Metcalf-Baker bills, to extend the prohibition against discrimination to private housing, vesting jurisdiction over the enforcement of the law in the existing State Commission Against Discrimination, also died, as did S. 1072 which would have increased maximum damages or fine for violations of the Civil Rights Law.

NEW JERSEY: Governor Robert B. Meyner on June 4 signed into law A. 8, to prohibit discrimination in FHA-aided housing and vesting jurisdiction in the state's Division Against Discrimination. The bill had been passed unanimously by the Senate on May 20 after favorable action by the Assembly.

OHIO: Two bills to deal with employment discrimination were introduced: S.B. 6, which would provide a Fair Employment Practices Commission with the usual enforcement powers; and H.B. 209, which would create a Division of Employment Practices within the Department of Industrial Relations and authorize educational activities to reduce discrimination in employment.

OREGON: Discrimination in admissions to colleges and universities would be prohibited by H.B. 770, which would permit persons believing themselves discriminated against to petition the Circuit Court for orders requiring their admission. . . . Three acts reinforcing Oregon's civil rights laws were enacted by the Legislature: H.B. 647 prohibits discrimination based on race, color, religion or national origin in the sale or rental of publicly-aided housing; H.B. 646, adds trailer parks and camp grounds to the places of public accommodation forbidden to discriminate on grounds of race, religion, color or national origin (passed by the House in April by a vote of 41-16, the bill was amended in the Senate by deletion of a provision for suspension or revocation of license as a penalty for violation); an amendment to the 1949 Fair Employment Practices Act creates an Anti-Discrimination Division in the Bureau of Labor with jurisdiction over all civil rights laws, and authorizes the Attorney General to initiate complaints under any of those laws. The Bureau of Labor under previous laws had jurisdiction over unlawful employment practices only.

PENNSYLVANIA: S.B. 707 and H.B. 1345 would prohibit discrimination in any publicly-assisted housing accommodation, which would be defined to include public housing, redevelopment housing, limited dividend housing and multiple dwellings financed in whole or in part by a loan guaranteed or insured by any agency of the federal government. Enforcement of the measure would be vested in the existing state Fair Employment Practice Commission. The bill was referred to the Committee on State Government.

UTAH: Discrimination at places of public accommodation would be made illegal by H.B. 87, and punishable by a civil penalty.

VERMONT: On April 23, Governor Joseph Johnson signed into law a bill prohibiting places of public accommodation from refusing to serve any person because of race, color, creed or national origin. The measure had passed the Senate on April 5, the House on April 18.

WASHINGTON: Following its extension of the jurisdiction of the State Board Against Discrimination (reported in the March issue), the Legislature voted a $39,000 increase in the biennial budget for the agency. The new budget of $91,000 compares with a budget for the last biennium of $52,000. The Board had asked for $150,000.

WISCONSIN: The state's educational-type FEP law has been strengthened by companion Senate and Assembly bills S. 327 and A. 634, which add enforcement provisions. The bill passed both houses unanimously early in June and was awaiting the Governor's signature at press time. The Attorney General, on request, had rendered an opinion that the bill, if enacted, would not violate the State Constitution. . . . Pending before the Senate Committee on Highways at press time was S. 276, which would eliminate the item "race" from the descriptive information required on applications for driver's licenses.

WYOMING: Governor Simpson has signed into law a civil rights bill (S.F. 161) that provides that "no person of good deportment shall be denied the right of life, liberty, pursuit of happiness, or the necessities of life, because of race, color, creed or national origin." Violation subjects the person, firm or corporation responsible to fines of not more than $100.00 or to imprisonment for a term of not more than six months, or both. An attempt to write a so-called "right to work" clause into the bill was defeated in the House on January 31, 1957. The bill passed the Senate by 18 to 9 and the House without a dissenting vote on the first day of the legislative session. . . . The repeal of the prohibition on interracial marriage, S.F. 162, noted in the March issue, died in House Committee after passing the Senate.

Negro Graduates in Clinton on Third Anniversary of Supreme Court Ruling

Bobby Cain got his diploma from the high school in Clinton, Tennessee, on May 17, three years to the day after the United States Supreme Court ruled racial segregation in the public schools unconstitutional. Bobby, aged 17, was the first Negro to be graduated from the school where violence last fall made it necessary for the Governor of Tennessee to call out the militia. Six other Negro pupils are still enrolled in the high school. Looking back, Bobby remarked that it had been a "rough year."

"I wouldn't want to go through it again," he commented. But he was not sorry he had stuck it out through the violence and anti-Negro agitation.

Southern Unions on Race Question

Patterns of segregation in the South are changing, according to a survey of the impact of the race issue on southern unions. The survey indicated that two-thirds of southern locals have both Negro and white membership, and one-quarter of these locals have at least one Negro officer. In no other southern organization has segregation declined as much.

Prepared for the AFL-CIO, the survey is intended to serve as a guide for organized labor in meeting the problems of racial tension in the South.

Despite the predominantly pro-segregationist attitudes of southern trade unionists, the survey finds that only one-third of the locals questioned replied that many or most of their members "have a strong feeling against the labor movement for its opposition to segregation." Loyalty to the AFL-CIO is indicated by the fact that not a single local has disaffiliated because of the national organization's position on the Supreme Court decision.

Nevertheless, the survey warned that the race issue could seriously disrupt many southern union locals, and recommended a comprehensive program for assisting local union leaders in the South in coping with current racial problems.

The survey covered more than one hundred representative locals in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Louisiana and Mississippi, and was made possible by a grant from the Fund for the Republic.

Dear NAIRO Member:

We are about to enter the second phase of the NAIRO Internship Program, and the participating foundations are prepared to accept applications from agencies for 1958-1959 training grants.

As you know, the agency must be prepared to provide one year's on-the-job professional training to some man or woman interested in a career in the field of intergroup relations. This internship would begin in the summer or early autumn of 1958, and would include participation in next year's two-week Internship Seminar. Selection of the intern would be entirely in the hands of the agency.

By and large, the foundations are prepared to award only half-grants of $2,500, which must be matched by the agency, a local foundation, community support, etc. The foundations, not NAIRO, will select the agencies to receive these grants. Applications should be submitted by February 28, and the selection will be announced by April 30.

Applications may be addressed to NAIRO for forwarding to the foundations. They should outline the training program proposed, any special opportunities for professional development, the nature of the agency, and the supervision available. All intergroup relations agencies are eligible - public and private, religious and secular, etc., but it should be noted that foundations can give to tax-exempt organizations only.

I am sure that this brief summary leaves many unanswered questions; if your agency thinks that it might be interested in applying and wishes more information, please do not hesitate to write. I estimate, incidentally, that 12-15 half-grants will be available this year.

Please remember the February 28 deadline, and please be quite specific in your application.

Best wishes.

Sincerely,

John Lassoe

Dear Board Member:

There follows our Agenda for the January 24 - 25 Board meeting in Chicago. You will remember that it will begin at 10 a.m. sharp in Margaret Garrity's office: Room 1021, Bankers Building, 105 West Adams Street.

As supplementary material, I have asked Thelma Babbitt to send each of you a copy of the Membership Committee's recommendations. The reports of the Sub-committee on Financial Development and the Sub-committee on Program Development were incorporated in the last (Conference Report) issue of the NAIRO Newsletter. Other reports will be made orally or given to you at the Meeting.

I look forward to seeing most of you in Chicago.

Sincerely,

Arnold Aronson

Some Highlights of the ELEVENTH

Annual NAIRO Conference

NAIRO's Eleventh Annual Conference took place November 20-22, 1957 at the Pickwick Hotel in Kansas City, Mo. Attending were members and visitors from 24 states and the District of Columbia—and one from Singapore. In our available space we cannot begin to do justice to the many significant facets of the Conference. Readers who are not members of NAIRO, and thus have not had the benefit of Executive Secretary John V.P. Lassoe's comprehensive summary, will find the excerpts from some major Conference papers, presented here, interesting and provocative.

President's Keynote

John G. Feild, retiring President, opened the Eleventh Annual Conference with some observations on NAIRO's first ten years. Since its formal organization on November 16, 1947, NAIRO has moved forward as rapidly as the field of intergroup relations, Mr. Feild remarked, citing the following:

NAIRO membership has climbed from less than 100 to well over 400; local public agencies have increased in number from 12 to over 50; state public agencies have jumped from 5 to 19 (13 of them Fair Employment Practices Commissions); almost every national agency has expanded its staff; and federal responsibility has grown from a few race relations advisers to a number of specific agencies. While there has been high mortality among local private agencies, the number existing in 1957 may not be materially below that noted ten years ago (624).

Reflecting on some of the reasons for the growth in the field of intergroup relations and for the identification and acceptance of intergroup relations personnel as professionals, the retiring NAIRO President suggested three factors: (1) "the steady, unrelenting impact of scientific knowledge" (research into race and biology, etc.), (2) "the steady, unrelenting impact of urbanization" (with increasing necessity for coping with intergroup relationships on something better than a trial-and-error basis), and (3) "the steady, unrelenting impact of intergroup relations in the United States on international affairs and U.S. prestige abroad." All this has brought progress in the integration of scientific knowledge in intergroup relations, progress in the practical use of that knowledge, and progress in public acceptance of it.

Evaluating the present, Mr. Feild reminded the Conference of Louis Wirth's dictum: "Never underestimate the value of advice." Much of our professional duty is advisory, he said, rather than regulatory alone, and this advice has had increasing significance. As evidence, he pointed to the role of social scientists in the Supreme Court decision on school segregation, the increasing use of intergroup relations professionals as consultants, the increasing desire of industry for practical advice on intergroup relations. He directed attention also to the professionals' increased ability to work effectively with laymen, experts of other professions, and elected officials.

As individual professionals, as a profession, as NAIRO, Mr. Feild concluded, the members were better organized and prepared than ever before to cope with the urgent problems of the time.

Implications of Population Redistribution

Excerpts from the speech of Clarence Senior, Chief of the Migration Division of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico Department of Labor.

[After a factual review of international (post-war) population redistribution and some comments on our immigration legislation, Mr. Senior turned to the national scene.] Verbatim excerpts follow:

The people of the United States today seem to be at least as mobile as they were a century ago, during the great Westward movement. . . . Almost one-half of all the 3,103 counties in the U.S. lost population between 1940 and 1950.

Neither losses nor gains were capricious; all can be understood by examining economic conditions and demographic realities. [The major areas of in-migration] are the areas showing the highest per capita income, the greatest development of manufacturing and other sources of wealth, the lowest rates of illiteracy, the lowest birth and death rates, and other indices of economic and social advancement.

The major regions of the country show a pattern of internal population redistribution which is extremely important in our economic, social and political life. Rural areas everywhere have lost population to the cities. . . . Metropolitan areas are growing in the country as a whole, but at different rates based on the economic health of the region. . . . [Within the metropolitan areas] the central city for years has been growing at a slower rate than the suburbs. . . .

There is a big difference between the rural-urban or South-North migrations on the one hand and the central city-suburbs on the other. Migrants in the former stream are motivated largely by a search for greater economic success; movers to suburbia make the shift largely as a result of economic success.

When new people move into a neighborhood in fairly large numbers, its social composition is likely to change in the following characteristics: age, family size and structure, educational levels, major occupations, religious affiliation, political beliefs, and ethnic makeup. Indicative of such changes are the shifts in racial composition of some of our leading cities between 1940 and 1950.

What are the implications of this vast internal population redistribution? All new groups are likely to be met by indifference, if not hostility . . . xenophobia . . . reinforced by a milder disease known as ethnocentrism. How do we combat these maladies? Facts are not always a cure, but they are indispensable even if not always sufficient. . . . The current renewal of interest in science offers an opportunity for intergroup workers to stress the need for a scientific approach to human problems as well as to physical problems.

Ecological studies show (for example) that no matter what ethnic group inhabits slums, the indices of social pathology tend to remain high. The slum is the enemy; not the people who are its victims. Similarly, studies of various types of migrants under similar circumstances show parallels which are important in helping build understanding between the "old-timers" and the newcomers.

There are other approaches we might employ to prevent the newcomer from being used as a scapegoat for urban decay. One is to try to keep the older residents from reacting to stereotypes instead of to human beings. . . . The "persons-not-problems" diagnosis should enable the human relations practitioner to cope with the all-too-prevalent idea that the migrant himself is the cause not only of his own difficulties but of those of the community as a whole. The concept of culture is a most useful tool in this endeavor.

The "problem" approach tends further to isolate the newcomers at a time when they are already suffering the deleterious consequences of being relegated to the most undesirable neighborhoods. [On the other hand] the sociological approach is not easy. It involves establishing contact with the newcomer. . . . Basically, the difference between the "problem" approach and a sociological approach involves working with the natural groupings of the newcomers . . . in a manner which does not add to their sense of being 'different' but which incorporates them into various aspects of the community structure. Naturally, participation is not going to be achieved if the newcomer is discriminated against in his daily life and work. . . . Nothing less than what Dr. Frank Horne calls the "open city" will enable our democracy to keep its head high against the charges that its precepts fully apply only to white people.

The Creative Role of Conflict in Intergroup Relations

Excerpts from paper presented by Dr. Dan W. Dodson, Director, Center for Human Relations and Community Studies, New York University.

Dr. Dodson first reviewed the history and recent growth of intergroup relations, and noted some of the efforts that have contributed to our knowledge of human relations. He then singled out the missing dimensions in this knowledge: (1) the nature of intergroup relations and (2) insight into the nature of conflict itself.

Before developing his theme, he stated three basic assumptions: (1) that all of us are born into groups which build systems of values, perceptions and attitudes into us—which inevitably means that all of us are prejudiced; (2) that conflict is one of the normal ways in which people interact with each other, that it is always going to exist in a free society (where there is difference of interests), and that our problem is to find ways to use conflict toward creative ends in our social relationships; and (3) that the groups in which we live have what they consider to be equities in the social order, that re-structuring becomes necessary as the status of relations of groups changes, and that it is next to impossible to re-structure these relations without some hostility and conflict.

"I would contend, at least for purposes of this discussion, that attitudes between peoples are much more a reflection of the structural relations of their groups to each other than they are a matter of what is the psychology or dynamics of prejudice. . . . What we see [in areas of social life as significant as desegregation of education] is the manifestation of prejudice, violence and other kinds of hostilities toward peo-

Religious Conflict in the United States

Excerpts from remarks by Dr. Roy McCorkel, Director, Commission on Religious Organizations, National Conference of Christians and Jews.

"We have had a long period of religious conflict but historically we have made great gains. In the early days of our country, this conflict took crude forms, such as jailing violators of one group's religious beliefs and even executing them. As an outgrowth of this conflict, we later saw the emergence of the Ku Klux Klan . . . organized in opposition to Catholics and Jews, as well as Negroes. The Klan's activities died down but, unfortunately, we are seeing a resurgence of the Klan today, accompanied by a more sophisticated group, the White Citizens Councils.

"Increased interest in church affiliation is evident today. It is more socially acceptable to join a church or synagogue, and they are crowded. Thus the relationship between the religious groups—always a problem, always an area of conflict—becomes even more important."

Dr. McCorkel spoke of the false assumption held by many Protestants that Roman Catholics would not cooperate on community matters, or if so only on their own terms. The American Jewish community has found a new acceptance, but there is a growing hostility toward the Catholic community. This new hostility is reflected in the following areas of conflict: role of religion in public schools, church-state relationships, religious liberty (for all and not for some), censorship of public morals (films, books, Sunday Blue Laws, etc.), and questions of Catholic support of Community Chests which endorse and support birth control clinics.

He observed that conflict is a natural part of any growing society. "We need some ground rules," he said, "so that we can 'play the game' fairly." Some rules followed: (1) Lines of communication must be kept open between disputing groups. (2) We must realize that we (society) will never become as one in belief and action. Therefore we must know the basis for common agreement. "This must be done if we are to live in a world lighted by lightning rather than one lighted by a candle."

ples as they go through the re-structuring of their relations to each other.

"I know of few ways in which group relations can be re-structured except through conflict. On the other hand, all too many of the agencies we represent were created by mayors and other responsible officials whose interest was in keeping conflict from occurring in their communities. Too often we are expected to placate the conflicting interests rather than use such conflict to achieve creative goals in which the relations become re-structured without destructive conflict.

"A good case could be made that growth and interest in civil rights has stemmed not from what we have done as ameliorative agencies but rather because of what has happened in the re-structuring of relations between groups because of broad social changes which have occurred." Dr. Dodson then cited changes of power relationships between groups in Northern cities and states brought about by the in-migration of Negroes and their increasing "sophistication in the use of the ballot."

A Decade of Civil Rights

Excerpts from a speech by Robert K. Carr, Executive Secretary, American Association of University Professors; was Executive Secretary (1946-47) of President Harry S. Truman's Committee on Civil Rights.

We have in a very large sense been depending, in our civil rights progress of the last decade, upon a blueprint, upon an impetus that is now ten years old. It is flattering to us who were identified with the President's Committee to think that our report should have had such an impact upon the events of the last decade and revealed so much lasting value. At the same time, it is wise to remind ourselves that in the ever-difficult field of civil rights there is a constant need for new and forward looking analyses of the problem and enumerations of principle.

Final proof of the substantial influence that the Committee's report has had upon the events of the last ten years is seen in the fact that every provision in the Civil Rights Act of 1957 was expressly recommended by President Truman's Committee.

In creating the Committee on Civil Rights in 1946, Harry Truman showed a great deal of political courage. He was motivated by a plain old-fashioned honest concern for the most fundamental principles of American democracy and human freedom and he acted on the basis of a keen understanding of the kind of world in which the U.S. found itself at the close of the war.

Gains of the last decade would certainly include:

1. The substantial, if not yet complete, elimination of racial discrimination from our armed services.

2. The elimination of racial discrimination from the nation's capital (one of the most important sections of the report dealt with the existence of racial discrimination in Washington.)

I am sure that the members of the committee, if they were with us today, would take as much pride in the part their analysis and recommendations played in bringing about the far-reaching improvements in racial practices in Washington as they would in any other single gain that may fairly be attributed to their report.

3. In the field of urban housing.

4. A substantial breaking down of racial barriers in such varied field as public and private employment, professional sports, enjoyment of transportation and recreational facilities, and access to public and private institutions of higher learning.

5. The decision of the Supreme Court declaring the unconstitutionality of compulsory racial segregation in the public schools and sounding the death knell of one of the most tragic policies in American history, the infamous separate-but-equal doctrine.

[In closing, Dr. Carr expressed the hope that President Eisenhower's Committee on Civil Rights] "will show the same understanding of American traditions and principles . . . and the same boldness and imagination in suggesting a program of action . . . as did President Truman's Committee."

International Implications of Civil Rights in the United States

Excerpts from a speech by Mrs. Eugenie Anderson, former U.S. Ambassador to Denmark, currently Chairman of the Minnesota Fair Employment Practices Commission.

The tragedy at Little Rock, more than any single event in recent history, has demonstrated emphatically the truth that our so-called "domestic problems," such as discrimination and segregation, are no longer purely local affairs, but affect the entire country and seriously impair our prestige abroad. My experience as an American Ambassador convinced me years ago that equality of rights and opportunities have become more than American ideals: equality is now an important element in our national security as well.

I would remind you that the disgrace of Little Rock still goes on. Nearly three months have passed, and still no acceptance of the law is in sight. I find it deeply shocking that the rights of American school children, in even one American city, still need to be protected by force.

So long as the Little Rock impasse prevails, it is continuing to produce a more destructive impact abroad, so far as American influence is concerned, than years of communist propaganda could ever hope to achieve. Because of the prejudice, violence, and ill-will of a few, led by a single defiant governor, the good name of our whole country has been inestimably tarnished.

The fulfillment—or denial—of civil rights in the United States also significantly affects our power position in the United Nations.

The UN continues to be torn by the rising tensions in the Middle East, Asia and Africa, areas where racial, religious and nationalistic conflicts are seething. Today in the General Assembly, the voting strength of the Asian-African nations, if supported by the Soviet bloc, is such that these nations can determine the outcome of many issues of grave importance to the Western democracies.

To offset such an alignment, American diplomacy in the UN must become more effective with the still uncommitted Asian-African nations. In the past, diplomacy depended to a large extent on governmental policies and personal relationships between diplomats. Today the emotional reactions which Asian and African UN representatives have from living in our country, are an important new factor in their basic attitude towards our government. The fact that the UN is located physically in the U.S. means that all our strengths and weaknesses, from the Supreme Court rulings to the Little Rock humiliation, are plainly in sight for officials of all nations to see, and even at times to experience bitterly, as in the recent discriminatory episode in Maryland towards the Minister from Ghana.

Social and Psychological Aspects of Desegregation

Excerpts from a speech by Dr. E. Kermit Phelps, Chief Clinical Psychologist, Mental Hygiene, Veterans Administration, Kansas City Regional Office.

Psychological aspects of desegregation revolve around the resistance that people in general have to change, because they are habitually accustomed to a certain kind of orientation. When change appears, this threatens the very core of their living and reconstruction of their reality must be made as they see it.

Desegregation is a broader aspect brought about by external forces such as the Supreme Court ruling and changes in legislation. It is more of a psychological change. The individual doesn't necessarily have to change inside himself.

Integration, on the other hand, is the inner change. Here there are changes in the thinking and attitude of the individual.

Once we have desegregation it is still a long way before integration because there must be a change in the person's psychology. All of us need to strive for real emotional maturity which would lead to integration of our feelings. The things we must strive for are:

1. Being comfortable with oneself.
2. The ability to handle aggression in a socially acceptable way.
3. The ability to accept others as they are, with interest and without annoyance.
4. Patience, tolerance and adaptability.

If we can achieve these within ourselves we will be working toward the goal which will make for good group relations.

The changes that have developed from desegregation have put a strain on both Negro and white. Neither of us are sure of our roles or those of each other, and we proceed cautiously.

Dodson

He noted the power-based challenge by Negroes of de facto school segregation and residential segregation — "pressure [which] has brought manifestations of great hostility and prejudice from some persons who might have been called liberals in other times."

"So it is in the field of inter-faith relations. Today the hostilities between the faith groups stem very little from differences of theological beliefs. . . . The big issues between us are, instead, what are equitable relationships between these religious groups in American life. . . . Much more have the fights become power fights between faith groups than controversies over dogma and creed . . . fights between structures in the community over things in which dogma and belief are only peripheral.

"What is the significance then of this kind of approach to intergroup relations?

"One implication of it is that those of us who work in the field should understand the role of conflict in the re-structuring of such relations. . . . This places an awesome responsibility on those of us who are in intergroup relations leadership to make certain that our agencies themselves do not become instrumentalities which stamp out conflict before it has achieved its purpose.

"Our big issue then is how do we handle conflict toward creative ends. Labor-management teaches us many things about this, one of which is that we accept rules of the game by which we fight our battles. . . . [From labor's strikes] gradually developed a procedure through which the industrial community moves toward settling its differences short of the stoppage of work. This does not mean that there is not conflict still . . . it does mean a way of handling these differences was created so that out of conflict come more creative and constructive relations.

"It is not easy to interpret to the power structure of our communities this point of view. (And when one looks at Hunter's book, The Community Power Structure, one is impressed at how far down on the totem pole of this power structure is the human relations agency person.) This raises serious questions as to what we can or should do in our efforts. . . . How can we, on the one hand, work with and through power in the community and, at the same time, be free and independent enough that we not only operate as technicians in negotiating settlement of differences but may even have some hand in stimulating the minority group or the disprivileged group . . . to make greater demands and to resort to those techniques of conflict which would bring about a restructuring of relations between themselves and the community of which they are a part?"

Dear Dave:

I enclose for your earnest consideration formal applications for internship grants from the following:

American Baptist Home Mission Societies - New York
American Friends Service Committee - San Francisco
American Jewish Committee - New York
American Jewish Congress - New York
Atlanta Urban League - Atlanta, Georgia
Catholic Interracial Council - Chicago
Catholic Interracial Council - New York
Council on Human Relations - Cleveland
Fair Employment Practices Commission - Detroit
Fair Employment Practices Commission - Harrisburg, Pa.
Friendship House - Chicago
Hamilton-Madison House - New York
L.A. County Conference on Community Relations - Los Angeles
Los Angeles Urban League - Los Angeles
Mayor's Friendly Relations Committee - Cincinnati

In addition to the 15 listed above, and the one (Anti-Defamation League) that you have already received, I have received positive indications that the following intend filing similar applications:

Connecticut Council on Civil Rights (Frank Simpson)
William Penn Center, Fallsington, Pa.
Stiles Hall (University of California YMCA)
National Congress of American Indians, Washington, D.C.

In addition, I have received indications that we may expect applications from the Kansas City Commission on Human Relations and the Philadelphia Commission on Human Relations. I am also under the impression that the Chelsea Community Council (Hudson Guild) is planning to reapply.

Having dumped all these in your lap, I am leaving the city but take heart! I shall return in one week - by March 10. At that point, I suspect that we will want to sit down together....and cry!

Sincerely,

John V.P. Lassoe

I enclose the agenda for our May 2-3 Board meeting, together with the report of the Conference Program Committee.

As you know, we will meet at 10 a.m. on Friday, May 2, in the NCRAC office, 15th Floor, 55 West 42nd Street (near Sixth Avenue). Saturday's meeting will begin at the same time in the same office.

IMPORTANT: ~~Please return the enclosed postcard to let us know if you plan to attend.~~ We're expecting you —

And for a social note, John Lassoe has invited us for cocktails, 5:30 - 8:30 P.M., at his home in downtown Manhattan (Greenwich Village). We decided on this rather than a late-evening affair, since we felt that many of you might want to make theater reservations or other plans for the evening. But please not this on your calendar.

Needless to say, I hope that you are planning to be present at the Board meeting. I look forward to seeing you there.

Dear John:

Thanks for your letter and the copy of the Regional Conference program. I hope somebody caught Southern Regional Conference and changed it to Council before the program went to press; but, if not, the skies won't fall in.

I have arranged to get into Washington during the afternoon of May 5, and so will be available for the evening's activities. Unless I hear from you again, I will call you at your office sometime before the end of the working day.

I am content with my assigned topic and won't burden you with questions -- if you really mean it to be as permissive as it sounds. When you telephoned, I seem to recall, there was some question of my trying to sum up the day's discussions and determinations. If I am wrong about this, I am glad, for I'd much rather free wheel. If I don't hear from you to the contrary, I'll assume that you simply want a speech of diagnosis and prescription, onward and upward, and so on.

The dinner invitation is much appreciated, and I gladly accept. Wouldn't it be simpler, though, and kinder to Marilyn, if we sat-in at a restaurant on one or more of our expense accounts?

All the best.

Sincerely,

Harold C. Fleming

Dear Harold:

Attached you will find the May 6th Regional Conference program just before it goes to the printer.

We have left the topic for your session as wide as you care to make it.

Here is a key question: Would you be able to come into Washington the night before -- May 5th? We have a chance to have you on a hot local radio interview show for some constructive coverage. In the event that you can, Marilyn and I would like to have you for dinner along with Herman Long and Dumont Kenney. This radio show is at 10:00 p.m.

If you have any other questions, just write.

Cordially,

John

Dear Harold:

On behalf of the Conference Committee, I want to thank you for your usual top job. Everyone was gratified.

Perhaps more than this, I want to thank you for remembering the needs of the Library of Congress. I talked again this morning with the American Law Section people and they still lament not having these materials available. I hope Scanlon is touched.

Anything we can do for you in these parts, please send the word.

Dear Colleagues:

At the request of President Routh, the Education Commission of NAIRO will plan a report on a preliminary study of "Community Conflicts Related To Religious Differences" for the annual meeting. A group of 9 has been working on this study which is designed to establish the scope and nature of the problem and to write down certain propositions for research and for use by community agencies.

A second purpose of the Education Commission is to gather some data on intergroup education as seen by members of NAIRO. I wonder whether you would contribute to our survey by supplying to the series of questions given in the enclosed page? The purpose would be to offer all of us an informed reaction to the questions proposed which would represent a good geographical distribution in the country.

I will look forward to receiving your reply to the questions as soon as you can make it. We will need considerable time for tabulation and would like to have responses in the next few days after you receive this.

Sincerely yours,

H. Harry Giles

Dear Colleague:

Have you heard what is happening in NAIRO? Never before have we been able to offer so much to intergroup professionals. Small wonder that membership is growing at such a rapid pace—an increase of almost fifty-nine per cent in 24 months.

Look at the enclosed flyer for the brand new JOURNAL OF INTER-GROUP RELATIONS. Look at the brochure describing NAIRO's services. Look at what we have "in the works" for the future. Look at the new Directory of Intergroup Relations Agencies with Paid Professional Staff now available from the national office. All this adds up to only one thing—you need NAIRO and NAIRO needs you!

Unlike many professional organizations which offer their members little besides a periodical, NAIRO provides people in our field with many kinds of practical help. Its focus and areas of concern are sufficiently broad to encompass the professional needs and interests of those identified with intergroup relations agencies, human relations departments of religious, labor and community institutions, as well as academicians who are concerned with the theoretical and instructional approaches to civil rights and civil liberties.

I believe you will agree with us that intergroup relations today has a new outlook. We are no longer a small, insignificant group working in virtual isolation to bring light into dark corners. Civil rights is recognized as the leading domestic problem in our country. This new awareness provides a challenge and a responsibility to professionals—to bring current information and interpretation to the public.

NAIRO is extremely sensitive to both the challenge and the responsibility. We are contemplating a clearing house for research findings from our field and related disciplines and aiming for greater liaison with other professions which will contribute additional insights and knowledge to all.

We hope you will give favorable consideration to this matter for NAIRO is the one professional organization in the field of intergroup relations.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Frances R. Cousens

NAIRO is busting out all over!

HERE ARE SOME EXCITING "FIRSTS" FOR THE ASSOCIATION:

. . . a national office with full-time professional and secretarial staff eager to answer your questions; helpful in providing information and materials about our field . . .

. . . a new prestige within the field and growing recognition outside it. It's only natural -- if the public wants to know about fluoridation, it asks a dental society, doesn't it? More and more lay people are looking to us for information and interpretation in the field of civil rights . . .

. . . a brand new JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS which is adding immeasurably to our professional status . . .

. . . a crop of local units working with and for agency people and those in related fields and organizations . . .

. . . an ever increasing membership which is bringing new life to annual conferences. Also, plans for regional conferences so we can get together between the annual meetings . . .

. . . a new nation-wide and international flavor and appeal -- the 1959 Conference in Puerto Rico, 1961 in San Francisco . . .

CAN YOU AFFORD NOT TO BELONG ?

You don't need NAIRO if

(a) you have no problems in your agency or your city
(b) you have all the answers to your professional questions!

YOU NEED NAIRO AND NAIRO NEEDS YOU!

Address _____ City and State _____

PURPOSE

The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials (NAIRO) was founded in 1947 as an organization of individuals concerned with advancing intergroup relations knowledge and skills, improving the standards of professional intergroup relations practice, and furthering acceptance of the goals and principles of intergroup relations work.

NAIRO seeks to further these purposes through:

- EXCHANGE OF EXPERIENCE AND KNOWLEDGE among professional workers and others concerned with racial, religious, and ethnic relationships.
- STUDY, ANALYSIS, AND RESEARCH on problems and developments affecting intergroup relations.
- COLLECTION, COMPILATION, AND DISSEMINATION of information and ideas regarding programs, methods, and techniques.

MEMBERSHIP

Membership in NAIRO is open to any individual subscribing to its purposes. There are three classes of membership.

- ACTIVE membership is open to any individual primarily engaged in intergroup relations: in a professional staff capacity, as a recognized authority, or as a member of the governing body of an agency in this field. Annual dues are $15.
- ASSOCIATE (non-voting) membership is open to all others. It is designed for those who, although not eligible for Active membership, wish to support NAIRO's work and receive its regular publications and other services. Annual dues are $15.
- STUDENT (non-voting) membership is open to any person enrolled in a recognized college or university and working toward a degree with the intention of entering the field of intergroup relations. Student members will receive all regular publications and other services. Annual dues are $5.

ACTIVITIES

NAIRO's program is carried out through its:

- ANNUAL CONFERENCE. NAIRO members meet yearly to exchange ideas, formulate policy, develop program, and elect officers. The 1960 Conference will be held in Cincinnati, Ohio, and the 1961 Conference in San Francisco.
- COMMISSIONS. Organized around areas of common interest, members discuss basic professional considerations underlying major intergroup relations issues. Any member may participate in one or more of these commissions: education, housing and family life, civil rights, manpower utilization, interreligious relations, research, and nature, scope and theory.
- DEPARTMENTS. NAIRO's Departments seek to aid professionals in their work through the exchange of information on developments, techniques and approaches in similar types of agencies, i.e., municipal, local and state private, state public, national private, and federal services. Each NAIRO member is automatically assigned to a Department according to his agency affiliation.
- LOCAL NAIRO CHAPTERS. In cities where there are a number of NAIRO members, local chapters are organized to promote regular discussion of matters of common professional concern. Regional NAIRO Conferences are also held in various sections of the country.
- PROFESSIONAL TRAINING PROGRAM. A group of foundations are cooperating in a NAIRO-initiated program of on-the-job training for professional recruits to the intergroup relations field. Thirty-eight young people were trained in agencies across the nation during the program's first three years of operation.
- PERSONNEL REGISTRY. Available without charge to members seeking employment, and to intergroup relations agencies seeking personnel, this service regularly publicizes professional job openings.

PUBLICATIONS

- JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS, a quarterly comprising articles and reports on intergroup relations issues, developments, theory and practice. Subscription: $6 per year.
- NAIRO NEWSLETTER, a monthly review of NAIRO activities and membership news. Distributed to members without charge.
- SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS. Issued from time to time, these have included surveys of municipal intergroup relations agencies (1955 and 1957), a directory of intergroup relations agencies with paid staff (1959), and a report on civil rights in Washington, D. C. (1959).

ORGANIZATION

- BOARD OF DIRECTORS. Elected by the membership, the Board governs the Association and determines policy between Annual Meetings.
- STANDING COMMITTEES. Organizational development and program are guided by various appointed committees of the membership, including those dealing with such substantive matters as professional standards, educational and professional training, interprofessional relations, and international exchange.
- NATIONAL OFFICE. NAIRO maintains a central office in New York City to serve its members, committees, and conferences. Its Executive Secretary travels extensively around the country, meeting with NAIRO members and local NAIRO chapters.

Dear Helen:

Many thanks for your thoughtful note and the clipping from the California Voice. I had hoped to get in first with a note of thanks to you for arranging the pleasant luncheon with the intergroupers. It was an enjoyable occasion for me and made me feel very much at home professionally.

My wife and I came away pretty starry-eyed about the Bay Area and northern California generally. I envy you the setting and atmosphere in which you're doing your good work.

There's no need to urge you to keep up the effective efforts you're making for NAIRO. I'll look forward to seeing you in Cincinnati.

Dear Harold,

Cathy Holiday gives me this chance to enclose the clippings from the Oakland Negro paper and thank you for meeting with our local NAACP group. It was quite the best meeting of this type we have had so far.

Next time you're in the Bay Area I hope we can explain you in the East Bay.

Helen

Next Dixie Integration Target Named

The next major target for Southern integration leaders is to win for Negroes equal salary benefits and jobs in concerns that have practiced strict segregation policies

Harold C Fleming, executive director of the Atlanta-based interracial Southern Regional Council, said in San Francisco yesterday that the next attack on the racial barrier would be aimed at department stores and chain supermarkets.

"We are going to ask these stores to hire Negro sales personnel as well as other workers," he said. "And we want to make sure they receive the same salaries as whites doing the same work."

Fleming said that some Southern cities will adopt the suggestion without any difficulty, but that he expected an uphill fight in others

He added that with students back at school, the Nation would witness an upsurge of sit-in protests at lunch counters, churches, libraries and other institutions that are actively resisting legal integration.

Dear Fellow-worker:

This is your invitation to join in the conference of NAIRO for the South Central Region. Being a "first", interest among associates in this and other regions runs high.

Despite our efforts many persons in this region with real interest are unknown to us. These may be professors or avocational workers. Will you share this information and invitation with such persons? Send in supplementary registrations for them. Also, help get car pools.

We will expect your registration immediately. Final registrations should be sent not later than Friday, May 26.

It will be good to see you and the other intergroup workers.

Sincerely,

Nat Griswold

NEWSLETTER

April, 1962

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS
ROOM 209, 426 WEST 58TH STREET, NEW YORK 19, N. Y. • JU 6-0782

NAIRO's report to its 884 members across the country concentrates this time on some dramatic program developments, a major staff (and office) change, sweeping personnel shifts in the field, and continuing activity on old and new frontiers.

$24,000 GRANT TO NAIRO

The Ford Foundation has approved a grant of $24,000 to NAIRO for a national conference of leaders in housing, urban renewal, city planning, mortgage banking, and government "to discuss means of achieving equal opportunity in housing and urban redevelopment." The conference, set for October, is the first phase of a projected five-year program developed by NAIRO's Commission on Housing and Urban Life under the chairmanship of EDWARD RUTLEDGE (New York State Commission for Human Rights). Included in the grant: provision for post-Conference publication of working papers -- four original case studies of integration efforts in suburban and center city developments. (Significant note: the National Housing Center will co-sponsor the unprecedented top-level meeting.)

NEW DIRECTOR FOR NAIRO

Appointment of FREDERICK B. ROUTH as NAIRO's new executive director, effective May 15th, was announced this month by LLOYD DAVIS, president, after unanimous action by the NAIRO Executive Committee. Meeting in Washington, D.C., on March 30th, the Committee considered applications from eight veteran professional workers before voting to invite Routh to succeed John Lassoe in that position.

Executive director of the Michigan Fair Employment Practices Commission since 1959, Routh served earlier (1954-1959) as assistant director of the Southern Regional Council and before that (1951-1954) as assistant professor (Department of Human Relations) at the University of Miami. He was president of NAIRO in 1959-1960 after terms in office as vice-president and president-elect, and has since served as chairman of NAIRO's Commission on Nature, Scope & Theory and its Development Fund. Routh was born in Michigan, reared in Florida, received A.B. and M.A. degrees from the University of Miami, and completed doctoral work at the Center for Human Relations Studies, New York University. He served as a Naval Air Intelligence Officer in World War II.

NAIRO WASHINGTON MOVE VOTED

Acting under authorization voted by the Board of Directors at its February meeting, the Executive Committee approved relocation of the NAIRO National Office to Washington, D.C. The move, set for May or early June, will provide the intergroup relations field with "full-time representation of its professional concerns, including the attempt to encourage government agencies to develop new intergroup relations programs and to adopt high standards of performance for intergroup relations work and workers."

FRANKYE I. BROWN, NAIRO's Office Secretary since 1957, will accompany the National Office when it moves to the nation's capital. (Note: Change-of-address notices will be sent to the entire membership shortly before moving day.)

NEW ASSISTANT APPOINTED

ALBERT L. NELLUM has accepted interim appointment as assistant director of NAIRO, also effective May 15th. Moving to implement earlier (January, 1960) Board approval of staff expansion, the Executive Committee voted on March 30th to authorize immediate employment of an assistant director for a six-month period, to help provide essential staff services for the forthcoming national conference on equal opportunity in housing. It was decided further to establish "as an urgent objective" the employment of an assistant director on a permanent basis, and special funds will be sought.

Nellum has been employed by the Chicago Commission on Youth Welfare since 1960 and presently serves as director of its Temporary and Emergency Services Division. A NAIRO intern during that program's first year (1957-1958), he received his on-the-job training in the Catholic Interracial Council of Chicago and later became its Schools Consultant (1958-1960). He attended Chicago schools, graduated from Loyola University in 1955, and served with the U.S. Army in Japan and Korea.

TASK FORCE: 1961 — NAIRO's "task force" recommendations for executive action in intergroup relations, presented to President John F. Kennedy at the White House in late August, received careful attention in subsequent self-surveys by Federal departments and agencies. The report, together with an earlier NAIRO survey of Federal intergroup relations services, was referred by the President to a sub-Cabinet-level group of administrators for their study in implementation of the Administration's civil rights policy. A number of recent developments in Federal departments and agencies have mirrored some of the NAIRO recommendations, and a re-constituted "task force," to be named by President LLOYD DAVIS, will meet shortly to review additional steps that might be taken in the Executive Branch.

TASK FORCE II: 1962 — Encouraged by the far-reaching implications of its "task force" report on Federal intergroup relations activity, NAIRO's Board of Directors moved in February to develop a similar approach at the local level: the role and function of county and municipal intergroup relations agencies will be analyzed by a special committee of experienced professional workers during the next few months. Hope was expressed that their draft report with its recommendations will be available for discussion at the Annual Conference; the final version will be presented to the nation's mayors and other executives late in 1962. (Impetus for Task Force II was provided by NAIRO Vice-President FRANCES LEVENSON, National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing, who first advanced the idea.)

MANPOWER CRISIS IN THE FIELD — Current and anticipated Federal recruitment of intergroup workers will draw fifty from non-Federal agencies during the first six months of 1962 and as many as 200 more over the next two years, according to reports from Washington, and representatives of key non-Federal groups met recently in New York City -- at NAIRO's invitation -- to discuss implications of this recruitment for their own staff situations. Concern over current and future shortages of experienced workers was underscored by state and municipal agencies already experiencing grave difficulty in filling junior positions; several have been forced to lower entrance requirements in order to qualify workers.

Early development of training opportunities at both the entrance and middle levels was urged by participants in the New York City meeting, and several institutions and agencies suggested programs that might be inaugurated to meet urgent needs. Meanwhile, Federal intergroup relations training was launched in February with a week-long institute for employment policy officers conducted by the Civil Service Commission; other training programs for Federal workers were reported likely to follow, possibly under contract with private institutions.

NAIRO ON THE TRAINING FRONT — Moving to help meet the field's training needs, NAIRO stepped up its efforts to revive the National Internship Program, hopefully for as many as forty trainees annually. An earlier proposal for a Southern Field Training Program, limited to Southern workers and agencies, was broadened late in 1961 to offer training in all parts of the country. Funds are still being sought. Proposed modification of the old program: a two-month training session for all interns before assignment to local agencies.

The Educational and Professional Training Committee (BURTON GORDIN, Philadelphia Commission on Human Relations, chairman) is seeking funds to subsidize a task analysis or "desk audit" of the work of junior professional staffers, in order to develop a profile of the skills and knowledge demanded of entering workers. From this will be developed the recommended ingredients of intergroup relations training programs.

NAIRO SCHOOL SURVEY SET — At its February meeting, the Board of Directors gave approval to a nationwide study proposed by the Commission on School Integration (RICHARD L. PLAUT, National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students, chairman). Funds will be sought "to study and interpret the nature, extent, and educational implications of contrived and de facto segregation and related forms of discrimination in the public schools of the North, and to suggest effective approaches toward their elimination."

ATLANTA CHAPTER CHARTERED — Chartering of a Greater Atlanta Metropolitan Area Chapter brought to eleven the NAIRO Chapters now operating around the country. ROBERT THOMPSON (Atlanta Urban League) is the first chairman of the new group; the Rev. JOHN B. MORRIS (Episcopal Society for Cultural and Racial Unity) serves as vice-chairman.

NAIRO EXECUTIVE RESIGNS — After five years as NAIRO's executive director, JOHN LASSOE resigned late in February to accept a post in the Episcopal Church. Scheduled to leave NAIRO on April 15th, he will then become executive secretary of the Division of Church and Community Studies in the National Council of the Episcopal Church, New York City.

ESTABLISH NAIRO SECTIONS — Acting on a proposal submitted by Secretary FRANCES COUSENS (Michigan FEPC), the Board authorized formation of Sections in NAIRO, voluntary groupings of members by agency assignment or functional specialization. Among Sections suggested for early organization if interest warrants: school-community relations, public relations, police-community relations, migration services, religion and community relations, investigation and compliance, law and legislation. Sections would meet at Annual Conferences -- and possibly in cities with a number of members; occasional newsletters have also been suggested.

1962 CONFERENCE THEME VOTED — The role of Federal, state, and local government in intergroup relations will be the major subject for discussion at NAIRO's Sixteenth Annual Conference in Washington, D.C. (Sheraton Park Hotel: November 28 - December 1). The Board voted approval of the theme on the recommendation of the Conference Program Committee (ROBERT J. GREENE, Urban Renewal Administration, chairman), later approved the appointment of DAVID SAWYER (Commissioners' Council on Human Relations) as Conference Arrangements Committee chairman. Announcement was also made of a $2,400 grant from the Meyer Foundation for a series of analytical studies of civil rights in the District of Columbia, to be used as Conference working papers. EUNICE GRIER (Washington Center for Metropolitan Studies) will head the Research Committee for the project.

MEMBERSHIP GOAL ANNOUNCED — Membership Chairman ABRAHAM CITRON (Jewish Community Council, Detroit) has announced a drive for 1,000-member level by June, an increase of 116 over the April 1st mark. (The current 884 total represents a net gain of 47 since the 1961 Annual Conference.) Regional quotas have been set, and at least two Chapters (Pittsburgh, Detroit) report membership drives under way. (Re-structuring of the regions, voted by the Board in November, made the Great Lakes and Mid-Atlantic areas the largest of the ten.)

JOB CHANGES NOTED

LLOYD DAVIS is now executive assistant to the Assistant Postmaster General for personnel, Washington, D.C. (was with Urban Renewal Administration, Chicago). Also serving with the U.S. Post Office Department: ELMER BROCK, recently promoted to Deputy Assistant Postmaster General, and SAMUEL SIMMONS (Michigan Labor Mediation Board), named to new 3-man Board of Appeals.

GEORGE W. CULBERSON is now intergroup relations specialist for the U.S. Air Force, headquartered near Washington, D.C., and will head new contract compliance program across the country. HOWARD MC KINNEY is executive director of the new West Virginia Commission on Human Rights (was with the Erie, Pennsylvania, Community Relations Commission). ANDREW FREEMAN is the new executive director of the Philadelphia Urban League (he was with the Columbus, Ohio, Urban League) . . . IRVING LEVINE is area director for the American Jewish Committee, Cleveland (was with the Indianapolis Jewish Community Relations Council).

HARRIS L. WOFFORD, JR., formerly President Kennedy's special assistant for civil rights, has been named as Peace Corps representative in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. JOHN F. DELURY is now special assistant to California State Senator J. Eugene McAteer, San Francisco (was with California FEP Division) . . . Mrs. CERNORIA JOHNSON has joined the National Urban League staff as director of its new office in Washington, D.C. (was with National Board of YWCA).

PATRICK MURPHY MALIN has been named as president of the Robert Colleges in Istanbul, Turkey (was executive director, American Civil Liberties Union for 12 years) . . . F. PETER LIBASSI has joined the staff of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights (was with New York State Commission for Human Rights) . . . EDWARD HOLMGREN is now executive director of Baltimore Neighborhoods, Inc. (was with Chicago Urban League).

MADISON S. JONES is the new executive director of the New York City Commission on Human Rights (was with New York City Housing Authority) . . . RALPH KING is the new education director, Manhattan-Westchester office, National Conference of Christians and Jews (was with NCCJ in Philadelphia) . . . WILLIAM T. WHITE, JR., has been named to the staff of the California Division of Fair Employment Practices, Southern California office (was with Los Angeles County Commission on Human Relations).

GEORGE GRIER has accepted a special assignment with the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (was with The Brookings Institution) . . . WALTER CARRINGTON has been serving since October as Peace Corps Area Chief in Sierra Leone (he had been a commissioner in the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination) . . . DANIEL JACOBOWSKI has left the staff of the St. Paul Fair Employment Practice Commission.

DANIEL S. ANTHONY has been on leave from the Mayor's Commission on Group Relations, Newark, for nine months, studying at Rutgers as one of five Americans selected as Urban Studies Fellows . . . HARRY BOYTE is now with the American Friends Service Committee, Farmville, Virginia (was with Atlanta Council on Human Relations) . . . LAWRENCE LUCKS is directing the Southern California office of the California FEP Division (was with the American Jewish Committee, Detroit).

CLIFFORD RUCKER is intergroup relations specialist, U.S. Department of Commerce, Washington, D.C. (was with Governor's Human Rights Commission, Minnesota). Other Minnesotans on the Washington scene: WILFRED C. LELAND, chief, Lake States Region, Area Development Administration, and RICHARD K. FOX, special assistant to the Deputy Assistant Secretary of State, U.S. State Department (both were with the Minnesota Fair Employment Practices Commission).

JOHN A. MARTIN, JR. has joined the staff of the Bay Area Urban League and is based in Oakland, California (was teaching at Tufts College) . . . CORINNE SCHREIDER has left the Encampment for Citizenship, New York City . . . THE REV. HENRY HERNDON, (Christ Episcopal Church, Wilmington) has been named as the first chairman of the Delaware Human Relations Commission.

HOWARD ROBERTS is intergroup relations specialist, Urban Renewal Administration, Chicago (was with Chicago Urban League) . . . W. HAMPTON MC KINNEY has joined the staff of the Chicago Urban League . . . VIOLA KANATZ is the new assistant director of the Minnesota FEPC.

LEADERSHIP LIST — Reporting belatedly on appointments and elections under the new NAIRO Administration (LLOYD DAVIS's presidency): Elected to the Executive Committee, to serve with the six officers, HAROLD C. FLEMING (Potomac Institute, Washington, D.C.), A. ABBOT ROSEN (Anti-Defamation League, Chicago), and FREDERICK B. ROUTH (Michigan FEPC). ROSEN was also named as NAIRO's Legal Counsel, becoming an ex officio member of the Board.

ABRAHAM F. CITRON (Jewish Community Council, Detroit) was named as Membership Committee chairman, also an ex officio Board post. Appointed as Regional Chairmen for one-year terms on the Board were: K.C. JONES, JR. (Community Relations Board, Cleveland), Great Lakes; PERCY H. WILLIAMS, JR. (President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity), Mid-Atlantic; GALEN MARTIN (Kentucky Commission on Human Rights, Frankfort), Middle South; GREGORY SHINERT (Missouri Commission on Human Rights, Jefferson City), North Central.

Also: STANLEY LEIBNER (then with New York State Commission for Human Rights, New York City), Northeast; E. SHELTON HILL (Portland Urban League), Northwest; EDWARD TERRONES (Colorado Anti-Discrimination Commission), Rocky Mountain; GARNET GUILD (American Friends Service Committee, Austin, Texas), South Central; RICHARD SHAPIRO (Anti-Defamation League, Atlanta), Southeast; and ERWIN FEIERTAG (American Jewish Committee, Los Angeles), Southwest. Board member LOUIS MASON, JR. (Commission on Human Relations, Pittsburgh) was appointed to coordinate regional activity.

To head NAIRO's Commissions, President LLOYD DAVIS appointed -- with Board approval: H. HARRY GILES (School of Education, New York University), Education; EDWARD RUTLEDGE (New York State Commission for Human Rights), Housing and Urban Life; ELMER PAUL BROCK (U.S. Post Office Department, Washington, D.C.), Interreligious Relations; JOHN HOPE, II (President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity, Washington, D.C.), Manpower Utilization; OSCAR COHEN (Anti-Defamation League, New York), Research Services; and RICHARD L. PLAUT (National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students, New York), School Integration.

Named to Committee chairmanships for 1961-1962 were: ROBERT J. GREENE (Urban Renewal Administration, Washington), Conference Program; DAVID A. SAWYER (Commissioners' Council on Human Relations, Washington), Conference Arrangements; IRVING GOLDABER (New York City Commission on Human Rights), Finance; ARNOLD ARONSON (National Community Relations Advisory Council, New York City), International Relations; JOHN SLAWSON (American Jewish Committee, New York), Interprofessional Relations; JOHN L. MC KNIGHT (Illinois Division, American Civil Liberties Union), Panel on Professional Ethics and Integrity.

Also: GEORGE W. CULBERSON (U.S. Air Force, Washington, D.C.), Public Policy; ROLAND SAWYER (United Steelworkers of America, Pittsburgh), Financial Development; ROGER NATHAN (Illinois Human Relations Commission, Chicago), Sponsors; ALAN REITMAN (American Civil Liberties Union, New York City), Public Relations; ELEANOR DUNGAN (Chicago Commission on Human Relations), Life Memberships; FREDERICK B. ROUTH (Michigan FEPC), Development Fund.

Also: MARSHALL BRAGDON (Mayor's Friendly Relations Committee, Cincinnati), Profession and The Professional; ALEXANDER J. ALLEN (National Urban League, New York), Professional Standards; SAAL LESSER (Encampment for Citizenship, New York), Professional Ethics and Integrity; BURTON I. GORDIN (Philadelphia Commission on Human Relations), Educational and Professional Training.

In a move designed to spread some of the burden of the office, President LLOYD DAVIS instituted the office of Presidential Assistant and named the following to oversee program activity or advise on policy in specific areas: DAVID R. COHEN (Chicago Commission on Human Relations), administration; JOHN DELURY (Office of State Senator McAteer, California), public relations; MAURICE FAGAN (Philadelphia Fellowship Commission), NAIRO Commissions; LOUIS MASON, JR. (Pittsburgh Commission on Human Relations), NAIRO Regions; ALEXANDER MILLER (Anti-Defamation League, New York), NAIRO Chapters; JOHN RIORDAN (Office of Congressman John Shelley, Washington, D.C.), legislation; and JAMES WILSON (Joint Center for Urban Studies, Cambridge, Mass.), urban affairs.

NAIRO's Journal of Intergroup Relations acquired a new Editorial Board chairman and several new members (one-third of the Board rotates off each year). SHELTON GRANGER (President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Crime, Washington, D.C.) will head the Board. Other additions: Dr. HELEN AMERMAN (Berkeley, California); Mrs. OLIVIA FILERMAN (Chicago Urban League); GEORGE NESBITT (Housing and Home Finance Agency, Washington, D.C.); FREDERICK B. ROUTH (Michigan FEPC); MILTON SENN (Anti-Defamation League, Los Angeles); Dr. THEO SHEA (St. Louis University Human Relations Center); and JOHN Y. YOSHINO (President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity). YOSHINO was asked to head the Circulation sub-committee; THEODORE LESKES (American Jewish Committee, New York), retiring Board chairman, will chair the Manuscripts sub-committee.

REGRETFULLY NOTED — NAIRO lost two members and one colleague, all good friends, during the past year: ABRAHAM L. FEINBERG (American Jewish Committee, Cleveland) died in June; WILLIAM VICKERY (National Conference of Christians and Jews, New York), in November; and FRED B. WOOD (retired California Court of Appeal Justice, Berkeley), in December. We shall miss each of them....

LAST WORD — I (John Lassoe) bid each and every member of NAIRO an earnest and truly affectionate farewell. These five years have been good ones!

Remarks: by Lloyd Davis, President-Elect
National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials on the occasion of the Association's Fifteenth National Conference
November 7-10, 1961 in San Francisco, California

Moments in history have their catch-phrases: The Age of Discovery, The Industrial Revolution, the Rise of Democracy. A whole complex of impersonal forces, changes in habits of thought, new attitudes, scientific advances are caught up in a word or two. We now live at that point in man's long slow struggle toward the fulfillment of his destiny which has been summed up in the current catch-phrase: the Revolution of Rising Expectations. And what might this be: this Revolution of Rising Expectations?

It means that the pall of ignorance is beginning to dispel, and those silent millions who knew no life but one of drudgery and indignity glimpse now a happier future. It means that those who have long wielded power and wealth selfishly must reckon with a mounting discontent. It means that the winds of change are blowing and bear with them the seeds of new societies more alive to human dignity and human aspirations.

These winds of change - impelled by the energy unleashed by the Revolution of Rising Expectations - have not bypassed our beloved America. They whistle through the streets of Montgomery as an embattled greyhound bus pulls into the terminal, they roar in the scars of the oppressor as college students - sublime in their simple human dignity - take their seats at a "whites-only" lunch counter, they echo through the marble halls of the judiciary as skilled and dedicated attorneys painstakingly demolish each successive spurious legal obstacle placed in the path of school integration.

The central question confronting us is - what will emerge from the rubble? Under the pressure of law and opinion, long static intergroup relationships are undergoing the wrench of change. We applaud the progress of the assault on injustice: we cheer it on: the task is so mammoth, that each small gain appears as nothing in comparison to what remains to be done.

Even now - with so much remaining to be done - it is vital to address ourselves to that central question confronting us: What will emerge from the rubble? Will hostilities among racial, religious, and ethnic groups in our society merely reappear in new guises and new relationships? Will a true sense of human brotherhood - of an acceptance of the individual on the basis of his individual attributes - emerge from the rubble of the old order? Or will a residue of hate, suspicion, and envy blight this vision? Will a respect for the Faith that is different from our own, for the customs that are different from our own, emerge from the rubble of the old order? Or will hostility to difference plague us yet.

It is at this crucial stage that the intergroup relations specialist can be of immense service. We believe as many of you, that intergroup relations in the United States are at the point of development that requires both the cutting edge of heroism and aggressive popular leadership on the one hand and expert professionalism on the other.

The NAIRO professional has the immense responsibility of applying his skills to facilitate change where diehard resistance - in desperation - grows acute; to counsel in the proper focusing of efforts to expedite change when the goals become diffuse; to undertake that long-range planning that is the crucial accompaniment to decisive action in undermining what is unjust in the old relationships; to assure that new and dangerous tensions do not emerge when new relationships build themselves among the groups in our society out of the debris of the old relationships.

It is precisely now that NAIRO members need to explore every means of heightening their abilities and sharpening their skills so that they may be fully equipped to act decisively and purposefully as opportunities open to forward the course of needed social change.

Fine beginnings have been made in NAIRO toward the twin goals of stimulating our professional standards and ethics, and of accumulating a body of knowledge and experience based on research and reflection. To these twin goals we dedicate our administration. It will be our concern to continually explore new ways of ensuring that NAIRO effectively meets the great challenge that confronts it. There is much talk of the sense of urgency that is attached to the efforts to achieve interracial justice these days: urgency there indeed is: time is running out on our caste society. This same urgency should attach to our efforts to rethink NAIRO's role in this setting of change. It would be an immense tragedy if those who possess specific skills aimed at facilitating the movement of groups in our society to new and harmonious relationships were not acute enough to perceive where it was they would have to change, modify or hold to function, amidst the militant new forces pressing about them.

I pledge my tenure as President to this end: that we awaken to a greater sense of urgency, a wider recognition that the intergroup relations specialist has a task of immense significance in the midst of accelerating change, and that NAIRO can help its members confront this challenge.

To this matter of meeting new problems and taking advantage of new opportunities, this incoming Administration has already directed its attention. President Culberson started the move in this direction during his term in office. It was recognized that NAIRO was strangling on its own super structure. That we were over-organized to the point of inefficiency. Old committees were abolished; new ones formed, Departments were done away with and effort made to enhance NAIRO's financial base. The work of the Task Force which developed the special report which was presented to the President on Executive Responsibility and Intergroup Relations in the Federal Government, will stand as testimony that the body of knowledge and experience amassed by NAIRO members is a vital national asset. The excellent proposals developed under the Culberson Administration in the areas of housing, training and international relations, will stand as a lasting credit to the talent of NAIRO members and the worthwhile contribution which has and can be made by our Association.

Your incoming Administration sensing an urgency about this new frontier in human relations that we are marching across at a hastening pace, moved a year ago to gear NAIRO toward the opportunities ahead. In this regard we undertook the designation of a number of Presidential Assistants: men equipped with the talent and ability to come to grips with complex problems and to offer reasonable solutions. With the help of the Chicago Commission on Human Relations, David Cohen, staff member, was assigned to assist your Presidential-Elect in the managment of the administrative affairs of the Association. Dr. James Q. Wilson, author and member of the Department of Government at Harvard University, was selected to provide suggestions with regard to the role and function of our Association and the means and manner by which it might make its most effective impact on the field and contribution to the national good. Out of this effort with Presidential Assistant Wilson, we circulated among NAIRO leadership a questionnaire, aimed at seeking their opinions on what NAIRO ought and ought not to be. Many of these questions contained in that questionnaire have long gone unanswered. We cannot continue to ignore them for they will not go away - our rank and file membership will see to this. These searching questions included:

What does NAIRO want to be to the profession? Who should belong to NAIRO?

What does NAIRO want to be to our lay leaders (Agency, board people, etc.)

What is our public image - professional association or action movement? What should our image be?

What does NAIRO want to be to those in position of power? How much of a spokesman should we be for the field of intergroup relations?

What do we want to be to our intergroup relations agencies - a union representative? Should we continue to refrain from coordination of agency activities (Could we - if we wanted to)

What does NAIRO want to do in the area of professional standards?

What does NAIRO want to do in the area of service to agencies, etc.?

What does NAIRO want to do in the area of professional integrity?

What should be the role of the Executive Secretary, Board, Commissions, Regions and Chapters?

Should we look forward to state organizations to follow regions with large memberships?

What should be NAIRO's role in research?

As you might readily expect, we have received as many different answers to these vital questions as persons we asked. We believe that the time has come to answer each and every one of them and this Administration is not prepared to wait another decade. There must be a beginning no matter how modest. In this regard, we moved early on many fronts: We have discussed with our Regional Chairmen (those presently in office and those to be appointed), the need for the re-evaluation of our present Regional structure. Recommendations in this regard will be placed before this conference and the new Board. We have asked Lou Mason, Jr., Deputy Director of the Pittsburgh Commission on Human Relations, to serve as a Presidential-Assistant with the responsibility of working with and assisting our Regional Chairmen: helping them to come to some definite conclusions about how our Regions should be constituted.

We have asked Alexander Miller of the national office of the Anti-Defamation League, to serve as a Presidential-Assistant with the responsibility this next year, for the functioning and development of local chapters, which we believe to be our future life blood. We have asked Maurice Fagan, Executive Director of the Philadelphia Fellowship Commission and past NAIRO President, to serve as a Special Presidential-Assistant, with the responsibility for working with and assisting our Commissions to meet their responsibilities and obligations. We have asked John Riordan, Administrative Assistant to Congressman John Shelley, to serve as a Special Presidential Assistant and our Washington contact.

Your administration is prepared to place before the Board at its first meeting following the conclusion of this conference the results of a task force study conducted by John McKnight of the American Civil Liberties Union and Chairman of our Chicago Chapter of NAIRO, at the suggestion of John Lassoe, on the role and function of our Executive Secretary. John has had to make his own way and this matter is long over due for analysis and evaluation and in this regard, we have done a disservice to him. We are prepared to place proposals before the Board relating to additional commissions, a replacement for departments, promotional materials, membership, public relations, training, international relations and the 1962 national conference.

We have labored long and tirelessly this past year to select members for crucial appointments, who are able and determined to excel in their work and who are without reservation, fully committed to the cause which unites each and every one of us. We have sought new faces and new talent. We have moved to provide greater representation in positions of importance from our membership across this vast country. We think we have selected a team which, if the Board concurs (and it and it alone has the final say so), can keep NAIRO abreast of new challenges and opportunities.

If anything can be said of your incoming Administration, it is that we have a point of view. We intend to state that point of view and God Willing, we intend to do something about it.

We believe that NAIRO must constantly strive to present a view of the problems of all minorities. While it is true that the struggle of the American Negro for civil rights and against discrimination is the most important and the most dramatic which is occurring, nevertheless, there should be a conscious attempt to introduce at every NAIRO meeting, chapter, Regional and National, some evidence that we are interested in the total picture. For example (as it is evident with this conference here in San Francisco) every conference should make certain that we not only have an analysis of the impact of the freedom rides, but also the complex problems facing such groups as American Indians, Mexican Americans, Puerto Rican Americans and yes, even Southern whites in northern urban communities. We have been gratified to note that our recent meetings have included the problem of religious difference. In this regard, let me say that we consider our Commission on Interreligious Relations to be one of the most important and most needed commissions we have. General practitioners in intergroup relations are only beginning to tackle the problems in this area and we are very short on information. The development of a body of knowledge and the transmission of this to our members is of vital importance. As I make these remarks, I am particularly aware of the need for our public agencies to think more about their role in situations of interreligious tension.

We believe that NAIRO must give increased attention to the matter of chapter growth and development; the establishment of new ones. We believe that the time has come to remove the "muzzle" from our chapters and give them an opportunity to become a voice in local affairs which touch upon general and broad aspects of matters relating to the field and practice of intergroup relations. This would be but a logical continuation of the process begun under George Culberson, for it was he, who got NAIRO to abandon its long-standing fear of public statements, and made it clear that, after experience and further study, the national process should be extended to the chapter level. We are honored that George has accepted the chairmanship of our national committee on Public Policy.

We believe that NAIRO must find a way to bridge the gap between our practitioners in the field on the one hand and our theorists on the other. No longer must our Human Relations Center personnel around the country feel that there is a strong resistance on the part of NAIRO practitioners to include or permit them any role in our Association. On the other hand, our university people must recognize that at times they have resisted our companionship and been guilty of ignoring the needs and potential contributions of our practitioners. We believe that there is room here in NAIRO for both practitioner and educator. NAIRO should afford faculty members and students as well as practitioners, the opportunity for the fruitful exchange of ideas, points of view and information. We believe that this association must do much more to improve its relationships with our allies in other fields of endeavor.

This Administration does not intend to let itself get bogged down in the age old NAIRO debate about "are we or are we not, a profession". We recognize that the history of professionalism is a sad history of organization being created to restrict entry into a profession, hold down supply in relation to demand, inhibit the freedom of practitioners of the profession, and run up the cost of the public using these services. We do not intend to be advocates of professionalism or formal standards for their own sake, but we see in them (less in formalism, which just seems to be inevitable as the field grows) a possible answer to at least two evils or shortcomings: organizational loyalty (my agency right or wrong), and inadequate appointments. There must be a certain integrity about us in our work. Some higher loyalty than Agency loyalty. We share the broad goals of intergroup relations, but we do not share the approach to them. Very well, this is no real problem. But we can share the knowledge and skills, the ethics and standards of performance -- the ingredients of a profession, if you will, even though we may never become a profession in the fullest sense. Certain standards against which appointments (or applicants) can be measured would follow naturally from this emphasis.

We pledge this Administration to the goal of creating a sense of dignity and purpose among our members such that informally (if not formally) a consensus can be established about what constitutes good work in the field and what it requires to have a decent reputation. We intend to be a communicator and a morale-builder. There can be no second best in our efforts - the stakes are too high - excellence must prevail. We will seek to bring into our ranks those of our associates still without. We shall by our appointments spread responsibility for leadership in the Association. We shall be concerned about the welfare of all our members; those denied positions of staff leadership in private and public agencies because of their race, religion or ethnic background - those who lack job security - opportunity for up-grading, - adequate salary and fringe benefits and good working conditions.

Those of us who serve as agency directors and members of boards and commissions do the field a disservice if they continue in humility and goodness to carry on the best they can with what political and civic leadership will allow in budgets and pay. Those of us who have contributed to the creative development of program and standards of performance also have the responsibility to define the standards for compensation and tenure based upon qualification and performance. It is not enough to set the standards on paper; it is also necessary to promote their acceptance by boards, commissions, city councils, state legislators, the tax-paying public and contributors.

Once the public accepts that this is a function requiring competence that must be adequately financed, the problems of prestige, training, recruiting, and the like will be more readily resolved. We shall strive to accomplish these things without becoming a union. On the other hand, we hope that the day will never come in the life of this administration, when a member with a job problem is without some help and assistance from his professional association.

We pledge this Administration to do something about NAIRO's public image or lack of one. We know all too well, that publicity is something you can pay for, but public relations, is something you have whether you like it or not. Like it or not, the field of intergroup relations and the practice of intergroup relations have their public images closely bound up with ours. We are not just another agency. We are not even an Agency! We symbolize, as no other body can, the breadth and scope of intergroup relations. We have asked Alan Reitman, Assistant Director of the American Civil Liberties Union, to chair our Committee on Public Relations and to be prepared to place before our new Board, definite and specific proposals for dealing effectively with this matter.

We recognize all too well that nothing more important confronts our field in the days ahead than the matter of replenishing our ranks. There will be great need for trained - competent workers to staff ever increasing public and private agencies, North and South - East and West. There are those who would deny NAIRO the right to assume the responsibility for training young professionals for work in this field, even in the light of our successful internship program which unfortunately was allowed to fall by the wayside because of the short-sightedness of some of our foundations.

We have given this problem of the training of young workers in the field considerable thought. We have looked at the role and function of the some eight human relations centers now operating around the country. We have looked at some of the existing college and university courses of study in our field of interest and we have concluded that there is a definite vacuum existing as far as training being made available for potential young workers in this expanding field. In view of this situation, we shall not hesitate to commit this Administration and if the Board so desires, the Association, to an effort aimed at filling that vacuum and getting on with the job of training young workers which has long been overly delayed.

We pledge this Administration to work for real progress in our efforts to find the means for conducting a survey of intergroup relations problems abroad and to use the results of this study and survey as a focal point for the convening of an international conference on intergroup relations problems. I need not remind you here assembled that the time has indeed come in the life of the world when its very continuation depends in no small degree upon the ability of man to improve his relationship to man.

We pledge this Administration to the task of encouraging and urging and persuading our members to keep abreast of rapidly changing conditions and opportunities; to seek new methods and techniques for solving problems; to discard old ones; to resist the temptation to settle for second best in their work, to cease being complacent and self-indulgent, for only those strong in commitment - only the industrious - only the courageous - only those who have determined the real nature of the struggle and I dare say, only the visionary, will possibly survive to make a contribution along the new frontier in intergroup relations. We are firmly committed to the opinion that NAIRO has a unique responsibility for helping the professionals enmeshed in the responsibilities of day-by-day programs and crises, to see and to help chart the new directions and priorities and goals. We ask you: Will we guide changes in the field or be led by them! I am in this connection reminded of Harold Fleming's famous remark: "Hurry up or they'll integrate without us!"

We pledge this Administration to the task of coming to grips with NAIRO's plaguing and painful financial problems. As you know, our memberships, income from publications and current activities, although up sharply from the 1957 level, still provide only two-thirds of our $33,000 budget. This leaves a deficit of approximately $11,000, which we have met in recent years through organization gifts and foundation grants. These sources are increasingly reluctant to support basic operations and we still are one or two years away from the level of membership and activity that will make us administratively self-supporting. We believe that NAIRO's most important and reliable source of funds must be membership dues. If this is so, then NAIRO must give increasing attention and primary service to its membership. We do not subscribe to the theory that NAIRO can support itself by foundation proposals and projects alone. If we concentrate our efforts in this direction and let NAIRO via the foundation route achieve great administrative overhead, then we will soon find that we will have to do things to justify that overhead and start to invent projects which are designed more to maintain NAIRO than solve social problems.

A brief word about our recent membership dues increase, which I understand, has been approved, if not enthusiastically, by those of our members, exercising the right of the ballot. This was a grave and serious decision on the part of President Culberson and members of your Executive Committee. It was taken simply because of the dollar gap which exists. A large, long-term foundation grant -- or a marked increase in members could fill that gap. Now, many have said that this increase in membership dues will hamper recruitment and impede renewals and will make our dues higher than those of many other professional bodies. We would only remind you that when our dues were increased from $10 to $15 the same fear was expressed but quite the contrary, memberships continued to increase -- doubling in fact, since then. We would also remind you that ours is a much smaller field of professional endeavor and for the time being, those of us who choose to identify with it, must necessarily bear a greater share of the cost for the continuation of our work.

Finally, you and I know that the great revolution in the history of man, past, present and future, is the revolution of those determined to be free. We should feel proud that history has afforded us the opportunity to meet this struggle for freedom in its finest hour.

These then are stimulating times. The long years of patient chipping away at the foundations of discrimination, segregation, and their train of injustices are bearing fruit; cracks are beginning to appear in the foundation. The task of completing this demolition will be long, painful, and frustrating. We are beginning to turn a corner but an arduous path stretches ahead. NAIRO members will be involved in every stage of our society's journey along this path.

And when the end is reached: when the grim heritage of slavery, of religious hate, of color caste has been undone - then the intergroup relations worker must stand ready to play his great positive role in enabling our society to realize the benefits of its wonderful diversity. Intergroup relations should mean a cross-fertilization of cultures, a mutually enriching interaction, a sharing of heritages, out of which will emerge an America diverse in its patterns of life, freely chosen and held to, but unshakeably one in its committment to the God-given individual dignity and worth of each of its people: Then will intergroup relations have attained its highest significance for all of us.

ACTIVITIES

- NATIONAL CONFERENCES. NAIRO members meet annually to exchange ideas, relate experiences, develop new program priorities, and elect officers. In 1961, for example, the 15th Annual Conference drew over 400 intergroup relations workers and community leaders to San Francisco for a four-day discussion of "The Changing Metro-Urban Complex." The 1962 annual meeting will be held in Washington, D. C., with the role of government in intergroup relations as its theme. NAIRO will meet in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1963.

- REGIONAL ACTIVITY. NAIRO has divided the United States into ten regions, offering members in each area an opportunity for greater exchange of information and development of techniques through annual regional conferences. Demonstrating the pioneer aspect of many of NAIRO's projects, the 1961 South Central regional meeting in Little Rock was the first multi-agency, multi-state intergroup relations conference held in Arkansas. Seven of the ten regions plan regional conferences during 1962.

- CHAPTERS. In cities with a number of NAIRO members, chapters have been formed to promote monthly discussions of new developments and techniques in intergroup relations. Occasional special activities have included a seminar for agency workers (Philadelphia) and a survey of Federal intergroup relations services (Washington, D. C.). Chapters are now active in Atlanta, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Minnesota, New York City, Northern California, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Southern California, and Washington, D. C.

- PROFESSIONAL TRAINING. NAIRO has undertaken or stimulated a variety of educational and professional training projects, as part of its special responsibility to help recruit and prepare new workers for the intergroup relations field. From 1957 to 1960, for example, it administered a nationwide program of on-the-job training for interns (junior professional recruits) in agencies engaged in intergroup relations work. Training of new workers — probably through a revived internship program — will be a major NAIRO activity in 1962, largely in response to the anticipated expansion of Federal intergroup relations services.

- PERSONNEL REGISTRY. This service helps to fill intergroup relations agency job openings and provides job counseling for intergroup relations workers and potential recruits to the field. More than 50 positions were listed with the registry in 1961, and over 200 people received vocational guidance. Placement services of the Personnel Registry are available without charge to agencies seeking personnel and to members seeking new positions.

- STUDY COMMISSIONS. Organized around areas of common concern, Commission members study basic intergroup relations issues through conferences and surveys, publish articles and reports, and develop recommendations for local community action. Typical of Commission projects were a study of guidance, training, and apprenticeship factors affecting minority groups (Commission on Manpower Utilization, 1960), and a consultation on goals, directions, and priorities in intergroup relations during the decade ahead (Commission on Nature, Scope & Theory, 1960). Among priority projects for 1962: a national leadership conference on equal opportunity in housing (Commission on Housing and Urban Life) and a survey of de facto segregation practices and remedial efforts in non-Southern schools (Commission on School Integration).

- SECTIONS. Formed early in 1962, NAIRO Sections offer members an opportunity to discuss developments and techniques related to their specialized job responsibilities. Activities will include sessions at NAIRO conferences, special area meetings, and the distribution of special-interest publications. Sections are being developed around such functions as school-community relations, migration services, public relations, investigation and compliance, and law and litigation.

SPECIAL PROJECTS

- TASK FORCE, 1961. Sixteen NAIRO members constituted the special "task force" responsible for the report, Executive Responsibility in Intergroup Relations, that was presented to the President of the United States late in 1961. The report was cited by President Kennedy as "an example of the vital service which NAIRO can render on an increasing scale," and its recommendations have since been used in the intensive self-survey undertaken by Federal departments and agencies.

- TASK FORCE, 1962. A newly-created "task force" will study the role and function of county and municipal intergroup relations agencies during 1962, and its report and recommendations will be presented to the nation's mayors and county executives. Earlier NAIRO surveys of these local public agencies provided the first compilation of data on their organization and program.

PUBLICATIONS

NAIRO publications are specialized and selective, designed to fill gaps in the wide range of literature published by intergroup relations agencies each year.

- THE JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS, a quarterly now in its third year, offers articles — most of them case histories prepared by intergroup relations workers — on current developments and new strategies in the field. The subscription price is $6 per year (included in NAIRO membership dues).

- NAIRO NEWSLETTER, a bi-monthly review of NAIRO activities and membership news, is distributed to members without charge.

- SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS, issued from time to time, have included a directory of intergroup relations agencies with paid personnel and a comprehensive report on civil rights in Washington, D. C. All are distributed to members and sold to others.

INTERGROUP RELATIONS

Large numbers of organizations and individuals are engaged in a concerted effort to secure a democratic society in which groups can interact harmoniously and in which all individuals will enjoy maximum dignity and opportunity. This is intergroup relations, embracing America's concern for civil rights and civil liberties, and encompassing interracial relations, intercultural relations, and interreligious relations.

Included are efforts to reduce prejudice and to eliminate segregation and other forms of discrimination directed against individuals because of their race, creed, color or national origin.

Included, too, are efforts to solve problems of cultural adjustment faced by migrants from rural to urban areas and by newcomers to this country.

Included, moreover, are efforts to resolve tensions arising out of Church-state controversies and to open new channels of communication among religious groups.

Intergroup relations is also the unique blend of skills and knowledge possessed by the people who practice it. From a variety of fields they have drawn and adapted techniques of community organization, adult education, social action, investigation, and conciliation. Around these skills has developed a body of knowledge that incorporates both the research findings of the social sciences and the rich experience of this emerging field.

Intergroup relations is, finally, a field of work for more than 1,600 professional workers employed by governmental and voluntary agencies throughout the United States . . . a field of volunteer activity for community leaders who serve on the governing boards of these agencies, as well as for countless citizens who help to carry out their programs . . . and a field of research and study for a growing number of university professors and students.

NAIRO

The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials is an organization of individuals concerned with improving performance in intergroup relations through an exchange of experience and knowledge. Founded in 1947, it consists of intergroup relations workers, government officials, community leaders, interested citizens, academicians, researchers, and students.

NAIRO's members share an active interest in advancing intergroup relations knowledge and skills, in improving the standards of intergroup relations practice, and in furthering the goals and principles of intergroup relations work.

Membership is open to any individual subscribing to NAIRO's purposes. There are three categories of membership:

- ACTIVE membership is open to any individual primarily engaged in intergroup relations: in a professional staff capacity (whether or not employed by an intergroup relations agency), as a recognized authority or as a volunteer member of the governing body of an agency in this field. Annual dues are $20. (Life membership is $300.)

- ASSOCIATE (non-voting) membership is open to all others. It is designed for those who are not eligible for Active membership, but wish to support NAIRO's work, receive its regular publications and other services, and participate in its activities. Annual dues are $20. (Life membership is $300.)

- STUDENT (non-voting) membership is open to any person enrolled in a college or university and working toward a degree with the intention of entering this field. Student members receive all regular publications and other services, and may take part in NAIRO activities. Annual dues are $5.

EXECUTIVE RESPONSIBILITY IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS
426 West 58th Street, New York 19, New York

THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE NAIRO DELEGATION (Left to right, Senator Philip A. Hart, Michigan; Robert J. Greene; George W. Culberson; President John F. Kennedy; Booker T. McGraw; John G. Feild), THE WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON, D.C., AUGUST 23, 1961.

The following message from President John F. Kennedy to the NAIRO Annual Conference was delivered in San Francisco on November 9, 1961, by Harris Wofford, Jr., Special Assistant to the President:

Please convey my warm greetings to the participants in the Fifteenth Annual Conference of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials. The problem of securing the full Constitutional rights of all Americans and of achieving equal opportunity in all parts of our public life in all sections of our country requires the cooperation and constructive leadership of public officials at all levels of government and in voluntary citizens' organizations throughout the nation. In promoting such cooperation and constructive leadership NAIRO is serving the needs of the nation.

An example of the vital service which NAIRO can render on an increasing scale is the valuable study on Executive Responsibility in Intergroup Relations presented to me by the officers of NAIRO. Your helpful suggestions are now being considered by the appropriate departments and agencies.

Cordially,

JOHN F. KENNEDY

The Honorable John F. Kennedy
The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

I have the honor to submit to you certain recommendations for executive action in intergroup relations, developed by a task force of experienced professionals appointed by our Board of Directors, and including many of its members.

Because ours is a professional body, concerned primarily with advancing intergroup relations knowledge and skills, we have concentrated in this paper on the means and methods by which we believe the Administration's equal opportunity goals can best be achieved. We have left to the membership organizations in our field the development of recommendations for substantive action.

In like manner, we have attempted to suggest policy directives, procedural steps, and an organization of intergroup relations resources that might be appropriate in any and all government operations. We have thus resisted the temptation to single out for special analysis such compelling problem areas as school desegregation and open occupancy in housing.

As we indicated in a resolution transmitted to you earlier this year, this Association pledges you its wholehearted support in your efforts to secure full equality of opportunity for all Americans. We place at your disposal our collective expertise and experience in intergroup relations.

Respectfully yours,

George W. Culberson

EXECUTIVE RESPONSIBILITY IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS

The Federal Government, besides being the nation's largest employer, inisters many programs affected by, and influencing, intergroup rela- s. Constitutional authority, legislative action, judicial decision, and cutive fiat have given it substantial responsibility for guaranteeing broad as of civil rights, for promoting the welfare of specific ethnic groups, for bringing into the mainstream of American life the many racial, gious, and nationality groups that comprise its people. Unfortunately, exercise of this responsibility has not heretofore kept pace with social d or world events.

At the outset of a new Administration, pledged by its party platform by the new Chief Executive to advance equal rights and opportunity all Americans, the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials rs certain recommendations for action in the area of intergroup relations help achieve these goals. These areas are covered:

Intergroup relations in government practices and services

Utilization of intergroup relations consultants

Role and recruitment of intergroup relations personnel

Community consultative services in intergroup relations

Intergroup relations in the State Department and Peace Corps

Training of intergroup relations personnel

Government role in intergroup relations research

Government reference services in intergroup relations

Leadership role of the President in intergroup relations

Intergroup relations may be defined in various ways. In its broadest sense, it is the generic term covering interracial relations, interreligious relations, and interethnic relations. It encompasses civil rights problems of Negroes, Jews, Orientals, Puerto Ricans, Mexican Americans, and others experiencing discrimination or segregation; cultural problems faced by American Indians, Southern mountain whites, and others transplanted abruptly from rural to urban living; and interreligious tensions arising out of Church-State issues. At least peripherally, it includes the problems of the foreign-born and of migrant farm laborers, the problems springing from denial of civil liberties, and the problems of the aged in the area of employment discrimination.

Intergroup relations is also the unique blend of skills and knowledge possessed by its practitioners. From a variety of disciplines they have drawn and adapted techniques of community organization, social action, public education, investigation and enforcement, and conciliation and mediation. Around these has developed a body of knowledge that incorporates both the research findings of the social sciences and the rich experience of this emerging field.

Intergroup relations is, finally, a field of work for more than 1,500 full-time workers employed by governmental and private intergroup relations agencies throughout the United States. These agencies maintain a total of 600 offices, in at least 150 cities in 43 states.

The National Association of Integroup Relations Officials, founded in 1947, is an organization of individuals concerned with advancing intergroup relations knowledge and skills, improving the standards of intergroup relations practice, and stimulating intergroup relations research. It is the field's professional body and attempts conscientiously to represent the collective opinion of practitioners, researchers, and lay leaders in intergroup relations. Its program and concerns focus essentially on the means and methods by which civil rights advances and better intergroup relations may be achieved. Its recommendations are offered in the light of that professional interest and activity.

RECOMMENDATIONS

A. INTERGROUP RELATIONS IN GOVERNMENT PRACTICES AND SERVICES

There is urgent need for a review by every department and agency of its staff practices and program services, to insure that intergroup relations concerns are recognized at every level of operation.

Forceful steps have already been taken by the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity to implement the recent executive order, but staff practices and internal operation are more than a matter of job opportunity. They extend to such problems as segregated restrooms in a government facility, the appointment of inexperienced personnel to intergroup relations posts, the lack of Spanish-speaking workers in a Southwestern field office, and Civil Service examinations given only on a Saturday. They include intergroup relations training and orientation for government personnel, government research in intergroup relations, the use of intergroup relations specialists and consultants in key areas, and the development of adequate reference resources for the use of those charged with intergroup relations responsibilities.

Similarly, intergroup relations concerns need to be introduced in all program services where government action impinges on the life of the citizen — and where government spends his tax money. This is more than a matter of government contracts with private industry, already the subject of an executive order. It extends to such problems as the paucity of nonwhite cadets in the Coast Guard Academy, the inadequacy of religious affiliation symbols on armed forces identification tags, the refusal of a local Veterans Administration office to release to Negro realtors its list of repossessed homes, and the discrimination experienced by an Asian diplomat seeking an apartment in New York City. It includes the area of direct services to individuals (e.g., Soil Conservation Service), the area of federal loans or loan insurance (e.g., Federal Housing Administration), the area of citizen mobilization (e.g., the U.S. Navy), and the area of federal stewardship (e.g., Bureau of Indian Affairs).

We recommend that the President direct all executive departments and agencies to conduct full-scale surveys of internal operations and external program services, in order to determine how intergroup relations goals may be achieved, and discrimination and segregation eliminated.

B. UTILIZATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS CONSULTANTS

In the proposed review of department and agency staff practices and program services, and in the continuing activity of the Federal establishment in the area of intergroup relations, there is urgent need to marshal and utilize the best available knowledge and expertise.

Today, in a vastly complex society, the Executive Branch has added to its many other functions that of broker in the exchange of knowledge and information. Through the Executive Office and through the appropriate departments, insights and information are received and transmitted to other parts of the Federal establishment, to lesser units of government, and to citizens groups throughout the country. In this past half-century, which has witnessed an acquisition of knowledge unparalleled in any earlier era, this brokerage function has become standard operating procedure in the physical sciences, in medical research, in business planning, in a myriad of activities tinted with a public interest. This has not been true in intergroup relations nor even, to a comparable degree, in the social sciences.

Despite man's limited understanding of how to build constructive relationships with his fellow men, there is a growing body of knowledge about the crucial elements of intergroup relations. It is possessed by practitioners who have helped to develop it in the struggle for civil rights advances during the past few decades, and their advice should be utilized by the Executive Branch as it guides the Federal establishment into the New Frontier of intergroup relations in government.

Such counsel should be sought before the fact of crisis so that, as in other areas of governmental responsibility, a thorough-going rationale of operation can be developed, to avoid the hasty and reactive efforts which marked and hindered Federal actions during the previous administration.

We recommend that the Executive Branch and all departments and agencies be encouraged by the President to make continuing use of qualified intergroup relations consultants outside the Federal establishment:

— to advise on the proposed survey, to help develop procedures for implementation, to suggest strategic placement of intergroup relations specialists, and to assist in reviewing and assessing initial progress reports.

— to supplement the advisory services of intergroup relations personnel within the Federal establishment, in interpreting the significance of intergroup relations developments for Federal functions, in further sensitizing departments and agencies to intergroup relations concerns, and in helping shape governmental response to the changing character of intergroup relations.

C. ROLE AND RECRUITMENT OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS PERSONNEL

There is urgent need to expand the role of intergroup relations specialists within the departments and agencies in which they now serve, and to introduce them into those areas of the Federal establishment in which their services are needed but not now utilized. Recruitment of these specialists should be governed solely by qualifications of competence and experience.

Intergroup relations is a factor in the internal and external operations of virtually every department and agency in government. The proposed survey of internal staff practices and external program activities will indicate the many areas in which intergroup relations specialists need to be utilized and, to some degree, the specific nature of their functions. Where the need for intergroup relations specialists is sufficient, and where formalization of their function is appropriate, an intergroup relations service within that department or agency is a logical step. More than two decades of experience suggest that certain cardinal principles are vital to effective operation of such a service:

1) An unequivocal statement by the department or agency head must set forth the policy objective and indicate that the intergroup relations service has the highest administrative support in the implementation of that policy.

2) The service must be amply staffed with competent and experienced intergroup relations specialists, under one with the rating of assistant department or agency head.

3) The service must have clear responsibility for these duties, among others:

   — Assisting the department or agency head and his staff, in the formulation, implementation, and evaluation of all aspects of policy, procedure, and program, to insure to minority group members equal opportunity and maximum participation in department or agency employment and in all phases of external program services.

   — Providing technical or advisory assistance to those responsible for recruitment, employment, and training of staff, to insure equal opportunity at all job levels.

— Providing technical or advisory assistance to those responsible for external program services at all levels, to insure that local action programs embrace the needs, viewpoints, and rights of minority groups.

— Interpreting to the department or agency the needs and viewpoints of minority groups, and interpreting to minority groups the policy and programs of the department or agency.

— Representing the department or agency head in the supervision and coordination of intergroup relations operations and policy throughout the department or agency.

Such a service would function in close liaison with the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity. In addition, backed by the coordinating role of the President's administrative assistants on civil rights, the collective services would provide a vitally needed catalyst in accelerating the advance of equality of opportunity in the Federal establishment.

Intergroup relations specialists employed in departments or agencies must be allowed to function as professionals. Too often have they languished as mere symbols of governmental tolerance, brought forth just occasionally to counteract pressures from civil rights forces. Only the authority of the Chief Executive can correct the situation that prevailed in past administrations.

The search for competent intergroup relations specialists must recognize the need for persons who possess a high degree of commitment to equal opportunity and basic democratic values, a deep sensitivity to intergroup relations concerns and minority group aspirations, and a background of intergroup relations knowledge and skills.

It is sad but true that in no other area of government have experience and professional qualifications been ignored so consistently. Department and agency heads have not seemed to recognize that intergroup relations is a tangible field and that given individuals have acquired its knowledge and skills through long years of experience. There is, for example, no U.S. Civil Service register of qualifications for intergroup relations specialists, and there are no intergroup relations classifications as such. Many cities and states are far in advance of the Federal Government in establishing classifications, qualifications, and even examinations for intergroup relations specialists.

By dint of stereotype and for political reasons, buttressed by the lack of job opportunity elsewhere in the Federal Government, it has also been common practice to name only minority group members to many intergroup relations positions, possibly on the mistaken assumption that all minority group members possess automatically the requisite intergroup relations knowledge and skills. Such assignment by stereotype is as discriminatory as it is erroneous. Patently, there are many minority group members qualified for such posts, but as long as appointing authorities think of minority group identification first, and professional capabilities second, there is the danger of political pressure to overlook the latter.

We recommend issuance of a firm directive to all departments and agencies, defining the role and function of intergroup relations services and personnel as integral to all appropriate government operations.

We further recommend appropriate action by the Executive Office to establish intergroup relations experience and cognate training as the primary qualifications for appointment to intergroup relations posts.

D. COMMUNITY CONSULTATIVE SERVICES IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS

Local communities faced with major intergroup relations problems, especially those that lack their own governmental intergroup relations agencies, have acute need for consultative services not presently available from any other source.

Throughout the United States, there are countless communities totally devoid of intergroup relations resources and financially unable to secure them. Some of these communities now face or will soon face monumental intergroup relations problems resulting from such developments as school desegregation, heavy in-migration of minority group families or extensive urban renewal. Other cities and towns only slightly more fortunate have intergroup relations resources that are inadequate to cope with local problems. They need a variety of services going beyond the reference clearinghouse noted later; they need the counsel and guidance of competent consultants, matching grants-in-aid to help support local intergroup relations efforts, and, in some instances, demonstration projects or action research programs.

This Administration has asserted a federal obligation to help communities deal with the physical and human problems of urbanization; it has given evidence of its firm resolve to develop dynamic approaches to pressing social problems. It is possible to render significant assistance to beleaguered communities by creating, within the framework of existing departments or agencies, the consultative services that they need in the area of intergroup relations.

We recommend the establishment of an intergroup relations service, appropriately situated within the Executive Branch, which would offer general intergroup relations counsel and technical assistance to local communities and to their intergroup relations agencies and which would include the use of demonstration projects and the provision of matching grants-in-aid to communities presently unable to support local intergroup relations efforts.

We further recommend the establishment of a community education service, appropriately situated within the Executive Branch, which would offer consultative services and, where warranted, financial aid to those school boards engaged in earnest efforts to desegregate public schools, and which would aid in establishing equal opportunity in vocational education and in training related to formal apprenticeship programs.

E. INTERGROUP RELATIONS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT AND THE PEACE CORPS

There is acute need to introduce into the State Department, and into such specialized foreign aid agencies as the Peace Corps, intergroup relations concerns relating especially to the orientation and training of overseas personnel, and to the reception of foreign diplomats, visitors, and students.

The vital importance of our national image abroad, and the acute need to demonstrate with vigor and dedication America's deep commitment to the democratic ideal of equal treatment for all persons, demands early and special attention to intergroup relations concerns in activities bearing on foreign relations.

State Department personnel are not now being prepared adequately to interpret abroad America's civil rights problems and intergroup relations efforts and progress. Personnel at all levels are in need of orientation before overseas assignment, and continuing informational services thereafter. These might well be extended to include government personnel sent abroad by other departments and agencies.

Exchange visitors from other lands, and particularly those from Africa and Asia, are not receiving an adequate exposure to the positive intergroup relations efforts of public and private agencies in communities across the country. Orientation provided for some visitors in Washington is not a satisfactory answer, especially for those who have indicated a deeper interest in civil rights problems. The six hundred intergroup relations agencies throughout the United States offer a resource that should not be overlooked in planning itineraries and in coping with problems of discrimination that some visitors will face.

The establishment of a New Nations Division in the Office of Protocol is a heartening approach to the problems of discrimination encountered by foreign diplomats and students in this country. This effort merits continuing support and resources.

The Peace Corps is an exciting idea that has captured the imagination of thousands of young people in this country and has gained wide support abroad. There are dangers relevant to intergroup relations in this transplantation abroad of relatively inexperienced if totally dedicated young people, however. As in the case of State Department personnel, Peace Corps volunteers must be in a position to interpret accurately and clearly American civil rights problems and intergroup relations efforts. That they will be asked about civil rights matters is a foregone conclusion; that they possess adequate information is the only reasonable answer. The difference between objective information and all that would fall in the category of propaganda or apologia is clear, and only the former should be the subject of Peace Corps orientation. Finally, the process of selection and training must be geared to deal with those psychologically unsuited to intimate contact with persons of other races, creeds or national origin whether they be fellow volunteers or foreign nationals.

We recommend that the Foreign Service Institute be directed to incorporate in its program and structure intergroup relations orientation for personnel assigned to overseas posts.

We recommend further that the governmental and contract agencies responsible for Exchange Program visitors be directed to review orientation procedures and itinerary planning, in order to introduce intergroup relations concerns and to make maximum use of intergroup relations agencies throughout the country.

We recommend that the New Nations Division in the Office of Protocol be adequately and appropriately staffed.

We recommend that the process of selection and training of Peace Corps volunteers include appropriate concern for the effects of prejudicial attitudes and behavior on the interpersonal relationships that must be developed abroad, and that the orientation of volunteers include objective information on American intergroup relations.

F. TRAINING OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS PERSONNEL

Given the acute shortage of experienced intergroup relations workers, inside and outside government, there is an urgent need for the development of governmental training programs in intergroup relations, including both in-service training for present employees and internship training for recruits to the Federal service. The personnel needs of community intergroup relations agencies across the country cannot be met through existing replacement channels, and Federal Government help is needed in the training of workers to staff these local efforts.

The reservoir of experienced intergroup relations workers is not large — perhaps 1,500 in all. Because the field adds only 50 to 100 persons to its ranks each year as its agencies multiply and expand, and because it is still a relatively new field, there are few formal training opportunities. Most newcomers, recruited from other fields, enter at the bottom of the professional ladder and receive their intergroup relations training on the job. This informal process of recruitment and training is not geared to meet sharp increases in the demand for qualified specialists.

The mushrooming growth of state and municipal agencies, a phenomenon of the past two decades in the North and of the past two years in the South, has brought personnel requirements that cannot be met through normal replacement channels, and the result has been a heavy drain on private agency staffs. The field is marked by sudden and far-reaching personnel shifts, not unlike the game of musical chairs.

To fill existing intergroup relations posts in the Federal Government is not an easy task; to staff the services and positions likely to grow out of the proposed survey will create serious problems, especially for private and local governmental agencies that can expect to lose personnel. On the other hand, experienced workers must be found for these Federal positions if intergroup relations goals are to be achieved.

In-service training for those already in the Federal employ offers a partial solution. Most departments and agencies could profitably institute intensive on-the-job training programs for those slated to fill intergroup relations posts, and orientation programs for those whose intergroup relations responsibilities will be more peripheral. The Civil Service Commission might assume this function for departments and agencies with more modest intergroup relations personnel needs.

To meet long-range personnel needs, internship training should be instituted for new recruits to government service, again under the auspices of the various departments and agencies or perhaps by the Civil Service Commission. These intergroup relations internships should be of at least one year's duration, should consist of on-the-job training and working experience, and should include duty in a field office at the community level. There are some agencies (e.g., Housing and Home Finance Agency) in which internship programs already exist; these need only to be broadened to include intergroup relations concerns.

The acute needs of local communities must be met in different fashion. Through some existing department or agency, or through one yet to be established, the government should promptly initiate training services for local community workers. These might include a centralized training program, grants-in-aid to private or local governmental agencies, and contractual training agreements with universities or national intergroup relations agencies. Scholarship aid to students considering advanced studies in intergroup relations is yet another form of training assistance, and might be coupled with subsequent internship experience.

We recommend that appropriate departments and agencies be directed to institute in-service and internship training in intergroup relations; that the Civil Service Commission be directed to organize such training programs for departments and agencies that do not find it feasible to institute their own; and that the Federal Government, through an existing department or agency or through one yet to be created, establish a training program and offer financial aid to prepare intergroup relations workers for local community service.

G. GOVERNMENT ROLE IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS RESEARCH

There is an acute need for intergroup relations research in a variety of fields, and this research must be adequately financed and knowingly coordinated. Since private and local governmental research programs and resources are presently inadequate, the Federal Government must take the initiative in stimulating this research.

In a preliminary survey of research needs, conducted in 1960 by the NAIRO Commission on Research Services, an inventory of 107 subjects for study was gathered from professional workers in 25 intergroup relations agencies. This still-expanding inventory shows a need for general knowledge and for action-oriented research in a number of critical areas.

Funds presently available for intergroup relations research are totally inadequate. Most of the foundations have been reluctant to make grants in this highly sensitive field, and most of the intergroup relations agencies are unable to allocate money for research. Even the research being done by those few agencies with research staff and by individuals in university centers suffers for lack of planning and coordination.

Needed research falls into three categories: data-gathering, program-oriented, and basic. Data-gathering is already a function of many departments and agencies of government, but almost all could do more in the area of intergroup relations. In addition, means must be devised for disseminating this material to local communities. There is considerably less program-oriented or action research, while basic research is a significant void. Some agencies should, for example, delve into the sources of prejudice and the relationship of prejudice to personality development.

To carry on the research program that is needed, an approach along the lines of the National Institutes of Health seems desirable. The agency thus created, whether independent or part of a broader institute, must be prepared and qualified to do actual research, to stimulate and coordinate research in government departments and agencies, and to provide funds for research grants-in-aid to colleges and universities, public and private agencies, and individuals. Specialized research projects should be carried out by qualified persons in the appropriate department or agency, but as part of a master plan for government research in intergroup relations. This overall agency could also perform a much-needed service by furthering exchange of information about research being undertaken independently by colleges, universities, and agencies.

We recommend the establishment of an agency, independently or as part of an existing Department, possibly along the lines of the National Institutes of Health, to coordinate, undertake, stimulate, and help finance needed research in the area of intergroup relations.

We further recommend that the departments and agencies, including the National Science Foundation, be directed to initiate or expand research studies, grants-in-aid, and scholarships in the area of intergroup relations.

H. GOVERNMENT REFERENCE SERVICES IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS

There is an acute need for expanded reference services in intergroup relations: within departments and agencies for the use of federal intergroup relations personnel, and through selected departments and agencies for the use of local communities.

Intergroup relations is such a recent and dynamic field of specialized knowledge that little systematic collection and classification of its written material have taken place. Many of its most valuable documents have not been published as books and are not, therefore, to be found in the Library of Congress. When intergroup relations materials are found in government libraries, they are seldom organized in such a manner as to be readily accessible for reference use. Within the departments and agencies, the available material of the type needed by intergroup relations personnel in their program duties is wholly inadequate.

Those responsible for intergroup relations programs in local communities around the country have need of a central reference clearinghouse. In such a critical area as school desegregation, for example, there is no single source to which communities can turn for appropriate resource materials. Even in the Library of Congress there is no centralized collection of published and unpublished materials on intergroup relations, and no specialized staff to develop such a collection and work with those engaged in intensive intergroup relations research.

We recommend that the departments and agencies which possess intergroup relations services be directed to make budgetary allowance and other necessary provisions for the assembly and maintenance of informational resources dealing with intergroup relations aspects of the programs they administer.

We further recommend that such departments as Health, Education and Welfare, or possibly that proposed on Housing and Urban Affairs, with areas of competence and jurisdiction bearing directly on major intergroup relations concerns be instructed to establish clearinghouse reference services for the use of local community agencies and workers.

I. LEADERSHIP ROLE OF THE PRESIDENT IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS

As has already been demonstrated, there is clear need for Presidential leadership in the area of intergroup relations, not simply within the Federal establishment, as suggested in earlier recommendations, but in interpreting to the people the moral and legal issues involved, and in serving as the voice of the conscience of the nation.

The President can exert enormous influence by example. He communicates with the public in such informal ways as his choice of aides and associates or his invitations to White House functions. The inclusion of appropriate minority group members does not go unnoticed, and helps to set the overall intergroup relations tone.

There is another area in which the President could exert great influence. He should call together small groups of key individuals — opinion molders and decision makers — to make known his determination to correct inequities, and to enlist their cooperation. This might suggest Presidential discussion with school superintendents of desegregation problems; with state governors of mutual responsibilities to uphold Federal Court decisions and to maintain law and order; with state attorneys general of the right of all qualified citizens to free access to the ballot box; with business and labor leaders of equal employment opportunities; and with representatives of the housing industry of open occupancy practices.

Firm Presidential leadership can help avert many crisis situations, but when they occur, the President must be heard, pointing to desirable solutions and calling for calm and wise local leadership to cooperate in working out these solutions. There should never again be a vacuum of leadership in the White House, enabling wilful men on the local levels to obstruct the will of the nation.

We respectfully observe that the Presidency requires the type of leadership and moral suasion that can only be exercised from the White House, by voice and in action, in crisis situations and in forthright appeals to the best that is in our people.

2027 MASSACHUSETTS AVENUE, N. W. ● WASHINGTON 6, D. C. ● 387-7050

NAIRO's new staff reports for the first time from its Washington, D.C. location to our 920 members on recent plans and developments in the Association, the field, and the nation.

MAY BOARD MEETING — On Thursday and Friday, May 24 and 25, your Board of Directors met in Washington for a series of productive sessions. The occasion of the meeting also provided the Board the opportunity to visit the beautiful new NAIRO offices. (Note the new address above.)

Highlights of the Board's discussions were: The approval of a TRAINING PROGRAM under the joint auspices of the INSTITUTE OF HUMAN RELATIONS, American Jewish Committee and NAIRO. The program will address itself to in-service training for professionals, orientation and training for beginners in the field, and training for those with intergroup responsibility with agencies in other fields. Plans are underway for the establishment of a joint committee which will work out the details of curriculum, faculty, financing, etc.

ROGER NATHAN (Illinois Commission on Human Relations) reported that his NAIRO Sponsors Committee is taking shape. MRS. JONAS SALK and HARRY ASHMORE have accepted invitations to serve as national co-chairmen. Individuals contributing $25 or more will be enrolled and listed as Sponsors and will receive NAIRO's Journal, as well as other special publications. Chapter and Regional chairmen are asked to heed Nathan's plea and send names of likely prospects to him as soon as possible.

The Board reviewed a preliminary report of an investigation of discrimination from the Panel on Professional Integrity, JOHN MC KNIGHT (A.C.L.U., Chicago), chairman. In the absence of the complete findings and the recommendations on the panel on this complaint, the Board delegated "both the authority and responsibility to the Executive Committee to make the determination in this case (upon receipt of the final report) and to take whatever action they deem necessary." The Board also established that in future grievance cases: (1) only the Board has the authority to make a final determination, (2) the full record including the panel's recommendations will be made available to the decision making body, (3) that the findings and determination be sent all Board members, (4) that the full record be available at the NAIRO office to Board members upon request, and (5) that only the determination, including findings of fact and conclusions, in each case will be sent the complainant and the respondent.

The case presently being reviewed is considered important in that it is the first to be investigated under the new procedures. The team appointed to conduct the investigation (PAUL RILLING, Southern Regional Council, chairman; the Rev. JOHN MORRIS, E.S.C.R.U.; and Mrs. RUBY HURLEY, N.A.A.C.P.) reports they were treated cordially and sensitively by the agency involved and that NAIRO's role in the case was readily accepted by the respondent. A second case involving discrimination and/or unethical practices has been received and passed on for investigation and action.

GEORGE CULBERSON (U.S. Air Force, Washington, D.C.), chairman of the Public Policy Committee, announced that the committee would have the draft of the Association's statement of principle for the September Board Meeting. After consideration by the Board the approved draft will be sent to Chapters for their discussion and reactions prior to the annual meeting. Incidentally, GEORGE CULBERSON was elected to fill the Board vacancy created by FRED ROUTH's resignation. (Fred resigned to become executive director).

CONFERENCE 1962

The Board voted approval of the proposed program for the 1962, Washington Conference (Sheraton Park Hotel: November 28 - December 1.) Your Sixteenth Annual Conference Program Committee (ROBERT J. GREENE, Urban Renewal Administration, chairman) labored fruitfully in putting together a "program package" topical, enlightening, and interesting sessions. Under the theme of, "THE ROLE OF GOVERNMENT IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS", some of the major papers and discussions will deal with: "The Changing Character of Intergroup Practice"; "Forces and Factors Affecting the Field"; "Utilizing Power For Civil Rights Goals"; "Intergroup Relations Today - Domestic and International"; "The Impact of Intergroup Relations on Urban Planning and the Effect on Urban Design on Civil Rights Concerns." The Committee has paid particular attention to practical, informative, small-group sessions that will be of help to the practitioner and has planned a series of "How To" sessions dealing with: Defacto Segregation, The Use of Mass Media, Affirmative Action in F.E.P. & E.E.O., Police-Community Relations, Neighborhood Stabilization, and Program Evaluation.

DAVE SAWYER (D.C. Commissioners' Council on Human Relations) is chairing the Conference Arrangements Committee, which is already planning to receive and entertain you in the Nation's Capitol in grand style. You will be hearing more about the Conference in subsequent NEWSLETTERS and in mailings from the committee.

In other actions the Board voted to accept the invitation from the New York Chapter and named New York City as the site of the 1964 Conference, with Chicago being the host in 1965.

TASK FORCE I RECONSTITUTED

On May 21, 1962, president LLOYD DAVIS reconvened NAIRO's TASK FORCE I, on "Executive Responsibility in Intergroup Relations." Noting that, ..."it may never be possible to determine exactly which of the subsequent policy and procedural innovations were sparked by the NAIRO recommendations, it is clear that there have been significant changes precisely along the lines spelled out by the earlier Task Force. It is equally clear that there are a number of agencies in which the changes have been minimal," president DAVIS asked the group to consider further recommendations and actions on the part of NAIRO and the Federal Government. Under the chairmanship of GEORGE CULBERSON (U.S. Air Force, Washington), the Committee members include: ALEXANDER ALLEN (National Urban League, New York City); ELMER PAUL BROCK (U.S. Post Office Dept., Washington); the Rev. WILL D. CAMPBELL (Dept. of Racial & Cultural Relations, Nat'l. Council of Churches); DAVID DANZIG (Institute of Human Relations, American Jewish Committee, New York City); LLOYD DAVIS (Post Office Department, Washington); ROBERT GREENE (Urban Renewal Administration, Washington); JOHN FEILD (president's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity, Washington); HAROLD FLEMING (Potomac Institute, Washington); JOHN HOPE II, (President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity, Washington); JOHN LASSOE, JR. (Division of Church and Community Studies, National Council of the Episcopal Church, New York City); JOHN MORSELL (N.A.A.C.P., New York City); JOHN MC DERMOTT (Catholic Interracial Council, Chicago); PETER LIBASSI (U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, Washington); PAUL RILLING (Southern Regional Council, Atlanta); A. ABBOT ROSEN (Anti-Defamation League, Chicago); EDWARD RUTLEDGE (State Commission For Human Rights, New York City); BOOKER T. MC GRAW (Urban Renewal Agency, Washington); and JOHN YOSHINO (President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity, Washington).

The group met in Washington on June 5, in an all day sessions during which they examined the many aspects of this problem with respect to the various agencies. It was their decision to have two TASK FORCE members accompany the executive director on a round of visits with the heads of key governmental agencies. The committee felt it could not decide upon further recommendations or action until after these fact-finding visits had been completed and we had a better picture of the potential and capabilities of these agencies.

HOUSING CONFERENCE — EDWARD RUTLEDGE, chairman, Commission on Housing and Urban Life, informs us that plans and arrangements for the October 16-19, PRINCETON CONFERENCE on Equal Opportunity in Housing, are rapidly progressing. The Conference, financed by a $24,000 grant from the FORD FOUNDATION to NAIRO, will bring together national leaders in city planning, government, mortgage banking, home building, real estate, and urban renewal for frank discussions of means of achieving equal opportunity in housing. NAIRO is sharing in this venture with the National Housing Center.

RUTLEDGE and NAIRO staff have met with representatives of the National Housing Center on several occasions to go over the conference site, program plans, and invitees. A meeting of the Commission was held in Washington on May 25, to get their thinking on the proposed list and program ideas. GEORGE GRIER (Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington), and EUNICE GRIER (Center for Metropolitan Studies, Washington), have contracted to do a series of case studies of efforts to integrate city and suburban developments. They are hopeful these studies will include developments in Chicago, Illinois; San Jose, California; Midland-Odessa, Texas; Levittown, Pennsylvania; and a transitional, inner-city neighborhood in an eastern city. These studies will serve as the basis for some of the discussion.

You will recall that this conference is the first phase of the Commission's projected five-year program which also calls for regional and local conferences of this same type; training programs for professional staff and high level management personnel in related fields; an intergroup relations internship program in housing; training programs at the University level; and a national program and information service.

PEACE CORPS RECRUITING — HARRIS WOFFORD, now Director for Africa of the PEACE CORPS and FRED ROUTH have held several sessions discussing the corps need for qualified recruits. WOFFORD stressed the importance of intergroup relations training for corpsmen. We are enclosing two recent releases of the Peace Corps with this issue of the NEWSLETTER. If you are interested in this important effort or if you know of any qualified person who might be, contact the Peace Corps headquarters here in Washington. WOFFORD also noted that many of the corpsmen now serving in various parts of the world might well end up in the field of intergroup relations on their return to the United States. Certainly this is good training ground for intergroup relations specialists.

SPECIAL FUND RAISING — In recent weeks your director and a number of Board members have been bombarding various foundations with grant requests. Because of our vital area of operation, the growing recognition of the importance of NAIRO and the field, as well as the increasing demands being made upon the office and those in the field, we felt certain NAIRO could seek and find not only foundation support for special projects, but for general support as well. Last week the first of these requests paid off. THE NEW WORLD FOUNDATION granted NAIRO $5,000 "toward the support of the general operating budget." And we have hopes that others will join them. (NOTE: One of the major difficulties encountered in securing foundation money for general support is their belief, and rightly so, that a professional association such as NAIRO should be self-supporting. I am sure we all share this belief but have had a difficult time making it a reality. Have you thought of how close we would come to realizing this fact if all our membership dues were current?)

TASK FORCE II — NAIRO's second Task Force which will deal with the role and function of county and municipal intergroup relations agencies is about to take shape. LLOYD DAVIS has conferred with president-elect (ED RUTLEDGE) and director (FRED ROUTH) on possible appointments to the group and a list of candidates representing public and private agency personnel, as well as University persons, has been drawn up. It is hoped that the group's initial report will be ready for discussion at the November Conference.

NAIRO, your association, has gone farther and done more in the last year than at any time in its history. And at that we have just begun. But in order to operate, in order to grow, funds are desperately needed.

As of June 1, 235 members were shown to be delinquent in their dues. This item alone represents almost $5,000 of our annual budget.

Your prompt payment will help our morale and budget.

DELINQUENT MEMBERS

NAIRO GROUP LIFE INSURANCE FOR MEMBERS

LLOYD DAVIS has appointed a committee to study the practicality of NAIRO offering a low-cost, group life insurance to its members. The plan would afford NAIRO members special term life insurance of up to $40,000. JOHN LASSOE, JR. (our much missed former executive director), has agreed to chair this committee.

GEORGE and EUNICE GRIER's study for the PRINCETON CONFERENCE dealing with efforts to integrate city and suburban communities will also be published under the provisions of the Ford Foundation grant covering the conference.

NEW BROCHURE

Included with this Newsletter is a copy of NAIRO's new brochure, "NAIRO And The Nation's Need". As you will note this piece is useful for promotional purposes and in pointing up our course for the future. This pamphlet is available to members in bulk quantities. Please notify the National Office if you desire additional copies.

THE DIRECTOR'S BOX

A word of personal greeting and gratitude to all members! We shall do great things together for the field and for NAIRO. I have been much encouraged by the words of confidence and commitment from many of you. We pledge the staff to new efforts to have NAIRO's counsel welcomed by decision makers and opinion molders in government, in business and industry, in the trade union movement, and in the mass media as well as in our own field. NAIRO is moving ahead with new vigor on a variety of fronts as the contents of this newsletter indicate.. this is only the beginning. Many of you will be called upon to serve the Association in various ways; this will call for an investment of your best thinking, more of your valuable time, and--on occasion--money; but, above all, your continuing commitment is the crucial factor. The viscosity of the field is more fluid; NAIRO is prepared to move, and is moving, with increased vitality, helping give shape and direction to emerging activities in the federal establishment. We have been in consultation with the White House staff, the State Department, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Labor

Department, the Post Office Department, the Peace Corps, the Defense Department, the Housing and Home Finance Agency, the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity, and the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights. In a number of instances NAIRO has been asked to help recruit qualified professionals for the federal services, in others NAIRO has helped plan conferences and programs. At no time in the history of the Association has our counsel been more welcomed. Finally, we can fulfill our potentialities only if we continue to receive the personal and professional commitment of our members; I call upon each of you for continuing and increasing commitment to the goals we share and to the Association. FOR RELEASE SUNDAY MAY 27,1962

Georgetown University, one of seven Washington area universities pooling their resources to help train Peace Corps Volunteers, will train the largest single Peace Corps group to go overseas.

The project calls for 300 secondary school teachers to reach Ethiopia by September. This would enable the enrollment of secondary-school students there to be doubled.

Final negotiations were made with Emperor Haile Selassie by Harris L. Wofford, Special Peace Corps Representative for Africa. Mr. Wofford, formerly Special Assistant to President Kennedy, will serve as overseas administrator for the Ethiopian program in addition to his other duties in Africa.

Ethiopian Ambassador Berhanov Dinke conferred here last week with Mr. Wofford on arrangements for the ambitious program.

The training at Georgetown, which will begin early in July, is to consist of eight weeks of intensive study. Candidates, all of whom will have B.A. degrees. will study Ethiopian history and culture, American history, world affairs, teaching methods, and health.

The other members of the consortium---American University, Catholic University, George Washington University, Howard University, John Hopkins University School of Advanced International Study and the University of Maryland---will provide staff and resources.

Those men and women who successfully complete the Georgetown training will depart for Ethiopia after a short home leave. There they will receive further training before beginning their assignments. Emphasis in this overseas training will be on Ethiopia's national language, Amharic, a tongue related to both Hebrew and Arabic.

The men and women will teach in secondary schools in various parts of the country, including Addis Ababa, the capital. Their subjects will include English, mathematics, science, social studies, commercial subjects, industrial arts, home economics, vocational agriculture, and health and physical education.

The need for teachers in Ethiopia is acute. To keep abreast of its modernization program, the Government is expanding its educational facilities. But while there are approximately 1,000,000 secondary-school-age children in Ethiopia, there are teachers enough for only about 6,000.

With the arrival of the Peace Corps contingent this number should rise to about 12,000.

and the

NATION'S NEED

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS
2027 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W.
Washington 6, D.C.

INTRODUCTION

January, 1961, brought to office a new national administration, led by a President who had promised during the campaign swift action in the field of civil rights. Among the first actions of the President was the issuance of Executive Order 10925, strengthening the hand and increasing the scope of a staffed executive effort to prevent and eliminate discrimination within the federal establishment and among those who do business with it. The Order called for not only the processing of complaints but also for a broad-gauged program of affirmative actions to bring about a climate of public acceptance in which the concept and practice of equal opportunities might flourish.

The more prudent of the intergroup relations agencies, taking their cue from the increased determination and activities of the Federal Government to stamp out discrimination, reassessed their programs. The question before them was: In view of the new and increased national effort in the field of intergroup relations, what should our program emphasis be; how adequate is our current program? Different agencies answered this query in differing ways.

NAIRO'S Board of Directors and its Executive Committee gave diligent attention to this question. Out of their deliberations came recognition of three distinct, yet related needs of the federal establishment as it undertook new efforts to effectuate a program of equal opportunities: 1) a clearly defined understanding of executive responsibilities and potentialities in this area; 2) a systematic method of recruiting professional personnel to staff the various efforts; and, 3) a program for training personnel in the regulatory and educational techniques utilized in governmental efforts. The NAIRO Board and Executive Committee realized that it was insufficient just to recognize these needs and that NAIRO, as the professional association in the field of Intergroup Relations, has a responsibility to interpret these needs to the decision makers in the federal establishment.

NAIRO also recognized that recruitment of professional personnel to staff the federal efforts would place certain strains on the state, municipal, and private agencies from which they would come. Increased professional responsibilities, increased pay rates and increased status were the lures of the Federal Government.

WHAT NAIRO HAS DONE

In the Spring of 1961, NAIRO convened a 16-man task force of experienced professionals to develop recommendations for executive action by the President and the Executive Branch of government. Their efforts led to the development of the special report "EXECUTIVE RESPONSIBILITY IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS." On August 23, 1961, representatives of NAIRO presented this report to the President of the United States. Following a 20-minute discussion the President referred the report to Harris Wofford, then his White House civil rights aide, and directed that it be reviewed by appropriate departments and agencies and, further, that it be placed before the sub-Cabinet group on civil rights for study and recommendations to effectuate its proposals.

President Kennedy later said of the report:

> "An example of the vital service which NAIRO can render on an increasing scale is the valuable study on Executive Responsibility in Intergroup Relations presented to me by the officers of NAIRO."

In May of 1962, the national offices of NAIRO were moved from New York City to Washington, D.C. This was done in the belief that the growth of intergroup relations programs in the Federal Government might best be guided and served here, and that proximity to the growing membership and activities in the South will be of great advantage. Results from several consultations with federal departments and agencies testify to the wisdom of the move.

On May 15, 1962, following the resignation of John Lassoe (to accept an important new post with the National Council of the Episcopal Church), NAIRO secured as its executive director, Frederick B. Routh, then head of the Michigan FEPC, former assistant director of the Southern Regional Council and past President of NAIRO. Mr. Routh brings to the post wide experience in governmental and private agency leadership and a sound academic background. Several months before Mr. Routh's coming to the post, a committee of senior members had reviewed and revised the job description and title of NAIRO's executive. It was recognized that the position now requires a much broader mandate to serve as the public spokesman for the profession and a strong representative of professional interest in consultations with government agencies and influential private institutions.

NAIRO appointed Albert Nellum as Assistant Director for a six-month period and hopes to make the position permanent. Mr. Nellum was formerly with the Chicago Commission on Youth Welfare, the Catholic Interracial Council, and was one of NAIRO's original interns.

NAIRO'S Board of Directors selected Washington as the site for the 16th Annual Conference, to be held November 28-December 1, 1962. The theme will be "The Role of Federal, State, and Local Government in Intergroup Relations." Policy makers and program professionals from every level of government will participate.

WHAT NAIRO HAS UNDERWAY

The most pressing problem in civil rights, particularly in the North, in the eyes of many professionals is discrimination in housing. During the 1960 presidential campaign, Mr. Kennedy promised and still intends to issue an executive order prohibiting discrimination in public owned, operated, and assisted housing, including VA and FHA under-written housing. NAIRO has long recognized the crucial nature of discrimination in housing and its influential support of discrimination in education and employment. The housing industry leadership is awakening to the realization that something will be done by the Federal Government in this area and is now willing to explore the problem.

In the Spring of 1961, NAIRO took the initiative in proposing a major national conference of influential representatives of the building industry, government officials, and those professionals most experienced in the intergroup relations aspects of housing. NAIRO secured as co-sponsor of the proposed conference the National Housing Center in Washington, D.C., representing leading home builders, mortgage lenders, developers, and planners. NAIRO has received a grant of $24,000 from the FORD FOUNDATION to finance the planning and expenses of this unprecedented working conference, scheduled for October 1962. This promising project is seen as the first step in a five-year housing program planned by NAIRO's Commission on Housing and Urban Life.

NAIRO is reconvening a reconstituted task force to review the efforts of federal departments and agencies to effectuate the recommendations made in the report "Executive Responsibility in Intergroup Relations." While it may never be possible to determine exactly which of the subsequent policy and procedural innovations were sparked by the report, it is clear that there have been significant changes precisely along the lines spelled out by the earlier task force. It is equally clear that there are a number of recommendations that have received little or no attention — and a number of departments and agencies in which the changes have been minimal. The reconstituted task force will not only examine progress made on the former recommendations but will spell out next steps for programs already underway and suggest new programs where warranted.

NAIRO, recognizing the increasing needs of local public agencies, has convened yet another group of specialists, designated them "Task Force II", and assigned them the studying of the role and function of county and municipal intergroup relations agencies. A report similar to "Executive Responsibility in Intergroup Relations" will be developed and circulated to all county and municipal agencies and to officials and private agency heads in counties and cities contemplating the creation of such agencies. This report should be ready for distribution in the early Fall of 1962.

The demand for experienced intergroup relations professionals is growing at an unprecedented rate within the federal establishment and among the state and municipal public agencies and the private agencies concurrently. The shortage of trained staff, already great, threatens to reach a critical stage in the coming months. This situation places heavy responsibility on NAIRO to see that the urgent training needs are met swiftly and well. NAIRO is working closely with the Institute of Human Relations (of the American Jewish Committee) and the major agencies toward the development of a first-rate training facility that will serve those entering the field, those already in service with advanced training, and the special needs of the newly created government programs. It is essential that NAIRO, as the association of professionals in the field, play a major and continuing role in the planning and direction of these training programs. A small group of NAIRO's senior professionals are participating in this project.

NAIRO's executive director and certain of its officers and more experienced members are playing an increasingly significant consultative role with federal departments and agencies as they face up to the intergroup relations realities of our time. Formal and informal consultations have taken place with White House staff, the State Department, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity, the Housing and Home Finance Agency, the Post Office Department, the Peace Corps, and with representatives of the Defense Department. NAIRO's counsel is being sought with increasing frequency. NAIRO will seek out opportunities to further serve the federal establishment as its departments and agencies move into programming in this vital area.

One of the effects of heightened federal activity in the field of intergroup relations is the setting of standards and qualifications for inter-group relations specialists by the U.S. Civil Service Commission. In short, our professionals are beginning to be institutionalized in the federal civil service structure, as well as in many states and municipalities. This is the crucial time for NAIRO to represent the best experience and knowledge of its senior professional members in a process that will go far, for better or for worse, toward freezing standards for the field. Without NAIRO's assistance and guidance this could be a matter-of-fact process; with NAIRO's help it can contain imaginative and creative insights into what makes a good professional. NAIRO members have assisted in job-descriptions thus far developed; increased attention will be given to this crucial problem.

Finally, NAIRO continues to serve the professional needs of its members. It has become to them what the American Bar Association is to members of the legal profession. It prints a professional Journal of Intergroup Relations, it circulates a newsletter on matters of current interest, it maintains a register of persons seeking employment and of job openings, it provides regional and national conferences where new insights, skills, and developments may be shared among professional workers in the field.

WHAT FURTHER NAIRO PLANS TO DO

The demands for new personnel in the field of intergroup relations are beginning to swell; the ability to mate the right person to the right spot is only in its developmental stages. NAIRO plans to circularize public and private agencies throughout the country, asking for the names and qualifications of persons who have applied for professional positions. It will constitute three-man interviewing panels, comprised of experienced professional members, to interview and evaluate such applicants. A master list of applicants, with their educational and work experience, and the panels' evaluation will be developed. Notice of job-openings, brought to NAIRO's attention or of which NAIRO learns, will be circulated to appropriate persons on this list.

NAIRO's Commission on School Integration has approached a foundation with a proposed nation-wide survey "to study and interpret the nature, extent, and educational implications of contrived and/or de facto segregation in the schools in the North, and to suggest effective approaches toward their elimination." The Conant Report, with its strengths and its weaknesses, has provoked increased awareness of this problem. NAIRO is receiving cooperation from intergroup relations action agencies in developing this project.

NAIRO's Editorial Board plans a special Fall issue of the Journal of Intergroup Relations, containing the major papers delivered at the Annual Meeting. These papers will deal with such questions as: "The Changing Character of Practices in Intergroup Relations", "The Uses of Power in a Free Society", "The Impact of Intergroup Relations on Urban Planning", and "Plans For Increasing Southern Negro Voter Registration." Wide distribution of this special issue is planned for it is hoped that it may serve to further clarify and unify the thinking of professionals about their field and its recent, significant developments.

NAIRO'S FINANCIAL NEEDS

NAIRO's Executive Committee, its Board of Directors, and its membership are committed to a massive fund raising effort to secure the financial base necessary to this vastly increased program. They recognize the crucial nature of the times and the critical role NAIRO can play in giving professional assistance and guidance to the unfolding and rapidly developing changes in the field. They are fully aware that NAIRO cannot perform this vital task unless it is adequately financed. They are convinced that there are a certain number of Foundations, Funds, Corporations, Unions, and individuals who understand what must be done. They will receive requests for financial assistance to enable NAIRO to fulfill its potentialities and obligations.

YOU AND THE PEACE CORPS

WHAT IS THE PEACE CORPS?

To George Albert Johnson of Titusville, Pennsylvania, the Peace Corps is what brought him as a surveyor to Tanganyika "to match our actions with our convictions."

To Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver, the Corps is "people who want to give, people who are not afraid of a challenge, people with tough hides and warm hearts."

To Colombian President Alberto Lleras Camargo, the Corps is "the finest way in which the United States could prove to the humble people of this and other lands that the primary purpose of its international aid program is to build a better life in all of the free world's villages and neighborhoods."

To President Kennedy, the Peace Corps is a pledge of our best efforts "to those people in the huts and villages of half the globe struggling to break the bonds of mass misery . . . to help them to help themselves . . . for whatever period is required . . . not because the Communists may be doing it, not because we seek their votes, but because it is right."

TO YOU the Peace Corps can be an opportunity to serve people who need your skills . . . to develop new understanding and knowledge of the world . . . and to participate personally and directly in the determination of aspiring nations to win a better life for their people. As a Peace Corps Volunteer, you will also be making an investment in your own future. Some businesses, such as IBM, are arranging to give employees leaves of absence for Peace Corps service, realizing that the experience will make them better employees . . . and more intelligent citizens.

campaign, set up a first-aid post, initiate irrigation, teach English and start grazing control measures. I also want to start a course in furniture making," he said, "using the local bamboo."

At 19, Frank is one of the youngest Peace Corps Volunteers. But his approach to solving problems is typical of the attitude of other Volunteers now serving in Tanganyika, India, Pakistan, Malaya . . . and many other countries.

Tom Livingston, 25, of Wood Dale, Illinois, is teaching in Dodowa, Ghana.

"I'm thrilled to be a member of the Peace Corps," he writes, "and feel that even though what I'm doing is so insignificant in the great scheme of things, it is a start in the right direction. Ghana needs teachers desperately. And to be of service in a country that is alive with anticipation for a better future is rewarding in itself . . . the Peace Corps here is a great thing, because the Ghanaians can identify American aid with real, live manifestations of, and representatives of, that aid."

Charlotte Hough, 22, from Danville, Vermont, is a teaching assistant in the Philippines. Writing home to her parents Christmas night, Charlotte said: "I am happy here and have adjusted to my life. It is now my home for a time and I'll miss it when I leave, I know already."

Said the leader of a province in India: "We have the mind and heart to do things. Our people are ready to move. We need your skills to help us start."

Do you want to serve? Then scan the list of skills requested by the following countries. And remember, you need more than mere skill. You must also possess a desire to share what you know . . . and a willingness to learn from others.

The Peace Corps, for you, can be a "two-way street"—a chance to serve . . . and to learn.

WHAT WILL YOU DO? What can you do? Mounting demands from countries around the world call for a wide spectrum of American skills. (You may not consider yourself a 'specialist.' But in many areas of the world what you consider common knowledge is actually a skill that is needed.)

Projects now developing, for example, call for Volunteers with farming backgrounds, experience in literacy instruction, home economics, marketing, nursing, mechanics, engineering, woodworking and teaching . . . and many other areas.

Peace Corps Volunteer Frank O'Hearn is many things to the people of Curacavi, Chile: tailor, farmer, teacher, builder and health worker. After only a few months on the job, he has helped the villagers take these positive steps forward:

- All children aged 3 months to 7 years have been vaccinated against polio;
- Impure water has been analyzed, solutions proposed;
- CARE kits have been distributed (Wrote Frank: "I've never seen people cry so much for joy.")
- A 16-hour health course has been completed;
- Educational program on preparation and use of powdered milk has been completed;

But he's more concerned about what's yet to be done than with what has been accomplished.

"I must build a model latrine, teach more courses in health, teach a course in 'Mecanica,' start an anti-erosion and anti-rat campaign, set up a first-aid post, initiate irrigation, teach English and start grazing control measures. I also want to start a course in furniture making," he said, "using the local bamboo."

Volunteers must be American citizens at least 18 years old. The equivalent of a high school education is a minimum requirement. Most teaching assignments, and some other projects, require college degrees. Married couples are eligible if both qualify and they have no dependents under 18 years of age.

If you would like to know more about what you can do in the Peace Corps, fill out a Volunteer Questionnaire. The Questionnaire will help us determine where you can best serve. Questionnaires are available from your Post Office, Congressman or Senator, or from:

Dear Mr. Greene:

I have your two letters of September 24. It was very good of you to think of me for both of the programs mentioned. I am afraid, however, that I should not this year get to the NAIRO Conference. My schedule will be pretty tight about that time. Moreover, I understand that both Paul Rilling and Wiley Branton will be ther and neither our travel budget nor office administration can well stand all three of us being at the same event.

Best wishes, however, for a good meeting.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

Our friend, Fred Routh, has spoken with high regard of the report which you presented earlier this month at the Southern Interagency Conference reviewing Southern pupil assignment plans. As Program Chairman for the forthcoming NAIRO Conference it seemed to me that this report, or howsoever you may wish to update or modify it, would make an excellent contribution to a series of such reports which we will have in a "round-up" at the Saturday A.M. session of the Conference under the general title "Intergroup Relations at the Local Level".

The Conference will take place at the Sheraton Park Hotel in Washington from November 28 through December 1, and the session in question will occur on the morning of December 1. It will be possible to allocate approximately twenty minutes for such a presentation plus time for such questions as are asked.

I do hope that you will find it possible to participate and that we may hear from you to that effect. This invitation should not be confused with other invitations which soon will be forthcoming to you and to Paul Rilling to participate in concurrent discussions which will follow John Lassoe's paper on "The Changing Character of Intergroup Relations Practice - Forces and Factors Affecting the Field". We here have a high regard for SRC and for its two Washington expatriates.

Sincerely and fraternally,

Bob Greene

Mr. Leslie Dunbar

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

As you know, the Sixteenth Annual NAIRO Conference will take place at the Sheraton Park Hotel in Washington from Wednesday, November 28, through Saturday, December 1. The Conference theme is "The Role of Government in Intergroup Relations." The Luncheon session on Wednesday will feature a paper by John V. P. Lassoe, Jr., on "The Changing Character of Intergroup Relations Practice - Forces and Factors Affecting the Field." Following this presentation eight concurrent small-group discussions will examine various aspects of the subject.

As Conference Program Chairman, I would be very pleased if you would accept our invitation to act as a Discussion Leader of the discussion group on "The Response of the National and Local Private Agencies in an Era of Governmental Involvement." As a Discussion Leader, you are asked to make a ten minute presentation from the point of view of your professional insight and experience and participate in the discussion.

I will much appreciate being informed that we may count upon your participation which will aid in giving us a more fruitful Conference. Program printing considerations require that we request a reply by October 15. Participants in these sessions are asked to plan to attend a preparatory session at Breakfast on that Wednesday morning.

If your title, as given above, is not correct, please advise.

Sincerely and fraternally,

Robert J. Greene, Chairman
Conference Program Committee

The Rev. Cornelius Tarplee
P.O.Box 853
Lynchburg, Va.

Dear Mr. Tarplee:

I am writing to you because I understand that you are the current chairman of the Southern inter-agency group.

Carl and I are very much upset because of something we understand occurred at the last meeting of this group. According to reports, there was a full-dress discussion of events involving us in Mississippi, we were raked over the coals, criticized, and condemned---and all of this occurred without our being given any opportunity to present our side of the story. We were not at the meeting, we had not been invited, and no one had made any effort to get our side of the story before the matter was brought up and discussed.

It seems to us that this is grossly unfair, and I might add that I personally feel that it is an immoral method of procedure---shocking among people who are supposedly devoted to the establishment of a greater degree of morality in human affairs.

I, of course, do not include everyone in the group in this complaint. Some of the people there made a point of coming to us as soon as possible afterward and asking for our side of the thing; others, I am sure, would have done this if they had known us personally or known where to reach us. Perhaps no one there realized that an unjust thing was being done; it is just one of those things that can happen sometimes when people are joined together collectively---things that no one individual in the group would do alone.

Some of the facts concerning the Mississippi episode, as it was presented at this meeting, were simply not true. In regard to others, there are possibilities of differing interpretation; people attending that meeting have heard one interpretation; they should also hear another, in order to make their own judgment of the situation.

S ince the inter-agency meeting, I have spoken personally with Wiley Branton, who raised the Mississippi matter. He was most fair and sympathetic in his attitude toward our outrage as to how the matter was handled---and he explained that he did not intend to do us an injustice, that if he had known us well, which he did not, he would have undoubteldy called us before the meeting to get our side of the story. I am sure this is true---and I certainly bear no personal grudge toward Mr. Branton.

However, I do feel that we are entitled to certain steps that might at least help to correct the injustice that has been done. I would like to request the following, and the request comes from both Carl and me:

1. We would like the opportunity for one or both of us to attend the next meeting of the inter-agency group and discuss this entire matter, so that those in attendance will hear both sides.

2. But since I understand that there will not be another meeting until after Christmas, this seems like a long time to wait, and in the meantime, much false information about us is being spread abroad, with no opportunity for people to also know the other side. Therefore, we would like to have a list of the names and addresses of the people in the inter-agency group, so that we might send to them a copy of a memorandum that I wrote to Mr. Branton (after the inter-agency meeting) setting forth the facts of the Mississippi situation as we know them and as we interpret them and also raising other questions as to the handling of the whole matter.

We will be most appreciative if you will cooperate with us on these two requests.

Sincerely,

Anne Braden

P.S.: I have been delayed in writing you this letter, as I did not know until a few days ago who was the present chairman of the inter-agency group.

Three Plays About Race

WHAT ARE THEY? STUDY IN COLOR includes three one-act plays designed to be performed together. They are They Aren't Real To Me, The Job, and Study in Color, for which the series is named. Described in greater detail in a NEW YORK TIMES story reprinted on the reverse side of this leaflet, they have been selected for inclusion in the Off-Broadway section of Best Plays of 1962-63, edited by Henry Hewes for publication by Dodd, Mead and Co., New York. They were originally produced in Bloomfield Hills, Michigan, in the fall of 1962. Excerpts above are from reviews appearing in Detroit area newspapers.

HOW MAY THE PLAYS BE USED? Civic organizations, human relations agencies, Little Theater groups, or parish drama groups and other church organizations will find the production of Chaplain Boyd's plays to be an arresting and unique means of focusing on aspects in the field of race relations needing attention. "They are," in Boyd's words, "designed to disturb audiences out of complacency about human injustice, to raise sharp questions about anthropology and the existential human condition, and to harass an oversimplified commercial exploitation of race."

OTHER USES: While prepared in a fashion suitable for use by groups producing them, the scripts offer thought-provoking reading in themselves. Tape recordings of the original production (not for radio broadcast) may be used as the basis for a program-discussion, as well as a guide to the local production of the plays.

Behold, how good and joyful a thing it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!

MINISTER WRITES 3 ANTI-BIAS PLAYS

Wayne State Chaplain Says He Aims to 'Disturb'

By DAMON STETSON
Special to The New York Times

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich., Nov. 25 — The Rev. Malcolm Boyd, the Protestant Episcopal chaplain at Wayne State University, has made an unusual attack on racial prejudice in three one-act plays that have been presented here during the last three weeks.

The plays, written and produced by Mr. Boyd, have been put on before interracial audiences at the Will-O-Way Theater in this wealthy Detroit suburb. They represent a frank attempt, the author says, to disturb audiences and puncture smugness about human injustice.

"I've written these plays," Mr. Boyd said, "because I believe that the most powerful sermons of our time and culture are to be found in the theater, the novel and occasionally in the medium of film. I have something to say about race—or, as I prefer to call it, human—relations. Many people do not attend a church or synagogue; some persons who attend seldom listen in depth to sermons, or are seriously moved by them. I've employed the medium of the theater to speak about race, or human, relations."

Participating with Mr. Boyd in the plays are Cliff Frazier and Woodie King Jr., both Negroes, who are active in Detroit theatrical productions.

In the first of the plays, "They Aren't Real to Me," the audience is projected into the future. There has been a revolution, following centuries of enslavement of the whites by the Negroes, and the whites are finally free.

Mr. Boyd played the role of a white man who is one of the first of his race to qualify for an executive post in the new order. He works with two Negroes, one of whom is a moderate and sympathetic to his housing problems and the discrimination he faces every day from the dominant Negro group.

'Dirty Whiggers'

The other Negroe has a pathological hatred of whites and refers to them as "dirty Whiggers." He worries about white teen-age crime, whether the white race isn't biologically inferior and how best to preserve the purity of the Negro race. The reversal provides a simple yet thought-provoking impact.

In the second of the plays, "The Job," Mr. Frazier played a Negro celebrity hired by a white Hollywood producer to exploit race angles for promotion of a new movie about the Negro in America. This is a pointed satire aimed at the use of race as a "gimmick" with which to sell movies, plays, books or articles in magazines and newspapers.

The third play, "Study in Color," presents another reverse twist. Mr. Boyd, who is white, plays a Negro, and Mr. King a white man. They discuss color in separate soliloquies and then put on masks of colored stripes and colored polka dots in an effort to depict the absurdity of color as a criterion of knowing or classifying a man.

"The three plays," Mr. Boyd explained, "represent an attack on racial prejudice and the use of color as a means of labelling a man and thereby dehumanizing him. Too, they are designed to disturb audiences out of complacency about human injustice, to raise sharp questions about anthropology and the existential human condition and to harass an oversimplified commercial exploitation of race."

Served as Ad Man

Mr. Boyd was ordained a priest of the Episcopal Church after 10 years in Hollywood and New York in advertising, public relations, motion pictures and television. At Colorado State University, he organized and participated in several "espresso nights" as an expression of Christian evangelism on the campus.

In September, 1961, he joined 27 other Episcopal priests as a participant in the "prayer pilgrimage" which began in New Orleans and moved through Jackson, Miss., Sewanee, Tenn., and Dearborn, Mich. and wound up at the 60th general convention of the Episcopal Church, which was meeting in Detroit. He also participated in a sit-in in a segregated restaurant in the South.

In Detroit, Mr. Boyd has worked closely with Negroes and whites at Wayne State and has been outspoken in his attacks on housing discrimination and racial prejudice. In commending Mr. Boyd's direct approach to the problems of people in today's world, the Right Rev. Richard S. Emrich, Episcopal Bishop of Michigan, said:

"The danger of the church today is certainly not that it is too daring, too creative in its methods; but rather that it is too 'proper,' too 'respectable,' too cautious and even sometimes too stuffy. The simple fact is that it does not make contact with millions of people. . . . the church is for vast numbers an irrelevant holdover from a former age, an aloof group in the side-street of life, while the new life of a desperate world goes down the main street."

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS
2027 MASSACHUSETTS AVENUE, N.W. • WASHINGTON 6, D.C. • 387-7050

30 January 1963

Dear NAIRO-Member:

This is my first letter to you since assuming the presidency of our Association. Time has slipped by quickly since the Annual Meeting in Washington and I had hoped to be in touch will all members prior to this. There are two matters I want to bring to your attention.

FIRST, let me mention again the goals for NAIRO during 1963 which I outlined at the Conference: 1) a major training project in cooperation with a wide range of public and private agencies which will be administered by the Institute on Human Relations (of the AJC); 2) the next steps in our Equal Opportunities in Housing project, the securing of funds to undertake a major informational and educational service; 3) the planning and (hopefully) holding of an International Conference on Intergroup Relations -- probably in Rome or Paris; 4) efforts to assist the "Domestic" Peace Corps to include intergroup relations concerns in their definition of role; and 5) the creation of a "professional package" including a code of ethics, a list of minimal professional standards, criteria for evaluating agency personnel practices, and the statement of public policy. We regard this latter effort one of the most significant in bringing professional standards and status to the field and those who work in it.

SECOND, let me point out that these significant undertakings can be accomplished only by a viable and vigorous organization. Our relations and successes with the foundations have increased considerably over this past year but we are still in a state of financial crisis. Foundation staff always ask the question, "What part of your budget comes from membership dues?" Our record here is not all it should be for though we carried 1,000 members on our rolls this last year, we received only some $15,000 from this source. Obviously this must be corrected.

Our financial situation is particularly acute the first few months of each year. It is very acute NOW. If we are to maintain our staff and offices and provide the funds with which to service the membership and carry out our program we must receive a large portion of membership dues immediately. I, therefore, ask that you pay your 1963 dues at this time; if you have not yet paid your 1962 dues, please double the check. NAIRO's future depends on the members response to this request.

THIRD, we are enclosing with this letter the Statement of Public Policy for which we are indebted to George Culberson who prepared the original draft, modified it after receiving your first suggestions, and had the stencils cut for this issue of it. We are sending it to all members and are asking that each NAIRO Chapter devote a meeting to discussing it. We need the suggestions of each Chapter and of each member who doesn't belong to a Chapter so that the Statement may reflect more fully the thinking of the membership. THE DEADLINE FOR RETURNING THE SUGGESTIONS HAS BEEN EXTENDED FROM FEBRUARY 28 TO MARCH 20th BECAUSE OF OUR LATENESS IN GETTING IT OUT. Those of you who attended the Annual Meeting will recall that this Statement was a major topic of discussion at one of the business sessions. It can become a most significant document if it truly reflects the best thinking in our field.

FINALLY, I know you can count on the excellent Board of Directors which you elected, on your Officers, and on our Executive Director to bring the Association ever closer to meeting the needs of the membership. I look forward to a satisfying year of service to NAIRO; I pledge each of you an administration whose chief goal is to build our Association through serving the field, the agencies in it, and those who serve on their staffs.

Sincerely and fraternally,

Edward Rutledge

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS
2027 MASSACHUSETTS AVENUE, N.W. • WASHINGTON 6, D.C. • 387-7050

TO: All Members of NAIRO
FROM: George W. Culberson, Chairman, Public Policy Committee
SUBJECT: Action on the Statement of Public Policy

The attached copy of the NAIRO Statement of Public Policy was presented to the delegates attending the Sixteenth Annual Conference in its present form and content. After discussion in two sessions, albeit mostly on procedural matters, it was approved in principle with the following instructions: (1) that it be sent to all members for study and reaction, (2) that each NAIRO Chapter discuss the statement in a regular meeting and prepare suggested changes or modification, (3) that proposals by members or Chapters be returned to the Public Policy Committee Chairman by 28 February 1963, (4) that the PPC redraft the Statement and present it to the Board of Directors, which shall have final authority for action within 180 days, and (5) the revised approved Statement of Public Policy shall then become the guideline to the Board, the Chapters and the Resolutions Committee in making statements or issuing releases on local or national issues as they arise.

It was apparent that most delegates felt that the adoption of a Statement of Public Policy was an urgent need and a forward step for our Association. It was likewise apparent that unanimity of opinion on every item is probably impossible. Such a statement must not be the lowest common denominator of NAIRO concern but rather should represent as far as possible the highest acceptable cutting edge upon which we can agree. It should forecast the trend, based upon our best collective experience and judgment.

Will you, therefore, give this document serious thought and take time to state your reactions and suggestions. It would be extremely helpful if the returns could come from groups rather than individual members. Members not in Chapters could meet for this purpose and send in one report for a group. Please have names of all contributors to group replies listed with the return. Mail all replies to the Chairman, Committee on Public Policy, NAIRO, 2027 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington 6, D. C., no later than 25 February 1963.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

Statement of Public Policy

Foreword

Government, at all levels, establishes public policy through executive action, enactment of legislation, and court interpretation. In a free and democratic society, basic social institutions, public and private agencies, organized groups and individuals help determine the trend and direction of such public policy. The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, and each of its members, has particular responsibility for making maximum contribution to the trend and direction of public policy in the area of intergroup relations.

The 1961 NAIRO Anhual Conference adopted a broad statement of concern which is the frame of reference for the more specific goals set forth in this statement. "We dedicate ourselves anew to the goal of a free and democratic society in which each child has equal opportunity to learn and to develop his talents to the fullest; in which no person is denied the job for which he is fitted or the housing of his choice because of artificial distinctions, in which diversity of origin or religious belief is viewed as cause for pleasure rather than prejudice; in which unresolved intergroup differences are freely discussed in an atmosphere of mutual respect; in which the door of the voting place and the path to public office are open to all who are fully qualified -- in short, a society in which each individual is accorded a full and equal measure of human dignity."

The pace of social change is quickening, brought about by increased demands for freedom by those who do not have it, the rising expectations and capabilities of those previously denied equality of opportunity, the extreme mobility of population reducing the sectional character of racial relationships, and the recognition of world-wide implications in a continued gap between preachment and practice. Individually and collectively, intergroup relations practitioners are affected by and contribute to these social changes. As agents of society they assist in facilitating the social adjustments of individuals and groups required by such changes. They have a responsibility to contribute their knowledge and skills to the advancement of the goal of a free and democratic society.

In adopting a Statement of Public Policy, NAIRO recognizes the central role played by Government at appropriate levels in the struggle "to secure these rights" for all people. Social action must be directed to that level of government which has responsibility, local, state or federal, but the evidence is overwhelming that the federal government must continue to give every increasing national leadership in the civil rights field if the basic problems are to be resolved. In a democracy, broad-based support and encouragement for initiation of such programs must come from a well-informed and concerned public. NAIRO is committed to assisting this effort.

This document undertakes to identify major areas of concern, establish an acceptable goal, set forth elements of the problem, and suggest appropriate and needed action.

Public Policy Statements

I. EDUCATION

The democratic goal

To provide equal educational opportunity without distinction as to race, religion or national origin so that each individual will realize and attain his full potential.

Problem Elements

Equality of opportunity in education is basic to attaining equality in economic and social life. The Supreme Court Decision declaring education in segregated schools unequal has established the public policy in this area. The rate of progress in school desegregation is hopelessly slow everywhere in the country, with "token integration" the order of the day in most of the Southern states and de facto segregation of schools more ofteh the rule than the exception in the North.

Children from depressed areas and poor homes, including a large component from minority groups, are unable to develop their full educational potential. Concentrations of racial, ethnic and religious groups in segregated neighborhoods result in culturally deprived sections in each of our urban and metropolitan areas. In order to achieve equality of opportunity in such areas, educational offerings often have to be decidedly unequal.

Minority group youth are underrepresented in vocational trade training programs and some school systems have wholly inadequate specialized training courses. Vocational counseling is based upon inadequate and out-of-date information in relation to minority opportunities.

A larger proportion of Negroes that the rest of the population do not go to college, this one-tenth of the population supplies one-twentieth of the nation's college population. Of that one-twentieth, eighty percent are in segregated colleges. These same proportions apply about equally among other minorities, such as Puerto Ricans, American Indians and Mexican-Americans.

Appropriate actions

1. The Department of Justice of the U.S. Government must become more active and aggressive in giving assistance to citizens in those states and communities which continue to resist desegregation.

2. Federal Aid to Education should be withheld from states or school districts which fail to abide by the Supreme Court Decision.

3. Local government officials, school and police authorities, and community leaders need to give strong unswerving leadership to accomplish peaceful desegregation in Southern communities.

I. Education (Continued)

4. Federal, state and private scholarship programs need to be increased and made available to able young people, particularly among minority youth.

5. States need to earmark additional funds for programs in behalf of deprived children. Such funds should provide for curriculm enrichment, intensified counseling services, more adequate facilities, and incentive pay for teachers in these depressed areas.

6. Local School Boards should discover ways and means of giving children in racially homogeneous neighborhoods as much cross-cultural experience as possible. They should redistrict where this can be done without undue hardship, make minority teacher assignments an educational device; and above all make quite certain that children in such neighborhoods have the opportunity for an education that is equal to or better than any other section of the school district.

7. All colleges and universities, and particularly Negro colleges, should re-examine curriculum offerings in relation to changing labor market needs and give particular attention to counseling Negro and other minority students in the expanding and changing opportunities.

8. Vocational Trade Schools must give unlimited and unrestricted choice of trade training opportunities to qualified minority youth and at the same time take the initiative in encouraging such youth to take non-traditional type training.

9. Educational and vocational counselors in high schools, parents of minority youth, voluntary agencies and churches should become familiar with the new occupational categories being made available to minority group individuals and counsel accordingly.

10. All educational institutions should give more attention to the Bill of Rights. The struggle to implement and achieve understanding acceptance of these Constitutional Amendments is never ending. Continuing improvement of practice in these areas depends upon each individual, his understanding and participation in all efforts to achieve the goal of a free and democratic nation and world.

II. EMPLOYMENT

The democratic goal

To secure equal employment opportunity and industrial participation for all persons without distinction as to race, religion or national origin.

Problem elements

The right to equality of opportunity in employment has been the subject of legislation in an ever increasing number of states and municipalities since 1945. It is estimated that about ninety-eight percent of the nonwhite citizens of the north and west are now covered by fair employment practices laws. It is apparent that such laws alleviate but do not eliminate the problem of discrimination in employment.

Traditional patterns developed over long years of neglect cannot be changed by enjoining the employer to hire the best, most qualified man, that is, "merit employment." The act of discrimination does not occur only at the time a decision is being made to hire or promote. The discrimination and segregation which has been practiced for many generations prohibits the minority group individual from attaining the background and experience which makes competition possible. To give minority group individuals equality of opportunity will require new programs of an affirmative nature and conscious effort on the part of employers.

Apprenticeship training programs have beenoon the decrease but nonwhites never had adequate representation in such programs. In similar fashion, nonwhites have been excluded from management training programs throughout industry.

While the great majority of labor unions have express policies of nondiscrimination at the national or international level there are all too many who do not. Even those who do, however, find difficulty in securing cooperation and compliance at the local level. That all is not well in the labor movement is dramatized by the existence of The Negro American Labor Council.

The Negro or other minority worker displaced by automation will not have equal opportunity with majority group individuals similarly situated. In comparison with the white job-hunter he starts with an inferior education and no experience in jobs which might otherwise be open to him. The rate of unemployment for Negro workers remains constantly about twice that of white workers.

Appropriate Actions

1. The Congress should enact an equal employment opportunity law which accomplishes the same purposes set forth in Executive Order No 10925. This must include the affirmative action provision and not be limited to so-called "merit employment;" it must be enforced by an administrative agency with provision for negotiation and conciliation.

II. Employment (Continued)

2. State and municipal fair employment practice agencies must have the right to initiate complaint action and must make more use of this activity than past records reveal to be the case. The small number of complaints actually filed by aggrieved individuals does not reflect the true incidence of discriminatory practice.

3. Administrative enforcing agencies at all levels need to give major attention to programs of employer surveillance to bring about "pattern" adjustment. Analysis of utilization of minorities in all job categories in relation to available and qualified persons in the labor market should be carried out in all business and industrial establishments on a continuing basis.

4. Attention of administrative enforcing agencies should be directed to revision or modification of existing fair employment practice laws to eliminate provisions which prevent positive and affirmative employer action. Most laws prevent conscious effort by employers to recruit or upgrade minority workers and the lack of minority designations on any records seriously hampers study and analysis of progress and problems.

5. Voluntary agencies need to give continuing attention and support to existing programs designed to secure equal employment opportunity and to development of a climate of opinion which permits maximum progress. There is a tendancy to leave this function entirely to the public agency. Records show that while progress has been achieved in certain areas that the opportunity gap has not narrowed appreciably.

6. Joint labor-management apprenticeship training programs need to be fostered. This could be accomplished by government stipulation in federal contracts. Reasons for the non-employment of apprentices once trained require attention in some locations but by and large there is a scarcity of apprenticeships.

7. Federa, state and municipal administrative agencies all require more adequate financing and staffing to accomplish the goal. An expansion to meet the requirements of affirmative action will dramatically increase costs of administration. Civil rights groups and concerned citizens must bring this matter to the attention of appropriating bodies and enlist taxpayer support for such increases.

8. Minority group youth must have much better counseling than in the past. The plain fact is that jobs now being opened to minority workers are unknown to youth in time to prepare for them. This is demonstrated by futile recruiting efforts by industry in colleges and universities. Parents need information and counseling because they influence the choices and goals of their children.

10. Retraining of displaced workers is especially important for minority persons. All such training centers must also be aware of the changing times and emphasis needs to be placed upon non-traditional job categories. The emphasis upon "a job available" may tend to negate equal employment opportunity efforts.

III. HOUSING

The democratic goal

To open the housing market to freedom of choice without distinction as to race, religion or national origin in order that equality of opportunity be achieved and compulsory residential segregation be eliminated.

Problem elements

Discrimination in housing is related to the larger pattern of racial and ethnic discrimination and contributes significantly to maintaining barriers as well as feeding on them. Increased equality in housing therefore will have a generally beneficial effect upon equality in all fields.

Residential segregation of racial and ethnic groups has a direct and controlling relationship to the institutional compositions, such as schools, churches, places of recreation and shopping areas.

The concentration of minority worker groups in slums is traditional but whereas ethnic groups of white stock have been able to eventually break away from the area of concentration nonwhites find it next to impossible. The traditional pathway of escape from slums is obstructed by the color barrier.

Urban redevelopment and renewal projects have cut heavily into the available housing supply, particularly for Negroes, in every section of the country. Rehousing has been accomplished largely in still other areas of racial concentration, merely changing the geographic location.

The long existing federal policy of leaving racial occupancy patterns and the selection of renters and purchasers of federally assisted housing to local determination has unnecessarily prolonged the achievement of equality of opportunity in housing. Under the new Executive Order this will change in the future projects but leaves untouched existing patterns.

Some sixteen states and forty cities have enacted laws prohibiting discrimination in some types of housing. In nine of these states and in two cities, such prohibitions cover purely private housing as well. This is a small beginning and will bear fruit. Much experimentation is needed and is going on in the development of techniques and procedures used in administering such laws.

The Housing Industry has been the operating agency administering the actual controls and sanctions which maintain the restrictions generally approved by the white population. Segregation has been the direct result of such controls.

Voluntary private effort to bring about change has been notably successful in a few experimental programs but have not attracted sufficient interest and support to have any appreciable effect on the problem. Most of these have not advanced the democratic goal of freedom of choice.

III. Housing (Continued)

1. The Executive Order on Equal Opportunity in Housing has set forth the public policy in this area. While the enforcement provisions apply only to new starts and do not cover the great bulk of private property transactions which have federal assistance in the form of guarantees, much can be done by government agencies to promote the abandonment of discriminatory practices. This is the spirit of the Executive Order and all concerned individuals and groups should monitor government programs to see that it is carried out. The full weight of every government agency must now be exercised in the prevention of discrimination in housing because of race, color, creed, or national origin.

2. An adequate supply of new housing for families of moderate and low income is needed. The trickle-down theory has resulted in minority group families always having to line in hand-me-downs at the time when such property is in a state of deterioration. The Federal Government should encourage the housing industry and local communities to provide such housing.

3. States and municipalties should follow the example of those which have already enacted legislation prohibiting discrimination. It is more important now than ever that such legislation cover private property not covered by the Executive Order. Such legislation should prohibit discrimination by any part of the housing industry as well as individual owners, with the possible exception of two-family owner occupied units. It should be administered by an agency with power to initiate as well as receive complaints, and it should have the right to seek injunction during the process of negotiation and conciliation.

4. National and local associations of the housing industry should take the lead in ennunciating and implementing an industry-wide policy conforming with the principle of a free housing market. This is not only a social responsibility but is in the economic interest of the industry to broaden the market through removal of restrictions.

5. Freedom of the market place in housing is not achieved through the use of quotas. All families, in a democracy, should have the right to free choice and to compete on equal terms and under the same conditions in this market place. The decision as to where to live should properly be left to individual families. Controlled occupancy has been a useful demonstration that desegregation can take place under certain conditions. However, artificially maintained integrated units require tight controls. No one would advocate that an entire community or city be subject to quota controlled occupancy. Civil rights advocates need to re-examine their position on this question.

6. States which have laws requiring segregation should repeal them.

7. Individual responsibility for action is more important in this field than any other. Those who really believe in a free and democratic society will not sit idly by and be quiet when the opportunity presents itself in their own neighborhood or city. Minority group individuals will seek to take advantage of fair housing legislation and play their part in bringing about the desegregation of the concentrated areas.

IV. PUBLIC ACCOMMODATIONS

The democratic goal

To secure equality of opportunity without distinction as to race, religion or national origin for use of places of public accommodation and service in places of business.

Problem Elements

The list of types and categories of places of public accommodation is lengthy and need not be catalogued becuase they have one thing in common, they were established to serve the needs of the general public. It matters not that some are supported by tax revenue and some are commercial business enterprizes. The man-in-the-street can walk in and use the facility or receive the service. Such facilities, services or businesses are sometimes denied individuals because of race, religion or national origin.

In northern states the principle of nondiscrimination, including segregation, has been established by state legislatures for several decades. Some provide relief for an aggrieved individual through court action and more recently through administrative agencies. As the years have gone by these states have gradually increased the number of categories included as places of public accommodation by amendment to law or by court interpretation. Southern states generally have laws requiring segregation in places of public accommodation and have not yet accepted the principle.

In practice, whether in the North or South, the principle of equality of opportunity has not yet been firmly established and public policy notwithstanding there is complete lack of uniformity. The uncertainty of acceptance is not the least of the problems growing out of failure to treat all people alike in places of public accommodation.

Such discriminatory practices are by definition open to public view. Incidents occur which could, and in the past have, provoke disputes which lead to violence. Two of the most savage interracial outbursts of this century were started in public recreational facilities. Each summer, the police and human relations agencies gird themselves for the opening of the swimming pools.

The national conscience has been quickened by the dramatic and courageous action of the "freedom riders" and "sit-in" demonstrators. Change has taken place as a result of these activities and equality of opportunity is closer to realization because of them.

The Supreme Court Decision in the schools' cases, followed later by decisions in otherppublic accommodation areas, has clearly established the fact that separate facilities are inherently unequal. Segregation of discrimination because of race, religion or ethnic origin is on the way out.

IV. Public Accommodations (Continued)

Appropriate Actions

1. The President, through firm leadership and example, can exert enormous influence and help avert crisis situations. When they occur, the President must be heard, pointing to desirable solutions and calling for calm and wise local leadership to cooperate in working out these solutions.

2. States which have segregation laws should repeal them.

3. The right of all to access and use of public accommodations and services must be assured by law in every state. Experience with such laws supports the conclusion that they should be administered by a regulatory agency which has the power to initiate as well as receive complaints. Once the law is enacted, it must be uniformly and firmly enforced.

4. Equal protection under the law must be afforded every citizen. The effective employment of police power will assure the maintenance of law and order in times of social change and is a minimum condition necessary for progress. The right of free speech and of protest must be guaranteed and protected by all law enforcement agencies.

5. The federal government must assume responsibility in situations where local authority has broken down or where the responsibility for maintaining law and order has been subverted.

6. Voluntary agencies and citizen groups must continue to press for equality of opportunity in places of public accommodation and service inplaces of business, in both North and South. Methods of mediation, education, conciliation and persuasion, including demonstrations and picketing, should be used.

7. Individuals who believe in equality of opportunity should examine their conscience and make some determinations as to personal behavior. The patronage of discriminating places by silent and acquiescent people of "goodwill" extends the period of that practice beyond necessity. Both majority and minority group individuals need to participate in programs along with others but individual actions are also required.

V. EQUALITY BEFORE THE LAW

The Democratic Goal

To secure the fulfillment of the principle that the rule of law reigns supreme and that every individual, regardless of his race, religion or national origin, is entitled to equal protection of laws.

Problem Elements

The Fourteenth Amendment declares that "No state shall.....deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.'

The Supreme Court, in a long line of cases prior to the School decision, in a variety of situations, gave concrete meaning to this command of the Constitution. For example, it set aside conviction of Negroes by state juries from which Negroes had been systematically excluded. It struck down licensing laws which were administered so as to exclude persons of Oriental ancestry from certain occupations. In the school decision it held that a state violates the Constitution when it denies to a Negro child who is otherwise qualified for admission to a particular public school, and who seeks admission, the right to enter that school.

The Congress enacted the Civil Rights Act of 1960 designed to win voting rights for Negroes. It created a new and intricate system of judicially-appointed "voting referees" to overcome the denial of the ballot box to qualified Negroes in the South. The procedure is complicated and prolonged and tends to moot the right to vote through repeated delays. The right to vote is at the top of the list of fundamental rights and its abrogation saps the strength of democratic government.

Dissatisfied with the snail's pace of desegregation through the courts, spontaneous groups as well as organized agencies have engaged in peaceful demonstrations, using passive resistance measures. Arrests have been made using local laws and ordinances to thwart the constitutional right of peaceful protest and free speech. In both the North and South, law enforcement agencies have interfered with demonstrating groups seeking to call public attention to the problem of denial of individual civil liberties. Albany, Georgia, is the outstanding example of police officials "maintaining law and order" by putting into prison every man, woman or child who dared protest in any way the infringement of rights guaranteed to them by the Constitution. The Federal Government has failed to move into such situations to guarantee and assure citizens of needed protection.

There is marked inequality in the administration of justice; equal protection under the law has not yet been achieved; continuing differences in the treatment of minorities by police, biased juries, and "kangaroo" courts, are serving to increase frustrations, intensify police-community tensions, and compound very real problems.

V. Equality before the Law (Continued)

Appropriate Actions

1. The President should convene a Governor's Conference on the subject of "State's Rights" and exert strong moral leadership in the area of obediance to Federal Laws and Supreme Court Decisions by the elected officials of the several states. Interposition, by whatever means achieved, must be eliminated as an operating factor in federal-state relationships.

2. The Department of Justice must employ prosecution, court injunctions and supply adequate numbers of Federal agents to resolve controversies between citizens and their local or state governments on matters involving constitutional rights.

3. The Civil Rights Commission should become a permanent agency of the Federal Government with increased responsibility and power to deal with all matters affecting individual civil rights.

4. The Civil Rights Act of 1960 should be amended to provide a more simple and direct procedure for registering and qualifying voters as well as safeguards to those wishing to exercise this right.

5. Court rulings in individual cases should have more general application so that every aggrieved person should not have to take the long and expensive route through the courts to secure their rights. It is quite apparent by this time that there is no appeal from the Supreme Court Decision and time is running out for procrastinating and defiant school boards throughout the South.

6. The Federal Government should establish a consultative service in an appropriate department which would assist those school boards engaged in earnest efforts to desegregate public schools; a similar service should be established for giving counsel and technical assistance to local communities where desegregation of public facilities and places of public accommodation are a matter of controversy.

7. Federal grants in aid should be provided to assist states or local communities to establish official human relations commissions. Throughout the U.S. there are countless communities totally devoid of intergroup relations resources and financially unable to secure them. Such developments as school desegregation, heavy in-migration of minority group families or extensive urban renewal pose real problems for these communities. In such situations, equality before the law becomes strained and individuals suffer the consequences.

8. Enlightened public opinion is desperately needed. Agencies of communication, the clergy, public officials, voluntary groups and agencies, all need to redouble their efforts to let the general public know that equality under the law applies to every citizen. They must speak out when there is outright defiance of the law or where subterfuge and evasive schemes are used to subvert justice.

VI. RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

The Democratic Goal

To uphold, maintain and foster the principle of freedom of religion for every individual, or group and that churches and government are independent of one another.

Problem Elements

The acceptance of this principle set forth in the First Amendment to the Constitution has been general and wide-spread and has suffered less "erosion" than almost any other individual right. However, when it comes to specific application there are great differences of opinion. The expression of these differences results in interreligious tension and discord, frequently appearing to be a power struggle between adherents of religious groups.

"Minority" religions and their adherents have experienced considerable difficulty in maintaining religious values and transmitting these to their children in the face of "majority" encroachment in institutional life of the community and nation. Withdrawal from such participation has been the answer for some and this leads to separateness and misunderstanding in ways other than religious.

Bible reading and the saying of prayers in public schools has been the subject of increasing controversy and court action. Other religious practices, including use of public school buildings for religious instruction after school hours, religious pageants, baccalaureate services in school buildings, teaching in religious garb, and released time for religious instruction have in similar fashion received attention and concern.

The use of tax revenue to transport parocial school children, to purchase textbooks and to pay for health services has likewise been an issue in many sections of the country. Federal aid to higher education has thus far foundered because such aid would have been authorized for both public and private colleges and universities, some with religious affilliation or identification.

So-called "Blue Laws" have their root in religious values and create a problem for religious groups which observe another day of the week. Differences in religious values also brings about controversy when legislation is enacted on matters such as adoption, birth control, service in the armed forces, and the taking of an oath.

In spite of Article VI of the Constitution, which says "no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office of public trust under the United States" this, too, has been a problem.

Appropriate Actions

1. What is urgently needed today is public discussion of "church-state" relations which is clearly characterized by less emotionalism, less dogmatism and less of the spirit of inter-religious competition. Such discussion must be sponsored by private and voluntary organizations and groups.

VI. Religious Freedom (Continued)

2. What has come to be called "the dialogue" must be encouraged and expanded. This is the effort of laymen and clergy of the various faiths to explore mutually the positions and attitudes that are at variance, eliminating unreal differences and understanding those undergirded by religios conviction and conscience; to clarify issues; and to search for workable modes of accommodation, all in an atmosphere of respect and confidence.

3. Religious leaders and groups within the religious communities need to fact realistically the question of Federal aid to education. Because of the seriousness of the need for support of specific educational functions and services, this problem requires a high priority listing on the agenda of all religious groups.

4. State legislatures should take the initiative in re-examining existing laws to determine whether these laws are offensive or limiting to any religious group or individuals and take appropriate action.

5. School boards should re-examine traditional practices and programs to ascertain if religious teaching or observances are being carried on in the public facility by tax paid instructors and thereby giving government support and encouragement to particular religious dogma. If so, appropriate action should be taken on their own initiative to eliminate such practices.

6. Civic groups, organizations and political parties need to be sensitive to any efforts to include a "religious test" in the selection of candidates for public office and to fight such issues if brought into a campaign.

Dear Miss Levenson:

Belatedly I have just now finished reading "Federal, State, and Local Action Affecting Race and Housing." It is a really helpful summary and I wonder if we could have or buy a dozen or so additional copies?

This gives me an opportunity also to extend congratulations to you, Miss Fisher, and the National Committee. The President's Order is not all that we need but it is something to begin work with and you deserve tremendous credit.

With best wishes for the Season.

Sincerely yours,

LETTER FROM BIRMINGHAM CITY JAIL

by

Martin Luther King, Jr.

For more than 300 years the Religious Society of Friends (Quakers) has been deeply concerned about human freedom. Quaker demonstrations in the seventeenth century for the right of peaceful association, for the freedom of all men to worship according to their consciences and against the injustices of tyranny brought them into conflict with the established order. Some, like George Fox, were led by conscience to practice civil disobedience as a witness to the supremacy of God's commands over the dictates of men. Many were imprisoned. Their actions seemed disruptive, their demands unreasonable. But today many of the freedoms for which they stood are bulwarks of our society.

Reforms are by their very nature often "unwise" and "untimely" because they are the birthpangs of change. Many people of good will have resisted reform until their consciences overwhelmed what appeared to be their interests.

From Birmingham jail, where he was imprisoned as a participant in nonviolent demonstrations against segregation, Martin Luther King, Jr. has written the letter which follows. It was a response to a public statement of concern and caution issued by eight white religious leaders. The letter speaks powerfully of one of the great freedoms—freedom from racial discrimination—which is rooted in our religious faith and which our nation has stood for in principle but has not yet established in practice. It is an eloquent expression of the nonviolent approach to the restructuring of our social order.

There is today an urgent need for honest, mature communication between Americans who, though they differ in color, seek relationships among all men which reflect a common belief in a God of love. In furtherance of such communication, the American Friends Service Committee publishes this letter from Martin Luther King, Jr. and the public statement which occasioned it.

My dear Fellow Clergymen,

While confined here in the Birmingham City Jail, I came across your recent statement calling our present activities "unwise and untimely." Seldom, if ever, do I pause to answer criticism of my work and ideas. If I sought to answer all of the criticisms that cross my desk, my secretaries would be engaged in little else in the course of the day and I would have no time for constructive work. But since I feel that you are men of genuine goodwill and your criticisms are sincerely set forth, I would like to answer your statement in what I hope will be patient and reasonable terms.

I think I should give the reason for my being in Birmingham, since you have been influenced by the argument of "outsiders coming in." I have the honor of serving as president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, an organization operating in every Southern state with headquarters in Atlanta, Georgia. We have some eighty-five affiliate organizations all across the South—one being the Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights. Whenever necessary and possible we share staff, educational, and financial resources with our affiliates. Several months ago our local affiliate here in Birmingham invited us to be on call to engage in a nonviolent direct action program if such were deemed necessary. We readily consented and when the hour came we lived up to our promises. So I am here, along with several members of my staff, because we were invited here. I am here because I have basic organizational ties here. Beyond this, I am in Birmingham because injustice is here. Just as the eighth century prophets left their little villages and carried their "thus saith the Lord" far beyond the boundaries of their home town, and just as the Apostle Paul left his little village of Tarsus and carried the gospel of Jesus Christ to practically every hamlet and city of the Graeco-Roman world, I too am compelled to carry the gospel of freedom beyond my particular home town. Like Paul, I must constantly respond to the Macedonian call for aid.

Moreover, I am cognizant of the interrelatedness of all communities and states. I cannot sit idly by in Atlanta and not be concerned about what happens in Birmingham. Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere. We are caught in an inescapable network of mutuality tied in a single garment of destiny. Whatever affects one directly affects all indirectly. Never again can we afford to live with the narrow, provincial "outside agitator" idea. Anyone who lives inside the United States can never be considered an outsider anywhere in this country.

You deplore the demonstrations that are presently taking place in Birmingham. But I am sorry that your statement did not express a similar concern for the conditions that brought the demonstrations into being. I am sure that each of you would want to go beyond the superficial social analyst who looks merely at effects, and does not grapple with underlying causes. I would not hesitate to say that it is unfortunate that so-called demonstrations are taking place in Birmingham at this time, but I would say in more emphatic terms that it is even more unfortunate that the white power structure of this city left the Negro community with no other alternative.

In any nonviolent campaign there are four basic steps: (1) collection of the facts to determine whether injustices are alive; (2) negotiation; (3) self-purification; and (4) direct action. We have gone through all of these steps in Birmingham. There can be no gainsaying of the fact that racial injustice engulfs this community. Birmingham is probably the most thoroughly segregated city in the United States. Its ugly record of police brutality is known in every section of this country. Its unjust treatment of Negroes in the courts is a notorious reality. There have been more unsolved bombings of Negro homes and churches in Birmingham than any city in this nation. These are the hard, brutal, and unbelievable facts. On the basis of these conditions Negro leaders sought to negotiate with the city fathers. But the political leaders consistently refused to engage in good faith negotiation.

Then came the opportunity last September to talk with some of the leaders of the economic community. In these negotiating sessions certain promises were made by the merchants—such as the promise to remove the humiliating racial signs from the stores. On the basis of these promises Rev. Shuttlesworth and the leaders of the Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights agreed to call a moratorium on any type of demonstrations. As the weeks and months unfolded we realized that we were the victims of a broken promise. The signs remained. As in so many experiences of the past we were confronted with blasted hopes, and the dark shadow of a deep disappointment settled upon us. So we had no alternative except that of preparing for direct action, whereby we would present our very bodies as a means of laying our case before the conscience of the local and national community. We were not unmindful of the difficulties involved. So we decided to go through a process of self-purification. We started having workshops on nonviolence and repeatedly asked ourselves the questions, "Are you able to accept blows without retaliating?" "Are you able to endure the ordeals of jail?"

We decided to set our direct action program around the Easter season, realizing that with the exception of Christmas, this was the largest shopping period of the year. Knowing that a strong economic withdrawal program would be the by-product of direct action, we felt that this was the best time to bring pressure on the merchants for the needed changes. Then it occurred to us that the March election was ahead, and so we speedily decided to postpone action until after election day. When we discovered that Mr. Connor was in the run-off, we decided again to postpone action so that the demonstrations could not be used to cloud the issues. At this time we agreed to begin our nonviolent witness the day after the run-off.

This reveals that we did not move irresponsibly into direct action. We too wanted to see Mr. Connor defeated; so we went through postponement after postponement to aid in this community need. After this we felt that direct action could be delayed no longer.

You may well ask, "Why direct action? Why sit-ins, marches, etc.? Isn't negotiation a better path?" You are exactly right in your call for negotiation. Indeed, this is the purpose of direct action. Nonviolent direct action seeks to create such a crisis and establish such creative tension that a community that has constantly refused to negotiate is forced to confront the issue. It seeks so to dramatize the issue that it can no longer be ignored. I just referred to the creation of tension as a part of the work of the nonviolent resister. This may sound rather shocking. But I must confess that I am not afraid of the word tension. I have earnestly worked and preached against violent tension, but there is a type of constructive nonviolent tension that is necessary for growth. Just as Socrates felt that it was necessary to create a tension in the mind so that individuals could rise from the bondage of myths and half-truths to the unfettered realm of creative analysis and objective appraisal, we must see the need of having nonviolent gadflies to create the kind of tension in society that will help men rise from the dark depths of prejudice and racism to the majestic heights of understanding and brotherhood. So the purpose of the direct action is to create a situation so crisis-packed that it will inevitably open the door to negotiation. We, therefore, concur with you in your call for negotiation. Too long has our beloved Southland been bogged down in the tragic attempt to live in monologue rather than dialogue.

One of the basic points in your statement is that our acts are untimely. Some have asked, "Why didn't you give the new administration time to act?" The only answer that I can give to this inquiry is that the new administration must be prodded about as much as the outgoing one before it acts. We will be sadly mistaken if we feel that the election of Mr. Boutwell will bring the millennium to Birmingham. While Mr. Boutwell is much more articulate and gentle than Mr. Connor, they are both segregationists dedicated to the task of maintaining the status quo. The hope I see in Mr. Boutwell is that he will be reasonable enough to see the futility of massive resistance to desegregation. But he will not see this without pressure from the devotees of civil rights. My friends, I must say to you that we have not made a single gain in civil rights without determined legal and nonviolent pressure. History is the long and tragic story of the fact that privileged groups seldom give up their privileges voluntarily. Individuals may see the moral light and voluntarily give up their unjust posture; but as Reinhold Niebuhr has reminded us, groups are more immoral than individuals.

We know through painful experience that freedom is never voluntarily given by the oppressor; it must be demanded by the oppressed. Frankly I have never yet engaged in a direct action movement that was "well timed," according to the timetable of those who have not suffered unduly from the disease of segregation. For years now I have heard the word "Wait!" It rings in the ear of every Negro with a piercing familiarity. This "wait" has almost always meant "never." It has been a tranquilizing thalidomide, relieving the emotional stress for a moment, only to give birth to an ill-formed infant of frustration. We must come to see with the distinguished jurist of yesterday that "justice too long delayed is justice denied." We have waited for more than three hundred and forty years for our constitutional and God-given rights. The nations of Asia and Africa are moving with jet-like speed toward the goal of political independence, and we still creep at horse and buggy pace toward the gaining of a cup of coffee at a lunch counter.

I guess it is easy for those who have never felt the stinging darts of segregation to say wait. But when you have seen vicious mobs lynch your mothers and fathers at will and drown your sisters and brothers at whim; when you have seen hate filled policemen curse, kick, brutalize, and even kill your black brothers and sisters with impunity; when you see the vast majority of your twenty million Negro brothers smothering in an air-tight cage of poverty in the midst of an affluent society; when you suddenly find your tongue twisted and your speech stammering as you seek to explain to your six-year-old daughter why she can't go to the public amusement park that has just been advertised on television, and see tears welling up in her little eyes when she it told that Funtown is closed to colored children, and see the depressing clouds of inferiority begin to form in her little mental sky, and see her begin to distort her little personality by unconsciously developing a bitterness toward white people; when you have to concoct an answer for a five-year-old son asking in agonizing pathos: "Daddy, why do white people treat colored people so mean?"; when you take a cross country drive and find it necessary to sleep night after night in the uncomfortable corners of your automobile because no motel will accept you; when you are humiliated day in and day out by nagging signs reading "white" men and "colored"; when your first name becomes "nigger" and your middle name becomes "boy" (however old you are) and your last name becomes "John," and when your wife and mother are never given the respected title "Mrs."; when you are harried by day and haunted by night by the fact that you are a Negro, living constantly at tip-toe stance never quite knowing what to expect next, and plagued with inner fears and outer resentments; when you are forever fighting a degenerating sense of "nobodiness";—then you will understand why we find it difficult to wait. There comes a time when the cup of endurance runs over, and men are no longer willing to be plunged into an abyss of injustice where they experience the bleakness of corroding despair. I hope, sirs, you can understand our legitimate and unavoidable impatience.

You express a great deal of anxiety over our willingness to break laws. This is certainly a legitimate concern. Since we so diligently urge people to obey the Supreme Court's decision of 1954 outlawing segregation in the public schools, it is rather strange and paradoxical to find us consciously breaking laws. One may well ask, "How can you advocate breaking some laws and obeying others?" The answer is found in the fact that there are two types of laws: There are just laws and there are unjust laws. I would be the first to advocate obeying just laws. One has not only a legal but moral responsibility to obey just laws. Conversely, one has a moral responsibility to disobey unjust laws. I would agree with Saint Augustine that "An unjust law is no law at all."

Now what is the difference between the two? How does one determine when a law is just or unjust? A just law is a man-made code that squares with the moral law or the law of God. An unjust law is a code that is out of harmony with the moral law. To put it in the terms of Saint Thomas Aquinas, an unjust law is a human law that is not rooted in eternal and natural law. Any law that uplifts human personality is just. Any law that degrades human personality is unjust. All segregation statutes are unjust because segregation distorts the soul and damages the personality. It gives the segregator a false sense of superiority and the segregated a false sense of inferiority. To use the words of Martin Buber, the great Jewish philosopher, segregation substitutes an "I-it" relationship for the "I-thou" relationship, and ends up relegating persons to the status of things. So segregation is not only politically, economically, and sociologically unsound, but it is morally wrong and sinful. Paul Tillich has said that sin is separation. Isn't segregation an existential expression of man's tragic separation, an expression of his awful estrangement, his terrible sinfulness? So I can urge men to obey the 1954 decision of the Supreme Court because it is morally right, and I can urge them to disobey segregation ordinances because they are morally wrong.

Let us turn to a more concrete example of just and unjust laws. An unjust law is a code that a majority inflicts on a minority that is not binding on itself. This is difference made legal. On the other hand a just law is a code that a majority compels a minority to follow that it is willing to follow itself. This is sameness made legal.

Let me give another explanation. An unjust law is a code inflicted upon a minority which that minority had no part in enacting or creating because they did not have the unhampered right to vote. Who can say the legislature of Alabama which set up the segregation laws was democratically elected? Throughout the state of Alabama all types of conniving methods are used to prevent Negroes from becoming registered voters and there are some counties without a single Negro registered to vote despite the fact that the Negro constitutes a majority of the population. Can any law set up in such a state be considered democratically structured?

These are just a few examples of unjust and just laws. There are some instances when a law is just on its face but unjust in its application. For instance, I was arrested Friday on a charge of parading without a permit. Now there is nothing wrong with an ordinance which requires a permit for a parade, but when the ordinance is used to preserve segregation and to deny citizens the First Amendment privilege of peaceful assembly and peaceful protest, then it becomes unjust.

I hope you can see the distinction I am trying to point out. In no sense do I advocate evading or defying the law as the rabid segregationist would do. This would lead to anarchy. One who breaks an unjust law must do it openly, lovingly (not hatefully as the white mothers did in New Orleans when they were seen on television screaming "nigger, nigger, nigger") and with a willingness to accept the penalty. I submit that an individual who breaks a law that conscience tells him is unjust, and willingly accepts the penalty by staying in jail to arouse the conscience of the community over its injustice, is in reality expressing the very highest respect for law.

Of course there is nothing new about this kind of civil disobedience. It was seen sublimely in the refusal of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego to obey the laws of Nebuchadnezzar because a higher moral law was involved. It was practiced superbly by the early Christians who were willing to face hungry lions and the excruciating pain of chopping blocks, before submitting to certain unjust laws of the Roman Empire. To a degree academic freedom is a reality today because Socrates practiced civil disobedience.

We can never forget that everything Hitler did in Germany was "legal" and everything the Hungarian freedom fighters did in Hungary was "illegal." It was "illegal" to aid and comfort a Jew in Hitler's Germany. But I am sure that, if I had lived in Germany during that time, I would have aided and comforted my Jewish brothers even though it was illegal. If I lived in a communist country today where certain principles dear to the Christian faith are suppressed, I believe I would openly advocate disobeying these anti-religious laws.

I must make two honest confessions to you, my Christian and Jewish brothers. First I must confess that over the last few years I have been gravely disappointed with the white moderate. I have almost reached the regrettable conclusion that the Negroes' great stumbling block in the stride toward freedom is not the White Citizens' "Counciler" or the Ku Klux Klanner, but the white moderate who is more devoted to "order" than to justice; who prefers a negative peace which is the absence of tension to a positive peace which is the presence of justice; who constantly says "I agree with you in the goal you seek, but I can't agree with your methods of direct action"; who paternalistically feels that he can set the time-table for another man's freedom; who lives by the myth of time and who constantly advises the Negro to wait until a "more convenient season." Shallow understanding from people of good will is more frustrating than absolute misunderstanding from people of ill will. Lukewarm acceptance is much more bewildering than outright rejection.

I had hoped that the white moderate would understand that law and order exist for the purpose of establishing justice, and that when they fail to do this they become the dangerously structured dams that block the flow of social progress. I had hoped that the white moderate would understand that the present tension in the South is merely a necessary phase of the transition from an obnoxious negative peace, where the Negro passively accepted his unjust plight, to a substance-filled positive peace, where all men will respect the dignity and worth of human personality. Actually, we who engage in nonviolent direct action are not the creators of tension. We merely bring to the surface the hidden tension that is already alive. We bring it out in the open where it can be seen and dealt with. Like a boil that can never be cured as long as it is covered up but must be opened with all its pus-flowing ugliness to the natural medicines of air and light, injustice must likewise be exposed, with all of the tension its exposing creates, to the light of human conscience and the air of national opinion before it can be cured.

In your statement you asserted that our actions, even though peaceful, must be condemned because they precipitate violence. But can this assertion be logically made? Isn't this like condemning the robbed man because his possession of money precipitated the evil act of robbery? Isn't this like condemning Socrates because his unswerving commitment to truth and his philosophical delvings precipitated the misguided popular mind to make him drink the hemlock? Isn't this like condemning Jesus because His unique God consciousness and never-ceasing devotion to His will precipitated the evil act of crucifixion? We must come to see, as federal courts have consistently affirmed, that it is immoral to urge an individual to withdraw his efforts to gain his basic constitutional rights because the quest precipitates violence. Society must protect the robbed and punish the robber.

I had also hoped that the white moderate would reject the myth of time. I received a letter this morning from a white brother in Texas which said: "All Christians know that the colored people will receive equal rights eventually, but is it possible that you are in too great of a religious hurry? It has taken Christianity almost 2000 years to accomplish what it has. The teachings of Christ take time to come to earth." All that is said here grows out of a tragic misconception of time. It is the strangely irrational notion that there is something in the very flow of time that will inevitably cure all ills. Actually time is neutral. It can be used either destructively or constructively. I am coming to feel that the people of ill will have used time much more effectively than the people of good will. We will have to repent in this generation not merely for the vitriolic words and actions of the bad people, but for the appalling silence of the good people. We must come to see that human progress never rolls in on wheels of inevitability. It comes through the tireless efforts and persistent work of men willing to be coworkers with God, and without this hard work time itself becomes an ally of the forces of social stagnation.

We must use time creatively, and forever realize that the time is always ripe to do right. Now is the time to make real the promise of democracy, and transform our pending national elegy into a creative psalm of brotherhood. Now is the time to lift our national policy from the quicksand of racial injustice to the solid rock of human dignity.

You spoke of our activity in Birmingham as extreme. At first I was rather disappointed that fellow clergymen would see my nonviolent efforts as those of the extremist. I started thinking about the fact that I stand in the middle of two opposing forces in the Negro community. One is a force of complacency made up of Negroes who, as a result of long years of oppression, have been so completely drained of self-respect and a sense of "somebodiness" that they have adjusted to segregation, and of a few Negroes in the middle class who, because of a degree of academic and economic security, and because at points they profit by segregation, have unconsciously become insensitive to the problems of the masses. The other force is one of bitterness and hatred and comes perilously close to advocating violence. It is expressed in the various black nationalist groups that are springing up over the nation, the largest and best known being Elijah Muhammad's Muslim movement. This movement is nourished by the contemporary frustration over the continued existence of racial discrimination. It is made up of people who have lost faith in America, who have absolutely repudiated Christianity, and who have concluded that the white man is an incurable "devil." I have tried to stand between these two forces saying that we need not follow the "do-nothingism" of the complacent or the hatred and despair of the black nationalist. There is the more excellent way of love and nonviolent protest. I'm grateful to God that, through the Negro church, the dimension of nonviolence entered our struggle. If this philosophy had not emerged I am convinced that by now many streets of the South would be flowing with floods of blood. And I am further convinced that if our white brothers dismiss us as "rabble rousers" and "outside agitators"—those of us who are working through the channels of nonviolent direct action —and refuse to support our nonviolent efforts, millions of Negroes, out of frustration and despair, will seek solace and security in black nationalist ideologies, a development that will lead inevitably to a frightening racial nightmare.

Oppressed people cannot remain oppressed forever. The urge for freedom will eventually come. This is what has happened to the American Negro. Something within has reminded him of his birthright of freedom; something without has reminded him that he can gain it. Consciously and unconsciously, he has been swept in by what the Germans call the Zeitgeist, and with his black brothers of Africa, and his brown and yellow brothers of Asia, South America, and the Caribbean, he is moving with a sense of cosmic urgency toward the promised land of racial justice. Recognizing this vital urge that has engulfed the Negro community, one should readily understand public demonstrations. The Negro has many pent-up resentments and latent frustrations. He has to get them out. So let him march sometime; let him have his prayer pilgrimages to the city hall; understand why he must have sit-ins and freedom rides. If his repressed emotions do not come out in these nonviolent ways, they will come out in ominous expressions of violence. This is not a threat; it is a fact of history. So I have not said to my people, "Get rid of your discontent." But I have tried to say that this normal and healthy discontent can be channeled through the creative outlet of nonviolent direct action. Now this approach is being dismissed as extremist. I must admit that I was initially disappointed in being so categorized.

But as I continued to think about the matter I gradually gained a bit of satisfaction from being considered an extremist. Was not Jesus an extremist in love? "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, pray for them that despitefully use you." Was not Amos an extremist for justice—"Let justice roll down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream." Was not Paul an extremist for the gospel of Jesus Christ—"I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus." Was not Martin Luther an extremist—"Here I stand; I can do none other so help me God." Was not John Bunyan an extremist—"I will stay in jail to the end of my days before I make a butchery of my conscience." Was not Abraham Lincoln an extremist—"This nation cannot survive half slave and half free." Was not Thomas Jefferson an extremist—"We hold these truths to be self evident that all men are created equal." So the question is not whether we will be extremist but what kind of extremist will we be. Will we be extremists for hate or will we be extremists for love? Will we be extremists for the preservation of injustice—or will we be extremists for the cause of justice? In that dramatic scene on Calvary's hill three men were crucified. We must never forget that all three were crucified for the same crime—the crime of extremism. Two were extremists for immorality, and thus fell below their environment. The other, Jesus Christ, was an extremist for love, truth, and goodness, and thereby rose above His environment. So, after all, maybe the South, the nation, and the world are in dire need of creative extremists.

I had hoped that the white moderate would see this. Maybe I was too optimistic. Maybe I expected too much. I guess I should have realized that few members of a race that has oppressed another race can understand or appreciate the deep groans and passionate yearnings of those that have been oppressed, and still fewer have the vision to see that injustice must be rooted out by strong, persistent, and determined action. I am thankful, however, that some of our white brothers have grasped the meaning of this social revolution and committed themselves to it. They are still all too small in quantity, but they are big in quality. Some like Ralph McGill, Lillian Smith, Harry Golden, and James Dabbs have written about our struggle in eloquent, prophetic, and understanding terms. Others have marched with us down nameless streets of the South. They have languished in filthy, roach-infested jails, suffering the abuse and brutality of angry policemen who see them as "dirty nigger lovers." They, unlike so many of their moderate brothers and sisters, have recognized the urgency of the moment and sensed the need for powerful "action" antidotes to combat the disease of segregation.

Let me rush on to mention my other disappointment. I have been so greatly disappointed with the white Church and its leadership. Of course there are some notable exceptions. I am not unmindful of the fact that each of you has taken some significant stands on this issue. I commend you, Rev. Stallings, for your Christian stand on this past Sunday, in welcoming Negroes to your worship service on a non-segregated basis. I commend the Catholic leaders of this state for integrating Springhill College several years ago.

But despite these notable exceptions I must honestly reiterate that I have been disappointed with the Church. I do not say that as one of those negative critics who can always find something wrong with the Church. I say it as a minister of the gospel, who loves the Church; who was nurtured in its bosom; who has been sustained by its spiritual blessings and who will remain true to it as long as the cord of life shall lengthen.

I had the strange feeling when I was suddenly catapulted into the leadership of the bus protest in Montgomery several years ago that we would have the support of the white Church. I felt that the white ministers, priests, and rabbis of the South would be some of our strongest allies. Instead, some have been outright opponents, refusing to understand the freedom movement and misrepresenting its leaders; all too many others have been more cautious than courageous and have remained silent behind the anesthetizing security of stained glass windows.

In spite of my shattered dreams of the past, I came to Birmingham with the hope that the white religious leadership of this community would see the justice of our cause and, with deep moral concern, serve as the channel through which our just grievances could get to the power structure. I had hoped that each of you would understand. But again I have been disappointed.

I have heard numerous religious leaders of the South call upon their worshippers to comply with a desegregation decision because it is the law, but I have longed to hear white ministers say follow this decree because integration is morally right and the Negro is your brother. In the midst of blatant injustices inflicted upon the Negro, I have watched white churches stand on the sideline and merely mouth pious irrelevancies and sanctimonious trivialities. In the midst of a mighty struggle to rid our nation of racial and economic injustice, I have heard so many ministers say, "Those are social issues with which the Gospel has no real concern," and I have watched so many churches commit themselves to a completely other-worldly religion which made a strange distinction between body and soul, the sacred and the secular.

So here we are moving toward the exit of the twentieth century with a religious community largely adjusted to the status quo, standing as a tail light behind other community agencies rather than a headlight leading men to higher levels of justice.

I have travelled the length and breadth of Alabama, Mississippi, and all the other Southern states. On sweltering summer days and crisp autumn mornings I have looked at her beautiful churches with their spires pointing heavenward. I have beheld the impressive outlay of her massive religious education buildings. Over and over again I have found myself asking: "Who worships here? Who is their God? Where were their voices when the lips of Governor Barnett dripped with words of interposition and nullification? Where were they when Governor Wallace gave the clarion call for defiance and hatred? Where were their voices of support when tired, bruised, and weary Negro men and women decided to rise from the dark dungeons of complacency to the bright hills of creative protest?"

Yes, these questions are still in my mind. In deep disappointment, I have wept over the laxity of the Church. But be assured that my tears have been tears of love. There can be no deep disappointment where there is not deep love. Yes, I love the Church; I love her sacred walls. How could I do otherwise? I am in the rather unique position of being the son, the grandson, and the great grandson of preachers. Yes, I see the Church as the body of Christ. But, oh! How we have blemished and scarred that body through social neglect and fear of being nonconformist.

There was a time when the Church was very powerful. It was during that period when the early Christians rejoiced when they were deemed worthy to suffer for what they believed. In those days the Church was not merely a thermometer that recorded the ideas and principles of popular opinion; it was a thermostat that transformed the mores of society. Wherever the early Christians entered a town the power structure got disturbed and immediately sought to convict them for being "disturbers of the peace" and "outside agitators." But they went on with the conviction that they were a "colony of heaven" and had to obey God rather than man. They were small in number but big in commitment. They were too God-intoxicated to be "astronomically intimidated." They brought an end to such ancient evils as infanticide and gladiatorial contest.

Things are different now. The contemporary Church is so often a weak, ineffectual voice with an uncertain sound. It is so often the arch-supporter of the status quo. Far from being disturbed by the presence of the Church, the power structure of the average community is consoled by the Church's silent and often vocal sanction of things as they are.

But the judgment of God is upon the Church as never before. If the Church of today does not recapture the sacrificial spirit of the early Church, it will lose its authentic ring, forfeit the loyalty of millions, and be dismissed as an irrelevant social club with no meaning for the twentieth century. I am meeting young people every day whose disappointment with the Church has risen to outright disgust.

Maybe again I have been too optimistic. Is organized religion too inextricably bound to the status quo to save our nation and the world? Maybe I must turn my faith to the inner spiritual Church, the church within the Church, as the true ecclesia and the hope of the world. But again I am thankful to God that some noble souls from the ranks of organized religion have broken loose from the paralyzing chains of conformity and joined us as active partners in the struggle for freedom. They have left their secure congregations and walked the streets of Albany, Georgia, with us. They have gone through the highways of the South on torturous rides for freedom. Yes, they have gone to jail with us. Some have been kicked out of their churches and lost the support of their bishops and fellow ministers. But they have gone with the faith that right defeated is stronger than evil triumphant. These men have been the leaven in the lump of the race. Their witness has been the spiritual salt that has preserved the true meaning of the Gospel in these troubled times. They have carved a tunnel of hope through the dark mountain of disappointment.

I hope the Church as a whole will meet the challenge of this decisive hour. But even if the Church does not come to the aid of justice, I have no despair about the future. I have no fear about the outcome of our struggle in Birmingham, even if our motives are presently misunderstood. We will reach the goal of freedom in Birmingham and all over the nation, because the goal of America is freedom. Abused and scorned though we may be, our destiny is tied up with the destiny of America. Before the pilgrims landed at Plymouth, we were here. Before the pen of Jefferson etched across the pages of history the majestic words of the Declaration of Independence, we were here. For more than two centuries our foreparents labored in this country without wages; they made cotton "king"; and they built the homes of their masters in the midst of brutal injustice and shameful humiliation—and yet out of a bottomless vitality they continued to thrive and develop. If the inexpressible cruelties of slavery could not stop us, the opposition we now face will surely fail. We will win our freedom because the sacred heritage of our nation and the eternal will of God are embodied in our echoing demands.

I must close now. But before closing I am impelled to mention one other point in your statement that troubled me profoundly. You warmly commended the Birmingham police force for keeping "order" and "preventing violence." I don't believe you would have so warmly commended the police force if you had seen its angry violent dogs literally biting six unarmed, nonviolent Negroes. I don't believe you would so quickly commend the policemen if you would observe their ugly and inhuman treatment of Negroes here in the city jail; if you would watch them push and curse old Negro women and young Negro girls; if you would see them slap and kick old Negro men and young Negro boys; if you will observe them, as they did on two occasions, refuse to give us food because we wanted to sing our grace together. I'm sorry that I can't join you in your praise for the police department.

It is true that they have been rather disciplined in their public handling of the demonstrators. In this sense they have been rather publicly "nonviolent." But for what purpose? To preserve the evil system of segregation. Over the last few years I have consistently preached that nonviolence demands that the means we use must be as pure as the ends we seek. So I have tried to make it clear that it is wrong to use immoral means to attain moral ends. But now I must affirm that it is just as wrong, or even moreso, to use moral means to preserve immoral ends. Maybe Mr. Connor and his policemen have been rather publicly nonviolent, as Chief Prichett was in Albany, Georgia, but they have used the moral means of nonviolence to maintain the immoral end of flagrant racial injustice. T. S. Eliot has said that there is no greater treason than to do the right deed for the wrong reason.

I wish you had commended the Negro sit-inners and demonstrators of Birmingham for their sublime courage, their willingness to suffer, and their amazing discipline in the midst of the most inhuman provocation. One day the South will recognize its real heroes. They will be the James Merediths, courageously and with a majestic sense of purpose, facing jeering and hostile mobs and the agonizing loneliness that characterizes the life of the pioneer. They will be old, oppressed, battered Negro women, symbolized in a seventy-two year old woman of Montgomery, Alabama, who rose up with a sense of dignity and with her people decided not to ride the segregated buses, and responded to one who inquired about her tiredness with ungrammatical profundity: "My feets is tired, but my soul is rested." They will be young high school and college students, young ministers of the gospel and a host of the elders, courageously and nonviolently sitting in at lunch counters and willingly going to jail for conscience sake. One day the South will know that when these disinherited children of God sat down at lunch counters they were in reality standing up for the best in the American dream and the most sacred values in our Judeo-Christian heritage, and thus carrying our whole nation back to great wells of democracy which were dug deep by the founding fathers in the formulation of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence.

Never before have I written a letter this long (or should I say a book?). I'm afraid that it is much too long to take your precious time. I can assure you that it would have been much shorter if I had been writing from a comfortable desk, but what else is there to do when you are alone for days in the dull monotony of a narrow jail cell other than write long letters, think strange thoughts, and pray long prayers?

If I have said anything in this letter that is an overstatement of the truth and is indicative of an unreasonable impatience, I beg you to forgive me. If I have said anything in this letter that is an understatement of the truth and is indicative of my having a patience that makes me patient with anything less than brotherhood, I beg God to forgive me.

I hope this letter finds you strong in the faith. I also hope that circumstances will soon make it possible for me to meet each of you, not as an integrationist or a civil rights leader, but as a fellow clergyman and a Christian brother. Let us all hope that the dark clouds of racial prejudice will soon pass away and the deep fog of misunderstanding will be lifted from our fear-drenched communities and in some not too distant tomorrow the radiant stars of love and brotherhood will shine over our great nation with all of their scintillating beauty.

Yours for the cause of Peace and Brotherhood

MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR.

Following is a verbatim copy of the public statement directed to Martin Luther King, Jr., by eight Alabama clergymen, which occasioned his reply.

April 12, 1963

We the undersigned clergymen are among those who, in January, issued "An Appeal for Law and Order and Common Sense," in dealing with racial problems in Alabama. We expressed understanding that honest convictions in racial matters could properly be pursued in the courts, but urged that decisions of those courts should in the meantime be peacefully obeyed.

Since that time there had been some evidence of increased forbearance and a willingness to face facts. Responsible citizens have undertaken to work on various problems which cause racial friction and unrest. In Birmingham, recent public events have given indication that we all have opportunity for a new constructive and realistic approach to racial problems.

However, we are now confronted by a series of demonstrations by some of our Negro citizens, directed and led in part by outsiders. We recognize the natural impatience of people who feel that their hopes are slow in being realized. But we are convinced that these demonstrations are unwise and untimely.

We agree rather with certain local Negro leadership which has called for honest and open negotiation of racial issues in our area. And we believe this kind of facing of issues can best be accomplished by citizens of our own metropolitan area, white and Negro, meeting with their knowledge and experience of the local situation. All of us need to face that responsibility and find proper channels for its accomplishment.

Just as we formerly pointed out that "hatred and violence have no sanction in our religious and political traditions," we also point out that such actions as incite to hatred and violence, however technically peaceful those actions may be, have not contributed to the resolution of our local problems. We do not believe that these days of new hope are days when extreme measures are justified in Birmingham.

We commend the community as a whole, and the local news media and law enforcement officials in particular, on the calm manner in which these demonstrations have been handled. We urge the public to continue to show restraint should the demonstrations continue, and the law enforcement officials to remain calm and continue to protect our city from violence.

We further strongly urge our own Negro community to withdraw support from these demonstrations, and to unite locally in working peacefully for a better Birmingham. When rights are consistently denied, a cause should be pressed in the courts and in negotiations among local leaders, and not in the streets. We appeal to both our white and Negro citizenry to observe the principles of law and order and common sense.

A MORE REGULAR NEWSLETTER

With this issue of the NAIRO Newsletter we begin a new policy adopted by the Board at the April meeting: The Newsletter will be issued monthly (except during the summer), in a less expensive form. The Board felt that this would help keep our members informed and would place before them on a more timely basis notices of job opportunities and openings. The Board also asked that appropriate materials from intergroup relations agencies be mailed with the Newsletter if the agencies were willing to supply the materials free and pay the cost of the mailing.

STUDY IN COLOR

Inaugurating the new policy mentioned above is ESCRU -- the Episcopal Society for Cultural & Racial Unity, which has supplied NAIRO with 1,000 copies of the announcement of three one-act plays by the Rev. Malcolm Boyd, Chaplain at Wayne State University. ESCRU also made a donation of $30 to cover the cost of the mailing.

'63 ANNUAL NAIRO CONFERENCE

The 17th Annual NAIRO Conference will be held in Cleveland, Ohio, at the Pick-Carter Hotel, Nov. 20-23. The Program Planning Committee, chaired by K. C. Jones, has chosen the theme: CONTROVERSIAL ISSUES IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS. This was approved by the Board at its April meeting. NOTE THESE DATES ON YOUR CALENDAR NOW. This promises to be an exciting conference!!!!

NEW CHAPTER IN ST. LOUIS

NAIRO's Board voted Chapter status to a group of members in St. Louis at the April Meeting. Charter Chapter members are: Mrs. Theo M. Shea, Chairman; J. Philip Waring, Vice Chairman; Mrs. Thelma Abrams, Secretary; the Rev. Trafford P. Maher, S. J.; Dr. Reba S. Mosby; and Myron Schwartz. The action to form a Chapter followed a visit by NAIRO President Edward Rutledge. Congratulations and a warm welcome to our newest Chapter.

FUND RAISING

The United Steel Workers Union was the first to respond to a funds appeal sent out to ten Union Presidents by John Feild. NAIRO is grateful to the Steelworkers, and our hats are off to them for such understanding and fast action.

NEW LIFE MEMBERS

NAIRO has proudly gained two more LIFE MEMBERS since the last Newsletter. They are Dr. Helen Amerman and Lloyd Davis. Eleanor Dungan of the Chicago Commission on Human Relations and Chairman of NAIRO's Life Membership Committee is working to have others follow suit.

CHEERS FOR THE NEW YORK NAIRO CHAPTER!

Under the leadership of its Chairman, Dr. Shirley Chartock, the NY NAIRO Chapter is planning a benefit theatre party to raise funds for NAIRO. The Chapter also sent out a special notice to members: "The National NAIRO urgently needs membership dues ($20 per year) from all members. If you have not already paid your 1962 or 1963 dues, please send your check (payable to NAIRO) as soon as possible to: 2027 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington 6, D.C."

CHANGES IN LEADERSHIP

The Board regretfully accepted the resignations of Peter Libassi as Mid-Atlantic Regional Chairman and member of the Executive Committee. Replacing him on the Executive Committee is Louis Mason and as Regional Chairman, Robert Greene. The resignation of Alexander Miller as Membership Chairman was also regretfully accepted. Replacing him is John Yoshino. In the leadership listing in the April Newsletter there were several errors: we identified Alexander "Joe" Allen (President Elect) as Vice President; we left out John Morsell, Vice President, and Burton Gordin, Chairman of the sub-Committee on Education and Professional Training. Our apologies to each of these men.

NAIRO TRIBUTE TO ALGERNON D. BLACK

With the approval of NAIRO's Executive Committee, a citation was presented to Algernon D. Black at a dinner given in his honor by the Encampment for Citizenship on May 14 in New York City. The text of the citation presented by President Rutledge read: "The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials proudly pays tribute to ALGERNON D. BLACK - as a citizen, leader, educator, and housing-civil rights pioneer. With gratitude we acknowledge our debt to a man who has enriched our knowledge and understanding of the community of mankind, and who inspires and challenges us to follow the example he has set."

PRESIDENT'S CORNER

You will note in my letter to President Kennedy our expression of deep concern in regard to the USA's crisis in race relations. This letter was prepared with the assistance of Executive Director, Fred Routh and General Counsel, Ed Lukas and approved by the Executive Committee. Many of the recommendations are drawn from the 1961 NAIRO document "Executive Responsibility in Intergroup Relations." I suggest you reread this report. You will find it shows prophetic insight into the role of executive leadership.

Now more than ever before our leadership is needed. And we are calling upon the President of the United States to consult with us because we do not believe that the Negro drive for civil rights need be won only through disorder, chaos and violence. On the contrary, we have the expertise and the dedication and commitment in our profession to assist the President in securing full equality for all Americans within the framework of our democratic system of government.

As members of the only professional body in intergroup relations we have a major responsibility to reexamine our own leadership positions as intergroup relations workers and also, as never before, to influence the role of our own agencies in the struggle for equal rights. We cannot afford to stand by as so called "objective observers" at this time. We have a duty to help lead the way.

D. C. HUMAN RELATIONS STUDY APPROVED

NAIRO's Board of Directors approved the undertaking of a study of the human relations needs and governmental efforts to meet them in the District of Columbia. The study was made possible by a grant from the Eugene and Agnes E. Meyer Foundation. Fred Routh will direct the study. Consultants are: George Schermer, Director of the Philadelphia Commission on Human Relations and Chairman of NAIRO's Task Force II; and Dr. Herman Long, Director of Fisk University's Race Relations Institute and NAIRO Board member. Routh will spend half-time for up to six months on the project.

WORTH READING

Several articles appearing in recent issues of national magazines are worth reading. Among them are: "A 50-Year War Against AntiSemitism" (LOOK June 4) which is the story of the AntiDefamation League, written by Thomas B. Morgan. In the same issue is, "Washington: Crime Sick Capital City" by Fletcher Knebel, interesting but somewhat sensational. "How a Race Riot Happened" by Alvin Shuster and Ben A. Franklin in the SATURDAY EVENING POST for May 4th.--caused a controversy in DC circles. LIFE for May 31st carries "A Negro Photographer Shoots From Inside The Black Muslims." Sub-title: Word and Picture Report by Gordon Parks.

FUTURE NAIRO MEMBER

Stanley and Judy Leibner have a new son, Lincoln Debs Leibner. He was born May 1st.

NONDISCRIMINATION IN HOUSING

Two publications are dealing with this topic in an important manner; already out is A Report to The Mayor & City Council of Chicago on the Present Status and Effectiveness of Existing Fair Housing Practices Legislation. Coming is the special issue of the Chicago -Kent Law Review concerned with anti-discrimination housing legislation. The former may be secured from Clifford Campbell, Deputy Commissioner of City Planning, City Hall, Chicago 2; the latter from: Richard A. Winkler, Editor-in-Chief, Chicago-Kent Law Review, 10 North Franklin, Chicago 6. Price not known in either case.

EDITORIAL IN LIFE MAGAZINE

Your attention is called to a striking editorial in the May 24th issue of LIFE magazine entitled, "Beyond Rights the Issue of Human Dignity." This editorial is one of the more significant of recent years. It recognizes the critical nature of our times and proclaims human relations the crucial need if we are to build and maintain a democratic society.

LOOK AT BEN SISSEL

The Rev. H. Benjamin Sissel, NAIRO Member, and Secretary for National Affairs of the United Presbyterian Church, USA, has a major article in the June 18th issue of LOOK, "A Christian View: Behind The Fight Against School Prayer."

SCHERMER RESIGNS

George Schermer, Executive Director of the Philadelphia Commission on Human Relations, has resigned his post. Schermer, one of the field's most seasoned and respected professionals blasted the mayor in his letter of resignation for making ineffective the Commission on Human Relations. NAIRO's Philadelphia Chapter has called on the Commissioners not to accept Schermer's resignation. Civil Rights leaders are protesting conditions which led to the resignation.

THE DIRECTOR'S BOX is short this month to make room for other matters. Dave Garroway used to close his program by holding up his hand and saying, "Peace!" Now he closes with "Courage!" We are in for a considerable period of unrest, tension, and strife in the field of intergroup relations. Witness the police tactics and the Governor's defiance in the Alabama situation. It will take all the courage, all the wisdom, all the dedication, and all the skill we can muster to move the cause of human dignity ahead in a constructive, rapid, and non-violent manner. This is our task as intergroup relations professionals and to it we are fully committed; none of us stands alone; through NAIRO, each is linked with a thousand others who have the same commitment to the task at hand. Further, it is we who are dedicated to building a democratic society -- not the totalitarians -- who ride the crest of the wave of the future. In my Emancipation Proclamation Centennial Address in Tucson, Arizona I said, "Where do we stand 100 years later? We have come a long way. We yet have a long, long way to go; the path is steep, the climb difficult; but no other journey is worthy of free men."

OF SPECIAL IMPORTANCE

The Grievance Committee, chaired by Harold Fleming, has spent considerable time developing proposed grievance procedures. The Board adopted the committee's proposals at its April meeting. This is an important forward step for NAIRO and for its members. You are urged to study these with care for they explain what you may expect from NAIRO if you file a complaint.

GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES OF NAIRO

The NAIRO Board, at its November 1962 meeting, established a Grievance Committee to process and make appropriate disposition of complaints filed with NAIRO by its members. The Committee consists of Harold C. Fleming (chairman), Edward Rutledge, Alexander J. Allen, Edwin J. Lukas, and Frederick B. Routh (ex officio).

When a complaint is received, the Committee ordinarily appoints a panel of NAIRO members in the appropriate geographical area to ascertain the facts in the case and make a written report of them to the Committee. On occasion, however, the Committee may elect to ask one of its members or the Executive Director to make the investigation.

Other procedures thus far developed by the Committee and approved by the Board are as follows:

(1) A condition of NAIRO intervention is that the aggrieved member avail himself of administrative remedies within the employing agency, unless the Grievance Committee is satisfied that he has good and sufficient reason not to do so.

(2) In the case of a member who does so avail himself, the Grievance Committee shall be responsible for determining that his procedural rights are fully and promptly observed; if they are not, the Grievance Committee shall make all appropriate representations to the respondent agency and, these failing, shall request the Board of NAIRO to pass and publicize among its members and elsewhere as it sees fit, a vote of censure against the agency.

(3) The Grievance Committee shall not undertake to reach findings and conclusions on the substantive complaint until the respondent agency's complaint procedures are exhausted, or until the Committee determines that the complainant has been denied his procedural rights.

(4) If the complainant initiates administrative proceedings but at a later point decides not to exhaust them, NAIRO's intervention will cease at that point, unless the Committee determines that he has good and sufficient reason for his decision.

(5) In the case of an aggrieved member who has no administrative remedies available to him, the Grievance Committee shall see that his complaint to NAIRO is investigated and findings and conclusions reached as expeditiously as possible. In the event that the complaint is found justified, the same efforts at conciliation and, those failing, the same sanctions as those described in (2) above shall be effected.

MEMBERS ON THE MOVE

Since the last Newsletter, less than a month ago, the following members have changed jobs or moved: Malcolm Higgins has resigned as Executive Director of the Washington State Board Against Discrimination. John I. Binkley resigned as Director of Education with the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity to become Intergroup Relations Specialist, Housing & Home Finance Agency. David Traub hasn't moved or changed jobs but we erroneously listed him in the Los Angeles Army EEO Office rather than in the Philadelphia office where he is. Muriel Snowden has been at it again; for her outstanding work in Roxbury, Massachusetts, she has been elected Citizen of the Week by the Boston-Roxbury City News and Woman of the Week by the Traveler Paper.

Mathew Ahmann has resigned as Executive Director of the National Catholic Conference on Interracial Justice to assume full time responsibilities with The National Conference on Religion and Race. Clifford J. Campbell has retired as Deputy Commissioner of City Planning in Chicago and will move to Portland, Oregon. Norman Perlstein has left the Brooklyn Jewish Community Relations Council and has gone with Brotherhood-in-Action (New York City).

TRAVELGUIDE ISSUED

A list of public accommodations which operate on a nondiscriminatory basis has been published by William H. Butler. It may be obtained for $2.00 from: TRAVELGUIDE, P.O. Box 4252, Grand Central Station, New York 17, N. Y.

JOB OPENINGS

AMERICAN CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION has a national staff opening: Field Development Officer. Salary starts at $8,000 or more depending on individual. Considerable travel helping branches plan their efforts and execute their plans. Requirements: Character and integrity most important; perceptive, creative, energetic, persuasive, with experience in organizational work and operational fund-raising efforts for other organizations. Applications should be addressed to: John de J. Pemberton, Jr., Executive Director American Civil Liberties Union, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York 10, N. Y.

KANSAS CITY HUMAN RELATIONS COMMISSION, Executive Secretary; Salary $9,600 to $11,600 (former salary was $8,500) I have just talked with the new Commission Chairman, Dean Frederick Lewis of the U of KC Law School, who said the situation in Kansas City has been cleared-up by a new city administration which means business in the field of intergroup relations. Requirements: skill and experience in intergroup relations on the executive level, mature personality. The Commission works on problems of discrimination in employment opportunities, public accommodations, housing, education, public facilities, and union membership. It also works with the police department and the park board. Applications should be sent to: Dr. Frederick D. Lewis, Dean, School of Law, University of Kansas City, Kansas City, Missouri.

NAIRO

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS
2027 MASSACHUSETTS AVENUE, N. W. • WASHINGTON 6, D. C. • 387-7050

May 22, 1963

The Honorable John F. Kennedy
The White House
Washington 25, D. C.

My dear Mr. President:

As you may recall from our meeting with you on August 23, 1961 (please refer to the enclosed pamphlet), we are a professional body concerned with intergroup relations. In our opinion many urban centers in the North, as well as the South, are confronted with the prospect of racial tensions and problems of crisis proportions. Your bold leadership is needed now more than ever before to avert disaster.

We hail your recent courageous statements in the South and your salute to the Negro drive for civil rights as in the "highest traditions of American freedom." It is our conviction that your call to the educated men and women of the South to speak up for law, freedom, and human decency has given heart to your fellow countrymen everywhere.

Likewise, we are in complete accord with your decision to station troops in Alabama. We appreciate your reluctance, as President of all the people, to employ troops in any section of the country. Yet this decision cannot be avoided where local or state officials are incapable of or unwilling to maintain law and order and protect the constitutional rights of all citizens. Nor can it be avoided where they incite to violence and where lawlessness and a state of anarchy prevail. Such decisive action by you at the right time, in this and other situations, will in our judgment prevent violence. There is a need for the appropriate local and state officials to be put on notice that you will take such action whenever necessary.

In addition we respectfully suggest that the following steps should be taken to cope with this crisis:

1. Small groups of religious, business, labor, community and political leaders should be called together to make known the President's determination to correct inequities and to enlist their cooperation in this endeavor.

2. Similarly, conferences should be convened with:

   (a) state governors, to discuss mutual responsibilities in upholding Federal Court decisions and maintaining law and order.

   (b) state attorneys general, to assure the right of all qualified citizens to free access to the ballot box.

   (c) School officials, to accelerate the desegregation of schools.

   (d) business and labor leaders, to insure equal employment opportunity and to deal realistically with the problem of the growing unemployment among Negroes.

   (e) representatives of the housing industry, to end enforced residential segregation and seek the achievement of open occupancy practices.

3. We urge also that all Federal programs be reexamined and redirected to assure the Negro his full rights as an American.

4. The Federal government should take a more active official role in identifying organizations and individuals engaged in subverting Federal court decisions and violating the constitutional rights of Negro citizens.

In preparation for the implementation of these recommendations we respectfully request that you consider convening a meeting of experts in intergroup relations and civil rights to secure their views as to how the steps we have urged you to take may yield the maximum results.

We stand ready to assist you in this time of national emergency.

Respectfully yours,

Edward Rutledge, President
National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials

SEVENTEETH ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF NAIRO

CLEVELAND

November 20-23

HOTEL PICK-CARTER

DAYS

RALPH S. LOCHER, MAYOR OF CLEVELAND

City of Cleveland

RALPH S. LOCHER
MAYOR

November, 1963

To the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials

On behalf of the people of Cleveland, and for myself, it gives me great pleasure to extend to each of you a warm and cordial welcome to our city.

We are indeed proud that NAIRO is holding this important 17th Annual Conference in Cleveland - a city whose people have a deep concern and understanding for human values and individual dignity.

To survive in today's complex world society, man must have a basic understanding of the character of the spiritual and cultural aspirations of his fellow man. NAIRO has contributed immeasurably to this basic understanding in its intergroup programs and in its work in the fields of human relations and civil rights.

May your meetings here and all future efforts of your organization prove highly successful.

Sincerely,

Ralph S. Locher

Mayor

Irving Levine, Chairman - CLEVELAND CHAPTER
NAIRO

Welcome to Cleveland:

What may be most significant about this historic NARIO meeting is that for the first time, the many who have previously, either consciously, or unconsciously, closed their ears to our pleas will be listening to what we say with interest.

The twin goals of NAIRO -- First class citizenship for all and qualitative human relations -- are gaining new acceptance in the arenas of influence in our society. This philisophic conversion promises much, but even so, true progress comes hard. The road ahead undoubtly has more snags than we can now recognize, but who would deny our experience in solving tough problems. We enter this new phase with confidence.

For our work, our organization, our techniques and our passions have much to say about the continuing story of America.

MAY 18, 1964 WASHINGTON, D. C.

PRESENT: DR. HERMAN LONG, CSB CHAIRMAN, DR. MARTIN CHWOROWSKY, GEORGE CULBERSON, JOHN G. FEILD, HAROLD C. FLEMING, BARBARA MOFFETT AND BETTI WHALEY; STAFF: FRED ROUTH AND NATHAN GREENE.

THE MEETING WAS CONVENED AT 10:30 BY THE CHAIRMAN, WHO EXPRESSED GENERAL SATISFACTION WITH THE FIRST CLASS OF ELEANOR ROOSEVELT INTERNS IN HUMAN RIGHTS.

ROUTH THEN INDICATED THAT THE REACTION OF THE INTERNS AND THEIR SUPERVISORS, WITHIN THE VARIOUS AGENCIES, TO THE PROGRAM HAS BEEN A MOST FAVORABLE ONE. THERE HAVE BEEN ONE OR TWO MINOR PERSONNEL PROBLEMS, BUT NOT OF A QUANTITY OR DEGREE TO CAUSE ANY REAL CONCERN. THE NAIRO BOARD AT ITS APRIL MEETING APPROVED THE ADDITION TO THE STAFF OF AN INTERN PROGRAM COORDINATOR TO HANDLE THE ADMINISTRATIVE WORK FORMERLY THE TASK OF JOHN FEILD. NATHAN GREENE, WHO HAS BEEN A CIVIL LIBERTIES FELLOW AT THE N.Y.U. SCHOOL OF LAW AND A LEGISLATIVE ASSISTANT TO CONGRESSMAN DONALD FRASER (MINN.) IS THE NEW INTERN PROGRAM COORDINATOR.

REPORT ON THE 1ST CLASS OF INTERNS (MR. FEILD):

A GOOD GROUP OF INTERNS, MATURE AND CAPABLE, WAS SELECTED. MANY MAY BE EXPECTED TO REMAIN IN THE FIELD AFTER THE INTERNSHIP PERIOD CLOSES.

THE ORIGINAL PLANNING OF THE PROGRAM EMBRACED THESE THREE POINTS:

1. TO DEVISE AN INTERN SELECTION PLAN.
2. TO DEVELOP AGENCY PARTICIPATION IN A MANNER MOST BENEFICIAL TO THE PROGRAM.

3. To devise a training program.

1. INTERN SELECTION: The Intern selection process was made the primary responsibility of a series of regional interview panels, peopled by senior practitioners in the intergroup field. These panels met in ten cities and ranged in size from two or three for the smallest to five or six for the largest. It was found that the larger panels were more effective because they encompassed a wider range of professional experience.

This procedure was quite good although the panels would in the future benefit by the added ingredient of a common factor; viz, that all panels have one member in common. Mr. Feild or Mr. Routh covered most of the panels which interviewed candidates for the first class of Interns, but it was felt one person should participate in all panels. This would serve the purpose of bringing to each panel one viewpoint which might be made available to each body as it considers the applicants before it. It is not to be expected that this would be a predominant voice, but that it would provide a modicum of mutuality among the several panels.

As further regards the work of the first-round panels, it was found that the criteria generally established were good and workable.

2. AGENCY PARTICIPATION: The standards were generally good but there was not sufficient time to gather all the information necessary to make the final choices as meaningful as possible. The agencies need more time to prepare their plans and, most particularly, the Agency Participation Committee needs more time to review requests and, where needs be, to request more information. In the second round, the agencies should be expected to submit more complete plans.

3. RELATIONSHIPS WITH THE ELEANOR ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL FOUNDATION & THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE: The February Training Institute was the

FIRST STEP IN CARRYING OUT A JOINT NAIRO-AJC PLAN TO ESTABLISH A PERMANENT TRAINING FACILITY. THE BI-RACIAL COMMITTEE TRAINING INSTITUTES PLANNED IN CONJUNCTION WITH THE U. S. CONFERENCE OF MAYORS WOULD BE A FURTHER STEP IN ESTABLISHING A PERMANENT TRAINING FACILITY.

HYMAN BOOKBINDER AND JOHN FEILD MADE A FINAL REPORT ON THE FIRST INSTITUTE TO THE ELEANOR ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL FOUNDATION. AT THAT TIME, THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE FOUNDATION RE-AFFIRMED FUNDS FOR THE SECOND ROUND. THE QUESTION OF ADMINISTRATIVE FUNDS HAD BEEN LEFT OPEN.

TWO TYPES OF ADMINISTRATIVE SUPPORT ARE NEEDED:

1. THERE IS AN IMMEDIATE NEED FOR THE FINANCING OF SECOND-ROUND ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS.
2. THERE IS AN ONGOING NEED FOR FULL-TIME STAFF TO SUPERVISE THE PROGRAM, TO KEEP ALL SEGMENTS OF THE PROGRAM UNDER THE CONTINUING EYE OF NAIRO AND THE FOUNDATION. (REFERENCE WAS MADE TO ADMINISTRATIVE STAFF ONLY; TRAINING STAFF IS NOT INCLUDED WITHIN THE PURVIEW OF THESE COMMENTS).

MR. FLEMING THEN RAISED THE QUESTION OF THE EXTENT OF THE AUTHORITY TO ADMINISTER THE PROGRAM WHICH THE NAIRO BOARD HAD DELEGATED TO THE CAREER SERVICE BOARD. THE CHAIRMAN RESPONDED, AND AGREEMENT WAS HAD, THAT THE PROGRAM POLICIES WERE ENTRUSTED TO THE CSB, BUT THAT FINANCIAL CONSIDERATIONS WERE RESERVED TO THE NAIRO BOARD.

MOVED BY FEILD (SECONDED BY JONES) THAT A RECOMMENDATION BE MADE TO THE NAIRO BOARD THAT IT REQUEST OF THE FOUNDATION FUNDS SUFFICIENT TO PROVIDE FOR ADMINISTRATIVE SUPPORT OF THE SECOND ROUND OF THE INTERN PROGRAM, SUCH PERIOD TO RUN FROM THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE SELECTION PROCESS (MAY 1, 1964) THROUGH THE TERMINATION OF THE ONE-YEAR PERIOD OF COMMITMENT ENTERED INTO BY THE SECOND-ROUND INTERNS (SEPT. 1, 1965); AND THAT

THE BOARD MAKE KNOWN TO THE FOUNDATION THAT IT HAD ALREADY ENGAGED AN INTERIM ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT TO HANDLE THE ORGANIZATION OF THE SECOND-ROUND SELECTIONS. APPROVED.

MISS MOFFETT RAISED THE QUESTION OF THE DIFFICULTY WHICH SOME PROSPECTIVE INTERNS ENCOUNTERED IN FINANCING THE TRIP TO BE INTERVIEWED AND SUGGESTED THE POSSIBILITY OF NAIRO AID IN OFFSETTING THE EXPENSES SO INCURRED. IT WAS AGREED THAT THE COST WOULD BE PROHIBITIVE, BUT THAT STAFF SHOULD DO ALL IT COULD TO ARRANGE INTERVIEW SCHEDULES AND LOCATIONS WHICH WOULD MINIMIZE THIS FACTOR.

DR. LONG BROACHED THE POSSIBILITY OF A STUDY BEING MADE OF THE INTERN PROGRAM, THE VALUES WHICH IT ATTEMPTED TO EMBODY, THE MEANS WHICH WERE EMPLOYED TO INSTITUTIONALIZE THESE VALUES, AND THE RELATIVE SUCCESS THAT HAD OBTAINED. IT WAS HIS THOUGHT THAT THIS MIGHT BE A WORTHY PROJECT FOR A MASTER'S THESIS AND THAT APPROACHES BE MADE ALONG THESE LINES TO APPROPRIATE ACADEMIC INSTITUTIONS. THE IDEA MET WITH A FAVORABLE RESPONSE.

MR. GREENE NEXT REPORTED ON THE CURRENT STATUS OF THE APPLICATION PROCESSING:

INQUIRIES PERTAINING TO SUMMER PROGRAM:	146
APPLICATIONS FOR " "	92	(PEACE CORPS-48)
ELIGIBLES DEFERRED FROM FEB. PROGRAM	34
	272
INQUIRIES RE FUTURE PROGRAMS:	27	(BEYOND FALL'64)
APPLICATIONS FOR FUTURE PROGRAMS:	12

IT WAS STRESSED THAT THE FIGURES PERTAINING TO THIS SUMMER'S PROGRAM WOULD NOT REFLECT ACCURATELY THE NUMBER OF INTERESTED PEOPLE AT THE PRESENT TIME. THIS WAS DUE TO THE FACT THAT A GREAT NUMBER OF THESE APPLICATIONS AND INQUIRIES WERE MADE DURING THE FIRST ROUND AND THE ATTRITION RATE OVER THE INTERVENING PERIOD WAS PROBABLY SIGNIFICANT. IN ADDITION, SEVERAL OF THE DEFERRED ELIGIBLES WERE KNOWN TO BE UNAVAILABLE, WHILE OTHERS COULD BE EXPECTED TO HAVE FOUND OTHER OPPORTUNITIES.

THE FOLLOWING CITIES WILL DEFINITELY HOUSE INTERVIEW PANELS: NEW YORK; CHICAGO; ATLANTA; SAN FRANCISCO; WASHINGTON.

OTHER CITIES WHICH MAY BE NEEDED AS INTERVIEW LOCATIONS ARE: LOS ANGELES; DETROIT; ST. LOUIS; NEW ORLEANS OR DALLAS.

THE FOLLOWING CALENDAR WAS APPROVED FOR THE VARIOUS STAGES OF INTERN AND AGENCY SCREENING: (PLEASE SEE ATTACHED SCHEDULE). IT WAS THE CONSENSUS OF THE BOARD THAT THE PERIOD OF DISCUSSION BETWEEN AGENCIES AND ELIGIBLES DURING THE FIRST ROUND WAS INADEQUATE AND THAT ONE MONTH BE ALLOWED FOR THIS PHASE IN THE SECOND ROUND. THE BOARD CONTINUED ITS APPROVAL OF THE "FREE-MARKET" APPROACH IN LINKING INTERN WITH AGENCY. AGENCIES WILL BE GIVEN UNTIL THE 19TH OF JUNE TO SUBMIT THEIR REQUESTS; THE FINAL DEADLINE OF JUNE 26 WILL BE APPLICABLE TO THOSE AGENCIES WHICH SUBMIT A TIMELY REQUEST WHICH IS RETURNED FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION. IT WAS FELT THAT NO AGENCIES SHOULD BE APPROVED ON CONDITION OF AN ACCEPTABLE PLAN BEING SUBSEQUENTLY SUBMITTED; THAT ALL REQUIREMENTS BE MET IN ACCORDANCE WITH AGENCY PARTICIPATION COMMITTEE STANDARDS AND DEADLINES. (PARTICULAR NOTE SHOULD BE MADE OF THE CSB MEETING ON JULY 13, FOR THE PURPOSE OF REVIEWING ANY PROBLEMS IN AGENCY SELECTION WHICH THE COMMITTEE ON AGENCY SELECTION MAY DESIRE TO BRING BEFORE IT.)

AGENCY PARTICIPATION COMMITTEE REPORT (MR. FLEMING):

THERE IS A NEED TO REVIEW OUR APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS. THE PROPOSED AGENCY PROGRAM SHOULD BE MORE COMPREHENSIVE AND DETAILED, INCLUDING PLANNED OUTLINES AND BIOGRAPHICAL INFORMATION REGARDING THE PROSPECTIVE SUPERVISOR. IT WAS AGREED THAT FLEMING, ROUTH AND GREENE WOULD UNDERTAKE THE TASK OF REASSESSING THE FORM IMMEDIATELY.

AT THE PRESENT, THERE ARE 14 AGENCIES WHOSE REQUESTS HAVE NOT RECEIVED A DISPOSITION, AND 8 AGENCIES WHICH WERE APPROVED DURING THE FIRST ROUND, BUT WHICH, FOR A VARIETY OF REASONS, DID NOT TAKE AN INTERN AT THAT TIME. IT WAS AGREED THAT THE APPLICATIONS OF THIS LATTER GROUP BE RE-

APPRAISED IN TERMS OF THEIR PROJECTED PROGRAMS AND, WHERE NECESSARY, ADDITIONAL INFORMATION BE REQUESTED. IN ADDITION, THE OTHER FOURTEEN AGENCIES SHOULD BE APPRISED OF THE REQUEST STANDARDS; AND THAT WORK BEGIN IMMEDIATELY ON THE PROCESSING OF ALL 22 OF THESE AGENCIES.

THE DISCUSSION THEN TURNED TO THE CONSIDERATION WHICH SHOULD BE ACCORDED AGENCIES NOT SPECIFICALLY EMBRACED BY THE RUBRIC OF "INTER-GROUP RELATIONS". THE CONSENSUS WAS THAT NO SUCH AGENCY SHOULD BE SUMMARILY PASSED BY, BUT THAT THESE AGENCIES BE CLOSELY SCRUTINIZED IN TERMS OF THE STATED QUALIFICATIONS.

PRIORITIES IN AGENCY SELECTION: IT WAS AGREED THAT PRIORITY BE ACCORDED THOSE AGENCIES PREVIOUSLY APPROVED BUT WHICH DO NOT PRESENTLY HAVE INTERNS, PROVIDING THAT THEIR PROGRAMS RECEIVE THE APPROVAL OF THE AGENCY PARTICIPATION COMMITTEE. IT WAS ALSO FELT THAT REQUESTS FOR MORE THAN ONE INTERN BY A SINGLE AGENCY BE CONSIDERED SOLELY ON THE INDIVIDUAL MERITS OF THE PLAN FOR EACH INTERN'S WORK, IN THE SAME FASHION AS REQUESTS FROM DIFFERENT AGENCIES WOULD BE HANDLED, AND THAT NO "MULTIPLE REQUEST" BE ARBITRARILY REDUCED TO A GIVEN NUMBER. CAVEAT: FLEMING STATED, AND RECEIVED BOARD CONCURRENCE IN, THE EXPECTATION THAT THE AGENCY PARTICIPATION COMMITTEE WOULD CONTINUE TO SEEK A PATTERN OF BROAD-BASED AGENCY PARTICIPATION.

AGREEMENT WAS REACHED ON THE MATTERS TO BE STRESSED IN THE PROGRAM NOTICES SENT TO AGENCIES, INVITING THEIR REQUESTS:

A. THAT NO AGENCY WOULD BE APPROVED PRIOR TO THE SUBMISSION AND APPROVAL OF COMPLETE TRAINING PLANS.

B. THAT AGENCIES BE GIVEN CAREFULLY DRAWN GUIDELINES TO ASSIST THEM IN THE TIMELY PREPARATION OF THEIR REQUESTS.

C. THAT REQUESTS CONTAIN THE NAMES AND PERSONAL VITA OF THE PROPOSED INTERN SUPERVISORS.

D. THAT REQUESTS BE SUBMITTED WITH A NUMBER OF COPIES, SUFFICIENT TO SUPPLY ONE TO EACH MEMBER OF THE AGENCY PARTICIPATION COMMITTEE, PLUS A FILE COPY FOR THE CSB. IN THIS MANNER EACH COMMITTEE MEMBER WILL BE ABLE TO RE-VIEW REQUESTS PRIOR TO THE RELEVANT COMMITTEE MEETING.

MISS MOFFETT SUGGESTED THAT AGENCIES AND INTERNS RECEIVE ONE-PARAGRAPH SKETCHES OF ONE ANOTHER SO THAT EACH CERTIFIED AGENCY WILL HAVE SOME IDEA OF THE SUITABILITY OF EACH ELIGIBLE FOR ITS PROJECTED PROGRAM, AND, IN TURN, THE INTERN WOULD HAVE AN INDICATION OF THOSE AGENCY PROGRAMS WHICH MIGHT BE ATTRACTIVE TO HIM. THIS WAS AGREED TO AND WAS ADDED TO THE ITEMS REQUIRED OF AGENCIES, IN ADDITION TO OTHER WRITTEN MATERIALS. STAFF IS TO BE RESPONSIBLE FOR BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF THE ELIGIBLES.

QUARTERLY EVALUATION REPORTS: IT WAS AGREED THAT PRIOR TO THE SUBMISSION OF QUARTERLY REPORTS, THE INTERN AND SUPERVISOR SHOULD SHARE WITH ONE ANOTHER THE COMMENTS TO BE MADE THEREIN. MR. CULBERSON SUGGESTED AND THE BOARD APPROVED A SIMPLIFIED REPORT FORM FOR THE FIRST QUARTERLY REPORT, ASKING FOR A DESCRIPTION AND EVALUATION OF WORK ASSIGNMENTS. SUBSEQUENT REPORT FORMS ARE TO BE PREPARED BY THE EVALUATION COMMITTEE WITH THE EXPECTATION THAT THE SECOND AND THIRD QUARTERLY REPORTS BE MORE COMPLETE AND MORE FORMALLY STRUCTURED.

IN VIEW OF DR. CHWOROWSKY'S RESIGNATION, IT WAS AGREED THAT EITHER JOHN FEILD BE ASKED TO CHAIR THE EVALUATION COMMITTEE, OR FAILING THAT, THAT THE COMMITTEE ELECT ITS OWN CHAIRMAN. (SUBSEQUENT TO THE CLOSE OF THE MEETING, MR. FEILD AGREED TO ACCEPT THE POSITION). MR. CULBERSON SUGGESTED THAT THE CHAIRMAN OF THE INTERN AND AGENCY SELECTION COMMITTEES SERVE ON THE EVALUATION COMMITTEE. IT WAS AGREED THAT THIS BE DONE, OR THAT THE CHAIRMAN DESIGNATE A COMMITTEE MEMBER TO REPRESENT HIM.

THE MEETING ADJOURNED AT 2:10.

Winston-Salem, N.C.

Dear Mr. Gill:

Many thanks for your recent letter asking about opportunities to work in the field of human relations in the South. After examining your biographical sketch it is my feeling that you would be a valuable addition to the field.

I suggest that you write two places, making known your interest and availability:

Dr. Leslie W. Dunbar, Exec. Dir.
The Southern Regional Council
5 Forsyth Street, N.W.
Atlanta 3, Georgia

and Mr. William H. Koch, Jr.
Director of Community Development
The North Carolina Fund
PO Box 687
Durham, N.C. 27702

I will send a copy of this letter to both men so that they may be on the look-out for a letter from you; please send them your vita sheet.

We will keep your vita on file here and let you know of any openings we hear of in the South.

Sincerely,

Frederick B. Routh

MARCH FOR FREEDOM

The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials (NAIRO), an association of professional intergroup relations workers, having studied the proposed March for Freedom on August 28, 1963 in Washington, D.C., firmly believes that such a demonstration conducted in an orderly manner is an effective and legitimate technique for seeking redress of civil rights grievances with both historical precedent and modern need in obtaining the goal of a free and equal society.

We, therefore, support the March for Freedom as a means of sensitizing the American people and its government to the need for fully integrating the more than 20,000,000 Americans of minority identity into the mainstream of our society, and we urge our members to participate in the march and we offer our professional aid in whatever manner may be appropriate.

SUBJECT: MARCH FOR FREEDOM -- AUGUST 28 -- WASHINGTON, D.C.

The national office of NAIRO has received inquiries from Chapters and individual members as well as from participating organizations about what role, if any, NAIRO would play in the forthcoming MARCH FOR FREEDOM, scheduled for August 28th, 1963 in the Nation's Capital.

The attached Statement of Policy was adopted by the Executive Committee to serve as a guide to members and chapter officers. It is being sent to the leaders of the MARCH FOR FREEDOM and is being released to the news media.

The MARCH FOR FREEDOM is being backed by the The National Council of Churches, The National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice, the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, and the Conference on Religion and Race, by organized labor; by the American Veterans' Committee as well as the regular civil rights groups. It will be an integrated group, demonstrating solidarity of purpose in the determination to secure equal treatment, equal opportunity, and full constitutional rights for all Americans.

NAIRO's Statement of Policy on this matter is in keeping with our role as a professional association; we hope you will find it useful.

Dear Les:

As Chairman of the 1964 NAIRO Conference taking place at the Park Sheraton Hotel, Seventh Avenue and 56 Street in New York City, from October 7 - 9, it is my pleasure to confirm your participation and to acknowledge with gratitude your cooperation.

The Conference delegates will be looking forward with much anticipation to your address on "Implentation in the South" which will be given during the Plenary Session on the topic of "Civil Rights in the United States" on Thursday, October 8 at 9 A.M. in the Ballroom.

If it would be possible, we would appreciate an advance copy of your address or, at the very least, a summary of your proposed remarks. NAIRO's Publicity Committee wishes to secure press and mass media coverage which is the reason for the above request.

We shall send you the Conference program immediately as it leaves the presses and look forward to greeting you at the Conference.

Dear Joe:

I have your notice regarding the meeting of November 10. I can't be there because on that date the Mississippi Council on Human Relations will hold its Annual Meeting and I must attend.

Because of death in the family, I left the NAIRO meeting last month hurriedly without attending to this matter of commission appointments. You may recall that I was designated for two commissions, the other being on the editorial board of the Journal. I cannot take on both assignments.

I think that for various reasons, I had better take the appointment to the editorial commission. Your group is going to meet often I suspect, and I simply can't with any consistency get up to New York. If I can help in any other way than membership, please let me know.

Re: Public Information Commission Meeting

Tuesday, November 10, 1964 - 10:30 A.M.

322 West 45th Street

New York, New York

The first full meeting of the Public Information Commission will be held at the Office of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico on November 10, 1964. We have planned to conclude this meeting with lunch at the Commonwealth office.

It is hoped that in the meeting we will be able to review the concerns and considerations which led to the establishment of the Commission so that we may begin to outline a plan of action for dealing with these basic issues.

Dear Leslie:

As you know, NAIRO is presently conducting a training program for people desirous of entering the field of intergroup relations.

In Mid-January, 1965, the first group of Interns -- and their supervisors -- will be brought together for a two-and-one-half day Evaluation Seminar, at Airlie House, near Warrenton, Virginia. On the second day, we are presenting a series of "Dialogues" for Seminar participants.

On that afternoon -- Friday, January 15 -- two-man panels will cover the areas of Education, Employment and Housing. I am writing to confirm your acceptance to join with Bill Taylor, General Counsel of USCCR, in engaging, that same evening at 7:30, in a discussion of federal programs on the civil rights-intergroup area, their present and anticipated scope and effectiveness. Bill will be leading off with a statement (of approximately 15 minutes duration), to which we would like you to respond, for roughly the same period of time.

Hopefully, at that point, the two of you would pursue an unstructured discussion. If it seems appropriate at a later point, the audience might enter into the exchange. Roughly one-and-one-quarter hours have been blocked out for the Dialogue, but their is no need to limit its length.

We hope you will be able to join us, and arrive in time for a 6:30 dinner.

Dear Leslie:

Now that we have all settled into 1965 I'm sure that your calendar for January and February is well on the way to being filled.

Last Year we had a great deal of difficulty arranging a suitable meeting date and time for the NAIRO Public Information Commission. Hopefully this year will be a little better.

I have scheduled Tuesday, January 19th at 10:00 A.M. for our first meeting of the year, and Wednesday, February 3rd at 10:00 A.M. for our second meeting.

I would appreciate knowing if the January date is convenient. Would January 20th be better?

The meetings will be held in the Sixth Floor Conference Room of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico Offices at 322 West 45th Street, New York City. The meetings have been planned to extend through lunch.

Miss Marian Seifert of my staff will work with us and if I am not available, please contact her if you have any questions.

I would also like to let you know that Mr. J. Alexander Allen is an Ex-Officio member of the Commission and that Mr. Edward Rutledge is a full member of the Commission. New membership roster will be distributed in the near future.

MINUTES

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 13 January '65

Presiding: Kenneth C. Jones, Jr., President
Present: David Cowley, Lloyd Davis, John G. Feild, K. C. Jones, Donald Kirk (representing Connecticut chapter), Galen Martin, Charlotte Meacham, Barbara Moffett, Paul Rilling, Peter Robertson, Joseph Robison, Edward Rutledge, George Schermer, Muriel Snowden, William K. Williams; guests included, Walter Greene, Saal Lesser, Booker T. McGraw, and Dean Short; staff present, Nathan Greene and Fred Routh.

The President convened the Board at 9:45 a.m.; he thanked the Philadelphia Chapter for the reception which they had held for the Board the previous evening; he thanked the Philadelphia Redevelopment Agency for inviting the Board to meet in their Board Room, and he recognized Charlotte Meacham, Chairman of the Philadelphia Chapter of NAIRO.

Charlotte Meacham, on behalf of the Philadelphia Chapter, welcomed the NAIRO Board to the City of Brotherly Love and stated that the revitalized Chapter was pleased that the Board came to the city and thanked the President for his kind words about the reception. She introduced Dean Short of the Redevelopment Agency who bid the Board welcome to their facilities.

The Minutes of the Board Meetings of October 6 and October 9, 1964 (just prior to and following the Annual Conference in New York) were approved as circulated. RILLING-WILLIAMS.

K. C. Jones made the President's Report; he reviewed the responses from President Johnson and Senator Goldwater to the NAIRO Resolutions on Mississippi and Race in Politics -- a cordial response was received from Lee White, who wrote on behalf of the President, a perfunctory reply was received from the Senator. Jones reported that he had made visits to the following Chapters: Massachusetts, Milwaukee, and Chicago; that he had also been to Cincinnati where a Chapter was forming; and that he intended to visit Los Angeles, San Francisco and Detroit. He also reported that that he had personally inspected the 1965 Convention Hotel, the Sherman House in Chicago, and was well pleased with the facilities. Finally, he reported that he had given attention to the workings of NAIRO and had attempted to find ways of helping the national office.

A special report was made by K. C. Jones upon a meeting on December 21, 1964 of a NAIRO Task Force with the staff of Hubert H. Humphrey regarding his proposed role as coordinator of the federal civil rights efforts. George Schermer served as spokesman for the task force and the suggestions then orally made were sent later in a letter to the Vice President's office. (See attached -- special note should be taken of its privileged nature.)

The Executive Director's Report was given by Fred Routh who reported that he had visited meetings of three different Chapters: Atlanta, Connecticut, and Washington; he reported that the Connecticut and Washington Chapters had a busy schedule of monthly meetings and that the Atlanta Chapter had been revitalized. Regarding NAIRO Publications, he reported that the JOURNAL would soon again be a reality, that the first issue would be out in mid-Spring. The Newsletter is now a regular bi-monthly publication and response from the membership has been good. "Guidelines for Municipal Human Relations Committees" had been so well received that it had to be reprinted. The Report of the Human Relations Needs of the District of Columbia is now in the hands of a "guiding" committee and should be out shortly. He reported that the last of the Special Issue of the JOURNAL on "Public School Segregation and Integration in the North" were going fast.

Routh reported that considerable time was spent in career counselling with NAIRO Members and with others seeking to enter the field of intergroup relations. He reported that he referred members and non-members (who were qualified) to openings. The Equal Educational Opportunities Program of the U.S. Office of Education, the Community Action Programs of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity, and the United Planning Organization of Washington, D. C. were seeking sizable staffs. He reported that the Intern Training Program was receiving good staff leadership from Nate Greene but pointed out that this program also was demanding upon his time -- particularly in negotiations with the Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial Foundation and the American Jewish Committee; and in planning sessions. Finally he stated that there would be before the Board later in the meeting a staff proposal, based on a memorandum prepared by George Schermer, outlining a major professional training plan, which he felt was one of the most significant proposals to become before NAIRO in its history.

K. C. Jones added an addendum to his President's Report. He explained that Fred Routh and Nate Greene had gone to the Eleanor Roosevelt Foundation to seek an advance on any grant for administrative support of the Intern Training Program which might be forthcoming. He reported that NAIRO had received a check for $2,500 and he felt that this signified an administrative grant was highly likely.

Petitions were received from two NAIRO groups for Chapter Status; Routh stated that he had reviewed the procedures followed by each group and that they were as NAIRO By-Laws provided, that the proposed Chapter By-Laws were compatible with NAIRO's, and that Charters should be granted to both. After discussion of each, both were granted. ROBERTSON-WILLIAMS.

Lloyd Davis was asked by the President to prepare a memorandum suggesting guidelines for Chapter activities. Approved: COWLEY-SNOWDEN.

It was reported by Paul Rilling that John Hope II had telephoned to say that he regretted not being present but that he had not received notice of the meeting. Routh explained that notices had gone to the entire NAIRO Leadership List and that this was the only complaint of record; he promised to check NAIRO's Leadership mailing list, as used by the lettershop, to see whether Hope's name and address were correct. (A subsequent check revealed they were correct -- this must have been a slip of the Postal Service.)

REPORT OF THE CAREER SERVICE BOARD was made by Nate Greene, who expressed the regret of CSB Chairman, Alexander J. Allen, at his inability to be present. Greene reported that the Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial Foundation would meet Friday, January 15th and the NAIRO proposal for funds for a third class of Interns and supporting administrative funds would be determined at this meeting. He also reported on the following items:

 The evaluation Seminar for class #1 Interns would be held January 14-15-16 at Airlie House, Warrenton, Virginia; planning and participants completed.

 CSB & NAIRO staff working on placements for Interns of class #1; one-third of whom, it is now expected, will remain with training agencies.

 NAIRO has an obligation to help place graduating Interns; will contact Chapter chairmen and others on Leadership List.

 Evaluation Committee will look at three basic questions: 1) Methods of selection and orientation of Interns; 2) Agency experience in training program; 3) What needs to be done to strengthen total program.

 Class #2 Interns are now in their fifth month; reports from the field indicate things go well and that there are no major problems.

 Class #3 will commence training in early summer if the needed funds are made available by the Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial Foundation.

 Class #4 would still be possible in late Fall if further funds are made available by the Foundation.

 The Career Service Board will meet on Friday, January 29th.

The Schermer memorandum was then discussed with the following points made:

 George Schermer had prepared it at the request of NAIRO's President and had based it upon a "think piece" he had done for the Ford Foundation. He does not regard it as a foundation request.

 The NAIRO staff memorandum proposing the adoption by the NAIRO Board of the suggestions contained in the Schermer memorandum called for a major rethinking of NAIRO's role in the field or, at least, a major expansion of any previous role in the professional training area.

 It was agreed that the proposed expanded role was an appropriate one for a professional association with the view toward eventually developing professional training at colleges and universities.

 NAIRO should not become possessive about any training role but should recognize it was moving further into the field to get the job done, to have it practitioner oriented, and to prevent it from becoming imprisoned in an "ivory tower."

 It was agreed that there was nothing novel about a professional or even a trade association providing training for those who worked in their fields. Many made use of continuing education or extension services of established colleges and universities.

 NAIRO has a responsibility to be the initiator of such a program, to define the needs of the field, to set out areas to be covered in curricula, and -- if necessary -- to develop, secure funds for, and administer a professional training program.

 There was general consensus that NAIRO should move ahead as recommended by the staff memorandum.

The question was then raised about how this might affect the proposal currently before the Ford Foundation, submitted by the Institute of Human Relations of the American Jewish Committee as developed by NAIRO's Ad Hoc Training Committee. Edward Rutledge reported that he, David Danzig, and Alexander J. Allen had called on Ford Foundation staff and that it was obvious that the staff did not feel that the proposal, as presently drafted, should be submitted to the Foundation's Board of Trustees. It was agreed that it would be better to withdraw the request than have it rejected. George Schermer said he felt that there would be greater receptivity if the Career Service Board was designated as the managing body of any major training proposal, as suggested in the staff memorandum.

 The Board voted (Davis-Feild) to accept the recommendations contained in the staff memorandum, to negotiate with the Institute of Human Relations and the Ford Foundation to withdraw the current proposal, and to request an opportunity to submit a redrafted proposal, with the Career Service Board designated as program manager.

The Director of the Philadelphia Redevelopment Agency, Francis Lammer, welcomed the Board to Philadelphia and spoke eloquently of his belief in a democratic society and the role of urban redevelopment and renewal in attaining it.

Returning to the question before the house prior to Mr. Lammer's address, the Board voted to have the President of the Association appoint a group to ascertain what are the curricula offerings of the various colleges and university programs in intergroup relations. WILLIAMS-FEILD. It was further agreed, without voting, that such a group might call a meeting of the heads of such programs and that a report should be submitted to both the NAIRO Board and the Career Service Board hopefully in time for the summer meetings of said Boards.

Saal Lesser, Chairman of the Ad Hoc Committee on Annual Conferences, presented an interim report for the committee as follows: The committee raised numerous questions which need answering. 1. What is the purpose of the Annual Conference? 2. Are there really several conferences going on at the same time? 3. Does the conference meet the needs of the Association, nationally? 4. Should it be a working or an informational conference? 5. Are there enough "how to" or "how did we" sessions? 6. Is there sufficient "meat" for professional growth? 7. Is there sufficient opportunity for newcomers? 8. Should a central employment service be made available at the conference? 9. Can staff needs and administrator needs be met at same conference? 10. Can we assure a high intellectual content in presentations from related fields? 11. Should the conference be people-oriented or program-oriented (or to what extent)? 12. Is there too much emphasis on Negro-white rleations, too little on others? 13. Should sessions be focused by type of agency, i.e.: federal, state or local -- private and public? 14. How can we ascertain problems in the community in which the conference is held? 15. How can we deal with questions of pluralism? After discussion the Board voted to ask the Ad Hoc Annual Conference Committee to continue its deliberations and to report to the next Board Meeting -- report to be mailed 10 days in advance, if possible. DAVIS-COWLEY.

TREASURER'S REPORT was made by Paul M. Rilling; it was modified in discussion; a final budget proposal will be submitted at the next Board meeting. The Budget as modified will become operative, the Board voted, at such time as 1. At least $7,500 is received from the Taconic Foundation or elsewhere; and 2. Significant administrative funds are found for the Intern Training Program. RILLING-MARTIN. Lloyd Davis said it should be understood this was the Budget for 1965 which had just been adopted, there was consensus among the Board members. The Board approved two issues of the JOURNAL as part of the 1965 Budget with the provision that more might be issued if extra funds were found. ROBISON-DAVIS.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN'S REPORTS were called for by the President.

The Inter-Professional Liaison Committee Report: Maurice Fagan. The Chairman has been feeling out other professional bodies to see if we might work out meaningful relationships. The committee had no authority to act to formally set up such relationships. Priority was given to exploring with those professional bodies with which we have little contact but with which we should have close contact. Those listed were:

I. International Association of Chiefs of Police (Washington, D. C.)
II. Professional Educators -- NEA and Teachers' Union; top NAIRO officials to meet with their officials to:
   A. Exchange professional articles for JOURNALS.
   B. Arrange attendance at each other's conferences.
   C. Establish contact and liaison between respective sub-committees.
   D. Keep in contact with each other.

III. Schools of Business
IV. Health and Welfare Agencies (our partners of the next decade).
V. Conferences of Municipalities, Mayors and City Managers.
VI. Seminarians. VII. Bar Associations. VIII. Sociologists.
IX. Psychologists. X. Statisticians.

The Board accepted the report and asked the Committee to continue its efforts and to proceed to meet with respective bodies. ROBERTSON-MEACHAM.

1965 Annual Conference Committee Report -- given by William K. Williams. NAIRO's President, K. C. Jones, has visited site and found it to his liking. The Conference will be held at the Sherman House in Chicago, October 19-21; there will be a Board meeting the day prior to the Conference (Oct. 18) and the morning following it (Oct. 22). A reception for the Board and early arrivals will also be held the evening prior to the Conference.

 Edward Marciniak is overall Conference Chairman; John McKnight is heading subcommittee on program; full Conference Committee has yet to meet.

 Conference Guidelines from Saal Lesser's Committee would be welcomed.

 An outline of the Conference, day-by-day and almost session-by-session was presented for discussion; there was general consensus that the proposed Conference looked good; in addition to suggested alternate speakers, two specific suggestions seemed agreed to: 1. Extensive use should be made of NAIRO members as speakers and panelists; and 2. Time should be provided for any Commission to report to the entire membership.

Life Membership Committee Report was given by Booker T. McGraw who raised four questions for Board determination: 1. Should we push now for Life Memberships? 2. Don't Life Memberships sacrifice future income for immediate needs? 3. Is $300 for Life Membership enough? (Figure was set when regular dues were $15; they are now $20, thus Life Membership sould be $400.) 4. If we raise it to $400 will members pay it? The Board voted to raise Life Memberships to $400, effective at the close of the 1965 Annual Conference and to notify members of this action through the NAIRO newsletter. RILLING-COWLEY. The Board also voted to provide all Life Members with a suitable wall plaque or scroll. RILLING-KIRK.

Lloyd Davis asked for recognition for a point of special privilege; he was recognized. He moved that the next Board meeting be held in New Haven, Connecticut on Saturday, April 10th; seconded by Robertson; and, after discussion by the Board, ADOPTED.

Grievance Committee Report was given by Walter Greene, Chairman, who stated that no grievances had been received during his tenure and that none had been left over from the previous docket.

Special Committee on the FBI Report was read by K. C. Jones from a letter from the Committee Chairman, Corneff Taylor, and from materials submitted to Taylor by other members of the Committee. Not all had responded. Jones commended Charlotte Meacham for her report to Taylor. It was agreed that this was an important report, that it should be sent back to Taylor for completion, that it should be available to the Board at its April meeting, that it should be considered for the Journal, and that it might be used at a general session of the Annual Conference.

Brief reports were heard from the Chicago, Massachusetts, Michigan and Philadelphia Chapters.

By consensus the question of funds for local chapters was postponed until the next meeting.

By consensus the question of a raise for the Journal Editor was postponed until the 1965 Budget could be set.

The meeting adjourned at 5:45.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS
2027 MASSACHUSETTS AVENUE, N. W. • WASHINGTON 6, D. C. • 387-7050
FREDERICK B. ROUTH, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

CONFIDENTIAL

December 30, 1964

The Honorable Hubert H. Humphrey
Vice-President Elect
Senate Office Building
Washington, D. C.

Attention: Mr. John Stewart

Dear Mr. Humphrey:

The Executive Board of NAIRO has asked me to tell you how pleased and encouraged we are that President Lyndon B. Johnson has asked you to serve as overall Coordinator for the Federal Civil Rights program. We thank you for your invitation to submit recommendations pertaining to the coordination of the several programs and activities of the Federal establishment, as required under the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and other statutes and the several presidential Executive Orders. As you know, we met with members of your staff on Monday, December 21. At that time, we presented the several recommendations which follow. In addition, of course, Mr. Stewart and your staff raised many questions to which we responded. In this letter we are outlining only the points which we made in our initial presentation.

In outlining our recommendations we attempted to put ourselves in your shoes and to think of what should be done immediately in the way of coordinating the programs which are newly required by law and Executive Order. We do not consider it appropriate at this point to suggest new programs, although we might wish at some other time to do so. We are conscious of the fact that the authority and responsibility for administering the laws and orders has been conferred upon several different departments, divisions and independent Commission. It has seemed to us that it is tremendously important that the several programs be coordinated and at the same time each of the agencies should be held clearly and solely responsible for the functions which have delegated to it. We, therefore, advise against the creation of another layer of administrative machinery. Undoubtedly, a few highly qualified assistants will be necessary. It is suggested that those assistants be selected in terms of their combined knowledge of both civil rights and high level administration. It would be extremely important, of course, that they be thoroughly familiar with the Federal establishment. Finally, it would seem appropriate that they should function entirely as your personal voice and arm, rather than by virtue of any independent title or post.

The following are what we consider to be the key elements of high level coordination of the series of independent administrative programs.

1. Posture and Policy - We believe that the most important single element of getting work done is for all responsible parties and the general public to be fully apprised concerning the Administration's posture on various policy matters and of the Administration's expectations as to performance. While such policy and posture is always implicit in the law and in the Executive Orders, it is a psychological fact that in an arena which is fraught with many conflicting political pressures, administrative policy must be frequently and consistently restated and re-emphasized. Unless this is done, policy becomes fuzzy and performance tends to lag. It would seem advisable that the Vice-President as Coordinator should spell out the Administration's objectives for each title of the Civil Rights Act, for each of the Executive Orders and for each agency which has either explicit or implicit responsibilities under the laws and orders pertaining to civil rights. These stated objectives would then become the standards for performance for each agency.

2. Intelligence - In order to effectively evaluate performance, it would be necessary for the Vice-President as Coordinator to be regularly and evaluatively briefed concerning the civil rights situation in all parts of the nation and concerning the posture and performance for each of the responsible agencies. Such an intelligent operation requires appropriate planning and machinery and competent staff. NAIRO suggests that this machinery is already provided for in the U. S. Civil Rights Commission and that additional machinery is not required. The CRC, the Federal establishment in general, and the public should be fully apprised of the fact that this is the proper function of the CRC and that the Administration is relying upon it for this service.

3. Coordination - Whereas this entire letter pertains to the coordinating function in its broader aspects, within this sub-section we are thinking of coordination in a more specific administrative sense. There are two groups of agencies that need to be coordinated.

A. Those that have been delegated primary functions under the Civil Rights Act and Executive Orders and those that have secondary or implicit responsibilities, such as the responsibilities of several agencies under Title VI. In this arena it is important that all responsible units of the Federal establishment move forward according to a common strategy, that overlapping of functions be eliminated, that conflicts between agencies be resolved, and that there be maximum interagency communication and cooperation. It would seem appropriate that there be some broad top level advisory inter-agency council or committee, the membership to consist of heads of the responsible agencies and those deputies or assistants who have been assigned specific responsibilities for civil rights. Such a Council should meet a few times a year to receive general reports of progress, to be briefed on overall strategy, and to receive encouragement and stimulation from the Administration. It is recognized that this council would be too large and unwieldy to serve as a planning unit within this general council. The Vice-President should establish as many ad hoc task forces or committees as are necessary to plan for inter-agency programs pertaining to specific problems and to work out solutions to overlapping or conflicting functions. (It is assumed that different groupings or agencies will be involved with respect to particular problems of law, manpower, training, education, housing, poverty, etc. Rarely, if ever, will more than a few agencies be concerned with specific problems.)

Either the Vice-President or his designee should serve as the convener and the Chairman of both the overall advisory council and each of the ad hoc task forces.

4. Assertion of Top Level Authority - The Vice-President as Coordinator and/or his immediate assistants should serve as the informal prodders on behalf of the Administration. No formal machinery should be established for this purpose. Inasmuch as the responsibilities defined under the law have already been clearly conferred upon the agencies, the responsibilities of each to the President, to the Congress, and to the nation should not be clouded by any interposed authority. Nevertheless, each agency should be aware that the Administration is interested and concerned about its performance and is informed.

5. Public Information - The problems and the functions of the several agencies responsible for civil rights are too varied to be consolidated into a single operating unit. In like manner, it is obvious that if all information concerning the civil rights functions of the Federal government were to be centralized, the message would be too complex and involved to be readily understood by the unsophisticated citizen. It seems necessary, therefore, that each of the responsible agencies should have the freedom to create and disseminate its own information concerning its functions. On the other hand, the average citizen does not readily distinguish between the various agencies of the Federal establishment and is inclined to look to the Federal government as a whole for help or as a policing authority. It is important, therefore, that so far as possible the several agencies should speak with a uniform voice concerning civil rights. A few centrally planned informational programs and informational bulletins describing the whole of Federal civil rights functions should be devised. In addition, the coordinator in consultation with the several agencies, should establish some broad standards and guidelines concerning the dissemination of information from each of the agencies.

6. Relationships to State and Municipal Agencies -- The civil rights functions of the Federal government should be related to those of the State and municipal governments in such a manner that the Federal government is seen as a leader, helper, strengthener, and standard-setter for local efforts. Every possible step should be taken to avoid the emergence of competition and conflict between the Federal effort and legitimate and sincere State and local efforts. It is strongly recommended that the Vice-President as Coordinator should arrange to have this principle enunciated as policy and that a council of Federal, State and local civil rights officials should be established at the earliest feasible date.

7. Federal Inter-Group Personnel and Training Programs - We know that it goes without saying that the very extensive responsibilities now assumed by the Federal government in the civil rights field will require the recruitment of the most competent and experienced staff. We do not think that this letter is the appropriate place to detail personnel standards. NAIRO offers its services in helping to draft such standards. It is equally evident that the Federal, State and local activities in civil rights have expanded so steadily that experienced staff is in very short supply. It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that the several Federal agencies should jointly plan for an in-service training program. NAIRO has had considerable experience in training for professional roles in inter-group relations and offers its services.

Again, we wish to express our gratification with your appointment to this tremendously important function and we want you to know that we stand ready at all times to be of assistance.

Yours very sincerely,

Kenneth C. Jones, Jr.

TO: Editorial Board, Journal of Intergroup Relations

FROM: John V. P. Lassoe, Jr., chairman

RE: Our First Meeting

NAIRO's new Editorial Board will hold its first meeting next month.

DATE: 11 February 1965 (Thursday)

PLACE: National Community Relations Advisory Council
Room 1530, 55 West 42nd Street

TIME: 12:30 p.m. until 2:30 p.m. (luncheon meeting)

This will be an important meeting. It is our first, for one thing, and we are not going to meet very often. Perhaps more important, it will probably be our only meeting before the Journal resumes publication, which means that this is the time to review past editorial policy and guidelines -- to see if any changes are in order.

I am happy to report that Samuel Spiegler will continue to serve as Editor. As in the past, he bears the major burdens of editorial decision and publication; our role -- an important one -- is to provide him with broad policy guidance.

Will you let me know (postcard enclosed) whether or not you will be present. Please try.

OUT-OF-TOWNERS. I know that you probably cannot make a special trip to attend this meeting, but I wanted you to know about it just in case you were planning to be in town that day. Please send any written comments or suggestions that you might have.

Good wishes to you.

John

Dear Les:

Another smashing job! . . . And your voice projection was simply incredible.

In the week which has followed the close of the Seminar we have all been kicking around your theory of shaking up the bottle. As you might have expected, most people wish to regard the bottle as containing a vintage wine, with the sediment best left where it is. But, at least if the bottle presently remains unshaken, the same cannot be said of your Friday night audience. Oh yes, send along, if you must, your bill for travel expenses. I will see to it that its approval comes up for a prompt vote of the NAIRO Board of Directors.

AMENDED BY-LAWS OF THE

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

JANUARY 1965 WASHINGTON, D. C.

AMENDED BY-LAWS

of the

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

ARTICLE I. NAME

The name of this organization shall be the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials.

ARTICLE II. PURPOSE

The purpose of the National Association of Intergroup Relations shall be:

1. To encourage the collection, compilation and dissemination of ideas, information and research among organizations and individuals engaged in the improvement of intergroup relations;

2. To facilitate the exchange of knowledge, experience and research among governmental agencies and private organizations dealing with racial, religious, ethnic and cultural relations;

3. To advance generally the science, processes, and art of intergroup relations and to improve the standards of work in that field, advancing technical and professional knowledge, standards and practice.

ARTICLE III. ORGANIZATION AND ELECTIONS

1. The Association shall consist of one organization representing the entire body of the membership. The Association shall maintain a central headquarters office as designated by the Board of Directors. The Association may establish divisions within the organization as required.

2. The membership of the Association shall determine policies of the Association at the annual meeting, and subject to the mail ballot provisions, shall elect in this order, the Board of Directors, the Officers, and the Nominating Committee for the following year.

ARTICLE IV. MEMBERSHIP

1. Membership shall be limited to individuals and shall be of three classes:

a. Active: Any person primarily engaged in intergroup relations: in a professional staff capacity, whether salaried or voluntary; as a recognized authority; as a member of the governing body of any agency or commission, or otherwise substantially engaged in the intergroup relations work of an agency or commission related to this field.

b. Associate: Any person subscribing to the basic objectives and program of the Association.

c. Student: Any person enrolled in a recognized college or university and working toward a degree with the intention of entering the field of intergroup relations.

2. The Board of Directors shall have authority over admission to membership in NAIRO, but may delegate to the Membership Committee, or its Chairman, or to the Executive Director, the power to receive and act upon applications for active membership, provided that such delegates shall, wherever feasible, consult with active NAIRO members in the area from which the application is received. Subject to review by the membership at the annual business meeting, the Board of Directors may suspend or remove from membership, after opportunity for hearings and fair notice thereof, any person whose conduct is deemed harmful to NAIRO.

ARTICLE V. DUTIES AND PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERSHIP

1. The Association shall establish and maintain a schedule of annual fees and dues for the two classes of membership.

2. Each Active member shall be entitled to: vote at any membership meeting; hold office; participate in conferences; serve, by appointment, on committees; receive all regular and special information services; and utilize the services of the Personnel Exchange and such other special services as shall be determined by the Board.

3. Each Associate member shall be entitled to: participate in conferences; serve, by appointment, on committees; and receive all regular informational services.

4. Each Student member shall be entitled to receive all regular informational services and to participate in conferences of the Association.

5. Any individual, organization or agency may subscribe to the regular informational services of the Association. Special information or other services may be rendered upon request, with or without charge, as the Board of Directors may determine.

ARTICLE VI. OFFICERS

1. The officers of the Association shall be a President, a President-elect, two Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer and a Secretary. The President-elect, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer and Secretary shall take office as soon as elected, and shall serve until their successors are chosen; the President shall succeed to his office from the position of President-elect, when the new President-elect shall have been chosen. Elections shall take place at each annual membership meeting (Article X, Sect. 1) or by mail ballot (Article X, Sect. 8).

2. An Executive Director may be appointed by the Board, to serve as the Administrative officer of the Association, subject to the direction of the Board, which may, among other duties, delegate to the Executive Director the administrative functions of the Treasurer and Secretary. The Board of Directors may also appoint such other staff as it shall deem desirable to perform such duties as may be prescribed by the Board of Directors.

3. The President shall be the principal executive officer of the corporation and shall in general supervise and control all of the business and affairs of the corporation. He shall preside at all meetings of members and of the Board of Directors. He may sign, with the Secretary or any other proper officer of the corporation authorized by the Board of Directors, any deeds, mortgages, bonds, contracts, or other instruments which the Board of Directors have authorized to be executed, except in cases where the signing and execution thereof shall be expressly delegated by the Board of Directors, or by these by-laws, or by statute to some other officer or agent of the corporation; and in general shall perform all duties incident to the office of President, and such other duties as may be assigned by the Board of Directors from time to time. He shall make available to the President-elect whatever information in his judgment will enable the latter to succeed him most efficiently.

4. The President-elect, in addition to having the regular powers and duties of any member and of any member of the Board of Directors, shall also be responsible for familiarizing himself as much as possible with the functionings of the association.

5. In the absence of the President or in the event of his inability or refusal to act, the Vice-President (or in the event there be more than one Vice-President, the Vice-Presidents in the order designated, or in the absence of any designation, then in the order of their election) shall perform the duties of the President, and when so acting, shall have all the powers of and be subject to all the restrictions upon the President. Any Vice-President shall perform other duties as from time to time be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

6. If required by the Board of Directors, the Treasurer shall give a bond for the faithful discharge of his duties in such sum and with such surety or sureties as the Board of Directors shall determine. He shall have charge and custody of and be responsible for all funds and securities of the corporation; receive and give receipts for moneys due and payable to the corporation from any source whatsoever, and deposit all such moneys in the name of the corporation in such banks, trust companies or other depositaries as shall be selected in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws; and in general perform all the duties incident to the office of Treasurer and such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

7. The Secretary shall keep the minutes of the meetings of the members and of the Board of Directors in one or more books provided for that purpose; see that all the notices are duly given in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws or as required by law; be custodian of the corporate records and of the seal of the corporation and see that the seal of the corporation is affixed to all documents, the execution of which on behalf of the corporation under its seal is duly authorized in accordance with the provisions of these by-laws; keep a register of the post office address of each member which shall be furnished to the Secretary by such member; and in general perform all duties incident to the office of Secretary and such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him by the President or by the Board of Directors.

8. A vacancy in any office because of death, resignation, removal, disqualification or otherwise, may be filled by the Board of Directors for the unexpired portion of the term, except that, if the office of President-elect shall become vacant, it shall remain unfilled until the next regular election of officers, at which time the members shall elect a President for the immediately following term, as well as all the regular officers.

ARTICLE VII. BOARD OF DIRECTORS

1. The affairs of the Association shall be managed by a Board of Directors which shall consist of not less than eighteen (18) members and not more than fifty (50). Eighteen Directors shall be elected by the membership, in accordance with the provisions of Article X; in addition, any of the six (6) officers who is not otherwise a member of the Board shall serve ex-officio during his term of office; in addition those members of NAIRO who also serve as Chapter Chairmen will serve on the Board during their term of office; the President of NAIRO, with the advice and consent of the Board, shall appoint ten (10) Regional Chairmen who shall serve on the Board for one-year terms or until their successors are chosen. Each President of NAIRO, upon the termination of his term of office as such, shall automatically become a member of the Board for a term of three years from and after the date of termination of his office.

2. The term of office of the eighteen elected members of the Board shall be for three years, or until their successors are chosen. Six (6) members shall be elected to the Board of Directors yearly. Vacancies shall be filled by appointment of the Board, until the next regular election, at which time a member shall be elected for the unexpired term.

3. The Board of Directors shall report its actions at the Association's annual meeting and shall hold an annual meeting of the Board, immediately after the annual meeting of members, at the same place, without notice. The Board may call such special meetings as may be necessary, at such time and places as it may determine. Special meetings may be called by or at the request of the President or any five (5) directors. Notice of any special meeting of the Board of Directors shall be given at least five (5) days previously thereto by written notice delivered personally or sent by mail or telegram to each director at his address as shown by the records of the corporation. If mailed, such notice shall be deemed to be delivered when deposited in the United States mail in a sealed envelope, such notice shall be deemed to be delivered when the telegram is delivered to the telegram company. Any director may waive notice of any meeting. The attendance of a director at any meeting shall constitute a waiver or notice of such meeting, except where a director attends a meeting for the express purpose of objecting to the transaction of any business because the meeting is not lawfully called or convened. Neither the business to be transacted at, nor the purpose of, any regular or special meeting of the Board need be specified in the notice or waiver of notice of such meeting, unless specifically required by law or by these by-laws.

4. a. The act of a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which quorum is present shall be the act of the Board of Directors, except where otherwise provided by law or by these by-laws.

b. At meetings of the Board, seven (7) shall constitute a quorum. If less than seven (7) of the directors are present, a majority of those present may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

ARTICLE VIII. EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE BOARD

1. There shall be established an Executive Committee within the Board of Directors consisting of the officers and three (3) other members of the Board elected by that body. The Executive Director, if any, shall be a non-voting member of this Committee.

2. a. The Executive Committee shall act for the Board between meetings of the Board.

b. A majority of the members of the Executive Committee shall constitute a quorum and a majority of those members present at a meeting shall prevail on all questions if a quorum is present.

ARTICLE IX. COMMITTEES

1. The standing committees of the Association shall be:

a. A Nominating Committee composed of the Chairman of each duly recognized NAIRO Chapter and three members appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Board, the duties of which shall be to nominate for presentation at the Annual Meeting or by mail ballot a slate of Officers and Directors, with at least one candidate for each vacancy. The Chairman of the Nominating Committee shall be named by the President from among its members.

b. A Membership Committee, which shall aid in securing members and advise the Board of Directors (and Executive Director, if any) on problems relating to eligibility for membership in the Association. The Chairman of this Committee and its members shall be appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Board. The Chairman, if not otherwise a member of the Board, shall serve ex officio during his term in office.

c. A Conference Committee, which shall plan and organize the program for the annual meeting, subject to the Board's approval. The Board shall appoint the Chairman and members of this Committee.

d. A Legal Committee, which shall advise the Board of Directors (and Executive Director, if any) on legal matters relating to the Association. The Chairman of this Committee and its members shall be appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Board. The Chairman shall be designated as Legal Counsel and, if not otherwise a member of the Board, shall serve ex officio during his term in office.

2. The Board may authorize the formation of other Committees, not having and exercising the authority of the Board in the management of the Association. Subject to the approval of the Board, the President shall have the power to make interim appointments to the committees authorized by the Board and to create interim Committees and make appointments thereto.

3. Persons not members of the Association may be appointed to serve on the Conference and special Committees.

4. Each member of a Committee shall continue as such until his successor has been appointed, unless the committee shall be sooner terminated, or unless such appointing authority in each case shall have the power of removal, whenever in his or its opinion the best interest of the Association are thereby served. Vacancies in any Committee shall be filled in the same manner provided for the original appointments.

5. a. Unless otherwise provided in the resolution of the Board of Directors designating a committee, a majority of the whole committee shall constitute a quorum and the act of a majority of the members present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the committee.

b. Each committee may adopt rules for its own government not inconsistent with these by-laws or with rules adopted by the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE X. MEETINGS OF MEMBERS

1. The Association shall hold an annual meeting of members and such other meetings as may be necessary to conduct the affairs of the Association, the time to be fixed by the Board of Directors.

2. Special meetings of the members may also be called either by the President, or not less than one-tenth of the members having voting rights.

3. The Board of Directors may designate any place, either within or without the State of Illinois, as the place of meeting for any annual meeting or for any special meeting called by the Board of Directors. If no designation is made or if a special meeting be otherwise called, the place of meeting shall be the registered office of the corporation in the State of Illinois, provided, however, that if all of the members shall meet at any time and place, whether within or without the State of Illinois, and consent to the holding of a meeting, such meeting shall be valid without call or notice, and at such meeting any corporate action may be taken.

4. Written or printed notice stating place, day and hour of any meeting of members shall be delivered, either personally or by mail, to each member entitled to vote at such meeting, not less than five nor more than forty days before the date of such meeting, by or at the direction of the President, or the Secretary, or the officers or persons calling the meeting. In case of a special meeting or when required by statute or by these by-laws, the purpose for which the meeting is called shall be stated in the notice. If mailed, the notice of meeting shall be deemed delivered when deposited in the United States mail addressed to the member at his address as it appears on the records of the corporation, with postage thereon prepaid.

5. Any action required to be taken at a meeting of the members of the corporation, or any other action which may be taken at a meeting of members may be taken without a meeting if a consent in writing, setting forth the action so taken, shall be signed by all of the members entitled to vote with respect to the subject matter thereof.

6. The members holding one-tenth of the votes which may be cast at any meeting shall constitute a quorum at such meeting. If a quorum is not present at any meeting of members, a majority of the members present may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

7. At any meeting of members, a member entitled to vote may vote either in person or by proxy executed in writing by the member or by his duly authorized attorney-in-fact. No proxy shall be valid after eleven months from the date of its execution unless otherwise provided in the proxy.

8. The Board of Directors may authorize elections of directors and officers to be conducted by mail.

ARTICLE XI. CONTRACTS, CHECKS, DEPOSITS AND FUNDS

1. The Board of Directors may authorize an officer or officers, agent or agents of the corporation, in addition to the officers so authorized by these by-laws, to enter into any contract or execute and deliver any instrument in the name of and on behalf of the corporation and such authority may be general or confined to specific instances.

2. All checks, drafts or other orders for the payment of money, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness issued in the name of the corporation, shall be signed by such officer or officers, agent or agents of the corporation and in such manner as shall from time to time be determined by resolution of the Board of Directors. In the absence of such determination by the Board of Directors, such instruments shall be signed by the Treasurer or an Assistant Treasurer and countersigned by the President or a Vice-President of the corporation.

3. All funds of the corporation shall be deposited from time to time to the credit of the corporation in such banks, trust companies or other depositaries as the Board of Directors may select.

4. The Board of Directors may accept on behalf of the corporation any contribution, gift, bequest or devise for the general purposes or for any special purpose of the corporation.

ARTICLE XII. BOOKS AND RECORDS

The corporation shall keep correct and complete books and records of account and shall also keep minutes of the proceedings of its members, Board of Directors and committees having any of the authority of the Board of Directors, and shall keep at the registered or principal office a record giving the names and addresses of the members entitled to vote. All books and records of the corporation may be inspected by any member, or his agent or attorney, for any proper purpose at any reasonable time.

ARTICLE XIII. SEAL

The Board of Directors shall provide a corporate seal which shall be in the form of a circle and shall have inscribed thereon the name of the corporation and the words "Corporate Seal. Illinois."

ARTICLE XIV. WAIVER OF NOTICE

Whenever any notice whatever is required to be given under the provisions of the General Net for Profit Corporation Act of Illinois, or under the provisions of the articles of incorporation or by the by-laws of the corporation, a waiver thereof in writing signed by the person entitled to such notice, whether before or after the time stated therein, shall be deemed equivalent to the giving of such notice.

ARTICLE XV. REGULATION OF INCOME

No part of the net earnings of the Association shall in any way inure to the benefit of any member, director or officer, but this shall not preclude the reimbursement for expenses incurred as such or the payment of compensation authorized by the Board of Directors to the Executive Director and other persons for services rendered as such. The Association shall not engage in carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation.

ARTICLE XIV. AMENDMENTS

These by-laws may be amended by a majority vote at the annual meeting. Written notice of any proposed amendments shall be submitted to the membership at least 30 days in advance of the meeting; including either the verbatim proposal, or a fair digest which is sufficient to clearly indicate the contents of such proposal.

ARTICLE XVII. PARLIAMENTARY PROCEEDINGS

In official meeting of the Association, Roberts Rules of Order shall determine parliamentary procedures.

ARTICLE XVIII. LOCAL NAIRO CHAPTERS

1. Members, and only members, of the Association living in the same vicinity may form a local NAIRO chapter to carry out, in their locality, the purposes stated in Article II of the by-laws.

2. Such a chapter shall be recognized as an official local chapter of the Association when, after application to the Board of Directors, it receives a charter from the Board of Directors.

3. Such a chapter, having been chartered by the Board of Directors is entitled to call itself the _____ Chapter of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials.

4. Every local chapter affiliated with the Association shall abide by the principles set forth in the by-laws of the Association as interpreted by the Board of Directors.

5. Every local chapter shall elect a chairman, a vice-chairman and a secretary. It may elect or appoint such other officers as it deems necessary to function effectively.

6. Every local chapter shall report once a year to the Board of Directors, through the Executive Director the following.

a. Names and addresses of its officers for the coming year.

b. A summary of its activities for the preceding year.

7. No local chapter may levy dues, fees, assessments or fines upon its members except by written permission of the Board of Directors.

8. No local chapter shall engage in any activity which may be construed as carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting, to influence legislation; nor shall any local chapter participate in, or intervene in (including the publishing or distributing of statements), any political campaign on behalf of any candidate for public office; nor act in any manner contrary to the by-laws or policies of the Association.

9. The charter of a local chapter may be revoked after due process for due cause when, by decision of the Board of Directors, its continued existence is deemed detrimental to the integrity, effectiveness, or professional standards of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials. Such revocation of a charter shall in no way affect the membership status of persons in the Association.

As Amended through
January 1965

NAIRO BOARD MEETING

MINUTES

NEW YORK, N.Y. 6 OCTOBER 64

THE MEETING OF THE BOARD WAS CALLED TO ORDER BY THE PRESIDENT, ALEXANDER J. ALLEN AT 8:15 P.M. AT THE PARK-SHERATON HOTEL. PRESENT: GEORGE CULBERSON, LESLIE DUNBAR, HAROLD FLEMING, K.C. JONES, JOHN LASSOE, HERMAN LONG, GALEN MARTIN, LOUIS MASON, BARBARA MOFFETT, PAUL RILLING, JOSEPH ROBISON, EDWARD RUTLEDGE, MURIEL SNOWDEN AND PHILIP WARING. THE FOLLOWING GUESTS WERE ALSO PRESENT: FRANK BALDAU, SAAL LESSER, JOHN MCKNIGHT, CHARLOTTE MEACHAM. STAFF PRESENT: PENELOPE WRIGHT, SECRETARY; NATHAN GREENE, INTERN PROGRAM COORDINATOR; FREDERICK B. ROUTH, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR. OTHER BOARD MEMBERS AND GUESTS CAME IN DURING THE MEETING.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

MR. ALLEN STATED THAT HE INTENDED TO MAKE A "STEWARDSHIP" REPORT TO THE NATIONAL CONFERENCE AND THAT HE WOULD REVIEW THE MAIN ITEMS WITH THE BOARD. HE MADE THE FOLLOWING POINTS: 1. NAIRO HAS GAINED TWO NEW CHAPTERS IN THE PAST YEAR AND ANOTHER IS IN THE OFFING; 2. NAIRO MEMBERSHIP HAS INCREASED SO THAT WE NOW HAVE 1.100 MEMBERS; 3. NAIRO'S FINANCIAL SITUATION IS NOW "UNCOMMONLY" GOOD, ALL DEBTS ARE PAID AND WE ARE IN THE BLACK. 4. NAIRO'S INTERN TRAINING PROGRAM IS RUNNING WELL, THERE ARE 50 INTERNS WITH 37 AGENCIES --HE COMMENDED NATE GREENE FOR HIS OUTSTANDING WORK AS INTERN PROGRAM COORDINATOR; 5. HE WAS PLEASED WITH THE OVER-ALL ADMINISTRATION OF THE ASSOCIATION AND COMMENDED THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR AND THE SECRETARY FOR THEIR WORK.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S REPORT

FRED ROUTH COMMENTED ON THE WORK-LOAD OF THE OFFICE, STATING THAT THE VOLUME OF WORK WAS GREATER THAN THE SMALL STAFF COULD HANDLE AND THAT PRIORITIES HAD TO BE GIVEN TO THE MORE IMPORTANT ASPECTS OF THE WORK AND THIS MEANT THAT SOME ROUTINE THINGS WERE NOT DONE AS PROMPTLY OR AS WELL AS HE WISHED. HE LISTED THE ASSOCIATION'S UNDERTAKINGS FROM SEVERAL POINTS OF VIEW. SERVICE TO THE NATION: TECHNICAL CONSULTATIONS ON THE CIVIL RIGHTS BILL; CONFERENCES WITH WHITE HOUSE STAFF; CONFERENCES ON THE GREAT SOCIETY; ASSISTANCE TO THE COMMUNITY RELATIONS SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE; ADVISORY ROLE AND TRAINING ASSISTANCE TO DEPARTMENT OF STATE'S VIP-GUIDES PROGRAM; TRAINING ASSISTANCE TO THE POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT; ASSISTANCE TO PRESIDENT'S COMMITTEE ON EQUAL OPPORTUNITY IN HOUSING; CONFERENCE WITH SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION; CONFERENCES WITH DEFENSE DEPARTMENT AND ITS SUBSIDIARIES. SERVICE TO THE FIELD: ACTIVITIES IN PROFESSIONAL PERSONNEL RECRUITMENT AND REFERRAL TO FEDERAL, STATE AND MUNICIPAL AGENCIES AND TO PRIVATE AGENCIES; ATTENDANCE AT CCHR, UNIVERSITY OF BUFFALO LAW SCHOOL, SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL, STATE DEPARTMENT EMPLOYMENT POLICIES, NATIONAL CIVIL LIBERTIES CLEARING HOUSE, NATIONAL CIVIL RIGHTS LEADERSHIP AND OTHER CONFERENCES. ASSISTANCE TO CAREER SERVICE BOARD.

AND INTERN TRAINING PROGRAM. WIDE DISTRIBUTION OF "GUIDELINES FOR MUNICIPAL HUMAN RELATIONS COMMITTEES". EFFORTS WITH APPOINTING AUTHORITIES TO SECURE APPOINTMENT OF PROFESSIONAL RATHER THAN POLITICAL PERSONS TO OPENINGS IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS AGENCIES. SERVICE TO MEMBERS: CAREER COUNSELLING - 110 NAIRO MEMBERS AND 47 NON-MEMBERS WERE BY THE OFFICE IN THE LAST YEAR; TIME WITH EACH, 20 MINUTES TO TWO HOURS. NINE OF THE FIFTEEN CHAPTERS WERE VISITED DURING THE YEAR. SALARY DISCUSSIONS WITH MAYORS OR CIVIL SERVICE PERSONNEL HAD LED TO THREE SIGNIFICANT SALARY INCREASES. MOST OF THE FIFTY INTERNS SELECTED FOR THE INTERN PROGRAM WERE INTERVIEWED BY THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR WHO SERVED ON MOST OF THE INTERVIEWING PANELS TO GIVE CONTINUITY TO THEIR APPROACH. FINALLY, HE REPORTED THAT THE NAIRO NEWSLETTER WAS BACK ON A REGULAR SCHEDULE AND THAT IT WOULD COME OUT EVERY-OTHER-MONTH.

IN THE ENSUING DISCUSSION, JOHN MCKNIGHT RESTATED THE SUGGESTIONS BY THE CHICAGO CHAPTER TO THE BOARD MEETING HELD IN LOUISVILLE: 1. NAIRO SHOULD PUBLISH A "TOPFLIGHT" PROFESSIONAL JOURNAL (K.C. JONES RESPONDED THAT HE WAS PROPOSING RESUMPTION OF PUBLICATION TO THE BOARD MEETING FOLLOWING THE ANNUAL MEETING); 2. THERE IS NEED FOR A PERSONNEL REGISTRY AND PLACEMENT SERVICE (ROUTH EXPLAINED THAT NAIRO HAS HAD THIS SERVICE AND THAT MANY MEMBERS MADE USE OF IT); 3. THERE SHOULD BE A MONTHLY NEWSLETTER WITH NOTICES OF CHAPTER MEETINGS, ETC. (ROUTH REFERRED TO HIS REPORT AND THE POLICY OF A BIMONTHLY NEWSLETTER); 4. A RESEARCH COMMITTEE SHOULD BE RE-ESTABLISHED (JONES SAID THAT HE HAD AN APPOINTMENT IN MIND FOR THE CHAIRMANSHIP OF SUCH A COMMITTEE AND WOULD SEE THAT IT FUNCTIONED); 5. CONSULTANT PANELS OF SENIOR PRACTITIONERS TO WHOM PROFESSIONALS IN THE FIELD MIGHT TURN FOR ADVICE. (ROUTH SUGGESTED THAT CHAPTERS MIGHT UNDERTAKE THIS FUNCTION IN THOSE LOCALITIES WHERE THEY EXISTED). THE MOTION (BUGGS-LEVENSON) TO ACCEPT THESE PROPOSALS WAS PASSED. IT WAS ALSO MOVED (MASON-JONES) THAT THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR COVER THESE POINTS AND OTHER ISSUES THAT HAD BEEN RAISED "HEAD-ON" IN HIS REPORT AT THE ANNUAL MEETING. PASSED.

FRANCES LEVENSON ASKED ABOUT THE STATUS OF THE STUDY "HUMAN RELATIONS NEEDS IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL." ROUTH EXPLAINED THAT IT WAS IN FINAL DRAFT FORM AND WAS BEING CIRCULATED TO THE SPECIAL REVIEW COMMITTEE SET UP TO DO SO.

TREASURER'S REPORT

IN THE ABSENCE OF THE TREASURER, THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR MADE AN INFORMAL REPORT BASED ON A TELEPHONE COVERSATION WITH THE TREASURER. HE REPORTED THAT ALL DEBTS HAD BEEN PAID; THERE WAS A MODEST SUM IN THE BANK, $5,000 TO $6,000 AND SUFFICIENT FUNDS IN ESCROW TO COVER OUR PRINTING OBLIGATION WITH THE MEYER FOUNDATION; THAT THE FIELD FOUNDATION HAD GIVEN NAIRO A $7,500 A YEAR GRANT FOR A THREE YEAR PERIOD, OF WHICH ONE YEAR WAS PARTLY UP AND TWO WERE YET TO COME. HE ALSO REPORTED THAT NAIRO HAD RECEIVED A TOTAL OF $137,500 FROM THE ELEANOR ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL FOUNDATION TO UNDERWRITE THE COSTS OF THE INTERN TRAINING PROGRAM.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN'S REPORT

SAAL LESSER REVIEWED WITH THE BOARD THE OUTLINE OF THE CONFERENCE WHICH STARTED THE NEXT DAY. HE EXPLAINED WHO WAS PARTICIPATING AS SPEAKERS, PANEL MEMBERS, RESOURCE PEOPLE, ETC., AND REVIEWED OTHER ASPECTS OF THE CONFERENCE.

He distributed Programs to Board members and said that the actual cash outlay had been less than anticipated but many donations "in kind" had been received. The Board voted (Jones-Culberson) to commend Mr. Lesser and the Committee which had work with him in planning the Conference.

Career Service Board Report

Herman Long, Chairman of NAIRO's Career Service Board, asked Nathan Greene, Intern Program Coordinator to make the report for the CSB. Greene reviewed the "tightened-up" process of screening Interns and agencies, reviewed the follow-up seminars being held in Washington and New York for Interns in those two cities; outlined the quarterly reporting system for Interns and Supervisors; explained that the Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial Foundation thought highly of the program but was short of funds and that the third class of Interns would be delayed. He stressed the need for a full-time, permanent Intern Coordinator who could review incoming quarterly reports and respond to Interns and Supervisors who had written them, travel to visit Interns and Supervisors on the job, and assist in developing future evaluation and training seminars. He said that he and the Executive Director estimated a budget of $25,000 for administrative costs for classes three and four of the Intern Program. A copy of his report to the Career Service Board was distributed to the NAIRO Board. He concluded by stressing the value of continuing the program as a means of bringing new persons into the field and preparing them for responsible positions in it. The Board voted to approve the report with commendation (Jones-Rutledge).

Public Information Commission

The President then announced the appointment, subject to the approval of the Board, of the newly created Public Information Commission. The Board approved the nominees of the President (Jones-Rilling). Chairman, Joseph Monserrat; Leonard P. Aries, Mary Alice Baldinger, William R. Carmack, Ethlyn Christensen, Leslie W. Dunbar, Harry Fleischman, Ruby Hurley, Madison Jones, Arthur Levin, John Morsell, Norman Perlstein, Helen Raebeck, Alan Reitman, Donald Slaiman, members; K.C. Jones and Fred Routh, ex-officio.

Editorial Board

The President then announced the appointment, subject to the approval of the Board, of the NAIRO Editorial Board. He explained that the groul was divided into three classes, the Class of 1964, the Class of 1965 and the Class of 1966. K.C. Jones, President Elect said that he would re-appoint the Class of 1964 at the Board Meeting following the Conference, thus making them the Class of 1967. (Dates show year of "graduation" from Board). Chairman: John Lassoe; Class of 1964: Arnold Aronson, Carroll Barber, John Binkley, Margaret Fisher, Chester Gray, and John Lassoe. Class of 1965: John Buggs, Will D. Campbell, Arthur Johnson (Mich), Jeweldean Jones, Irving Levine, June Shagaloff. Class of 1966: Mathew Ahmann, Leslie Dunbar, Shelton Granger, Sol Littman, Galen Martin, and William R. Valentine. The Board approved the nominations for the Editorial Board (Monserrat-Hope).

Ford Foundation Request

David Danzig who had been scheduled to report on this request, not being PRESENT, THIS REPORT WAS TABLED BY COMMON CONSENT. IT WAS ALSO UNDERSTOOD THAT THE QUESTION OF AMENDING THE FORD FOUNDATION PROPOSAL TO INCLUDE ADMINISTRATIVE FUNDS FOR THE NAIRO INTERN TRAINING PROGRAM WOULD BE DISCUSSED AT THAT TIME.

ADJOURNMENT

THE BOARD MEETING WAS ADJOURNED AT 10:25 (CULBERSON-LASSOE).

NAIRO BOARD MEETING

MINUTES

NEW YORK, N.Y. 9 OCTOBER 64

THE MEETING OF THE BOARD WAS CALLED TO ORDER BY THE NEW PRESIDENT, KENNETH C. JONES, JR. AT 4:45 P.M. AT THE PARK-SHERATON HOTEL.

PRESENT: ALEXANDER J. ALLEN, JOHN BUGGS, GEORGE CULBERSON, JOHN HOPE II, K.C. JONES JR., ROBERT JONES, VIOLA KANATZ, JOHN LASSOE, HERMAN LONG, BARBARA MOFFETT, PAUL RILLING, JOSEPH ROBISON, PETER ROBERTSON, EDWARD RUTLEDGE, GEORGE SCHERMER; ALSO PRESENT WERE: CLARENCE COLEMAN, FRANCES COUSENS, EDWARD HOLMGREN, THERON JOHNSON, SAAL LESSER, HOWARD MCKINNEY, JOHN MCKNIGHT, AND WILLIAM K. WILLIAMS. STAFF PRESENT WERE: PENELOPE WRIGHT, SECRETARY; NATHAN GREENE, INTERN PROGRAM COORDINATOR, AND FREDERICK B. ROUTH, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR. OTHER BOARD MEMBERS AND GUESTS CAME IN DURING THE MEETING.

THE BOARD DISCUSSED THE ANNUAL MEETING JUST CONCLUDED; CONSENSUS WAS THAT THE CONTENT OF THE MEETING WAS EXCELLENT; THAT THE SPEAKERS AND PANELISTS HAD ALL DONE A GOOD JOB -- PARTICULAR PRAISE WENT TO DEAN ALEX ROSEN FOR THE KEY-NOTE ADDRESS AND TO CHARLES SILBERMAN FOR THE FIRST LUNCHEON SPEECH. THE BOARD FELT THE MEETING WAS MOST TIMELY AND THAT THE THEME "THE DEEPENING CRISIS IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS" COULD HAVE HARDLY BEEN BETTER. THERE WAS DISSATISFACTION OVER THE "SNAFU" BY THE HOTEL IN REGISTERING GUESTS. GEORGE CULBERSON REPORTED THAT THE PRELIMINARY FIGURES INDICATED THAT $1,919 HAD BEEN TAKEN IN ON REGISTRATION FEES AND THAT SOME 400 PERSONS HAD ATTENDED THE MEETING. THE POINT WAS RAISED THAT NOT ALL WHO ATTENDED THE MEETING HAD PAID THEIR REGISTRATION FEES AND THAT PROBABLY SOMETHING OVER 450 HAD ACTUALLY ATTENDED THE MEETING. IT WAS ALSO NOTED THAT THE 35 INTERNS WHO ATTENDED HAD NOT BEEN REQUIRED TO PAY A REGISTRATION FEE. IT WAS THEREFORE CONCLUDED THAT PERHAPS AS MANY AS 500 HAD BEEN PRESENT....OFF AND ON.

CHANGE IN REGIONAL STRUCTURE

THE PRESIDENT INTRODUCED A PROPOSAL TO SEPARATE CHAPTERS FROM REGIONS AND TO DRAW NEW BOUNDARY LINES FOR REGIONS. IT WAS HOPED THAT THIS WOULD MAKE MANAGEABLE THE JOB OF REGIONAL CHAIRMEN AND MIGHT ENCOURAGE THEM TO PROMOTE NEW CHAPTERS. AFTER CONSIDERABLE DISCUSSION THE PROPOSAL WAS ADOPTED (RILLING-LASSOE). THE PRESIDENT THEN PROPOSED PERSONS AS REGIONAL CHAIRMEN UNDER THE NEW GEOGRAPHIC DIVISIONS: SOUTHERN REGION, IRWIN SCHULMAN, MIAMI, FLORIDA; NORTH-EAST REGION, THERON JOHNSON, ALBANY, N.Y.; NORTH-CENTRAL REGION, VIOLA KANATZ, ST. PAUL, MINN; NORTH WEST REGION, EMILY OSTAPCHUK, VANCOUVER, B.C.; SOUTH WEST REGION, FRANK J. MAGRATH, PHOENIX, ARIZONA; MIDDLE ATLANTIC REGION, EDWARD HOLMGREN, BALTIMORE, MD.; GREAT LAKES REGION, ABRAHAM CITRON, CINCINNATI, OHIO; MIDDLE SOUTH REGION, HOWARD MCKINNEY, CHARLESTON,W.VA.; PENNSYLVANIA REGION, ARTHUR EDMUNDS, PITTSBURGH, PA.; CENTRAL REGION, PETER ROBERTSON, JEFFERSON CITY, MISSOURI. APPROVED (LASSOE-BUGGS).

STANDING COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN

THE PRESIDENT PROPOSED THE FOLLOWING AS CHAIRMEN OF STANDING COMMITTEES: LEGAL COMMITTEE (LEGAL COUNSEL) JOSEPH ROBISON; MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE, JOHN MCKNIGHT; NOMINATING COMMITTEE, FRANK BALDAU; CONFERENCE COMMITTEE, EDWARD MARCINIAK. THESE NOMINATIONS WERE APPROVED BY THE BOARD (RUTLEDGE-LASSOE).

A SECRET BALLOT WAS REQUESTED FOR ELECTING MEMBERS OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE AND THIS WAS APPROVED BY THE BOARD. ELECTED TO THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE (IN ADDITION TO THE OFFICERS) WERE GEORGE CULBERSON, HERMAN LONG, JOHN MCKNIGHT.

A REQUEST WAS MADE, BUT NOT ACTED UPON BY THE BOARD, THAT IN THE FUTURE A PRESIDENT ELECT MAKE HIS PROPOSED SELECTIONS KNOWN TO THE IN-COMING BOARD AT THE BEGINNING OF THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

NEW ASSIGNMENTS

INTERPROFESSIONAL LIAISON PROGRAM. THE PRESIDENT EXPLAINED THAT HE HOPED THIS WOULD STRENGTHEN OUR TIES WITH OTHER PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATIONS WHICH COVER AREAS OF CONCERN RELATED TO THOSE OF NAIRO. HE NOMINATED MAURICE B. FAGAN AS CHAIRMAN. THE BOARD APPROVED (ALLEN-LASSOE).

NAIRO SECTIONS. THE PRESIDENT PROPOSED THAT THE BOARD VOTE TO ACTIVATE SECTIONS, THE CONCEPT OF WHICH HAD BEEN ACCEPTED AT A PREVIOUS BOARD MEETING. HE CALLED UPON FRANCES COUSENS TO MORE FULLY EXPLAIN THEIR PURPOSE. MRS. COUSENS SAID THAT IN OTHER PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATIONS TO WHICH SHE BELONGED SECTIONS SERVED THE PURPOSE OF PULLING TOGETHER PERSONS WHO HAVE SIMILAR INTERESTS; THAT THEY SHOULD BE CLOSELY DEFINED INTERESTS; AND THAT THEY MIGHT MAKE SPECIAL REPORTS ON THEIR INTERESTS OR ON RESEARCH IN THEIR AREA OF INTEREST. THE PRESIDENT NOMINATED FRANCES COUSENS TO HEAD THE UNDERTAKING OF ACTIVATING NAIRO SECTIONS. APPROVED (WILLIAMS-HOPE).

BOARD RESIGNATION. JOHN HOPE II, PRESIDENT ELECT ANNOUNCED THAT HE THOUGHT IT WISE TO RESIGN FROM THE BOARD FOR THE TERM REMAINING TO HIM, IN VIEW OF THE FACT THAT HE WOULD BE PRESIDENT ELECT THE COMING YEAR, PRESIDENT THE FOLLOWING, AND WOULD SERVE FOR A THREE YEAR TERM ON THE BOARD FOLLOWING THAT UNDER CURRENT BY-LAWS. HIS RESIGNATION, FOR THE REASONS STATED WAS ACCEPTED AND THE PRESIDENT NOMINATED GALEN MARTIN TO FILL THE VACANCY. APPROVED (LASSOE-R.JONES).

NAIRO COMMISSIONS. THE PRESIDENT SAID THAT NAIRO SHOULD RE-EMPHASIZE THE PROFESSIONAL ASPECTS OF COMMISSION ACTIVITIES, AS CONTRASTED WITH THE FUNCTIONAL ASPECTS OF THE NEWLY CREATED SECTIONS. HE EXPLAINED THAT THERE WAS NO NEED TO ACT AGAIN UPON JOSEPH MONSERRAT'S APPOINTMENT AS CHAIRMAN OF THE PUBLIC INFORMATION COMMISSION SINCE THE BOARD HAD ALREADY APPROVED THAT NOMINATION, BUT SAID THAT HE WOULD PROPOSE THE FOLLOWING COMMISSIONS AND CHAIRMEN FOR THE COMING YEAR: HOUSING AND URBAN LIFE, EDWARD RUTLEDGE; INTER-RELIGIONS RELATIONS, THE REV. H. BEN SISSEL; RESEARCH SERVICES, ARTHUR LEVIN; SCHOOL DESEGREGATION, JUNE SHAGALOFF. APPROVED (COLEMAN-LONG).

SPECIAL FINANCING VINCENT ZIEGLER'S SUGGESTIONS WERE REVIEWED AND REFERRED TO THE FINANCE COMMITTEE.

OTHER APPOINTMENTS. LIFE MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE, BOOKER T. MCGRAW; EDITORIAL BOARD, JOHN LASSOE (CONTINUING APPOINTMENT MADE BY FORMER PRESIDENT ALLEN AT THE BOARD MEETING IMMEDIATELY PRECEDING ANNUAL CONFERENCE); PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS, GEORGE SCHERMER -- SUBCOMMITTEES THEREUNDER: EDUCATION AND TRAINING, DAVID DANZIG, ETHICS, EDWARD HOWDEN, GRIEVANCE, WALTER GREENE; HISTORIAN, HELEN AMERMAN; NOMINATING COMMITTEE, FRANK BALDAU, CHAIRMAN - HERMAN LONG AND CORNEFF TAYLOR ADDED TO THOSE ELECTED; CAREER SERVICE BOARD, ALEXANDER J. ALLEN. APPROVED (MCKNIGHT-BUGGS).

AD HOC COMMITTEE ON ANNUAL CONFERENCES. THE PRESIDENT PROPOSED THAT THE EXPERIENCE GAINED FROM THE LAST TWO CONFERENCES BE DRAWN TOGETHER AND SHARED WITH THE NEW ANNUAL CONFERENCE CHAIRMAN, EDWARD MARCINIAK AND THAT THEIR REPORT TO HIM BE SENT TO FUTURE ANNUAL CONFERENCE CHAIRMEN. HE SUGGESTED THE AD HOC COMMITTEE ON ANNUAL CONFERENCES BE COMPRISED OF: SAAL D. LESSER, IRVING LEVINE, JOSEPH MONSERRAT, AND THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR; PASSED (ROBERTSON-HOPE). THE FEELING WAS EXPRESSED THAT THE NAIRO OFFICE SHOULD CONTACT THE SHERATON HOTEL CORPORATION TO EXPRESS OUR UNHAPPINESS WITH HOTEL REGISTRATION PROCEDURES.

CAREER SERVICE BOARD & TRAINING AND EDUCATION COMMISSION

THE PRESIDENT CALLED UPON ALEXANDER J. ALLEN, CHAIRMAN OF THE CAREER SERVICE BOARD TO OPEN THE DISCUSSION ON ADMINISTRATIVE FUNDS FOR THE CSB WHICH HAD BEEN DISCUSSED AT THE OCTOBER 6, 1964 BOARD MEETING AND WHICH IN PART HAD LED TO THE TABLING OF THE DISCUSSION OF AMENDING THE PROPOSAL BEFORE THE FORD FOUNDATION. AFTER LENGTHY DISCUSSION ABOUT NOT WANTING TO "MUDDY THE WATERS" WITH THE FORD FOUNDATION, THE BOARD APPROVED GOING TO OTHER FOUNDATIONS OR FINANCIAL SOURCES FOR ADMINISTRATIVE MONEY FOR THE COSTS OF ADMINISTERING THE INTERN TRAINING PROGRAM; THE SUM OF $25,000 WAS SUGGESTED BY THE STAFF FOR COVERING THE NEXT TWO CLASSES OF INTERNS. PASSED (RUTLEDGE-LONG). THE RESOLUTION WAS STRENGTHENED BY A FURTHER MOTION THAT "THE BOARD MAKE EVERY EFFORT FO SECURE THESE FUNDS PROMPTLY". PASSED (ALLEN-RUTLEDGE).

1965 PROPOSED BUDGET

THE RECENTLY ELECTED TREASURER, PAUL RILLING, WHO TAKES OFFICE JANUARY 1, 1965 SAID THAT THE BUDGET PROPOSAL SHOULD BE REGARDED AS GUIDELINES AND NOT AS THE APPROVED BUDGET FOR 1965. TWO SETS OF FIGURES WERE REVIEWED WITH THE BOARD, ONE WAS REFERRED TO AS DESIRABLE, THE OTHER AS A MINIMUM. THE BOARD ACCEPTED THESE AS GUIDELINES AND AGREED TO WAIT UNTIL THE JANUARY MEETING TO FORMALLY ADOPT A BUDGET FOR 1965. APPROVED (ALLEN-LASSOE).

CERTIFICATE OF APPRECIATION

THE BOARD VOTED A CERTIFICATE OF APPRECIATION, SUITABLE FOR FRAMING, TO IRVING GOLDABER, OUT-GOING TREASURER, FOR HIS THREE YEARS OF ABLE AND DEVOTED SERVICE AS NAIRO TREASURER. PASSED (LASSOE-ROBISON).

EDITORIAL BOARD APPOINTMENTS

THE PRESIDENT EXPLAINED THAT THE APPOINTMENTS FOR T E 1964 CLASS TO THE EDITORIAL BOARD MADE BY ALEXANDER J. ALLEN, JUST PRIOR TO THE MEETING HAD TECHNICALLY EXPIRED AND HE WISHED TO RE-APPOINT THEM AS THE CLASS OF 1967,

THEY WERE: ARNOLD ARONSON, CARROLL BARBER, JOHN BINKLEY, MARGARET FISHER, CHESTER GRAY, AND JOHN LASSOE. APPROVED (HOPE-CULBERSON).

NEXT BOARD MEETING

PHILADELPHIA WAS CHOSEN AS THE SITE AND JANUARY 14TH AS THE HOPED-FOR DATE OF THE NEXT BOARD MEETING BY COMMON CONSENT.

ADJOURNMENT

THE BOARD MEETING WAS ADJOURNED AT 7:25 P.M. (CULBERSON-WILLIAMS).

Dear Nate:

Thank you for the four bits. I got along without this pretty well, but I can always use it. SRC could use also travel expenses for my trip last January to Airlie House.

All our love.

SUBJECT: Next Board Meeting

We have polled the Executive Committee and have reached agreement that the next NAIRO Board Meeting will be held in Chicago, Illinois on July 10th at the Sherman House. The meeting will start at 9 a.m. and will conclude at 5 p.m.

We have a good deal of business to transact and it is our hope that each of you will make a real effort to attend. We will have a full report of the 1965 Annual Conference Committee at this meeting and we will want full discussion of it.

A Reception is planned for the evening preceding the Board Meeting; details will be sent as soon as they are firmed up.

All good regards.

NAIRO BOARD MEETING

MINUTES

New Haven, Connecticut 10 April '65

Presiding: Kenneth C. Jones, Jr., President
Present: Alexander J. Allen, George Culberson, Lloyd Davis, John Hope II, Theron Johnson, K. C. Jones, Jr., Booker T. McGraw, Paul Rilling, Peter Robertson, Edward Rutledge, George Schermer; Staff: Nate Greene and Fred Routh.

The President convened the Board at 9:30 A.M. and recognized Lloyd Davis.

Lloyd Davis, Chairman of NAIRO's Connecticut State Chapter, welcomed the Board to New Haven and invited the Board to be the guests of the New Haven Equal Opportunity Commission at luncheon at the Yale Faculty Club.

K. C. Jones thanked Lloyd Davis for the invitation and thanked Don Kirk and other members of the Connecticut State Chapter for the reception for the Board, which had been held the previous evening at the Kirk's home. Jones then reviewed the Agenda for this Board Meeting and it was accepted by consensus.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT - K. C. Jones reviewed his pledge made at the 1964 Annual Conference to visit most, if not all, NAIRO Chapters. He pointed out that he had visited the following Chapters: Massachusetts, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Northern California, Southern California, Detroit & Michigan, Cleveland, Atlanta and Washington; that he had visited groups of members in Chicago, Connecticut, New York, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, and St. Louis; and the he was scheduled to visit Kentucky and Cincinnati Chapters.

He also explained that two items on the day's agenda were there at his request: 1) Request for By-Laws Amendment, and 2) Job Description of the Executive Director. He said that he had no specific By-Laws change in mind but wanted to remind the Board that any proposed By-Law Amendments had to be in the hands of the membership at least 30 days before the Annual Meeting. He said that he was not dissatisfied with the current Job Description of the Executive Director -- or of the manner of the way the office was being handled -- but he felt that since the Job Description was several years old the Board might want to review it. He concluded that it would be discussed at its proper place on the Agenda.

He expressed satisfaction that the Journal of Intergroup Relations was again in print for he believed, with most members, that it was a significant contribution to professional development.

Finally, he said he was convinced, on the basis of discussions with Ed Marciniak and John McKnight, that the 1965 Annual Conference would be a good one and that it would be focused on professional concerns.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S REPORT - Fred Routh reviewed recent national events and said, "In the brief period of less than 100 days since this Board last met, a number of near-monumental events have occurred and there is every indication that their effects will have profound influence upon our nation, our lives, and our profession."

He listed as the governmental and private agencies and institutions to which NAIRO had given technical assistance, advice, or information, the following: U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, U.S. Community Relations Service, U.S. Department of State, Peace Corps, U.S. Department of Labor, National Civil Liberties Clearing House, Civil Rights Leadership Conference, the Associated Press, The National Council of the Episcopal Church, National Training Laboratories, Brookings Institution, Ft. Wayne (Indiana) Human Relations Commission, Michigan State University's School of Police Administration, N.Y.U.'s Center for Human Relations Studies, Holy Name Society of Washington, D. C., the Washington Post, the United Negro College Fund's Washington office.

He reported efforts at professional recruitment on behalf of fourteen governmental and private agencies, including three anti-poverty programs.

He reported that 46 persons had received career counselling at the office, not including Interns. Of the 46, only 13 were members of NAIRO at the time of interview; 33 were non-members seeking to enter the field, a number of whom joined NAIRO.

He reviewed the status of NAIRO publications pointing out that the JOURNAL would be back in publication by mid-May; the Newsletter was now coming out regularly on a bi-monthly basis; that the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions had purchased 1,000 copies each of "Public School Segregation and Integration in the North" and "Guidelines for Municipal Humans Relations Committees" and both were again available; the Potomac Institute had given 1,350 copies of their pamphlet "The Federal Dollar and Nondiscrimination" for distribution to NAIRO members; NAIRO's Statement on Public Policy has been sent to all NAIRO members; the new Directory of Staffed Intergroup Relations Agencies is nearing completion.

He reported upon NAIRO efforts and activities in professional training including the Intern Training Program, the status of our request to the Ford Foundation, and proposed exploration of federal assistance.

The Board received the report with appreciation (Hope-Rutledge).

TREASURER'S REPORT - Paul Rilling reviewed the financial situation of the Association, saying that we were solvent but not plush. He pointed out that all bills had been paid, that NAIRO was debt free. He acknowledged that we had not received from one foundation what we had hoped for but that other unanticipated funds had come in. He then reviewed the proposed budget for 1965 and made the following points:

1. Anticipated expenditures exceeded anticipated income by $6,162.50 and that amount had yet to be found. He listed anticipated expenditures as $40,662.50 and anticipated income as $34,500.

2. The proposed salary increase for the Executive Director (the first in three years) was effective April 1st, rather than January 1st, and the same held true for the Secretary's increase.

3. Membership dues were running ahead of the same period in 1964 and that an anticipated sum of $16,500 in membership dues was not unrealistic.

4. Certain savings might be made in some expenditures if, later in the year, anticipated income had not been realized.

5. The Intern Training Program was now contributing a fair share of overhead costs; the request for administrative funds for the program had been granted.

6. Monies designated for 1966 and other funds not currently needed were in a savings account and were drawing interest.

Rilling then passed about copies of the proposed budget. The Board accepted with commendation the Treasurer's Report (McGraw-Robertson).

1965 BUDGET - The proposed 1965 Budget, presented at the close of the Treasurer's Report (see attached), was APPROVED (Rutledge-Davis).

LUNCHEON - Luncheon was held at the Yale Faculty Club where the Board was welcomed by Mr. William Celentano, Chairman of the Equal Opportunity Commission of New Haven; K. C. Jones responded on behalf of the NAIRO Board and thanked Mr. Celentano for being host to the Board.

1965 ANNUAL CONFERENCE REPORT - Upon return to the Board of Education Building, K. C. Jones read a report from John McKnight, Program Subcommittee Chairman of the 1965 Annual Conference Committee; he then asked for comments and suggestions. They follow:

In the proposed session "Report From the South" there was consensus that presentations should be made by practitioners and that they might be commented upon by reporters -- but reporters should not make the presentations.

The pre-conference Board Meeting scheduled for the afternoon of October 18th was, by consensus, moved to 7:30 the same evening. It was also recommended that the cocktail party scheduled for 7:30 be moved back to 9:00 p.m.

Alexander J. Allen, Chairman of the NAIRO Career Service Board said that, after discussion with CSB members and staff, it had been decided that no meeting of the CSB was necessary on October 18th and it should be cancelled.

There was consensus that a session of the Annual Conference be devoted to the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and that a well qualified person from the NAIRO membership make the presentation.

There was consensus that a session be devoted to Police-Community Relations (such as U.S. Judge George Edwards had done at the National Civil Liberties Clearing House).

There was consensus that a session on Housing be scheduled the last day (October 21) of the Conference so that the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing might invite their members to it; NCDH is holding a conference in Chicago, October 22-23.

1966 ANNUAL CONFERENCE - K. C. Jones read a letter from John Lyons who has been handling the 1966 Annual Conference arrangements. Lyons listed several hotels and asked the Board to choose three, leaving final decision to the Los Angeles Chapter. The Board, after reviewing accommodations, sites and rates, chose the Statler-Hilton as first choice and asked the President, the President-Elect, and the Executive Director to serve as a committee to ascertain from Mr. Lyons that the facilities of the hotel were adequate.

1967 ANNUAL CONFERENCE - The Board discussed possible sites for the 1967 Annual Conference. Some preference was expressed for a site in the South; others felt that since 1965 was in the Midwest and 1966 on the West Coast, 1967 should be in the East. The Board voted to have the Executive Director notify the Chapter Chairmen that the Board would welcome invitations for the 1967 Annual Conference and that the Board would review any received at the July Board meeting (Rutledge-Johnson).

LOCAL CHAPTER DUES - After discussion, the Board voted to empower the President and the Executive Director to authorize any Chapter, so requesting, to levy local dues up to two dollars per year (Rilling-Robertson). However, local dues may not be collected from persons who are not members of NAIRO nationally (Robertson-Culberson).

MEMBERSHIP - The Board reviewed previous decisions regarding the dropping of delinquent members. It was agreed that Chapter Chairmen have a special responsibility to follow up, or appoint someone in the Chapter to follow-up on delinquent members. The national office will notify Chapter Chairmen of all delinquencies of six months or more and will drop all of one year after a final notice of intent to drop them from the rolls (Schermer-Robertson). The Board agreed that dues for retirees could not be reduced until an examination of membership structure was undertaken. After discussion the Board agreed by consensus that members should receive, in addition to membership cards, a certificate of membership, suitable for framing. The Board also agreed that dues for Life Membership should be raised to $400 effective at the close of the 1965 Annual Conference and that all Life Members should receive a suitable wall plaque or certificate.

LETTER TO PRESIDENT JOHNSON - K. C. Jones reviewed the letter that he, as NAIRO President, and the Executive Director had sent to President Johnson praising his stand and speech to the people supporting the right of every citizen to vote. The Board gave unamimous approval to the action. The Board instructed the President and the Executive Director to write the President of the United States asking for a prompt appointment of the members of the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission and for a strengthened Executive Order banning discrimination in housing; and, further that this letter and the letter praising the President's voting stand be placed in the next issue of the NAIRO Newsletter (Schermer-Rilling).

INTERN PROGRAM - Alexander J. Allen, Chairman of NAIRO's Career Service Board, and Nathan Greene, Intern Program Coordinator, reported on the current status of the Intern Training Program which is underwritten by the Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial Foundation. The Career Service Board had met April 9th. Allen and Greene reported that the CSB had abolished the Committee on Intern Selection since its mission was accomplished; the Board had created an Academic Committee to consider strengthening the entire curriculum of the Intern Training Program. The CSB had reaffirmed the appropriateness of the placing of Interns on legal staffs, providing strong emphasis on Intergroup Relations be included. The CSB would develop a list of persons and request NAIRO's President to appoint them to the CSB to increase its representativeness.

The Intern Training Program's budget for 1965 was discussed and it was noted with appreciation that sufficient administrative funds had been granted to maintain professional and clerical staff to service the program through 1965. Travel funds are available for field trips to internship sites for supervisory purposes.

A modest surplus was accumulated from agencies participating in the recent Intern Training Program Evaluation Seminar and the CSB was offering refunds to the participating agencies.

The status of Group #1 and Group #2 Interns was reviewed; all but two Interns in Group #1 have found professional placement in the field; Group #2 Interns are in their eighth month of training -- few problems but all have been worked out.

Plans for Group #3 are well along; response from agencies has been gratifying; number of applicants is also gratifying; Intern-candidates will be interviewed during May; agencies will be selected during May; Interns will attend Institute in late July and will be at agency assignments by August first.

The Board voted approval of the Career Service Board's report with commendation (Rutledge-Rilling).

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S JOB DESCRIPTION - The Board reviewed a memorandum of 16 March 65 from the Executive Director containing excerpts from the Minutes of previous Board Meetings (February 2-3, 1962 in Pittsburgh; and November 10-11, 1961 in San Francisco) setting forth the Job Description of the Executive Director of the Association. After thorough discussion it was decided that description was fitting and proper and did not need revision (Rutledge-Hope). It was agreed by consensus that the activities of the Executive Director be reviewed annually.

The Meeting Adjourned at 5:20 p.m.- (Culberson-Robertson).

Dear Casey:

I received the minutes of the April board meeting, and the notice of the Chicago meeting on July 10. I will not be able to be present, and this presents, furthermore, an appropriate time for me to offer, regretfully, my resignation from the NAIRO Board. Personal plans and commitments make this necessary, and I would like to have the resignation take effect at or before this forthcoming board meeting.

With all best wishes, and with assurances of continued support.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Casey:

Thank you for the news of the NAIRO election. I look forward to serving with you. Staff changes here, and the temporary lack of staff, makes this a very rough time for me to be away from the office. Therefore, it will now be necessary for me to leave Chicago on the 20th.

Since I cannot attend the first meeting after my election, I will make it a point to arrive in Chicago for the meeting of the 18th. I may be a little late, but I'll be there.

Sincerely,

Dear Colleague,

May I offer my heartiest congratulations on your election to office in NAIRO. Your associates have selected you for leadership, and I applaud their choice. I also applaud the excellent work of the Baldau nominating committee and the splendid alternatives it offered us.

You are urged to attend the post-conference Board meeting which will convene under John Hope's chairmanship on Friday morning, October 22. This will be your first opportunity to assume the responsibility you have agreed to accept.

However, I also cordially invite you to attend the pre-conference Board meeting at 7:00 o'clock Monday night, October 18, where those of you not now on the Board may have voice but not vote. You may wish to consider this as an opportunity to further orient yourself to the NAIRO operation.

Welcome to NAIRO leadership.

Inaugural Remarks

I have been involved in the affairs of NAIRO in a variety of roles for almost two decades. I have been deeply and personally concerned with the problems of the submerged, the disadvantaged, the deprived, and the discriminated against for a considerably longer period. I have been periodically sustained and renewed by the continuous association of men and women of kindred feelings within the ranks of NAIRO as I am certain many of you have.

This, in my opinion, has been and will be one of the cardinal purposes of NAIRO—to provide a continuing vehicle for the mutual self-development of its membership. It is perhaps even more important today than in the past. The field of intergroup relations is expanding rapidly. In addition to a growing number of definite and avowed intergroup relations practitioners, the number of people who have been assigned intergroup relations responsibilities within their agencies and organizations as a result of expanding institutional commitment to the implementation of equal opportunity and Civil Rights in their many ramifications is much larger. In short, many have been thrust into the profession—some voluntarily and some by command—who will be deeply involved and their pro-

'65 NAIRO CONFERENCE CALLED "HISTORY MAKING"

NAIRO's 1965 Annual Conference is now history—and history-making it was, too. Comments of those in attendance were universally enthusiastic; many said they rated it the best conference (not just "NAIRO Conference") they had ever attended. Certainly the presentations were outstanding.

Dr. Philip Hauser, Chairman of the University of Chicago's Department of Sociology, devoted the keynote address to "The New City." His analysis of what is happening in and to our major population centers was both scholarly and provoking; responding to his address were John Feild, Director of the Community Relations Service of the US Conference of Mayors and Terry Chisholm, Executive Director of the Philadelphia Commission on Human Relations.

Bayard Rustin, Executive Director of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, received a standing ovation following his address at the first day luncheon on "The Meaning of the Los Angeles Riots." His central theme was clear: when "opportunity-deprived," excluded, frustrated people cannot have their grievances heard through regular channels they are apt to turn to tactics, including violence and rioting, which will get heard; that the way to prevent—or minimize the likelihood of violence was to provide opportunities where grievances might get an honest hearing and where programs might be developed which would meet the needs of the people.

"The Ecumenical Spirit and Interreligious Tensions" was spiritedly discussed by Rabbi Arthur Gilbert, ADL's Director of Religious Curriculum Research; the Rev. Donald Campion, S.J., Associate Editor of America; and Dr. Martin Marty, Associate Editor of the Christian Century. The session was chaired with wit and wisdom by the Rev. Will D. Campbell, Director of the Committee of Southern Churchmen. Interreligious relations have always been a sensitive matter but this group demonstrated that the ecumenical spirit has led to opportunities for more forthright and pointed discussions of those things which unite, divide, please, and annoy us—by group or collectively.

fessional success in carrying out their missions will depend upon their realization that there is such a phenomenon as a Minorities Problem and that there is a body of knowledge, an assortment of working tools (techniques, methods, strategies) which they must master, and an attitudinal posture which they must assume (and hopefully accept) if they are to effectively meet their responsibilities.

In the coming year, with your help and the concentrated effort of the officials of your Association, I shall further intensify our effort to reach and serve effectively both of these groups. This will require well defined inward looking programs that will meet the needs of the growing chapter membership and outward looking activities that will contribute to better implementation of equal opportunity (employment and service) and Civil Rights programs in government agencies at every level and private organizations all over the country.

It would appear to me, then, that if NAIRO is to remain an effective professional association, it must systematically and effectively accelerate its already matchless contribution to the development of those who carry intergroup relations responsibilities whether they are members or non-members, full-time paid intergroup practitioners or officials with part-time but crucial intergroup responsibilities in organizations with broader missions, or the many and indispensible, dedicated volunteers who have made such massive contributions over the years—board members, commissioners, advisory committee members, and others.

If these urgent demands are to be met by NAIRO, we must intensify headquarters services to chapters and establish more continuous, even if critical, "feed back" and involvement of Chapters with headquarters and with each other. We must redouble efforts to serve geographic areas where there is no present chapter activity. The responsibilities of Regional Chairman and the Membership Committee, in conjunction with a special Committee for this purpose, will be expanded and more specifically delineated. This special committee in Chapter Development is headed by Lloyd Davis who brings to this important task his personal experience on a highly successful NAIRO President and Chapter Chairman.

I can think of no program effort more crucial or timely to the overall effectiveness of NAIRO during this critical period in the growth and development of the Association or to the overall professional growth of our membership.

Second to none among the services which Chapters are requesting and which their individual members need at this critical stage in the growth of intergroup relations, is assistance in chapter program planning and development which will contribute promptly to the growth and enrichment of the professional skills of their members and provide guidelines for chapter activities that will provide leadership in issues including equality of opportunity, civil rights, and other intergroup relations issues in the communities where they are located.

It is frequently difficult to distinguish the various "hats" one must wear in arriving at a solution or even an accommodation to the many faceted human problems with which our members must deal by virtue of their professional status and experience in their communities.

It is timely, therefore, for NAIRO members to more explicitly understand the scope, nature, and dimensions of the field of intergroup relations. This is not to imply that they, as professionals with wider responsibilities, should shrink from participation in the "gray areas" surrounding the discipline, but rather that they should know when they are doing so and, thus, more consciously and expertly bring to bear the tech-the Civil Rights Act of 1964 in public education and public housing, contending that in the South this meant the perpetuation of patterns of segregation—that any real freedom of choice for Negroes, in hard core areas, was illusory.

Saul Alinsky, Director of the Industrial Areas Foundation and Mitchell Sviridoff, Executive Director of New Haven's Community Progress, Inc., squared off in a discussion on "Poverty, Race and Community Organization." These two men shared and differed on many points and on emphases; perhaps it was most noticeable on the question of whether social change comes up from the people or whether it comes through governmental initiative, or both? The floor discussion which followed the presentations was one of the more animated of the Conference.

John A. Buggs, President-elect of NAIRO and Executive Director of the Los Angeles County Commission on Human Relations, presented a special "Report on Los Angeles" which analyzed step-by-step and hour-by-hour the unfolding of the tragic events of the riots. He outlined what his Commission had advocated as techniques to dampen the riot and lessen the violence—advice that was not accepted by the Los Angeles City police leadership.

Dr. Philip Ash, Research Assistant to the Vice President of the Inland Steel Company, spoke on "Race, Employment-testing and Equal Opportunity." Herbert Belkin, Liaison Assistant with the US-EEOC, and Howard Lockwood, of Lockheed Aircraft Corporation's Management Personnel Department, were commentators. Dr. Ash held that many tests used in hiring were unrelated to the skills required for the jobs to be filled.

Ralph Ellison, prize winning author of The Invisible Man, eloquently delivered the Banquet Address "American Pluralism From the Negro Side of the Line." In summary he said that there is no Negro side, that we are all in this together—any victory, every loss affects us all and belongs to all of us.

Other sessions dealt with "A Free Housing Market—Where Do We Go From Here" (which also served as the opening session for the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing, which followed the NAIRO Conference); "Broadening the Resources of Intergroup Relations Agencies," aimed at helping agencies make better use of foundation support, news-media, and universities in their communities. Three concurrent sessions covered "The Function of the NAIRO Chapter," "NAIRO's Work With Other Professional Associations," and "A Report on a Survey of Agency Handling of Public Information and Relations."

The post-Conference Board Meeting voted special commendation to Edward Marciniak and the Annual Conference Committee for an outstanding Conference, for gracious and generous hospitality, and for a job extremely well done.

DIRECTOR'S BOX NAIRO's 1965 Annual Conference was hailed as an outstanding success by the five hundred, or so, persons who attended it. Something like one-third of our membership was present; for the two-thirds who could not come to the Conference, I would like to repeat part of what I said in the "Report of the Executive Director." Under three broad headings, I outlined the major activities of your Association this past year as follows:

1. NAIRO has provided service to the field of intergroup relations:

—We have helped meet the critical shortage of trained professional workers; we have graduated twenty-five Interns and placed twenty-five more in training. (We graduated twenty-five the previous year.)

—We have helped meet the need for a steady flow of theory, methodology, and understanding of intergroup relations; we have reinaugurated the publication of the JOURNAL of Intergroup Relations.

—We have helped relate the field of intergroup relations to allied fields; we have established continuing and working relationships with the Adult Education Association, the American Society for Public Administration, the International Association of Chiefs of Police, and the National Education Association.

—We have looked to the future needs of the field for trained personnel; we have established an ad hoc Joint Training Committee with the National Association for Community Development and the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials to explore the possibilities of developing a joint proposal to establish a major professional training facility and program.

—We have prepared, and have at the printers, an annotated list of books and periodicals for intergroup relations professionals and lay leaders.

2. NAIRO has provided services to the agencies in the field of intergroup relations:

—We have assisted governmental and private agencies, on the national, state, municipal, and neighborhood levels, in program planning and development.

—We have assisted governmental and private agencies, on the national, regional, state, municipal and neighborhood levels (more than 40 in all) to recruit professional staff personnel.

—We have assisted a wide variety of agencies in making known their publications, services, and conferences.

—We have provided federal agencies with lists of state and municipal governmental agencies and local private agencies and with the names of key persons (NAIRO members and others) in a score of instances.

—We have assisted agencies in reaching the "right" agency or person in the federal establishment, saving them considerable time and frustration.

—We have provided, at modest cost, materials to dozens of agencies working on desegregation of the public schools or advising on the establishment of local municipal human relations commissions.

3. NAIRO has provided services to its members and to other intergroup relations professionals:

—We have provided career counselling to more than 100 persons seeking increased responsibilities or new opportunities.

—We have provided them, through the Chapter structure, with an opportunity for professional growth and to exchange thinking and information.

—We have referred scores of them to known employment opportunities in federal, state, and municipal governmental agencies and private agencies.

—We have helped keep them in touch with developments in the field through a regularly published bimonthly Newsletter.

—We have counselled with and advised them—in person, on the phone, and in correspondence—on such widely scattered matters as educating and developing rapport with new Board members, the program interests of key foundations, handling attacks by right wing extremists, resources available from governmental and private agencies, finding housing in the Washington area, and where to send their kids to college—to name but a few.

—We have held hands and sympathized with those in distress and patted on the back and rejoiced with those who had met new successes.

—We have eased their loneliness and sense of isolation by increasing their awareness that they were part of a national movement and that they did not stand alone.

NAIRO RESOLUTION ON FEDERAL CIVIL RIGHTS ACTIVITIES

The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials believes that there is pressing need for continued coordination of all federal civil rights programs of the kind previously provided by the President's Council on Equal Opportunity and that this is particularly necessary with various equal employment opportunity programs assigned to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the Department of Justice, the Department of Labor, the Civil Service Commission and the various contracting agencies. Any policy of assigning to Departments, Commissions and other agencies the function of policing their own equal opportunity programs without the safeguard of an independent centralized review may well endanger the effectiveness and efficiency of the government's anti-discrimination program.

We therefore direct the NAIRO Board of Directors to express to the President and other appropriate governmental officials our concern for the preservation of a centralized coordinating agency, operating independently of the various operating agencies and our strong belief that this body should function at the highest level, preferably under the direction and responsibility of the Vice-President.

NAIRO RESOLUTION ON THE COMMUNITY RELATIONS SERVICE

The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, in Conference assembled, expresses its concern that the proposed transfer of the Community Relations Service from the Department of Commerce to the Department of Justice may seriously damage its effectiveness as a conciliatory body and lessen its capacity for affirmative action. We recognize the effectiveness of the Justice Department as a law enforcement agency but we are concerned that that very factor may well change the nature and image of the Community Relations Service to its detriment.

We therefore strongly urge careful consideration of retaining the Community Relations Service as a part of the Department of Commerce until such time as the new Department of Housing and Urban Development

NAIRO OFFICERS AND

The NAIRO membership, with the heaviest election results to date, elected Officers for 1965-66; six Board members for three year terms, and two Board members were elected for one year terms by Board action.

OFFICERS

John Hope, II, is new President of NAIRO, succeeding automatically from his post as President-elect. Hope, who is now an Area Director of the Office of Equal Educational Opportunity of the U. S. Office of Education, H.E.W., has had a distinguished career in intergroup relations. He was, just prior to his current position, Director, Federal Government Employment for the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity. For fifteen years he was Director of Industrial Relations at Fisk University, he was with the old FEPC in World War II, and from 1933-45 he was Chairman, Department of Economics, Spelman College, Atlanta, Georgia.

John A. Buggs is President-elect. Buggs, a native of Brunswick, Georgia, is Executive Director of the Los Angeles County Commission on Human Relations. He has been, in the past, a probation officer, a social case worker, Director of the Fessenden Academy, a high school teacher and Executive Secretary of Marion County branch of the NAACP in Florida. He has been active with NAIRO for many years and served as Chairman of the Southern California Chapter of the Association 1958-60; he was also a NAIRO Vice President.

Arthur J. Levin, one of two new Vice Presidents, is Staff Director of the Potomac Institute, Washington, D.C. From 1948-62 he served as Community Consultant, Associate Director and later Southeastern Director of the ADL in Atlanta. Prior to that he was an Information Specialist with the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta. He has been Chairman of NAIRO's Commission on Research Services, and was active with the D.C. Chapter.

Charlotte C. Meacham, also Vice President is National Housing Representative with the AFSC. Prior to that she was Director of the Philadelphia Metropolitan Housing Program for AFSC, worked with the Henry Street Settlement House and with the Methodist Church in India. She is co-author of the valuable Fair Housing Handbook. She is former Chairman of NAIRO's Philadelphia Chapter and is a member of the Career Service Board.

Abraham F. Citron, NAIRO's new Secretary, is Executive Director of the Cincinnati Jewish Community Relations Committee. He has also been Michigan Area Director for the American Jewish Committee, Director of Community Relations and Research for Detroit's Jewish Community Council, Director of the Jewish Community Council in Peoria, Illinois, and Midwest Regional Director for the American Jewish Congress.

Paul M. Rilling, re-elected NAIRO Treasurer, is Executive Director of the D.C. Commissioners' Council on Human Relations. Prior to that he was Director of Field Activities of the Southern Regional Council, Executive Director of the Virginia Council on Human Relations, Director of the Human Relations Project for the Southern Area YMCA, Editor of the Gainsville (Ga.) Morning News, and Instructor, U of Alabama.

Robison Anthony Feild Marciniak Monserrat Snowden

BOARD MEMBERS ELECTED

Joseph B. Robison was re-appointed NAIRO General Counsel. He is the Director of the Commission on Law and Social Action of the American Jewish Congress; he has been with the AJ Congress 18 years. He was on the legal staff of the National Labor Relations Board for ten years. He has lectured at City College of New York and the New School of Social Research. He is a member of the New York State and United States Supreme Court bars. He also serves as General Counsel for N.C.D.H.

BOARD MEMBERS

Elected to three year terms were:

Paul Anthony, Executive Director, the Southern Regional Council. From 62-65 he was SRC's Director of Field Activities; prior to that Executive Assistant to the Director SRC, Southeastern Representative of the Wall Street Journal, and a High School Teacher.

George Culberson was re-elected to the Board; he is Associate Director for Conciliation of the Federal Community Relations Service. Prior to that he headed the Air Forces EEO Program, directed the Pittsburgh Human Relations Commission, directed the 110th Street Community Center. He is a past President of NAIRO.

David Danzig, Associate Professor, School of Social Work, Columbia University. Prior to that he was Associate Director of the American Jewish Committee, Program Director for AJC, he was with the USO in World War II. He has been social worker, teacher, and consultant in human relations.

John G. Feild was re-elected to the Board. He is Director of the Community Relations Service, U.S. Conference of Mayors. Prior to that he was Director of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity, on U.S. Senator Hart's staff, Director of the Michigan FEPC, and the Toledo Community Relations Board. He is a past NAIRO President.

Joseph Monserrat, Director of the Migration Division, Department of Labor, Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. Prior to this he headed the New York Office of the same organization, Coordinator of New York City Youth Board, Street Gang Project, a Community Organizer and Settlement House Worker.

Muriel Snowden, Associate Director of Freedom House, Roxbury, Massachusetts, since 1950. She has also been Special Instructor Simmons College of Social Work, Executive Director of the City of Cambridge Civic Unity Committee and Investigator, Essex County (N.J.) Welfare Board. She is Chairmen of NAIRO's Massachusetts State Chapter.

Elected to one year terms were:

Helen E. Amerman, Director of Relocation and Property Management, Community Development Agency of Los Angeles. Prior to that she held a similar position in Oakland, California, was a Research Associate with the Commission on Race and Housing. She is a NAIRO Charter Member.

Edward Marciniak, Director of the Chicago Commission on Human Relations. Prior to that he was Editor of Work and Director of the Catholic Council on Working Life, Instructor at the University of Chicago and Loyola and International Vice President the American Newspaper Guild. He was Chairman of the 1965 Annual Conference Committee.

SPECIAL FROM DETROIT With the graduation in late July of 450 police officers from a four week in-service training program in human relations, Detroit has taken an important step toward maintaining an efficient and professional police department.

Financed by an economic opportunity grant from the Federal Government, the human relations training program was planned by Detroit Police Department personnel, the Commission on Community Relations and TAAP.

This month-long, intensive training program is the first of its kind (in terms of scope, planning and financing) to be held in a major U.S. city. It is aimed at giving police officers insight into themselves and their job. Through a better understanding of their own attitude and the attitude of the people they serve, they will be better able to prevent many of the abrasions and misunderstandings that occur in police work.

In-service training for police officers has been necessitated by the changing role of the law enforcement officer in contemporary society. The rise of civil rights demonstrations and other peaceful forms of protest and the concern of minority groups that they be treated with fairness and objectivity have made it essential for police officers to gain new understanding of their role. The need for in-service training has also been a product of recent Supreme Court decisions modifying search and seizure laws and eliminating investigative and disorderly persons arrests.

In the first program classes met in 2-1/2 hour sessions conducted twice a week and were attended by police officers from inner city precincts who volunteered for the training program. Each session included a one hour lecture given by a civilian specialist. A unique feature of the remainder of the training session was the discussion of a hypothetical police case designed to point out human relations problems as they pertain to the police officer's job.

In early August, the second of four groups of 450 officers each began the in-service training program. Extension of the Federal grant may permit the entire department to receive this valuable training.

The kind of on-the-job training represented by this human relations course will help to insure impartial administration of the law and vigorous and professional law enforcement. For further information on this program, please contact: Richard Marks, Director, Detroit Commission on Community Relations, 1106 Water Board Bldg., Detroit, Mich. 48226.

K. C. JONES RESIGNS AEC Kenneth C. Jones, Jr., immediate past President of NAIRO, has resigned from his post with the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission to embark upon a career as private intergroup relations consultant. Jones said, "While there is yet much to be done, I believe that I have accomplished much of what I set out to do when I came with the AEC. I believe that I can contribute more to our field as a private consultant and I look forward to working with my colleagues in the future." Jones' experience with the Federal Government, with the Cleveland Commission, and with the Urban League provides him with extensive knowledge about the needs of governmental and private agencies, as well as businesses and labor organizations. K.C. thus joins the ranks of George Schermer and Al Nellum, each of whom has his own operation as a private consultant.

NAIRO RESOLUTION ON TITLE VI AND PREEDOM OF CHOICE

Evidence is mounting that the concept of "freedom of choice" is being abused by a number of public school and public housing officials and agencies to present a surface appearance of compliance with the non-discrimination requirements of Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act and that federal officials charged with enforcing that Title are accepting so-called "freedom of choice" plans that do not in fact achieve any change in long-established patterns of segregation. We therefore resolve that appropriate committees of NAIRO protest to the appropriate federal officials against misuse of "freedom of choice" plans in purported compliance with Title VI in public school and public housing programs. We further resolve that a NAIRO task force be established to study federal policies in niques of other related fields. In this way, they will be in a better position to refer to others with appropriate competencies, aspects of complex social problems with which they are not equipped to deal effectively. Reciprocally, it is to be hoped that those without intergroup relations skills will recognize the need for and seek the skills which you possess.

I have appointed a special committee headed by Vice President Arthur Levin, to prepare guidelines for use by chapters to develop a frank and spirited dialogue in their meeting which will help the individual to determine what the field is and what it is not; what practitioners should be doing and what they should appropriately leave to other disciplines and professions. It is not expected or even hoped that we shall arrive at unanimity of view or even broad consensus, but it is hoped that a higher level of sophistication in contributing to the solution of complex problems which we face will emerge, that your chapter meetings will be lively, well attended, and profitable for each member.

SERVICE TO MEMBERSHIP A worthy service to NAIRO's members and to other professionals and students in the field of intergroup relations has been performed by NAIRO's 1964-65 Commission on Research Services. This Commission, chaired by Arthur Levin the Staff Director of the Potomac Institute, developed the basic annotated listing Readings And References in Intergroup Relations. It has been printed and a copy accompanies this issue of the NAIRO Newsletter; additional copies are available from the national office at 15c each. It is the belief of the Commission on Research Services that this publication would be particularly valuable to lay leadership, those who serve on boards and commissions—as well as to professional staff members.

Dear Fred:

Thanks for the "Readings and References..." It's a crazy, messed-up document, which I don't really understand -- but it's still interesting.

You should know that while we appreciate having our L-Reports recommended, we haven't done one for several years.

Al and I will be coming up on the train Wednesday night, and I will call you Thursday morning.

Best.

Paul —

Dear ~~Mr. Anthony:~~

I know that I speak for everyone connected with the 1965 NAIRO conference when I express my personal thanks to you for your excellent contribution to the program.

Since the close of the conference I have received a great many letters saying that this year's program was among the most stimulating NAIRO has ever put together. A large measure of credit for our success goes to your presentation and help.

Again, my thanks and best wishes for the holiday season.

Dear Paul:

Listening to Johnny Cash and the Ballad of Ira Hayes, thoughts turn to Al Ulmer -- and, as he doesn't read too well, I figured I might as well drop you an overdue line.

Want to thank you for the nice words you sent along to Marcia and me. After collecting dust for a while at her folk's place, the letter was finally forwarded to us.

We've been keeping rather busy here since our arrival. Fair housing and the FHA are absorbing chores, and Marcia is putting in 20 hours a week at a local shoe dispensary. Together we are trying to furnish and fix up the apartment (she has become a well-known figure at the auction house). And in our spare time, we try to give some attention to the Intern Program(To my surprise, there seems to be some hope for another round on internships and a new, full-time coordinator).

Thus far, we have not been given much cause to doubt Philadelphia's attractions, but then we've been busy enough to enjoy Dubuque or Fargo. Living in Center City as we are has also helped. And we get few pleasures greater than watching Reb shake up a few teddibly propah Poodles and their teddibly propah mastuhs in Rittenhouse Square.

Before I forget, it has been suggested to Freddy and me that our funding cause would not be hurt by a few laudatory words on the contributions of Eleanor Roosevelt Interns to human rights and the work of h.r. agencies(five points are added for each mention of the name of the noble lady or the foundation). All contributions gratefully accepted here at 2006 Spruce.

Regards to Al, Robin, Winifred, Paul S. and others too few to admit.

Nate

Dear Nate:

This is to express our appreciation for the opportunity we've had to participate in the Eleanor Roosevelt Intern program. We have had three interns complete their year with us. All of them are still in this field of work and one - Al Ulmer - is now a senior professional member of the SRC staff. The two interns in our present program show equal promise.

This program is meeting a need that must be met; people are needed desperately and we must have this bridge for bringing people into the field as well as for offering training to them. I only wish the program could be expanded.

You are to be commended for this program and the Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial Foundation deserves the appreciation of all of us for supporting this program. It is a wise program and, I think, a uniquely fitting way of honoring Mrs. Roosevelt.

Sincerely,

Dear Nate:

Enclosed is a letter about how great the intern program is, etc. This is done in spite of the discouragement of responding to any letter that begins "listening to Johnny Cash and the Ballard of Ira Hayes..." but then we all know Quackers have little taste.

I hear you are doing great things up there. Best to Marcia.

The Kentucky NAIRO Chapter Meeting in Louisville, February 15, asked us to distribute the enclosed expression of the Chapter's concern. I feel strongly about this matter because Anna Holden's professional work and personal commitment in providing competent and well documented research data has benefited me personally in my work in both Eastern Tennessee and here in Kentucky.

If you have difficulty obtaining more details from NAIRO or from Anna, please let me know and I will send you additional information.

Resolution Adopted by the Kentucky Chapter of NAIRO at its Regular Meeting, February 15, 1966

We, the Kentucky Chapter of NAIRO, are concerned that the National Board has not provided leadership or information for its chapters or members regarding the dismissal of Miss Anna Holden from the Office of Education's school desegregation program, the Office of Equal Educational Opportunities.

Miss Holden, fired for "failure to accept direction without resentment" and allowing "emotional reactions" over civil rights to cloud her judgement, holds an impressive work experience record in the area of civil rights, reflecting her competence in this field.

The firing of Miss Holden concerns us because it relates to the general reluctance or refusal of the Office of Education to provide leadership in effecting compliance with nondiscrimination regulations as has been evident in Kentucky. Capable persons, dedicated and active in the field of civil rights, should be regarded as assets rather than liabilities subject to dismissal because of their pro-civil rights attitudes and activities.

We are concerned that the National Board and leadership of NAIRO has apparently not yet acted in meeting with the officials of the Office of Education in implementing the resolution on Title VI passed by the membership in Chicago on October 21, 1965. That resolution called for "affirmative and corrective action to insure the full implementation of the terms, intent, and spirit of the 1964 Civil Rights Act."

We urge the National Board to immediately exercise its responsibility in carrying out the actions called for in the Title VI resolution and, through a mailing to all NAIRO Chapters and members, work to build support for the full reinstatement of Miss Anna Holden to the OEEO program.

We likewise urge all chapters to express their support for Miss Holden and also to call for immediate action in implementing the Title VI resolution.

Those persons desiring a complete packet of information regarding the circumstances of Miss Holden's dismissal should write to:

THIS IS A STATEMENT

BY

FREDERICK B. ROUTH, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

OF THE

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

(N A I R O)

BEFORE THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON EXECUTIVE REORGANIZATION

OF THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT OPERATIONS

OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE HELD IN

WASHINGTON, D.C., MARCH 3, 1966

My name is Frederick B. Routh. I appear before you as the Executive Director of NAIRO, The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, a post I have held since May of 1962. Prior to coming with NAIRO, I was from 1959 to 1962 the Executive Director of the Michigan State Fair Employment Practices Commission. Before that, I was Field Director of the Southern Regional Council from 1954 to 1959 - with headquarters in Atlanta, Georgia. Before that, I was an Assistant Professor of Human Relations at the University of Miami in Coral Gables, Florida, from 1951 to 1954. I review my professional experience, Mr. Chairman, not as an applicant for a staff position with your committee, but only to indicate that I am not without experience in both the governmental and private agency activities in the field of intergroup relations and in the South as well as in the North.

Let me say a few words about NAIRO, the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials. It is the professional association of those individuals who work in professional capacities for, and those who serve on the Boards and Commissions of governmental or private agencies organizations or institutions, in the fields of civil rights, civil liberties, human relations and community relations. It is to these persons what the American Association of University Professors is to college teachers. NAIRO will hold its 20th Annual Conference this November. It has grown in membership and reputation over the years; it has today something over 1,400 members. Its staff is headquartered in Washington, D. C. There are 17 local chapters of NAIRO located in major urban centers. NAIRO seeks to further its purposes through a four-fold program.

(a) The exchange of experience and knowledge among professional workers and others concerned with racial, religious, and ethnic relationships.

(b) The study, analysis, and research of problems and developments affecting intergroup relations;

(c) The collection, compilation, and dissemination of information and ideas regarding programs, methods, and techniques; and

(d) The professional training of persons seeking to enter the field of intergroup relations as a career.

On October 21, 1965, the membership assembled in Chicago at the 19th Annual Conference adopted the following resolution:

"The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, in Conference assembled, expresses its concern that the proposed transfer of the Community Relations Service from the Department of Commerce to the Department of Justice may seriously damage its effectiveness as a conciliatory body and lessen its capacity for affirmative action. We recognize the effectiveness of the Justice Department as a law enforcement agency but we are concerned that that very factor may well change the nature and image of the Community Relations Service to its detriment.

"We therefore strongly urge careful consideration of retaining the Community Relations Service as a part of the Department of Commerce until such time as the New Department of Housing and Urban Development is sufficiently organized, staffed, and viable to permit transfer of the Service to it. We instruct the Executive Director to make this resolution known to the President of the United States, the Vice-President, the Secretary of Commerce, and the Attorney General; we further instruct that it be published in the NAIRO Newsletter."

The discussion which took place before the final adoption of this resolution unfolded the rationale behind the concern expressed in it. It was felt that the assignment of the community relations service to the Justice Department would create unnecessary problems; it was the professional opinion of those who spoke that among the problems such a move would create are:

(a) A confusion of role. The Community Relations Service has assumed the role not only of assisting in the Desegregation of public accommodations and public facilities, but also the even more crucial role of assisting communities, through persuasion and conciliation to provide equality of opportunity and treatment for all their citizens. Their representatives have also been useful in crisis situations and, on the basis of their efforts of last summer, in preventing crisis situations. The important phrase in what I have just said, is "through persuasion and conciliation."

The Justice Department is the legal branch, the enforcement agency, the prosecutor. These are undertakings that it performs well, but they are undertakings different from persuasion and conciliation. Certainly, in the past, members of the Justice Department have been effective at conciliatory and persuasive efforts. We are indebted to Burke Marshall, former Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights, to John Doar, currently the Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights and to others who have performed this role, but these have been occasional affairs and have not constituted the main activities of the Justice Department.

(b) A confusion of image. What people believe is often as important and often more important then what is. If, as I have indicated, there would be role confusion by assigning the Community Relations Service to the Justice Department, it was the professional opinion of those at the conference who discussed this resolution that there would be even more serious confusion regarding the image of the Community Relations Service as a part of the Justice Department. Out in the communities of the nation, the Justice Department is thought of as a combination of the FBI, the Federal District Attorney and Justice Department Attorneys enforcing the laws; the image of the Community Relations Service is of an agency offering to assist through professional services, communities in difficult situations or facing hard decisions. The image of the Community Relations Service attached to the Justice Department might best be described by a combination of the thinking of the Prophet Micah and Teddy Roosevelt: "What is asked of the Community Relations Service but that it love mercy, do justly, walk humbly with its God and carry a big stick".

It was the experience of the Michigan State FEPC, during the years that I was its Director, that it was unwise to confuse the roles of a community relations approach and an enforcement approach to intergroup relations problems. The Fair Employment Practices Act of Michigan provided enforcement powers to the commission and we were thankful for them, for we believed in the old adage, "a dog with good teeth will have his bark heard." The Act also provided for an educational program to bring about voluntary compliance with the Act - both its letter and its spirit. We established in a number of Michigan communities Employment Advisory Committees; they were comprised of leading businessmen, labor leaders, religious leaders, civic leaders and educators; each of them was served in a secretariat capacity by one of our field representatives. We had a standing rule that the field representative serving the Employment Advisory Committee in Kalamzaoo, or the ones serving similarly in Lansing, Grand Rapids and Muskeegon would not investigate formal complaints in the cities in which they served. We sought to make a distinction in both role and image between the investigative - enforcement functions and the service-secretariat functions in any one community. The field representative serving in the secretariat function in Grand Rapids could investigate claims in Kalamzaoo; the reverse was also true. This preserved, in our opinion, the professional virtue of two distinct roles and images. On one occasion, due to the shortage of staff and unusually severe case load, we violated our own standing rule and assigned one of our field representatives to investigate several cases in the community in which he had served in a secretariat function to the Employment Advisory Committee. This new role, the new light in which he was seen by those with whom he had worked, damaged his relationship and lessened his effectiveness with the leadership of the Employment Advisory Committee. It was our conculsion in Michigan, as it is the conclusion expressed in the NAIRO resolution that combining these two functions would lead to confusion of role and image, that it would damage the image and lessen the effectiveness of the Community Relations Service.

Finally, let me say that this is not just a recent concern of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials. On August 21, 1961, we submitted to President Kennedy a series of recommendations for executive action in intergroup relations. They had been developed by a task force of experienced professionals assembled by the NAIRO Board of Directors. On August 23, 1961, a NAIRO delegation met with the President to discuss these recommendations. President Kennedy later said of the report entitled, Executive Responsibility in Intergroup Relations the following " an example of the vital service that NAIRO can render on an increasing scale is the valuable study on executive responsibilities in intergroup relations presented to me by the officers of NAIRO. Your helpful suggestions are now being considered by the appropriate departments and agencies."

Mr. Chairman, the recommendations made back in 1961 are still valid. One deals with the question your Committee and this government now face. In the recommendations to the President, we wrote:

"D. COMMUNITY CONSULTATIVE SERVICES IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS.

"Local communities faced with major intergroup relations problems, expecially those that lack their own governmental intergroup relations agencies, have acute need for consultative services not presently available from any other source.

"Throughout the United States, there are countless communities totally devoid of intergroup relations resources and financially unable to secure them. Some of these communties now face or will soon face monumental intergroup relations problems resulting from such developments as school desegregation, heavy in-migration of minority group families or extensive urban renewal. Other cities and towns only slightly more fortunate have intergroup relations resources that are inadequate to cope with local problems. They need a variety of services going beyond the reference clearing-house noted later; they need the counsel and guidance of competent consultants, matching grants-in-aid to help support local intergroup relations efforts, and, in some instances, demonstration projects or action research programs.

"This Administration has asserted a federal obligation to help communities deal with the physical and human problems of urbanization; it has given evidence of its firm resolve to develop dynamic approaches to pressing social problems. It is possible to render significant assistance to beleaguered communities by creating, within the framework of existing departments or agencies, the consultative services that they need in the area of intergroup relations.

"We recommend the establishment of an Intergroup Relations Service, appropriately situated within the Executive Branch, which would offer general intergroup relations counsel and technical assistance to local communities and to their intergroup relations agencies and which would include the use of demonstration projects and the provision of matching grants-in-aid to communities presently unable to support local intergroup relations efforts.

"We further recommend the establishment of a Community Education Service, appropriately situated within the Executive Branch, which would offer consultative services and, where warranted, financial aid to those school boards engaged in earnest efforts to desegregate public schools, and which would aid in establishing equal opportunity in vocational education and in training related to formal apprenticeship programs."

One last word, Mr. Chairman: there are today in thirty two of our States governmental intergroup relations agencies; only one is located in the Attorney-General's Office; there are today in some one hundred and seventy of our cities governmental intergroup relations agencies; not one is located in the Office of the City Attorney. Experience would seem to suggest that what has been organizationally valid for the States and the cities is also valid for the Federal Government. Mr. Chairman, the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials stands opposed to the transfer of the Community Relations Service to the Department of Justice.

Dear Nate:

This will acknowledge receipt of your check for $1,250 representing the final payment on the Internship Program.

Now that the program is ending, let me compliment you again on the leadership you have given it.

It was good to see you and Marsha on Friday evening, and to see how well married life does for you both.

Do hope you will have a chance to get this way at some point.

Best.

Dear John:

Here follows several random comments about your thoughtful paper on NAIRO commissions.

I have real hesitancy in suggesting that you add others, since I am sure there will be the temptation to have enough commissions to reflect everyone's interest, and that certainly would get out of hand. I do feel, however, that a commission is needed for the Mexican-American and/or Spanish speaking peoples. This group, of course, like the American Indians do tend to be forgotten and will perhaps become increasingly vocal and important.

Again, with real hesitation, I think consideration should be given to a commission concerned with poor whites. Just as poor Negroes represent a unique and distinct group, so do the poor whites. And there is some indication that poor whites are rumbling and need attention. Certainly, this is beginning to appear very much in the traditional patterns in Appalachia.

Your suggested commission on black nationalism might be expanded to include extremism in general. Great care would have to be taken in order for interpretation not to place the feelings of nationalism in the class of the Bircher. I do think there is, however, much overlapping of common interest in all of the extremist movements, and certainly the activities and influence of the hate groups and ultra-conservatives is crucial in our business.

I take some exception to your suggestion of a commission on the role of the white liberal. I think the term and the talk about the white liberal has just about been beaten to death (if one more fellow tells me that the "day of the southern white liberal is over," I am going to hit him in the mouth. Unless it were the year 1865 the white liberal has never had a day!).

You might, as an alternative, consider a commission on the role of concerned lay people, generally. There are tens of thousands of lay people in our society, Negro and white, who could benefit from sound professional program suggestions and guidance.

Finally, to my dismay, I will be unable to attend the Detroit meeting. I go to Europe the following week and simply cannot, in good conscience, be out the week before (for a modest consultant fee I will be happy to advise the Commission on international aspects of the latest group tensions in Paris!).

Sincerely,

Paul Anthony

Dear Paul:

Please excuse this form of communication but, with our overburdened staff, it seemed the quickest and easiest way to get this out. Attached is a memorandum, in rough draft, which seeks to stake-out new ground for the NAIRO Commissions to cover. I would appreciate it if you would read it with some care and let me have your reactions to it. Also please send a copy to Fred Routh at the NAIRO offices.

I hope that we may further discuss this at the forthcoming Board meeting, scheduled for Detroit on May 5-6, if not before. I also hope to talk personally with those of you in Washington for, as you no doubt know, I have come over to the "Feds" and am Deputy Director of the Model Cities Administration -- the agency to carry out the mandate of the demonstration cities legislation.

PROPOSED DESCRIPTION OF RESPONSIBILITIES FOR NAIRO COMMISSIONS

GENERAL STATEMENTS:

On December 22, 1966 a letter was addressed to the Chapter Chairman from the President of NAIRO calling attention to the fact that for several years NAIRO has placed the responsibility for research information points of view, suggested courses of professional action, continuing problems, etc., on the substantive areas of all professions concerned in the hands of various "Commissions" of our assocaition. Some of the Commissions have done outstanding jobs over the years. Others have from time to time been dormant. It was then suggested that Chapters assume the responsibility heretofore vested in Commissions. However, at the last Board meeting of the NAIRO Board of Directors in Pittsburgh, it was the considered opinion of the Board, and agreed to by the President, that while Chapters should certainly be involved in the work of NAIRO's Commissions, it might be more appropriate to appoint, on a national basis, three to five persons as members of a national commission and then to ask each Chapter to appoint individuals from the Chapter membership who might have an interest in the subject assigned the commissions, as members of the Commissions.

Presently there are Commissions of NAIRO authorized to operate in the following areas;

a. Man-Power Development

b. Housing and Urban Life

c. Public Information

d. International Aspects of Intergroup Relations

e. Inter-Professional Liaison

f. Professional Standards

g. Public Policy

h. Research Services

As can be seen, each of these Commissions is quite general in nature and they are therefore, and here with being dispensed with, and the following Commissions are being setup;

a. Commission on ~~Intergroup~~ International Aspects of Intergroup Relations (This will be the only Commission held over from the group listed above)

The problem of intergroup relations is not an American phenomenon, it exists as we all know in many parts of the world. England, for example, is beginning to have a severe problem in this field, and it goes without saying that many of the emerging nations in Africa are experiencing [illegible] and conflict on the whole matter of race. NAIRO already has some links on the international basis inasmuch as the Northwest Chapter has as some of its members, persons residing in Canada. It is hoped that this Commission will assume the responsibility for studying the character of the problems of intergroup relations in other nations throughout the world where such problems may exist, to determine the similarities and differences between their problems and ours, and to make some recommendations, of a practical nature, that would seek to establish at the very least the beginnings of an international organization dedicated to the promotion of positive intergroup relations.

b. Commission on ~~Intergroup~~ Relations between the minority groups.

At the last annual conference held in Los Angeles, one of the most productive and interesting of itinerary sessions was given over to a discussion of this matter.

At that time, however, we only scratched the surface. In Los Angeles, for example, there have been the problem developing between the Negro and the Mexican American group, in New York I suspect that there are problems between the Negro and the Puerto Rican, and in many places there is at the very least no dialogue going on between the various minority groups that inhabit our great cities. It is hoped that this Commission will look into this matter thoroughly to index the variety and the differences in the problem as they affect various mininority groups, and to determine a course of action that would seek to bring minority groups, with particular emphasis on their organization, into a closer relationship with each other and to eliminate as far as possible through programming and serious dialogue, some of the tension that seem to be developing between minority groups themselves.

c. Commission on Strategy and Tactics in Civil Rights

Within the last two years, particularly, civil rights organizations seem to be drawing further apart in terms of objectives. I think most people would agree that prior to 1964, or perhaps 1965, while the various civil rights organizations used different methods and techniques to achieve their goals, there was general agreement among most of them with respect to the objectives to which minority groups ought be moving. There are those who now say that the civil rights movement is dead. I would rather think that to some extent it is in a hiatus because the mutual support that had heretofore existed between the various civil rights organizations has to a very large extent deteriorated. Whether this deterioration is actually based on a difference in objectives, is perhaps yet to be determined. It is hoped that this Commission will assume the responsibility for attempting to determine precisely what the objectives are of the various national civil rights groups, but more than this, to develop a theory or a hypothesis which would seek to outline how the strategy and the tactics of one civil rights organization can form the basis or the foundation for the movement of another civil rights group. For example, if CORE or SNCC developed an approach to a resolution of the problem of minority groups as they see it, what then is the role of the NAACP and the Urban League, the American Jewish Congress, the American Jewish Committee, the Anti-Defamation League, etc., as supportive organizations and, of course, vice versa.

d. Commission on the American-Indians-- Our most forgotten Minority; What do we do about them?

I should think that the role and function of this Commission is almost self-explanatory. If there is any group in American that has a severe problem as it attempts to become competent in dealing with the new environment in to which many American-Indians have now come as they enter our great urban centers. It is, of course, that group.

NAIRO has given little or no attention to this problem. It is hoped that this Commission will look deeply into this matter, make contact with the leadership of the American-Indian throughout the United States to determine how best an organization such as is ours, might involve them in NAIRO, and how we might assist in a resolution of their problem.

e. Commission on Compensatory/Education or "Quality" V.S. the Intergrated School;

It is hoped that this Commission will turn its attention of the growing problem of segregation in the major metropolitan centers of our nation, so far as the schools concerned, and to the cry on the part of some civil rights leaders that integration and education is, and should not be, the primary issue, but the upgrading of ghetto schools. The question; whether or not these two points of view are mutually exclusive, if so, what are the merits of each argument, and what position, if any, should the field of intergroup relations take? If these two points of view are not mutually exclusive, how then can both objectives be accomplished?

f. Commission on Black Nationalism and Its Meaning To The Field of Intergroup Relations;

Since the rise of Black Nationalism, and particularly within the last two or three years since the riots of 1964, the constraination and confusion in the minds of many Americans with respect to "Black Nationalism" has served to confuse the whole civil rights movement itself. It is hoped that this Commission will turn its attention to an indepth study of Black Nationalism what its meaning is to the people who expound its philosophy, what its meaning is to the nation as a whole, what its meaning is to the field of intergroup relations as we attempt to deal with problems of integration. Is Black Nationalism, one might ask, antipathical to integration? If, however, Black Nationalism represents an attempt to help the Negro "find his identity", if this "finding one's identity" a necessary process to the goal of integration? At the very least, this Commission would hopefully suggest some ways in which those persons working in the field of intergroup relations can deal more effectively with efficient.

g. Commission On The Demonstration Cities Act -- How to get the most integration out of it;

The role of this Commission should also be self-explanatory the Demonstration or Model Cities Act represents to some extent a new departure on the part of the federal government in dealing not only with the physical deterioration of our communities, but with the social deteriorations also. As we all know, the Act does not specifically prohibit discrimination, in its application, and many questions have been raised as to whether or not the implementation of the Act will contribute to the integration process or will contribute to the segregation process. It might be wise for a Commission of NAIRO to look rather deeply into this problem, discover what the issues are, become entirely familiar with the Act and with its proposed implementation so that all the members of the organization might know how best to relate to this problem if and when it becomes an issue in their locality.

h. Commission on the "Mutual Support" Role Between Public and Private Intergroup Relations Agencies;

Since the advent of the federal government into the field of intergroup relations, and the rather astounding growth of local human relations commissions, throughout the United States, there needs to be a reassessment of the relationship between the public and the private intergroup relations agencies. I think all members of NAIRO will agree that the private agencies are still viable and strong, and that they should remain so. However, simply because of the growth of public agencies, there may be an attempt to overlook the continuing contribution that private agencies can and must make to the field of intergroup relations. It is hoped that this Commission will wrestle with the problem of the relationships between public and private agencies and how they can be mutually supportive of each other.

i. Commission on the Role of the "White Liberal" in the Civil Rights Movement;

Much has been written on this matter over the past several months, and even more has been said about it. There is a need to define what one means by "White Liberal" and what certain organizations mean when they imply that White people, who have in the past been extremely active in the civil rights movement, now have a different role to play. There is a need to define precisely what we are dealing with in terms of the attitudes that have been expressed on this subject. Some questions might be: Is there really a role that White Liberals can play that Negroes and other minorities cannot play, and that indeed the White liberal has not been playing in the past? We need to raise the question as to whether or not if such a role can be defined, does this necessarily mean that the "White liberal" should withdraw from his traditional role in the civil rights movement? Another question might well be an assessment of the contributions of the White liberal to the civil rights movement over the years with a corresponding question as to whether or not the minority group can afford to lose that contribution in the future.

These Commissions are pertinent to the issues of today, much more so than the rather generalized Commissions that NAIRO has had in the past.

We look upon them somewhat as "adhoc" commissions, subject to change each year, depending upon the problems and issues faced by persons in the field of intergroup relations. There may be, indeed, other Commissions of this type that should be created, if so the Board of Directors would certainly welcome suggestions from the membership. John McKnight, Vice President of NAIRO is to assume the responsibility of "Vice President in charge of Commissions". There would seem to be a necessity for some coordination within and between the Commission structure. Nominations are being made by the President of NAIRO to the Board of Directors relative to the Chairmanship and national membership of each Commission. When such recommendations are approved each Chapter will then be asked to poll its membership and nominate those individuals who have an interest in one or more of the Commissions for assignment to it.

Dear Mr. Marks:

In regard to your memorandum of June 22nd we might cite several SRC programs that would merit your consideration. With apologies for the length of it, enclosed is our last annual program report. Beginning on page 8 is a summary of our several projects and departments here at SRC.

I think for the NAIRO meeting you might especially consider a paper from John Boone, Director of our crime and corrections program. Mr. Boone is directing some very exciting work in police-community relations, in prison reform, in crime prevention, and in attitudes of slum-dwelling teen-agers. He is a competent professional in this field, having spent 14 years with the United States Bureau of Prisons and spmething more than a year here at SRC. He is a native Atlantan and holds a Master's degree in Social Work from Atlanta University.

MEMORANDUM TO: All NAIRO Membership

FROM: Richard V. Marks, Secretary-Treasurer
Detroit, Michigan NAIRO Chapter

I have been asked by Mr. Ernest Brown, the Program Chairman of the 1967 NAIRO Conference in Detroit, to help in the planning of two sessions scheduled for Thursday, November 16, 1967, which will focus on "Affirmative Action" programming at the Local, State and National levels. We are interested in case studies or reports of professional activities to deal with intergroup tension and wipe out inequality and injustice in employment, education, housing, health and welfare services, voting, and the administration of justice.

In order to plan these sessions I would like a brief letter from you discussing any affirmative action programs for social change which you consider worthy for a report to a professional society. The examples we are looking for can focus in four areas, A) Employment B) Housing C) Police-Community Relations and D) Public Schools.

At this point it appears that we will be able to schedule as many as sixteen participants at each smaller group meeting, so please don't hesitate to suggest a reportable program or a special project.

Once participants have been selected we will contact you as to the time and length of each report to be given.

Please send all communications to:

Dear Roger:

So many of the names on your slate of potential nominees are unknown to me that I feel it unwise for me to try to help in elimination.

I would, however, like to comment on the slight possibility of my being nominated as treasurer. I think this is out of the question, and urge you to see that it is dropped. In the process I hope this simplifies a little bit your task. I question having a treasurer outside of Washington equally important. My experience this year trying to serve on the Executive Committee is that I am constantly trapped in a situation that prevents me from attending meetings. This, of course, would be inexcusable for the treasurer.

Another item that might help you slightly -

Frances Pauley has resigned as Director of the Georgia Council and you may not want an inactive board member.

Best.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Members 1967 Nominating Committee

FROM: Roger Nathan, Chairman

SUBJECT: Nominations Slate

Enclosed is a listing of all persons nominated for positions of Officers and Board members by the Nominating Committee. Obviously there are too many to present to the entire membership. We need to prepare a Slate of Candidates which will become the official NAIRO Ballot.

WE NEED AN IMMEDIATE RESPONSE to this request if we are to have a ballot for this year.

Please indicate your choices on the attached sheet and return it to me. I must contact all those nominated to ascertain whether they will accept nomination. After that, I must prepare the Slate of Candidates and submit it to the national office so that the ballot may be prepared and distributed.

Please indicate your choices and return to me no later than October 20, 1967. Time is really short.

My own time table on the work of the Public Policy Committee (which I did not share with you) called for my sending to each of you at this time a codification of our various recommendations so that you could give me your final views in order for us to present a report to the Board meeting on the 14th of November. Alas, all I have is a cordial letter from Marguerite and a distressing note from Jules Cohen's office telling me of his death on September 25th.

Perhaps we should start all over again. Why don't we plan to get together during the Conference in Detroit with the hope that we can bring to the new Board our ideas on how the Statement of Public Policy should be changed. In order to do this it seems to me that we must each spend some time prior to the Board meeting going over the present Policy and making rather complete notes about the omissions and additions we feel ought to be made.

I look forward to seeing you for a brief work session at the NAIRO Conference (time and place to be announced as soon as we see the tentative program). If any of you failed to get my first letter, Fred's letter, or this letter, please let me know.

Dear Casey:

As I promised last week in Detroit, I have read with some care Margaret Hofer's work on the re-drafting. I think all of us owe her an expression of appreciation and I agree with her suggestions completely. There is only one serious reservation I have and that may get deeper into policy than this committee's responsibilities call for. Section IV, Page 2 bothers me a great deal. The thoughts expressed in that paragraph I agree with completely and certainly comment of this nature is needed. But the opening phrase "We accept as legitimate the concept of Black Power" may live to haunt the members of a group like NAIRO.

While it is true there are as many interpretations of Black Power as there are interpreters, in my mind the term is increasingly being associated with the most radical concepts of the so-called extremists of the Left. And as such, to me, comes dangerously close to being the counterpart of racial extremism on the Right. Separation along racial lines, coupled with the concept of hate of one race as the counterpart of pride for another, is not to me a healthy or a desirable thing, and I think that is the direct meaning of Black Power. At least there is the possibility of that being the most liberal interpretation in the future and I doubt that NAIRO would want to accept it.

Would it be acceptable to the Committee to begin that paragraph something as follows:

"We accept as legitimate the concept implicit in the rising demands from minorities for a strong claim upon full participation in the decision making process, that notes seriously and correctly the continuing racist structures, forms, and priorities of our society, etc."

Sorry we didn't have more time in Detroit.

Best.

Paul Anthony

Mr. Paul Anthony

Dear Margaret, Chet, Jules and Paul:

At the NAIRO Board meeting held in Washington on September 9th, President John Buggs appointed you as members of the new Public Policy Committee and asked me to serve as Chairman.

Our specific task is to update the existing Statement of Public Policy as originally designed by George Culberson and his committee several years ago. I am enclosing a copy of the Statement of Public Policy as it now reads, and asking you to put your mind to it at your earliest possible convenience. We were not intructed on timing and I am more interested in doing a sound job than a quick one; but if we could get a report back to the Board by the time of the November Conference in Detroit, it might be possible for our work to be brought to the attention of the members and possibly discussed by them at that time.

Let's leave the question of timing open for the nonce and see what kind of results we get from one another in our efforts to rewrite this statement. As I understand our commission, we are free to do whatever our best thinking tells us needs to be done. We can throw this out and start all over, we can salvage some and discard other parts, or we can simply add to what's been written in the light of recent experience. Although we will probably want to consider form as well as content, I suggest that our first concern be for the latter. It will probably facilitate the rewriting task if we each make suggestions related directly to the way it is presently structured. Why doesn't each of you send me your ideas of what should be added, deleted, or changed, in the policy statements I through IV as well as suggestions for appropriate actions under those same headings. I will accept each of your suggestions, add my own, codify them all and return them to you for further consideration and final agreement.

I know that each of you has at least one full time job and other professional and personal commitments. However, John chose us for this job because he felt we could make a contribution. Please put this as high on your priority list as you possibly can and send your ideas to me with appropriate dispatch. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Casey

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO STATEMENT OF PUBLIC POLICY AND ISSUES

National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials

by
Marguerite I. Hofer
(member, committee for re-drafting)

(Note: See accompanying original "Statement of Public Policy" with paragraphing to match proposed changes and paragraphing below. Substantially, paragraphs 1-6 are substitutes for and enlargements of paragraphs 1-5 in original policy. Then I propose a listing of issues only, rather than the more complex method of goal, program element, and appropriate actions in original policy - M. Hofer)

I. POLICY

Government, at all levels, is a central determinant of public policy through executive action, enactment of legislation, and court interpretation. In a free and democratic society, basic social institutions, public and private agencies, organized groups and individuals help determine the trend and direction of such public policy. The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, and each of its members, has particular responsibility for making maximum contribution to the trend and direction of public policy in the area of intergroup relations.

II. In 1961 and 1965 the NAIRO Annual Conference adopted broad statements of concern, specific goals, and program elements. During 1966 and 1967 our Nation has experienced with renewed impact the tragic persistent reality of American racism, an escalating violent urban crisis of both race and poverty, and pathetically inadequate, underfinanced and frequently degrading programs of governments and other public bodies addressed to these ills. The present grudgingly slow pace of social change is challenged by stepped-up demands for freedom of opportunity, for access to a life of human dignity, and for legitimate political and economic power from those who are bound by ghettoes of race and poverty.

It is further challenged by rising expectations in a highly productive, predominantly affluent and mobile society, and by emergence to a greater prominence of formerly exploited African and Asian nations.

III. In the face of this, we of NAIRO dedicate ourselves anew to the goals of a just, free, and democratic society of human dignity in which the voting booth, the path to public office, and the claim to legitimate power in political, social and economic decision making are open to all; in which each child is afforded equal opportunity to learn and to develop both his identity and his talents to the fullest; in which each person is afforded dignified means of income for a decent human standard of living and ~~is~~ and in which no person is denied a job, on basis of racial or ~~national origin or religion~~ national origin or religion for which he is fitted; in which each person has access to safe and decent housing where choice is not denied because of national or racial origin or religious belief; and in which unresolved intergroup differences are freely discussed in an atmosphere of mutual respect.

IV. We accept as legitimate the concept of "Black Power" that is a claim upon decision-making processes, that seriously questions the racist structures, forms, and priorities of our society, that interprets the current rebellion and revolution in the present urban crisis as an aspiration of frustrated, angry, and aggrieved citizens for the full manhood due a free people, asserting that racial integration must henceforth be not a concession to or a recognition of one man to another out of benevolence, but ~~a concession to or~~ it must be "authentic integration" — a recognition of equal right and equal power. We will work toward a constructive understanding of this rebellion or revolution, and a reversal in any climate of repression and retaliation among the white majority.

V. We support community organization that is in the fullest sense democratic in that it allows the people most directly affected to state their own priorities and concerns rather than rely on others to state them in their behalf. We insist that coalitions making decisions governing the lives of others include them in genuine participation in the decision process and we will observe this principle in our own counsels. We recognize that conflict and controversy are risked when deprived groups are so enabled to speak for changes which will meet their needs. Such conflict is a positive means toward justice and human dignity.

IDENTIFICATION OF ISSUES

Issues define intergroup priorities, programs and resource allocation. Effort should be made to determine which issues are most crucial and pressing, directly and indirectly, upon intergroup relations and which most appropriately call for response and involvement from both public and private intergroup agencies.

Some leading issues now demanding response are:

- Full employment or other non-degrading means of income for all persons with
- Fully open housing market together with assurance of safe, sanitary, and decent housing for all persons.
- Equal educational opportunity at all educational levels, together with emphasis upon racially integrated public education as a necessary ingredient for quality education in a democracy for both white and black youth of mixed income levels.
- Equal access to places of public accommodation.
- Full participation in process of political-social-economic decisions.
- Adequate governmental structures for dealing with metropolitan issues.
- Adequate creative planning for fullest enhancement of human life in the city and metropolitan area, including renewal and redevelopment programs, and adequate financing for this.

- Constructive relationship between police and all segments of population, including minority or lower income groups.
- Adequate press and other sources of sound information on public issues.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

Statement of Public Policy

Foreword

Government, at all levels, is the final determinant of public policy through executive action, enactment of legislation, and court interpretation. In a free and democratic society, basic social institutions, public and private agencies, organized groups and individuals help determine the trend and direction of such public policy. The National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, and each of its members, has particular responsibility for making maximum contribution to the trend and direction of public policy in the area of intergroup relations.

The 1961 NAIRO Annual Conference adopted a broad statement of concern which is the frame of reference for the more specific goals set forth in this statement. "We dedicate ourselves anew to the goal of a free and democratic society in which each child has equal opportunity to learn and to develop his talents to the fullest; in which no person is denied the job for which he is fitted or the housing of his choice because of artificial distinctions; in which diversity of origin or religious belief is viewed as cause for pleasure rather than prejudice; in which unresolved intergroup differences are freely discussed in an atmosphere of mutual respect; in which the door of the voting place and the path to public office are open to all who are fully qualified -- in short, a society in which each individual is accorded a full and equal measure of human dignity."

The pace of social change is quickening, brought about by increased demands for freedom by those who do not have it, the recent acts of Congress and decisions of the courts, the rising expectations and capabilities of those previously denied equality of opportunity, the extreme mobility of population reducing the sectional character of racial relationships, and the recognition of world-wide implications in a continued gap between preachment and practice. Individually and collectively, intergroup relations practitioners are affected by and contribute to these social changes. As agents of society they assist in facilitating the social adjustments of individuals and groups required by such changes. They have a responsibility to contribute their knowledge and skills to the advancement of the goal of a free and democratic society.

In adopting a Statement of Public Policy, NAIRO recognizes the central role played by Government at appropriate levels in the struggle "to secure these rights" for all people. Social action must be directed to that level of government which has responsibility, local, state or federal, but the evidence is overwhelming that the federal government must continue to give ever increasing national leadership in the civil rights field if the basic problems are to be resolved. In a democracy, broad-based support and encouragement for initiation of such programs must come from a well-informed and concerned public; NAIRO is committed to assisting this effort.

This document undertakes to identify major areas of concern, establish an acceptable goal, set forth elements of the problem, and suggest appropriate and needed action.

Public Policy Statements

I. EDUCATION

The democratic goal

To provide equal educational opportunity without distinction as to race, religion or national origin so that each individual will realize and attain his full potential.

Problem elements

Equality of opportunity in education is basic to attaining equality in economic and social life. The Supreme Court Decision declaring education in segregated schools unequal has established the public policy in this area. It has been supplemented by recent Congressional action. The rate of progress in school desegregation is hopelessly slow everywhere in the country, with "token integration" the order of the day in most of the Southern states and de facto segregation of schools more often the rule than the exception in the North.

#8 Children from depressed areas and poor homes, including a large component from minority groups, are unable to develop their full educational potential. Concentrations of racial, ethnic and religious groups in segregated neighborhoods result in culturally deprived sections in each of our urban and metropolitan areas. In order to achieve equality of opportunity in such areas, educational offerings often have to be decidedly unequal.

#9 Minority group youth are underrepresented in vocational trade training programs and some school systems have wholly inadequate specialized training courses. Vocational counseling is based upon inadequate and out-of-date information in relation to minority opportunities.

#10 A larger proportion of Negroes than the rest of the population do not go on to college; this one-tenth of the population supplies one-twentieth of the nation's college population. Of that one-twentieth, eighty percent are in segregated colleges. These same proportions apply about equally among other minorities, such as Puerto Ricans, American Indians and Mexican-Americans.

II. EMPLOYMENT

The democratic goal

#11 To secure equal employment opportunity and industrial participation for all persons without distinction as to race, religion or national origin.

Problem elements

#12 The right to equality of opportunity in employment has been the subject of legislation in an ever increasing number of states and municipalities since 1945. It is estimated that about ninety eight percent of the nonwhite citizens of the north and west are now covered by fair employment practices laws. It is apparent that such laws alleviate but do not eliminate the problem of discrimination in employment. In the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the federal government finally recognized its responsibility to take legislative action in this area.

Traditional patterns developed over long years of neglect cannot be changed by enjoining the employer to hire the best, most qualified man, that is, "merit employment." The act of discrimination does not occur only at the time a decision is being made to hire or promote. The discrimination and segregation which has been practices for many generations prohibits the minority group individual from attaining the background and experience which makes such competition possible. To give minority group individuals equality of opportunity will require new programs of an affirmative nature and conscious effort on the part of employers.

Apprenticeship training programs have been on the decrease but nonwhites never had adequate representation in such programs. In similar fashion, nonwhites have been excluded from management training programs throughout industry.

While the great majority of labor unions have express policies of non-discrimination at the national or international level there are all too many which do not. Even those which do, however, find difficulty in securing cooperation and compliance at the local level. That all is not well in the labor movement is dramatized by the existence of The Negro American Labor Council.

The Negro or other minority worker displaced by automation will not have equal opportunity with majority group individuals similarly situated. In comparison with the white job hunter he starts with an inferior education and no experience in jobs which might otherwise be open to him. The rate of unemployment for Negro workers remains constantly about twice that of white workers.

III. HOUSING

The democratic goal

To open the housing market to freedom of choice without distinction as to race, religion or national origin in order that equality of opportunity be achieved and compulsory residential segregation be eliminated.

Problem elements

Discrimination in housing is related to the larger pattern of racial and ethnic discrimination and contributes significantly to maintaining barriers as well as feeding on them. Increased equality in housing therefore will have a generally beneficial effect upon equality in all fields.

Residential segregation of racial and ethnic groups has a direct and controlling relationship to the institutional compositions, such as schools, churches, places of recreation and shopping areas.

The concentration of minority groups in slums is traditional but whereas ethnic groups of white stock have been able to eventually break away from the area of concentration, nonwhites find it next to impossible. The traditional pathway of escape from slums is obstructed by the color barrier.

Urban redevelopment and renewal projects have cut heavily into the available housing supply, particularly for Negroes, in every section of the country. Re-housing has been accomplished largely in still other areas of racial concentration, merely changing the geographic location.

The long existing federal policy of leaving racial occupancy patterns and the selection of renters and purchasers of federally assisted housing to local

[illegible] unnecessarily prolonged the achievement of equal [illegible]

[illegible] some sixteen states and forty cities have enacted laws prohibiting discrimination in some types of housing. In nine of these states and in two cities, such prohibitions cover purely private housing as well. This is a small beginning and will bear fruit. Much experimentation is needed and is going on in the development of techniques and procedures used in administering such laws.

The Housing Industry has been the operating agent administering the actual controls and sanctions which maintain the restrictions generally approved by the white population. Segregation has been the direct result of such controls.

Voluntary private effort to bring about change has been notably successful in a few experimental programs but has not attracted sufficient interest and support to have any appreciable effect on the problem. Most of these have not significantly advanced the democratic goal of freedom of choice.

IV. PUBLIC ACCOMMODATIONS

The democratic goal

To secure equality of opportunity without distinction as to race, religion or national origin for use of places of public accommodation and service in places of business.

Problem elements

The list of types and categories of places of public accommodation is lengthy and need not be catalogued because they have one thing in common, they were established to serve the needs of the general public. It matters not that some are supported by tax revenue and some are commercial business enterprises. The man-in-the-street can walk in and use the facility or receive the service. Such facilities, services or businesses are sometimes denied individuals because of race, religion or national origin.

In northern states the principle of nondiscrimination, including segregation, has been established by state legislatures for several decades. Some provide relief for an aggrieved individual through court action and more recently through administrative agencies. As the years have gone by these states have gradually increased the number of categories included as places of public accommodation by amendment to law or by court interpretation. Southern states generally have had laws requiring segregation in places of public accommodation. Acceptance of the public accommodations section of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 has been heartening.

In practice, whether in the North or South, the principle of equality of opportunity has not yet been firmly established and public policy notwithstanding there is lack of uniformity. The uncertainty of acceptance is not the least of the problems growing out of failure to treat all people alike in places of public accommodation.

Such discriminatory practices are by definition open to public view. Incidents occur which could, and in the past have, provoke disputes which lead to violence. Two of the most savage interracial outbursts of this century were started in public recreational facilities. Each summer, the police and human relations agencies gird themselves for the opening of the swimming pools.

The national conscience has been quickened by the dramatic and courageous "freedom riders" and "sit-in" demonstrators. Change has taken place as a result of these activities and equality of opportunity is closer to reality because of them.

The Supreme Court Decision in the schools' cases, followed later by decisions in other public accommodation areas, has clearly established the fact that separate facilities are inherently unequal. Segregation or discrimination because of race, religion or ethnic origin is on the way out; its demise assisted by the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

SUGGESTED APPROPRIATE ACTIONS

In each of the areas covered, education, employment, housing and public accommodations, there are appropriate actions which should be undertaken by government -- federal, state or municipal -- and by private agencies. It is recognized that not all of the suggested actions which follow apply equally to the differing situations about the country; it is also recognized that there is not unanimity among intergroup relations professionals as to their value. They are listed, as the section title implies, as suggested actions -- to be considered for use where the situation seems appropriate.

I. EDUCATION

1. The Department of Justice of the U. S. Government must become more active and aggressive in giving assistance to citizens in those states and communities which continue to resist desegregation.

2. Under Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Federal Aid to Education should be withheld from states or school districts which fail to abide by the Supreme Court decision.

3. Local government officials, school and police authorities, and community leaders need to give strong and unswerving leadership to accomplish peaceful desegregation in Southern communities.

4. Federal, state and private scholarship programs need to be increased and made available to able young people, particularly among minority youth.

5. States need to earmark additional funds for programs in behalf of deprived children. Such funds should provide for curriculum enrichment, intensified counseling services, more adequate facilities, and incentive pay for teachers in these depressed areas.

6. Local School Boards should discover ways and means of giving children in racially homogeneous neighborhoods as much cross-cultural experience as possible. They should redistrict where this can be done without undue hardship; make minority teacher assignments an educational device; and above all make quite certain that children in such neighborhoods have the opportunity for an education that is equal to, or better than, any other section of the school district.

7. All colleges and universities, and particularly Negro colleges, should re-examine curriculum offerings in relation to changing labor market needs and give particular attention to counseling Negro and other minority students in the expanding and changing opportunities.

Vocational Trade Schools must give unlimited and unrestricted [illegible] training opportunities to qualified minority youth and at the same time [illegible] initiative in encouraging such youth to take non-traditional type training.

5. Educational and vocational counselors in high schools, parents of minority youth, voluntary agencies and churches should become familiar with the new occupational categories being made available to minority group individuals and counsel accordingly.

II. EMPLOYMENT

1. The newly created federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission must forthrightly move to carry out its mandate utilizing affirmative action as well as claims processing.

2. State and municipal fair employment practice agencies must have the right to initiate complaint action and must make more use of this activity than past records reveal to be the case. The small number of complaints actually filed by aggrieved individuals does not reflect the true incidence of discriminatory practice.

3. Administrative enforcing agencies at all levels need to give major attention to programs of employer surveillance to bring about "pattern" adjustment. Analysis of utilization of minorities in all job categories in relation to available and qualified persons in the labor market should be carried out in all business and industrial establishments on a continuing basis.

4. Attention of state and municipal administrative enforcing agencies should be directed to revision or modification of existing fair employment practice laws or ordinances to eliminate provisions which prevent positive and affirmative employer action. Most laws prevent conscious effort by employers to recruit or upgrade minority workers and the lack of minority designations on any records seriously hampers study and analysis of progress and problems.

5. Voluntary agencies need to give continuing attention and support to existing programs designed to secure equal employment opportunity and to development of a climate of opinion which permits maximum progress. There is a tendency to leave this function entirely to the public agency. Records show that while progress has been achieved in certain areas that the opportunity gap has not narrowed appreciably.

6. Joint labor-management apprenticeship training programs need to be fostered. This could be accomplished by government stipulation in federal contracts. Reasons for the non-employment of apprentices once trained require attention in some locations but by and large there is a scarcity of apprenticeships.

7. Federal, state and municipal administrative agencies all require more adequate financing and staffing to accomplish the goal. An expansion to meet the requirements of affirmative action will dramatically increase costs of administration. Civil rights groups and concerned citizens must bring this matter to the attention of appropriating bodies and enlist taxpayer support for such increases.

8. Minority group youth must have much better counseling than in the past. The plain fact is that jobs now being opened to minority workers are unknown to youth in time to prepare for them. This is demonstrated by futile recruiting efforts by industry in colleges and universities. Parents need information and counseling because they influence the choices and goals of their children.

9. Retraining of displaced workers is especially important for minority persons. All such training centers must also be aware of the changing times and emphasis needs to be placed upon non-traditional job categories. The emphasis upon "job available" may tend to negate equal employment opportunity efforts.

III. HOUSING

Appropriate actions

1. The Executive Order covering equal opportunity in federally assisted housing should be considerably strengthened and it should remain in effect until adequate legislative action is taken. The Federal Government is a major force in the housing field and can do much to end the biased practices of lending agencies, developers, public housing authorities, and local urban renewal programs. Neither tax revenue nor federal guarantees should be used to perpetuate traditional discriminatory practices.

2. The Federal Government should give encouragement if not direction to the housing industry and local communities to provide suitable supply of new housing for families of moderate and low incomes. The trickle-down theory has resulted in minority group families always having to live in hand-me-downs at the time when such property is in a state of deterioration.

3. States and municipalities should follow the example of those which have enacted legislation prohibiting discrimination in private housing. Such legislation should prohibit discrimination by any part of the housing industry as well as individual owners, with the possible exception of two-family owner occupied units. It should be administered by an agency with power to initiate as well as receive complaints, and it should have the right to seek injunction during the process of negotiation and conciliation.

4. National and local associations of the housing industry should take the lead in enunciating and implementing an industry-wide policy conforming with the principle of a free housing market. This is not only a social responsibility but is in the economic interest of the industry to broaden the market through removal of restrictions.

5. Freedom of the market place in housing is not achieved through the use of quotas. All families, in a democracy, should have the right of free choice and to compete on equal terms and under the same conditions in this market place. The decision as to where to live should properly be left to individual families. Controlled occupancy has been a useful demonstration that desegregation can take place under certain conditions. However, artificially maintained integrated units require tight controls. No one would advocate that an entire community or city be subject to quota controlled occupancy. Civil rights advocates need to re-examine their position on this question.

IV. PUBLIC ACCOMMODATIONS

Appropriate actions

1. The U. S. Community Relations Service should utilize affirmative action as well as complaint processing in carrying out its mandate under Title II of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

2. The President, through firm leadership and example, can exert enormous influence and help avert crisis situations. When they occur, the President must be heard, pointing to desirable solutions and calling for calm and wise local leadership to cooperate in working out these solutions.

A57 3. States which have segregation laws should repeal them.

A60 4. The right of all to access and use of public accommodations and services must be assured by law in every state. Experience with such laws supports the conclusion that they should be administered by a regulatory agency which has the power to initiate as well as receive complaints. Once the law is enacted, it must be uniformly and firmly enforced.

A61 5. Equal protection under the law must be afforded every citizen. The effective employment of police power will assure the maintenance of law and order in times of social change and is a minimum condition necessary for progress. The right of free speech and of protest must be guaranteed and protected by all law enforcement agencies.

A62 6. The federal government must assume responsibility in situations where local authority has broken down or where the responsibility for maintaining law and order has been subverted.

A63 7. Voluntary agencies and citizen groups must continue to press for equality of opportunity in places of public accommodation and service in place of business, in both North and South. Methods of mediation, education, conciliation and persuasion, including demonstrations and picketing, should be used.

Dear Fred:

Hope the remainder of your meeting went well and that you have now recuperated from it.

Again, I am sorry I could be there for such a short time.

At your convenience would you be good enough to send me the names and addresses of the people from Los Angeles and San Francisco whom you introduced me to relative to west coast fund-raising?

Look forward to seeing you next month.

Sincerely,

Dear Casey:

Thanks for sharing the resolution passed by NAIRO after my departure. To me it points up even more the importance of serious work on this question, and my feeling is that the present, or former, committee is inadequate for the purpose.

I am sharing this letter and my earlier comments to you with Galen and Mrs. Hofer.

NAIRO has a responsibility and an opportunity here I think. And, as difficult and potentially explosive as it is, I doubt if we can duck it. If I can be of any help, please call on me.

Best.

Dear Paul:

I have your letter of November 22nd and I thank you for your comments. Two things took place at the Conference after you left, both of which apply to the content of your letter. First, Galen Martin has appointed Marguerite as Chairman of this committee but did not name any members to it at the time of the Board Meeting. He may have assumed that the committee would stay as it was but he did not make this clear. The second thing that happened was that a resolution relating to Black Power was adopted by the membership and I enclose it (in two parts) for your information. I suspect that our committee will have to make some statement regarding Black Power and if something like the resolution adopted is not satisfactory to the committee then they will probably have to come up with some new wording. (If you think this resolution is bad, I am sending a second one to you which was not adopted but which is not uncharacteristic of the caliber of resolutions presented to the Convention.)

It was good seeing you at the Conference even though it was far too brief a contact. I look forward with hope to an early get-together -- perhaps at the next NAIRO Board Meeting.

Sincerely,

Casey

N A I R O

RESOLUTION -

WHEREAS one of the major factors contributing to the present dilemma of Afro-Americans has been his inability to participate in the democratic processes to any meaningful degree, and

WHEREAS one of the main functions of NAIRO is to assist communities in bringing about a meaningful dialogue between blacks and whites, that can lead the way to bring about necessary changes, and

WHEREAS the black community is now calling for its right to self-determination because its voice has been stifled and compromised as as result of the basic racism that is rampant in our society,

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that NAIRO does hereby revise its own Guidelines for the traditional Human Relations and Human Rights councils, committees, etc., in order that black people will be able to determine for themselves the course of action needed for such institutions, by stating that such councils, committees, etc. should be 50% black.

Nov. 16, 1967

WHEREAS, there is a present ambiguity of public understand of the concept of "Black Power", and

WHEREAS, NAIRO has a basic responsibility to inform and educate the public concerning important issues in the field of intergroup relations,

BE IT RESOLVED, that the following statement be released to the public news media at the conclusion of this 1967 National Conference:

As professional practioners of intergroup relations we feel impelled to state clearly our understanding of Black Power, its relevance to our societal structure, its importance as an agent of social change, and its manifestation of the intense quest by black people or America for unqualified freedom, dignity and respect.

National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials recognizes further and accepts as legitimate and justifiable the concept of Black Power as an expression of ethnic cohesion among black people in the tradition of historical social and cultural development of American society. We view Black Power as a revolutionary claim to equitable participation in the decision making processes of America, particularly as these processes affect the destinies of black people. And we accept the importance of Black Power as a dramatic and necessary expression of psychological, economic, and political assertion of black people.

Therefore, the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials is committee to working for a constructive and effective understanding of Black Power and eradication of the social, economic and decision making inequalities out of which Black Power concept has emerged.

Dear Paul:

Our plans for NAIRO's "Big Think" Conference are now complete and we very much hope that it will be possible for you to participate. This is an important undertaking, to which a relatively small group of practitioners is being invited. The Conference is scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 17-18-19 at the Foodergong Lodge at Ephrata, Pennsylvania. It is essential that participants be present the entire length of the Conference. The Lodge is on Route 222 near Lancaster, which is served by Eastern and Allegheny Airlines; transportation is provided from the airport to the Lodge.

Our plan is to examine together the rush of events and trends of recent years in our field; to state, discuss and analyze our operational assumptions. Thus, we hope to identify the best current practices in intergroup work. This may sound ambitious but the times require that we do our utmost to organize and state what we have learned in our jobs, and test it in rigorous discussion for later sharing with many others.

This proposed sharing is built into the project; from a transcript of the taped sessions, an editor will distill a report to the profession which NAIRO will publish. It is hoped that this may serve as a spring-board from which to venture into new efforts and areas of our field. It will also serve as a valuable training tool for middle and junior level staff members.

NAIRO is indebted to the Community Relations Service of the U.S. Department of Justice for financing the costs of the Conference; this includes your room and board at the Conference but not travel to and from it -- we must ask participants to bear that cost themselves. We are confident that they will believe the conference to be of sufficient merit that they will be willing to do so.

Dan Dodson is preparing a paper for the conference and Alex Rosen will present findings from a questionnaire he developed and sent to NAIRO leadership Other materials, including Dean and Rosen's A Manual of Intergroup Relations, will be sent participants prior to the conference.

It is essential that we know quickly who will attend the conference. Enclosed is a card upon which you may indicate your acceptance. Please mail it at once for we have some "alternates" who will be invited should any of those first invited be unable to attend. You may want to call the NAIRO office; should you need to call collect, please call on our 387-8978 number so that we can keep track of expenses.

Finally, since the sessions start promptly at 10 A.M. on Friday we expect most will wish to arrive the previous evening and lodging will be provided. Also we will have an informal, unstructured discussion and a chance for shop-talk as well. The Conference will end following the Sunday luncheon.

We expect this to be one of NAIRO's most significant services and we hope that you can be a part of it.

I. PURPOSE

This proposal is for the development and installation of an inventory of volunteer manpower resources within the office of the mayor. The proposed system will provide the mayor and his staff with a data base of personnel and skills which can be used for civil disaster and continuing social/urban relief.

II. BACKGROUND

1. General

At present, there are no established data processing systems which effectively match the talents of specific individuals within the community to pressing urban/social needs.

2. Present Situation

During civil disasters, many civic-minded individuals volunteer their specific skills for disaster relief. This information is usually recorded in a haphazard manner. As the number of volunteers mounts, it becomes increasingly difficult to match the appropriate persons to specific tasks or community needs.

In the recent civil disorders in Washington, D. C. following the death of Dr. King, a large number of people volunteered their time and talents to the Citizen's Information Center. These people wanted to aid by driving cars, answering phones, nursing, providing food and shelter, etc. The names, addresses, skills, phone numbers, and times of availability were written down on 3 x 5 cards. As the number of volunteers mounted, the system collapsed.

A typical search was conducted as follows: a shut-in from the northwest section of town called in saying that she was out of food and was unable to get to a food distribution center. The problem became that of finding a volunteer driver who not only lived in her section of town but was also available at that specific time. The process used was to sort through the 3 x 5 cards until a likely prospect was found. This hit-and-miss procedure took a significant period of time and often produced an inadequate solution (i.e., sending a driver across town to conduct a ten-minute errand).

Pre-processed lists of volunteers also proved inadequate. It was discovered that these lists lacked the flexibility and speed necessary to meet situations as they developed. It was found that alphabetical lists contained many unnecessary items which had to be screened out; and with lists which were broken down into sub-categories, it soon became impossible to keep the categories up-to-date due to the frequent number of changes which occurred.

3. Problem Definition

The problem in its simplest form is to establish a system in advance that can be used to match available resources with needs. This system should have the following characteristics:

a. Speed
b. Simplicity
c. Flexibility
d. Availability
e. Mobility (light and compact)
f. Specificity of search
g. Operable by untrained personnel
h. Reasonably priced

Methods which utilize linear search techniques cannot satisfactorily solve this problem. The reason for this is that it takes on excessive length of time to screen desired information from among multiple categories. For example: if you wish information on male drivers with station wagons who live in a certain section of town, you have to complete a linear search of each category to find volunteers who would eventually qualify in all categories. This takes a considerable amount of time. A further problem develops when the search yields an inadequate number or when those that qualify are not immediately available. When this occurs you must modify or change one or more of the search parameters, i.e., a car may be able to do the job almost as well as a station wagon or a larger geographic area might do; and thus the whole search must be reaccomplished.

A major problem with attempts to use linear search techniques with preprocessed lists occurs when a large number of people have to be added and/or the facts about these people (such as availability) change rapidly. If the data base is to remain accurate and responsive -- all of these changes must be entered as they occur. Under these circumstances a list rapidly becomes useless.

4. Proposed System

To meet the problem criteria, Systemetrics has designed a data processing system that takes advantage of coordinate search logic. Using the previous example, the descriptors male, specific geographic location, station wagons, etc., are searched simultaneously instead of linearly (one at a time). This is done by using a separate mylar card (with 10,000 discrete coordinate locations) for each descriptor. A card is assigned for the descriptor male, one for drivers, one for station wagons, etc. When a person volunteers their services, all applicable information is placed on an input coding form (see Enclosure #1). A specific four-digit number representing one of the unused 10,000 coordinate locations on the mylar card is then assigned to the individual. All of the descriptors (mylar cards) that have a positive response on the form are pulled and a hole is drilled through all cards at the assigned coordinate location. The descriptor cards are then returned to the working file and the form is placed in a sequential file. For systems with large numbers of volunteers, an address plate is prepared to facilitate listings, mailings, and maintenance of the system. After the volunteer is entered into the system, his assigned number will be displayed when all or any combination (in any order) of descriptor cards which contain his talents are matched. Similiarly he will not be displayed when any descriptor is used which does not have a hole drilled at his unique coordinate number.

III. METHOD OF APPROACH

One procedure for establishing this type of system follows:*

Upon the decision to establish a system, a consultant will sit down with a representative of the mayor's staff and develop a vocabulary of descriptions to meet potential "need" situations. A form will then be designed, public service advertising developed and requests for volunteers will be placed in local newspapers. (The responses from these ads will form the initial data base and can easily be expanded by adding spontaneous volunteers if and when a crisis occurs.) Upon the delivery of the system, the appropriate personnel will be trained. In large systems, it is recommended that an address plate be added for each volunteer. This will increase the system flexibility and ease system upkeep. Once the system is installed, upkeep cost will be minimal -- requiring on the average less than one day's time per month. (This, of course, will vary with the size and use of the system.) Enclosure #4 gives a pictorial time analysis of the major steps that must be taken.

IV. COST ESTIMATE

The cost of the system varies with the number of volunteers, depth of search desired, and method of payment. The major pricing categories are:

	Cost
1. Equipment	$6,000

This cost covers the Jonker 301 Data Processing System consisting of a J-301 input drill, a J-52B visual card reader and mylar cards. If desired, a long term (5 year) lease can be made for $132.00 per month. (Other equipment financing options are also available.)

---

* There are, of course, many options and methods of approaching this problem -- each can be tailored to the unique needs and desires of the client.

	Cost
2. Data Input (per 5000 volunteers)	$1,500
This cost covers the labeling of the descriptor cards, key punching input data, and input drilling of the original data base. The price is roughly $.30 per person (or $.25, if the key punching is done by the client).
3. System Analysis and Design	$3,000
This cost covers systems analysis, design and implementation. It includes analyzing the client's needs, designing an appropriate system, developing a vocabulary of descriptors, designing the input coding form, preparing public service advertising, installing the system and training the appropriate personnel. The fee is $4,000 for systems with 5,000 to 10,000 initial volunteers, and must be further negotiated if more than 10,000 volunteers are to be input (or if more than one Jonker ADP system is installed).
Total cost of a completely operational system for 5,000 volunteers:	$10,500

PRESS RELEASE

DATA PROCESSOR CONNECTS NEEDS WITH RESOURCES
UNIQUE HUMAN RESOURCE INVENTORY CREATED

A data processing system loaned to the D. C. Government by the Jonker Corp. of Gaithersburg, Md. and staffed by employees of the Systemetrics Corp. of Washington, D. C. has helped hundreds of persons whose homes and possessions were lost in the weekend civil disorders.

The $6,000 system has been in service since Monday at the Citizens Information Service located in the Old District Court House at 451 Indiana Avenue, N. W. (Room 220). Through yesterday, the data processor had met more than 1,000 individual requests for resources.

Here is how the operation works: all available resources which have been volunteered to the Citizens Information Service- workers, homes, food, clothing, etc. - are indexed on "optical coincidence" cards as they become known. By utilizing light which shines through punched holes, the system can match needs to resources in a matter of seconds.

For example: if a request is received for volunteer workers to man a clothing distribution center in N. W. Washington, the system can rapidly identify those individuals who live closest to the need - and who are available to work during the day. The names and telephone numbers are given to operators who then contact the volunteers.

Fred Jonker, President of the Jonker Corp. said that an electronic digital computer could not be used effectively in the present situation because weeks or months would be needed to program it. The Jonker J-301 system was answering inquiries within 20 minutes after installation.

David A. Delo, Executive Director of the Systemetrics Corp. (Washington based consultants in urban affairs and municipal problems who researched and wrote significent portions of the Riot Commission Report) stated that "from our experience and background in investigating the riots of last summer, no city had utilized any type of a disaster system of this type. The Jonker Termatrex system is truly unique and provides a basis for disaster control information systems throughout the country."

The "Human Resources Inventory" was designed by Richard N. Leahy, Staff Consultant for the Jonker Corp. In an interview yesterday, Mr. Leahy stated, "the matching of spontaneous volunteer assistance to disaster needs has seldom been effectively handled. This is not a criticism of previous attempts, but rather, a critical appraisal of standard data processing techniques as applied to human resources. The coordinate search techniques inherent in the Jonker J-301 data processing system allowed me to design and implement a human resources inventory in a very short time. During the present crisis, we were answering inquiries within 20 minutes after installation of the system.

We have learned from this experience that there exists a great need for implementing a continuous human resources inventory in advance of civil disaster throughout the country. Each municipality can and should identify its volunteer talent for potential utilization in pressing urban and disaster relief."

The Citizens Information Servicedata processing system is manned by employees of the Jonkers Corp. and the Systemetics Corp. Both personnel and equipment have been loaned to the city free of charge.

David A. DeLo joined Systemetrics early in 1967 as Executive Director. Prior to this time he was employed by Northrop Corporation where he performed the following functions:

Corporate market planning and development
Program manager of contractual efforts for system integration and engineering support of the U. S. Navy Deep Submergence Systems Program Division market research and development planning, program definition studies and system analysis.

During this time, Mr. DeLo also performed the following functions as an independent consultant:

Under personal contract to design, develop and implement an integrated computer-based data and communications system for the Office of Economic Opportunity.
Under personal service contract to conduct program planning and systems integration studies for the Advanced Sea Based Deterrent, Deep Submergence and ASW programs for Project SEABED.

Mr. DeLo directed all work performed by Systemetrics for the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders. He also served as a personal consultant to the Director and as an investigative team advisor.

DAIL D. DOUCETTE
Information Specialist
Systemetrics

Education: Fresno State College, B.A., 1954
University of Southern California, M.A., Information Systems
American University, Ph.D. Candidate, Information Systems

Mr. Doucette joined Systemetrics in June of 1967, as an information specialist. Prior to this, Mr. Doucette held part-time positions to supplement school scholarships with Comsat Corporation where he was responsible for the design of a corporate management information system, indexing system, and a management information center for Comsat corporate management.

From 1964 to 1965, Mr. Doucette was a management analysis officer on recall to the U. S. Air Force, where he did statistical analysis of management functions and management audit. From 1961 to 1964, Mr. Doucette worked with the Aerojet General Corporation Systems Analysis staff on management reporting systems, project control systems and overall management display systems. Prior to that, Mr. Doucette worked with North American Aviation Corporation and American Potash Chemical Corporation as a systems analyst.

Mr. Doucette has been an instructor in management systems at the University of California in Los Angeles and the American University in Washington, D. C. He has also taught management courses at Aerojet General Corporation.

Mr. Doucette has edited two books on management information and display systems and is also the author of various technical papers and articles on management information systems.

THOMAS W. MASON
Senior Systems Analyst

Education: University of Kansas, 1957-1961, B.A., Mathematics George Washington University, candidate for Master's Degree in Engineering Administration

Mr. Mason joined Systemetrics in April 1968 as a senior systems analyst. His prior experience is in computer programming and operations research. Mr. Mason worked for IBM, Federal Systems Division, for three years as a programmer, where he participated in the design and implementation of information retrieval systems. The retrieval systems were designed to be major components of large management information systems -- in this instance for the Air Force. Mr. Mason also participated in the design and programming of an automated budget system for the Navy.

Prior to joining Systemetrics, Mr. Mason was employed at the Center for Naval Analyses, initially as a computer programmer and later as an operations analyst. He performed several studies while examining Marine Corps operations.

EDWARD P. MYERS
Systems Consultant
Systemetrics

Education: Michigan Graduate School of Business Administration, M.B.A., 1965
Ohio Wesleyan University, B.A., 1960
Department of Defense Computer Institute, Systems Analysis and Design Course, 1967
Air Force Systems Analysis and Design Course, 1963
Air Force Accounting and Finance School, 1961

Mr. Myers joined Systemetrics as a systems consultant in January 1968. Since joining Systemetrics he has been working on a data information and retrieval system that is to be installed in the ten offices of the Real Estate Research Corporation. This system includes form design, microfilming of records, a term indexing system, and a standardized company-wide data retrieval system.

Prior to January 1968, Mr. Myers served as an Operations Officer in the Computer Center of the Joint Chiefs of Staff's National Military Command Center. Mr. Myers' job consisted of supervision of the Computer Rooms with three IBM 360/50's, two IBM 1410's, one IBM 1460, one IBM 1401, one CDC 8090, and one CDC 1604 computers and associated personnel. In addition, Mr. Myers served as the programmer for all immediate information requirements of the National Military Command Center which included queries from the White House and the Secretary of Defense. This entailed formatting and entering the retrieval on remote query devices (IBM 1014, 2250, 2260).

Prior to this Mr. Myers served as the Data Automation Officer at Incirlik Air Base, Turkey. This job included the supervision of programs and operations for all mechanized reporting systems at base level.

From 1961 to 1963, he served as Chief of the Central Accounting Office at Griffiss Air Force Base, New York. In this position he managed all nonappropriated fund accounting and monthly financial analysis of each fund for the Board of Governors.

Dear Fred:

Tuesday, May 28, 1968 I became 40 years old and promptly went into shock in California. That morning a doctor said that food poisoning was the reason, but it was that turn that did it. They say that life begins at 40, but I have tried it for a week today and those who say such things are perpetuating the greatest hoax since NAIRO.

All of which is my excuse for not having sent you birthday greetings. But, needless to say, I do.

Every good wish.

JOSEPH B. ROBISON, DIRECTOR

November 20, 1968

Dear Friend:

I am delighted that you have agreed to serve on the Task Force to draw up the revised version of "Executive Responsibility in Intergroup Relations."

I have conferred with Lloyd Davis and Fred Routh and we have agreed that the first meeting of the Task Force should be held soon so that we can have some preliminary thinking and work prior to the meeting date of January 25 suggested in the "Activity Schedule" sent out by Lloyd. Accordingly, I have arranged a meeting on December 16, from 10 a.m. to 4, at the Potomac Institute, 1501 18th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Please let me know whether you will be able to attend. I know you will make the answer "yes" if at all possible.

Yours sincerely,

Joseph B. Robison

The Role of the Private Agency

There are a multiplicity of private agencies, local, regional, and national, concerned with some facet of intergroup relations and most of them are growing substantially. So, too, new agencies -- particularly on the local level -- are being created at an unprecedented rate. The resources which these agencies represent should be of particular concern to those interested in social reform.

This is particularly true since it is generally assumed that, whatever the response to social ills from the public sector, there will not be adequate resources and programs from that sector to meet the needs of the country. To the extent that this assumption is correct the recognition of the private agency, its contribution and its potential, becomes all the more important.

Considerable and appropriate consideration is now being given to the skills and resources which can be brought to bear on social issues from the business sector. Further, President Nixon has called on all citizens and groups to join the Administration's efforts to eradicate need and prejudice in the country. In this situation, the existence and role of the private agency looms much larger than many are aware.

There are a number of ways in which the private agency can contribute. In considering these, two things should be kept in mind. The private agency by the nature of its structure and support is generally free of many of the pressures which exist with the public agency. And, the private agency more often than not is tax-exempt and thereby removed from the immediate area of politics and partisanship which to some degree are inevitable parts of the public agency.

The most conspicuous,and important, resources of the private agency are the funds and talent which they command. These funds, to be sure, are small compared to those for the public agency. Nevertheless, they are significant particularly in a time when all resources are limited and inadequate. The talent is an even greater resource. The field of intergroup relations is a relatively new one and it is from the private agency that this field has been developed and these skills have been learned; more often than not by trial and error.

The public agency which has a program with which it is less than satisfied, or the public agency which is developing a new program, would be in error not to determine the private skills available for consultation and to utilize those skills to the fullest possible extent. So, too, within this public-private relationship, review and critique of public agencies and programs from the private intergroup relations sector should be not only tolerated but welcomed. We have seen a number of instances when public programs have been greatly strengthened by this process.

Frequently, over a period of years, the private agencies have developed programs and experience in "pioneer" areas which are later adopted by public agencies. Pre-school training and minority entrepreneurship represent examples, and the range, of these private agency explorations. As existing public programs are examined and new ones are developed, every effort should be made to assess the experiences and results of these private explorations.

Finally, private agencies can, in many instances, play a unique role in determining the nature and extent of our social and economic problems and of informing the public of the need to respond with urgency to these ills. No public program, no matter how soundly conceived, will, over the long run, be adequately funded or have an opportunity for success if the general public does not understand the need for such a program. Public agencies should give high priority to forming partnerships with private agencies toward the end of determining the nature and extent of problems, and their solutions. And, within this partnership, private agencies should give the highest priority to informing the public of the particulars of our current national crisis.

SPECIAL ADDENDUM TO

MAY * JUNE NAIRO NEWSLETTER

NAIRO BOARD MEETING

A special meeting of NAIRO's Board of Directors was held in Atlanta, Georgia, June 14-15; the call to the meeting said, "This special meeting of NAIRO's Board of Directors and other Leadership was called in Atlanta, Georgia, at this time because of the civil rights and racial crisis in which the nation is engulfed. NAIRO, as the professional association of those persons who serve on the staffs and boards of intergroup relations agencies, must give assistance and guidance to the resolution of the problems confronting the field and the nation."

The Board approved of the action of the Executive Committee in seeking the establishment of a civil rights secretariat, well staffed and full backed in the White House (A small group of NAIRO officers is meeting with Lee White Special Presidential Assistant for Civil Rights to explore this concept).

The Board discussed a more functional role for NAIRO in this time of crisis; there was consensus that NAIRO could not play a coordinating role but should play a role in opening the lines of communications among the direct actionists and the intergroup relations agencies. It was felt that the regular, old-line intergroup relations agencies might help the direct actionists in such things as: assessing community readiness for change; assessing community leadership and power structure; sharpening skills in the negotiation process and interviewing; differentiating between short and long term goals and seeing the relationship between them; and in laying the ground work for continuing progress after the attainment of a specific short term goal.

The Board appointed a Special Committee on County and Municipal Agencies to develop in the next few weeks a detailed memorandum to assist those communities planning to set up such agencies or those in the South setting up bi-racial committees to deal with grievances. The Special Committee consists of: Galen Martin, Chairman; Marshall Bragdon, George Culberson, Madison Jones, Arthur Levin, Herman Long, Paul Rilling, George Schermer, and (ex-officio) Fred Routh.

The Board passed a resolution calling upon the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights to hold, as expeditiously as possible, public hearings on the denial of constitutional rights of American citizens in the State of Mississippi; and that there be provided, as an essential condition to the holding of such hearings, sufficient federal protection to assure the physical safety and lives of those appearing before the Commission.

The Board created a Special Committee to draft proposals for NAIRO's Executive Committee for further federal action in the civil rights and intergroup relations field; Chairman, David Danzig, John Feild, Herman Long, Edwin Lukas, Alan Reitman, and (ex-officio) Fred Routh.

Edwin Lukas, NAIRO General Counsel, was asked to pick a committee of his own choosing to draft a proposal for NAIRO's Executive Committee to the federal government to provide protection for civil rights and intergroup relations workers in the Deep South.

The Board condemned the "cowardly assassination" of Medgar Evers, NAACP Field Secretary for Mississippi, called for the apprehension of his murderer; and pledged to his widow "to assist with renewed vigor the pursuit of those goals for which her husband gave his life: an America whose practices are identical with its promises for all her people."

SUBJECT: Department Meeting in Cincinnati

Thursday, November 17, from 4 to 6 P.M., has been set aside for a meeting of National Private Services. I am writing in the hope that you will return the enclosed sheet with your recommendations for the most profitable use of the time set aside for us.

All Departments will be meeting concurrently, and the choice of topics has been left to the individual Departments. Will you therefore send along, as soon as possible, your ideas on what you think our main emphases should be. November is right around the corner, and plans must be made early. Also, if we wish to invite outstanding speakers and panelists, invitations will have to go out very soon.

Hope you had a good summer. Will look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely yours,

Saal Lesser

FINAL REPORT: INTERNSHIP TRAINING PROGRAM

This is the final report of SRC's participation in the NAIRO Internship Training Program. This program was envisaged as a means of providing new professional personnel for the field of intergroup relations, without straining the already over-burdened budgets of the various agencies. The Southern Regional Council received a grant for this purpose from the New World Foundation.

Prior to participating in this program, the Council had found difficulty in securing qualified Negro personnel to staff the state Councils on Human Relations then affiliated with it. The professional staff of the Council decided to look for a promising young Negro Southerner for the position of Intern.

A goodly number of applications were received; the more promising applicants were interviewed; the candidate judged "most likely to succeed" was chosen. Thus Machion Garrison came to the Council, in October, 1957.

The training program at the Council consisted of four stages: 1.) Indoctrination -- introduction to the field of intergroup relations and familiarization with SRC and its modus operandi; 2.) Supervised participation in the activities of the Council; 3.) Participation in formal learning situations including the Fisk Institute on Race Relations and the NAIRO Intern Seminar; and, 4.) The increasing assumption of professional responsibility.

From the Council's view the year's experience was not entirely satisfactory; the Intern, in his final report, rated it moderately successful. There are a variety of reasons why the program did not live-up to expectations. 1957-58 in the South was not measured in months but in crises; it opened at Little Rock and drew to a close in Charlottesville and Norfolk. Staff time, which in calmer days might have been devoted to close supervision of the Intern, was diverted elsewhere. In retrospect, full use was not made of such time as was available for supervision of the Intern's work.

Several aspects of the training program proved most fruitful; introduction to the field and the Council, and participation in formal learning situations, and six weeks special assignment to work with the housing expert with the Atlanta Urban League.

The Intern ended the program with an adequate working knowledge of recent literature in the field; he had met and worked with more than a dozen professionals; he had participated in several inter-agency meetings; he had helped plan and participated in a region-wide conference of Church Women; he had organized and led a local citizens' effort to lessen discrimination in a large department store.

During the year in which the Intern was with SRC he increased his ability to establish rapport with people of diverse backgrounds; he developed new insights into some of his own personality problems; he learned to more readily adjust to new situations; he became more aware of the complexities of intergroup problems.

Despite the advances noted above, it was the opinion of SRC's professional staff that the Intern could use a year of further supervised training or graduate study before he would be adequately prepared to assume full responsibility as a professional member of the staff.

Toward the close of the intern year, several job opportunities presented themselves. First, an opening with the Atlanta Housing Authority. The Intern was interviewed for the position of Assistant Administrator of one of the Authorities housing projects. Before the Authority had reached any decision another offer was presented which the Intern accepted.

An insurance adjustment firm decided to add a Negro to its professional staff. The person secured was important for this was a "break through" in employment in this field. The firm looked for a young Negro who had experience in working with whites, who could deal successfully with white or Negro claimants, and who would see this role as a pioneering effort. After discussions with the professional staff of SRC and with business acquaintances, ~~Mr. Garrison~~ he accepted the firm's offer. Today, Mr. Garrison is one of three adjustors, and the only Negro working ~~in~~ with this insurance adjustment firm.

Because of his year with the Council, Mr Garrison was offered the position.

If this experiment proves itself, a new field of employment will have been opened to Negroes. If it is, the year of intern training will more than justify itself.

Re: 1959 NAIRO Annual Conference - San Juan, Puerto Rico

Suddenly everyone is going to Puerto Rico!

That's what the posters say, and that's what NAIRO will do this year. As you know, NAIRO's 1959 Annual Conference will be held in Puerto Rico at the Hotel San Juan Intercontinental from October 13 through October 16, 1959.

During the course of the next few months, you will receive several communications from your Arrangements Committee. We will do everything possible to keep costs down so that as many NAIRO members as possible can attend the conference.

COSTS

In order to assist you with your plans to attend the conference, I am outlining below a preliminary cost estimate. (The maximum is up to you).

For group leaving from New York City

Transportation round trip (chartered plane)	$80.00
Hotel Rates $6.50 per person double	10.00 single
Food Cost (average, not considering liquor)	1.50 (breakfast)
	2.00 (lunch)
	3.50 (supper)

Thus leaving from New York and arriving in San Juan on Monday, October 12th and remaining through Saturday, October 17th, cost would be:

Fare (chartered plane) ($90.00 otherwise)	$80.00
Food	40.00
Room (double)	32.50
Total	$152.50

For those leaving from Miami add $11.40 fare. Those leaving from Chicago add $66.00 to fare. Each additional day in Puerto Rico should average $12 to $13.

A number of suggestions have been made which we pass on to you.

(a) Vacation: Hold your vacation this year for the period around Conference time. You can thus come to the Conference and remain at this resort hotel at convention rates after the conference ends. (There are fine play and beach facilities for the wife and kids while you toil in the air-conditioned conference rooms).

(b) Share Costs with Agency: Some agencies might be willing to split the cost of the conference with you. However, only you can work that out, we just want to pass on the suggestion.

(c) Car Pools: Since transportation to San Juan is easiest from Miami, Chicago, or New York City (all are direct flights to San Juan and cheapest is from New York City) it has been suggested that arrangements might be made to share expenses to the nearest of these three cities.

A post card is enclosed which we hope you will send back to us by return mail. We want to have, as quickly as possible, an idea of the expected attendance at the conference. Your cooperation will be greatly appreciated.

Also, you may have some special problemson which you may want some specific assistance. Please don't hesitate to communicate these to us so that we can try to help if we can

Our next communication will contain some specific information regarding the benefits that can be derived for you and your agency from attendance at our 1959 conference.

Re : 1959 NAIRO ANNUAL CONFERENCE
San Juan, Puerto Rico

In my last communication, we reminded you that the ANNUAL NAIRO CONFERENCE will be taking place OCTOBER 13th through 16th, in SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO. At that time we asked you to indicate whether you were planning to attend the Conference, and we were very gratified at the hearty response to our request.

As the date draws closer, again we wish to remind you that the time has come for you to begin to make concrete plans and notify us of your hotel accommodation requirements. Those of you who thought you might not be attending, still have time to reconsider your decision, for you will be missing one of the most outstanding conferences in the history of our organization.

San Juan, Puerto Rico was chosen as the site of the 1959 Conference for many reasons:

Firstly, it is a place where no intergroup agencies exist because the concept of a minority group has never taken hold. It is a unique place for us to study and use as a model in our work.

Secondly, although part of the United States, Puerto Rico is outside the bounds of the North American continent, and it is, therefore, closer to the cultural influences of other countries. We, as leaders in our community and nation, cannot think or work without considering the international implications of our actions, and in Puerto Rico the ground has been sown for creative thinking along these lines. (I am enclosing a series of lectures delivered by the Governor of Puerto Rico, which further illustrate this point.)

Thirdly, Puerto Rico is an area which has undergone startling changes during the past ten years. These changes, realized by the determined efforts of the people, have resulted not only in a revitalized economy, but also a revitalized community,--where community thinking and community problem-solving are the keynotes. Working in this environment will be a stimulating experience to the members of our Conference.

The Conference will be held in the San Juan Intercontinental Hotel. As we have previously told you, the special conference rates for rooms at the hotel are:

Single Occupancy:	$10.00 per person, per night
Double Occupancy:	6.50 per person, per night
Triple Occupancy:	6.00 per person, per night

Food costs will most likely range from $7.00 to $10.00 per day, per person, depending on the places you choose to dine, and the types of foods you prefer.

Air transportation to and from the Island is available from many of the major cities in the eastern part of the United States directly to San Juan. Round-trip fare from New York to San Juan, regular scheduled economy fare is $90 (Chicago is an additional $66, and Miami an additional $11.40). Charter fare rates are sometimes slightly lower, depending on the size of the group departing from a given destination. Arrangements for chartering, and calculation of costs can only be made after the exact size of the group is known. Therefore, more information on transportation arrangements will be supplied in future correspondence.

If you like, you can plan to arrive in Puerto Rico a few days before the commencement of the conference, or plan to stay a few days after, (at the special convention rate) and enjoy some of the most wonderful natural resources of the Island, sunshine and tropical breezes. The average mean temperature for the Island during the month of October is 80 degrees.

I am enclosing a postcard, for your convenience, so that you may notify us of your plans with regard to the Conference. Please fill out the card and return it to me within the next week. Also, if you are planning to extend your stay, please note this on the card.

BREAKTHROUGH FROM NATIONALISM

A Small Island Looks At A Big Trouble

by

Luis Muñoz Marin

LECTURE # 1.

I propose that we ask ourselves certain basic questions; Who are we? What is our real situation? What do we need?

Who are we? Certainly not only those of us that happen to be so pleasantly gathered here today, although I daresay we are of many origins and of several citizenships. I propose that as part of the possible usefulness of the occasion, an effort be made to so limit our sense of diversity as to refer to ourselves as part of the membership of Man. Diversity has its place as a friend of Man, but this is an aspect which I hope to consider later.

So here we are -- a part of the membership of Man. Although the history of this idea -- at least of its practice -- is not too encouraging, I submit it would not at this time prove too difficult an exercise if we consider our real situation: that we are closely pursued by a common enemy of measureless force -- and the presence of an enemy has always intensified solidarities and decreased the capacity to misunderstand. All birds are as if of a feather when the storm blows. So let us practice, even if only as calisthenics, being we, the world. This particular set of muscles will not suffer by a little flexing.

Who is our enemy? The tremendous, incredible destructive power of nuclear energy, this force "brighter than a thousand suns." Faced with the possibility of a return of this man-made apocalypsis, the world is living in terror; this time civilization, life itself, is in danger, in imminent danger, in practically certain danger, of total death. The finger is on the trigger all the time. There is not one minute of each day that does not contain several possibilities of irreparable accident or error. The possibilities have been mentioned often: a radar screen that goes wrong and announces that destruction is on the wing, the miscalculation of a political leader, the frayed nerves of a pilot, the brashness of an unknown colonel. One is reminded of the Archangel Gabriel in "The Green Pastures" living under the constant temptation of putting the trumpet to his lips and blowing hard and with finality.

Now, what do we need? We need peace, a word that part of our membership -- the Russian -- would like selfishly to monopolize. We need peace, but not an interval between killings, not a time in which to fear war, not this deadly game, this continous ride, at once cautious and reckless, along the thin edge of fate. We need peace as the way out of the dead end, as that great leap forward with which we say "no" passionately to the cessation of mankind.

And we need other things, things that can only be brought effectively about in a peaceful world. In stating them, let us not pretend that assurances can be easily given that we will get them within any time that could be called brief. As long range objectives I feel sure we shall achieve them if we break through the cold war in the direction of peace.

We need to abolish economic scarcity and hence provide to all our membership more nourishment, more health care, more adequate shelter and more of the modest good things of life.

We need to close the gap between the poor and the prosperous regions of the world.

We need to have "our" government, the government of all of us. It is obvious that we in America are today being partly governed by the Russians and the Russians are being partly governed by the United States. It would be better if we had "our" own government, the government of all of us, but with more self-government for both America and Russia. A supranational executive power obeyed by all, but only in regards to a few important things. And plenty of local self-government in regards to most things. For you see, we need to be diverse and richly plural if we are to be as good and valuable to ourselves as we no doubt aspire to be.

We need education for all, but not education as a preparation for life, but as the wisdom of life constantly enriching our experience, our growth, our values, our aspirations, as part of its very weave.

We need the maximum respect for that minimum minority which is the individual and hence we need to protect human rights through effective regional and international devices, and more still by making this a concern of all of us.

We need a civilization that shall be less economically determined, of which the human spirit shall be more in command than in attendance.

Probably some of these needs seem contradictory among themselves. Man has so often been a contradictory animal to his own prejudice, that I am sure there can be no objection to his making occasional good use of this talent.

Having stated some of our basic needs, let us once more remember that we are besieged by a great dread. And, like all besieged, we have to aim for a breakthrough. We have been surrounded before. It has been a part of our tradition to fall into big traps. And it has been also a part of our tradition to earn through boldness, courage and good faith, our liberation. We have been the "breakers" par excellence. Were we not in earliest times surrounded by darkness and did we not discover fire to break the wall of shadows? Were we not encompassed by a ring of seas and yet learned to break the ring with the boat, the oar and the sail? Have we not in our times learned to break the mystery of space -- or rather to break personally into it -- and break the sound barrier and break the atom? We carry, like Aladdin, a wonderful lamp, producing, it is true, more genii than illumination.

What is preventing our breakthrough? Why are we in big trouble?

Allow me a little brief authority to look at this big trouble as one belonging to a people who are "breakers" in their own modest way. For the people of Puerto Rico had to break through that great unsound barrier of our times: the barrier of nationalistic feeling, to find their way to a world of hopeful achievement and spiritual creativity.

A basic factor in "our" state of mind lies in that pervasive lack of confidence between the two great blocks of peoples that are locked in cold civil war. East is East and West is West and never the twain shall believe each other, even when both may be telling the truth, which does happen sometimes: This is the barrier of barriers. Without confidence there can be no very fruitful conversation.

Who has no confidence? We have seen that some mutual credence develops when men like Stevenson, Humphrey, Lippmann, talk with men like Khrushchev, Mikoyan. What kind of beings are these that lack this essential attribute for vanquishing the common enemy, Nuclear Force? Almost incapable of confidence are those creatures known as National States. The French Republic has no confidence. The United States has not confidence. The Soviet Union has not confidence. The United Arab Republic has no confidence. Allies have between them something that encouragingly look like confidence, but I need not remind you of how precarious it can get. Still, if not too much strain is put upon it there is confidence among allies. A substantial part of it, I suspect, derives from a sense of common danger seen in terms of nation-to-nation threat, bloc-to-bloc menace. It is all within the civil war. The capacity to fear and hate the human threat while we impotently only fear and have not yet been able effectively to hate and oppose the non-human threat, may not be insuperable impotence, a fatal sign of total mortality.

Our troubled thinking could here be directed to the manner in which cultural political attitudes, specifically that of nationalism, produce a politics somehow at variance with the deeply altered realities.

If we envisage nuclear force as The Enemy we cannot help surmising that the site of the balance of power has radically shifted from nations and armies to the place in the soul of each of us where the will to thwart the common enemy lies bewildered and in torpor. At least, I would say that an additional balance of power between nuclear energy and mankind must be sought. The old concept of balance of power relates to what we are referring to here as the civil war and as such it is still essential to the precarious peace. Between nuclear force and man there is no such balance. It can destroy him any time. He has found no way of destroying It. On the contrary, he reinforces It continually from Eastern and Western sources. It is Nationalism, then, Nationalism inside each one of us, that we are confronted with. Each one of us, of the West and the East, lives in two worlds, one inhabited by our common humanity and the other by our national humanity. The house has two parts; one seldom visited, the other constantly lived-in, full of warm memories, sorrows, proud trophies, little and big plans for the future.

Nationalism, a relatively modern system of solidarity, contains many ingredients and presents itself in many shapes. It is a feeling generated by various causes. "Sometimes" -- as John Stuart Mill pointed out -- "it is the effort of identity of race and descent. Community of language, and community of religion, greatly contribute to it. Geographical limits are one of its causes. But the strongest of all is idendity of political antecedents, the possession of a national history, and consequent community of recollections; collective pride and humiliation, pleasure and regret, connected with the same incidents in the past". This is as good a brief definition as any. Still, on the basis of this definition, would Puerto Ricans be proud or humiliated because of the results of the Spanish-American War? Would they feel dissatisfied that slavery had been abolished peacefully with the land owners willing to free their slaves without compensation, or should they feel the sorrow that a tragic war had to be fought before the same purpose could be accomplished in the United States? Or are they to feel a pride in the fact that the New World was settled by hard-working Puritans or a shame that it was conquered by military adventurers in search of gold? There is a comfort in the thought that Puerto Ricans, North Americans and Spaniards can probably agree to the proposition that the United States, Puerto Rico and Spain all won the Spanish-American War.

Nationalism, although it is a phenomenon of unusual strength and can be clearly distinguished among any other of the powerful ideas that have moved history, defies exact definition. It can be unmistakably recognized wherever seen; the eye perceives it, even while the tongue refuses to give us an adequate description. This in itself is significant of its personality among ideas. It is real; it is elusive.

What beliefs and conditions are present in Nations? Is a common language one? Yes, often enough; but in many countries, like Switzerland, Belgium, Canada, Russia, more than one language is spoken, while many nations which speak a common language do not join together in a national unity; such is the case in Latin America.

Is it the belief in cultural nationality? Yes, in many cases! The French, the British and the Germans, for example. But a cultural nationality does not necessarily have to coincide with a juridical and political nationality. It does not in Switzerland, in the Soviet Union or in the case of the United States and Puerto Rico, where juridical nationality does not preclude cultural diversity.

Is it a common religion? Yes, as in most Latin American countries and in Spain and in large segments of the Arab world, not in the United States, not in France, or Germany, or India, not even in England, where there is a state religion. It can be said, though, that in the Western World Christianity, considered as a unit, is a common denominator. But Christianity is more a supranational than a national common denominator.

Is it a common history? It must be common for some time back, but that time is often very short, and many nationalities, like the East European, contain groups that were not together a few generations back and they joined in the present nationality, as in the case of Yugoslavia, from varied historical sources. The same can be said, more strongly still, about a common "racial" origin.

Is it a community of habits, attitudes, value-judgements? In many cases; by no means in many others, as witness the Southern part of the United States, Catalonia in Spain, and the Walloon country in Belgium, not to speak of Guatemala, Mexico, Peru, Bolivia in America.

Is it the sharing of common economic institutions? Common economic institutions, like capitalism in its different degrees of development, have, of course, characterized modern nations, as communism has characterized some others in more recent times. This is not a characteristic of one nation but of many. This is more the characteristic of a time. As yet, we have no nation that combines capitalism and communism.

(There is, of course, a little socialism in every capitalism and vice-versa, as, according to an old song, there's a little bit of bad in every good little girl and vice-versa). Mr. K. is proposing it, no doubt with his versatile tongue in his chubby cheek, for Germany. Could we assure that it will not happen in the future when technology has made productivity ample enough to transcend and minimize the importance of systems of economic management?

Is it a certain preference for fellow nationals, in general, although they may not be held individually in high esteem; and, in general also, a certain indifference or hostility to foreingn nationals, saving when, by exception, their individual qualities endow them with a special appeal not connected with their nationality?

Defining the term is so difficult that, as Florian Znaniecqi has pointed out, several encyclopedias have omitted the word "nation" altogether. Among them the Encyclopedia of Social Sciences, the International Encyclopedia and the Encyclopedia Britannica. And still everyone does know what it is. Have we empirically any doubt as to what France is, or Switzerland, or Sweden, or Spain, or Cuba, or India? We have already noted that definition is difficult, recognition inescapable. A look at Puerto Rico will bring about the same recognition, -- not because it resembles, for instance, Cuba, which in some ways it doesn't, nor the United States, which in some ways it does, but because it has its own way of resembling them both and of not resembling either.

Nationalities are strong, self-assertive entities, but only as to time are they more enduring than the shape of this morning's cloud. If, as Puerto Rican poet has said, "Civilization is a gesture of nature," Nationalism is amoment of that gesture.

Hans Kohn has written: "Nationalities are products of the living forces of history and therefore always fluctuating, never rigid... Nationality is therefore nothing absolute, and it is a great mistake, responsible for most of the extremities of today to make it an absolute, an objective a priori, the source of all political and cultural life."

Political growth has not stopped with nationalism. In the contemporary world new forms of federalism are emerging. Puerto Rico itself is contributing, I hope usefully, to this growth. For Puerto Rico has by-passed the political emotions of nationalism.

In Puerto Rico we are not Puerto Rican nationalists and have not become American nationalists. We are loyal, non-nationalist citizens of the United States.

Puerto Rico had been a colony during practically all of the 450 years since its discovery by Columbus and the beginning of its settlement by Ponce de León and its peoples were seeking, groping for a way out of colonialism. To overcome the obviously obsolescent colonialism, we shall see, Puerto Rico did not embrace the darkly hidden obsolescence of nationalism. Puerto Ricans are anti-colonialists and still not nationalists -- a fact unique and of some illumination.

In other regions, where the prevailing colonial relationship was between peoples of European and non-European stocks, nationalism was adhered to as a necessary step in creating a new social cohesion, a sense of differentiation, a people and a state.

I do not question the usefulness or validity of the national idea in those specific historical circumstances nor when it came to substitute the people for undemocratic royal and feudal masters. But I hold that for the larger task now confronting mankind, the national idea -- the sovereign-nation-state -- is obsolescent.

The idea of the nation, the sovereign-nation-state, is not obsolescent because it is weak. It is far from weak. It has a fearful strength. The obsolescence comes from the measureless changes in the world in which it lives. It is precisely its pertinacity in a world in which it is coming not properly to belong, that makes our time so tragic in its potentialities.

Civilizations based on certain ideas have fallen along with the collapse of those ideas, and a new civilization brought forth by the very destroyers of the former one. This we all know has happened before. Did not the barbarians revitalize European society as Roman power vanished? The barbarians of yesterday are the priests and nobles and intellectuals of tomorrow. By this token the West can envisage itself as being threatened by waves of Eastern barbarians, including Far Eastern. The Russians and Chinese certainly see themselves as the vigorous peoples destined to overthrow the effete profit-mongering, pleasure-loving, featherbedding, fin-de-race, of a historical period, and perhaps the Chinese in turn will come to see the Russians in that light.

This is not the case. It would not be the case, either, if it were reversed, if the West looked upon itself in the role of vigorous conqueror of an unjust, unfree, unworthy civilization to the East. The Barbarian of our times is quite another. He is the Ultimate Barbarian, for all practical purposes infinite in strength therefore final, a thing constructed by the magnificent scientific intelligence of man and practically out of control by his poor political intelligence. If Man perishes, as Rome did, there will be no equivalent of Germanic barbarians to bring forth with time another civilization. The Barbarian of today moves by enslaving the intelligence of man and lashing it into operating him. It has a slave brain to move it. His body is boundless power. His mind is the unwisdom of man, the nationalistically split mind of man. We can only change its mind by changing "our" mind the mind of the World.

Has "our" society, the human society that is menaced, the vitality to respond to this challenge like national societies have had it in the past to respond to each others' challenges? The signs that it has are weak. It finds it difficult to conceive itself as a basic unit facing a basic problem. It is too immersed in the feelings, attitudes, and values of nationalism. And yet it is too clear that we cannot handle our common enemy with divisive national policies nor deal hopefully with the times in which we live with ideas of another time. Perhaps if there were an invasion from Mars composed of well-armed Martian nationalists, our own nationalism would dissolve and our strength would remake itself in the strong bonds of common solidarity born of common human danger. I wonder whether an invasion from a still more mysterious place than Mars, has not arrived already -- this invasion from the depth of the mystery that is in the human heart and soul, this Fire-God, this Moloch that we have invented out of the strength of our knowledge and creativeness to pursue us in the weakness of our vision and the adolescense of our politics. It is in the paucity of our talent for confidence (almost structural in humanity), our proness to error and miscalculations, our taste for power and esthetic enjoyment of belligerence. All this may have come from the Garden of Eden, but a number of legacies from that Garden have been considerably tamed. And one thing that did not originate in the Garden was nationalism!

We shall escape only by the extremely good luck that no accident will happen, by a mellowing of our present stalemate, or by a breakthrough.

Perhaps it will be a technological breakthrough, like an air-tight manner of detecting nuclear explosions, or even of nuclear weapons, this leading to a feasible disarmament.

It is quite possible, as a matter of fact, that a technological breakthrough has been made already, that we have been living with it, promiscuously and immorally instead of respectably, imaginatively and creatively. The techniques of mass production, those developed from the electronic sciences, the availability of automation, the creative power of the atom itself, all these combined and added unto each other constitute in themselves a great, even if not a sudden, breakthrough. Only one thing is wrong with it: It has not broken through. It has largely served to clutter the Sears-Roebuck catalogues. What actually is wrong is the archaic cultural and political prison in which it lives. The technological breakthrough in this sense has been made, is continually gathering force. It awaits the political breakthrough, the great, imaginative breakthrough to peace.

Is there a possibility of a mellowing of tension? Can "our" present behavior, the behavior of us, the world, offer some hope in this regard? Are the ways in which we are attending to our needs offering some possibility of creating conditions that will enable us gradually to overcome the bitter stalemate?

What are "we" doing about it? Regarding peace, the world has stumbled into the techniques of cold war to avoid the hot war. Insult, I suppose, was originally an ingenious invention to avoid murder, though it often has provoked it. The cold war is a distressing invention that at any moment may provoke hot war, but, so far, since Hiroshima and Nagasaki, wars have been localized or prevented, and the Ultimate Barbarian has not heaved its destruction upon mankind. One element of the Cold War has been the Russian bent of absorbing neighbors or creating satellites, a bent that the Red Chinese have been prone to imitate. Let us admit that not only ideological considerations, but also fear has played a vital role in the Red expansionist tendencies. I can conceive that some communist leaders may sincerely believe that the capitalistic West would annihilate the Communist government if it could. However desirable military strength might have appeared to the Bolsheviks for the propagation of their ideas, force became a measure of desperate urgency for the survival of the system. And every move of the capitalist countries was to be viewed with fear, every motive interpreted as aggressive.

In the wake of ideology wedded to force and fear, followed expansionism and absorption. In quick succession the Baltic States, Poland, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Albania, Czechoslovakia, China, North Korea, found themselves in the Red orbit. This was not merely the triumphant march of the communist ideology. It was also the plunging, reckless devices of Red fear, the hasty erection of buffer states against possible western aggression and of bases convenient for an attack upon the West.

The West answered with the policy of containment. It stopped the Communist thrust to the Mediterranean. It began lining up friends with no questions asked as to their democratic convictions. Asking no questions in Latin America, by the way, or ignoring the obvious answers to the unasked question, has recently yielded some adverse results. The West recreated a grand alliance against the Kremlin. It developed a defensive ring around the impatient, rash movements of the Russo-Chinese giant, with military bases. This the West viewed as proper precaution against aggression. But the Russians -- remember the incapacity for confidence -- could not accept these measures as defensive any more than their own expansionism in Europe and Asia could be accepted by the West as purely defensive devices of the communist system.

The West, to its everlasting credit -- if we ever survive the present crisis -- did not launch a preventive attack on Russia when the West had the monopoly of atomic weapons -- a demonstration of sanity in a time out of joint.

The Russians have their nuclear bombs and their missiles, and although they remain dangerously addicted to their probing and testing in search of chinks in the Western armor, they have refrained from using their nuclear power. And this is, so far, a gleam of sanity though from a possibly less civilized motive, since the West has adequate power of retaliation. In spite of the bewildering succession of crises, of which Berlin II is the latest example, it seems safe to presume that the Soviets do not wish to initiate a war that under optimum circumstances from the viewpoint of its leaders, would break all hope, different but not conflicting, for the materialistic communist dream for generations. So "we" have strong motivations for not going to hot civil war, for not committing suicide or at least inflicting disastrous mayhem on "ourselves". However, our finger is on the trigger all the time. Certainly we are not trigger-happy; but trigger-sad, and someone at any moment might become trigger-nervous or trigger-careless.

So far "we", the world, have escaped the attack of the Ultimate Barbarian. The men who have accomplished this deserve the deepest of gratitude of all peoples, East and West. They are, so far, men of the West. Not much help has been forthcoming from the East. The fact that solutions sought by current diplomatic methods are difficult, involved, and in need of long time and utter patience, could encourage us to think that taming the wild horses of nationalism is a task that can be feasible and of deeper results and of vaster reach.

BREAKTHROUGH FROM NATIONALISM

A Small Island Looks At A Big Trouble

by

Luis Muñoz Marín

LECTURE # II.

I referred, in our first meeting, to the fact that Puerto Rico is a place where obsolescent nationalism has been by-passed. The case well bears examining, not because it may be considered as a model to any other country, but because it shows that ways and means can be found to transcend an attitude that needs to be transcended in a nuclear world. What Puerto Rico suggests is that a break is possible through the entangling and frustrating web of nationalistic attitudes without sacrificing love of country or the possibility of cultural creativeness and cultural identity. What Puerto Rico also suggests is that the federalist principle is very much alive, that it is dynamic and not a fixed pattern, and can constantly create new ways of relationships between diverse peoples, quite distinct from the known constitutional forms.

There is another significant fact about Puerto Rico of interest to our analysis of the wider theme. Puerto Rico shows a rather untypical behavior in the intensely nationalistic Latin American area, although it shares with the Latin American peoples a community of history, language and ethnic origins.

Of interest also to our wider theme is the fact that Puerto Rico is engaged in a strenuous and successful operation, with United States encouragement and helpful support, to abolish scarcity and do away with extreme poverty. It is proving to be a fast horse in the race to close the gap between the rich and poor countries and regions. It provides a dramatic demonstration of the falseness of the claim advanced by the Soviet in Asia, Africa and Latin America, that only under communist procedures can the race be really won. Puerto Rico's rate of economic growth--under an exemplary democratic regime -- is as rapid as that of Russia and Red China. Many of the uncommitted peoples of the world are watching the performance of this democratic dark horse.

The spirit of freedom in Puerto Rico found itself trapped and besieged by a narrow geography, lack of natural resourses, colonialism and despair.

The political consciousness did not emerge until the beginning of the 19th Century, at a time when most of the Latin American area passionately embraced the nationalistic pattern. But because of the strength of the Spanish power and the narrowness of Puerto Rican geography, the people of the island would have been completely thwarted had they tried to follow the typical revolutionary trend that freed the whole of the mainland Hispanic Empire. Our only experience with separatism was a brief revolution in the mountain town of Lares in September 1868, which failed to gain wide popular support and was quickly suppressed by Spanish power. But political consciousness refused to give up and surrender to this seemingly ineluctable encirclement.

It is worthy to note, at this stage, that in this particular year -- 1868 -- the long Cuban struggle for independence started. The two islands were the last remnants of the Spanish Empire. Much of their development had run a parallel course. They bore -- and still do -- a very close resemblance to each other, historically, racially and in manners. But Cuba, using its great geographical advantages sought its freedom through armed and dramatic conflict in the Oriente Mountains -- just like Castro has done so bravely in recent times -- while Puerto Rico took the more anguishing, patient, unspectacular road of relentless civil pressure and effort, of logic and debate. What in Cuba came to be the passionate adherence to the tenets of a revolutionary separatist ideology, in Puerto Rico became the arduous search for practical economic and political formulas that could assist the growth of the society and economy, in freedom within a larger unit.

This trend came to be known as the liberal autonomist movement. It sought to do away with the anachronistic absolutism which was then prevalent in Puerto Rico.

The path of Puerto Rican liberalism was a hard one. It had to break through the crust of colonialism in a pattern different from that of the rest of Latin America. It was in itself divided between those that favored complete assimilation to the Spanish political system with the extension of the Constitution and the laws of the Kingdom without variation to Puerto Rico, and those that, with a more realistic consideration of the island's needs and peculiarities, sought for an association patterned somewhat after the Canadian example of the time, based on the maximum decentralization of power compatible with the union with Spain. This was the trend that won the largest bloc of liberal opinion in 1887. It soon had to face a strong and violent repression from the Captain General supported by a party that was known as the Unconditional Spanish Party which claimed that the Liberals were subversive.

The repression that took place in 1887, weakened the liberal ranks, but did not vanish their ardor. A new realistic approach emerged to promote autonomy. Why could not a pact be made with an influential Spanish political party that would pledge itself to grant self-government to Puerto Rico?

This tactic was highly successful. The Spanish Liberal Party on coming into office later 1897, issued decree subject to ratification by the Spanish Cortes, by which the autonomous government of Puerto Rico was created. Puerto Rico was to elect a Chamber of Deputies, and an Upper Chamber was to be formed by elected and appointed members. The Governor, appointed by the Crown, would in turn appoint a Cabinet. This Cabinet would be the executive branch of the government, so long as it retained the confidence of the Chamber of Deputies. The government so constituted had authority over all local matters, including customs tariffs and participation in the process of treaty making by the Madrid government when it considered the economic interests of Puerto Rico affected. No commercial treaty concluded by Spain would be effective in Puerto Rico if objected to by the Puerto Rican government. Puerto Ricans were to send a proportionate number of members with full voting powers to the Spanish Cortes. Tax paying in Puerto Rico would not be assessed by the Crown but a formula was provided for the Puerto Rican government as such, obtaining the money from whatever source of taxation it thought appropriate, to contribute to the general expenses of the kingdom. The Cabinet, through an appropriate minister, directed the police, the governor directed the armed forces.

It is worthy to note that the Charter, once approved by the Cortes, would not be amended "except by virtue of a law and upon the petition of the insular parliament."

The Autonomous government was established in November, 1897. The blowing up of the battleship MAINE in the harbor of Havana was only a few weeks off. In April, the United States declared war on Spain. American troops landed on the south coast of Puerto Rico; shortly afterwards an armistice was signed followed by military government and a few months later by a treaty of peace. History denied the Autonomous government a chance to show its worth. But it stands nevertheless as an example of Puerto Rican support for greater unions and a native readiness to search for flexible relationships, based on shared values, beliefs and interests, unconcerned with the all-absorbing claims of nationalism.

As the United States regime began, all thoughtful Puerto Ricans wondered whether under United States rule a self-respecting status could be found. Statehood loomed as the evident solution, sponsored by the newly created parties, the Federal and the Republican. But the Federal party proposed an original contribution to the American system. It proposed that Puerto Rico should immediately elect its own governor and its own Legislature. In other words, Puerto Rico would have all the rights of a state, excepting the election of Senators and Representatives to the United States Congress.

The Unconditionally Spanish Party had naturally disappeared, and the two parties that expressed the above views had sprung from the Autonomist Party. The Party that brought out the original notion of a self-governing territory was following the thread of freedom within association -- a tradition that views Puerto Rico as a distinct personality in any form of association. No claim was made of separation from the United States system, but a definite assertion was made of the country's particularity. Behind this desire for autonomy, lay certain basic social and cultural traits. Puerto Rico was, at the beginning of the century a poor community, with many health problems and great educational needs, but it had a sense of its distinctiveness. It was, in other words, a people.

This was no island that could be colonized by a heavy influx of settlers from the North. Its people did not stand, as the Spanish or Indian groups in the Southwest, as isolated outposts of Hispanic America, surrounded by a vast and largely uninhabited land.

And, furthermore, no effort was made at United States colonization of Puerto Rico. Not the people of the United States, with its overwhelming tide of pioneers, came to the island, but only the representatives of their new might: the soldier, the administrator, the educator, the public health officer, the trader, the investor.

Some of the early United States administrators did not understand the complex cultural problem involved nor did they understand the local desire for self-government.

The United States was unskilled in the politics of empire, but generous economically. Puerto Rico could be made an incorporated territory of the Union only at the cost of rendering it a great economic diservice. Under the United States Constitution, as is well known, "all duties, imports and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States." If Puerto Rico had to be included under that rule, its development would have been open to the accusation of yielding to the primitive imperialistic motivation of extorting taxes from conquered populations. When the first civil government was established in 1900, a differential tax system was provided for, so that Puerto Rico could retain all its revenues and free trade with the United States. Politically, however, it was a drastic step backward from the autonomy that Puerto Rico had at long last succeeded in obtaining from the Spanish Crown. An appointed governor, with large powers, an appointed cabinet, an appointed auditor, an appointed Supreme Court, a bicameral legislature with only one of the houses elected by the people while the second house was the Cabinet plus five extra members, also appointive; a system completely at variance with the American tradition of the separation of powers, and more in line with the British style of administering Crown colonies. The Supreme Court declared that the fiscal system devised for Puerto Rico was constitutional and a new American concept was created, that of "an organized but un-incorporated territory."

An up-hill struggle began again on behalf of the right of self-government. In 1904, the Unionist Party, direct successor of the party that had presented the new idea of self-governing incorporated territory, made a change in its platform. It held that its basic idea was self-government and that it was eclectic as to what form was assumed by the substance of self-government. It claimed self-government either as a state, as an independent republic or as an autonomous affiliate of the United States. The significance of this is not limited to the appearance of independence for the first time in a political platform, but also -- more important still as I see it -- the re-afirmation of a tradition of seeking political freedom beyond particular forms of it. Political parties in Puerto Rico have not often been representative of this healthily eclectic love of freedom.

The U. S., in turn, faced a perplexing issue. U. S. citizenship had been denied to Puerto Ricans under the Foraker Act . And this gave many Americans a bad conscience. But would the granting of U. S. citizenship involve the promise of eventual statehood? The Republican administration, at first under Theodore Roosevelt and later under William H. Taft, came to make a basic distinction between the two issues. There was no sentiment for statehood, but strong sentiment for the granting of citizenship. In May, 1912, a young Republican statesman, Henry L. Stimson, expressed the distinction with remarkable clarity when appearing before the Senate to support a citizenship bill for Puerto Rico.

"I see myself," he said: --no inconsistency in the grant of American citizenship to Porto Rico; no inconsistency between that and the ultimate ideal that Porto Rico shall have practically an independent local self-government. I think that is what most of the people of the United States would prefer to have them do--that is, a relation where they exercise supervision over their own affairs, over their own fiscal and local self-government; with the link of American citizenship between the two countries as a tie, and in general such relations between the United States and Porto Rico as subsists, and as has been found perfectly workable in the case of the various self-governing portions of the territory of Great Britain--Australia, for instance, and Canada, to the mother country."

Citizenship was finally granted in 1917 in an unilateral act of the U. S. Congress under a Democratic administration which also enacted a welcome reform. A transfer of authority was made to the Puerto Rican people: an elective Senate was provided to substitute for the mongrel executive-legislative Council and this body, besides having legislative powers similar to those of the Lower House, must concur, to make them valid, in all cabinet appointments by the governor. Only two cabinet posts, the Auditor, and the Justices of the Supreme Court remained outside the purvue of the Puerto Rican Senate powers. The President of the United States appointed those. The Legislature, upon creating new posts of importance, would usually make them subject to Senate confirmation. The Governor continued to be appointed by the President of the United States.

For thirty years no further change in governmental structure occurred. During that time the economy had developed lopsidedly. For practical purposes Puerto Rico developed into a one-crop country: sugar cane. There was some coffee, tobacco, some food crops, some cattle. But the specially important crop was sugar cane and the only substantial manufacture was processing the cane into sugar. Sugar production grew to be 15 times what it had been at the turn of the century.

The next political change fulfilled the early program of establishing the right of a territory to elect and designate its whole government. This came in 1947, when Congress approved what was known as the Elective Governorship Act. It placed the selection of the governor in the hands of the Puerto Rican voters, transferring also to the governors authority from the United States President for the appointment of all cabinet heads without exception, subject to the confirmation of the Puerto Rican Senate. There was one difference from the early century proposal: Puerto Rico, as an un-incorporated territory, retained maximum flexibility for political creativeness within the United States constitutional tradition.

I have said that Puerto Rican political parties have not often in this century expressed the non-doctrinaire eclectic love of freedom of the Puerto Rican people. For many years before 1940, political struggle centered about the ideas of independence and federated statehood, with some form of autonomy sometimes a poor competitor. This dichotomy could hardly be more unrealistic. The Puerto Rican economy could not withstand, without a tragic collapse, the economic and fiscal conditions of independence nor the fiscal conditions and the compulsion of uniform federal legislation involved in federated statehood. Those of us who at the time advocated independence found some facility in rationalizing away its economic impossibility. Presumably, the Congress of the United States could establish the independence of Puerto Rico under any economic conditions that it saw fit -- there would certainly be no legal impediment. So one could conjure any set of economic provisions that would make independence workable: independence with free migration between the United States and Puerto Rico. How the statehood advocates could rationalize the practically rigid formula which must accompany admission to the Union is difficult to figure out.

But the fact that the supporters of one political objective enjoyed a greater facility for deceiving themselves than the supporters of the other was of importance. Both abstractions -- statehood and independence -- were inimical to the solution of Puerto Rico's many other problems. So the perennial issue presented to the people was tantamount to asking them the following absurd question: What is your favorite way of preventing the solution of the vital problems of Puerto Rico?" With independence the free market would disappear. With statehood an overwhelmingly impossible burden of federal taxes would destroy all hope of economic improvement. But the premise was that aside from independence or statehood there was only the indignity of colonialism. Would you choose to eat your bread in shame or proclaim your dignity in hunger? The burden that that choice, for years, assumed to be inexorable, put upon the soul of a decent, kind and proud people cannot easily be exaggerated.

In spite of the gradual advances made, the status of Puerto Rico continued to have a colonial imprint. It was an unilateral grant, graciously bestowed by Congress with paternalistic caution. Although colonial status had been in practice gradually disappearing, there had been lacking the basic moral element of freedom, which is consent. As I said to the proper Committee of the Congress at the time, "Kindness, or even justice, unilaterally bestowed, may denote an anti-colonial spirit, but it does not finally and decisively create an anti-colonial status." Colonialism is a festering sore in the human spirit. It is not conducive to a healthy play of the constructive energies. Independence and federated statehood being, in Puerto Rico's case, impossible, and colonialism, the only apparent alternative, being morally intolerable, Puerto Ricans oscillated pathetically between what was impossible and what was intolerable, and groped for a breakthrough. Besieged within the walls of the statehood-independence-colonialism triangle, pressed by the need of putting their hand to other urgent problems, they first attempted the device of ignoring deliberately that there was a siege. Since a whole generation had somehow managed to pretend that there was no economics but only politics, Puerto Ricans now decided that it could be possible to proceed on a reverse premise. The Popular Democratic Party, founded in 1940 declared that so far as it was concerned, political status would not be an issue until substantial economic and social programs had been set in motion. It turned out a profoundly realistic method, as well as an ingenious device. Energy was concentrated on what to do about land, industrial expansion, agricultural modernization, planning and budgeting techniques, an efficient civil service, and providing the laboring man with adequate instruments for his protection.

The energy released for the economic drive now began to work on the political side of the triangle also. Colonialism must come to an end. Could it be that there was no other way out but separation or federation in the classical way? Was democracy running dry in this field of the relationship of peoples and countries within large associations? Justice Felix Frankfurter had written in 1914, "One of the great demands upon inventive statesmanship is to help evolve new kinds of relationships so as to combine the advantages of local self-government with those of confederated union. Luckily our Constitution has left this field of invention open." We moved into this field of invention.

What did we invent? Let me recount what happened and then tell you first what those that in Puerto Rico think meagerly on the subject think we invented. In March of 1950, our Resident Commissioner in Washington introduced, at the request of our people, a bill to provide for the organization of a government by the People of Puerto Rico under a Constitution of their own adoption. This Bill became law a few months later. The Act, known as Public Law 600, stated that the principle of government by consent was thereby fully recognized and that the Act was adopted in the nature of a compact. It accordingly was not to become effective unless accepted by the qualified voters of Puerto Rico in a referendum. If accepted, the legislature was to call a constitutional convention to draft a Constitution. The Constitution was to provide a republican form of government and to include a Bill of Rights. Upon adoption of the Constitution, the President of the United States was to transmit it to Congress if he found that it conformed to the applicable provisions of Law 600 and of the Constitution of the United States. Upon ratification by Congress, the Constitution would become effective according to its own terms; some specified sections of the old Organic Act, the Jones Act, referring mostly to internal matter, would be deemed repealed, and others, dealing largely with the terms of relationship between the United States and Puerto Rico, would remain and be known as the Puerto Rican Federal Relations Act. The Puerto Rican Federal Relations Act contains, among others, the provisions referring to the common citizenship, free trade, common coinage, a customs union, the Resident Commissioner, the federal judiciary, and the applicability of federal laws, with the exception of the internal revenue legislation. Public Law 600, was overwhelmingly accepted by the people of Puerto Rico, the Constitution drafted and adopted, and the Commonwealth, which it created, formally establish on July 25, 1952.

The opponents of this status in Puerto Rico consider that the process which I have just outlined has not changed Puerto Rico's character as a possession or territory of the United States. They think that the Congress of the United States just wanted to make some changes that would look good in the appearance of Puerto Rico's status as a United States colony. They say that the people of Puerto Rico were only empowered to prepare a rough draft of a Constitution which when corrected and approved by Congress would go into effect as the regulation determining the functioning of government branches and departments in Puerto Rico. In other words that which the people of Puerto Rico did was merely to draft and propose to Congress a new organic act -- an obvious error since our Resident Commissioner could have done that any day by dropping a bill into the hopper without any previous action by Congress or any referendum in Puerto Rico, without the idea of compact entering into consideration at all. It is their view that this Constitution can at any time be unilaterally revoked or amended by Congress; that the Federal Relations Act can also be modified or anulled without the consent of the Puerto Rican people; that the laws of the Puerto Rican Legislature can still be voided by Congress; and that Congress continues to exercise over Puerto Rico as full a power as over an unincorporated territory or possession. To the holders of this view, it appears that the whole thing was only a change of nomenclature presumably to make child-like natives feel good; that the word, "Compact" was used for purposes of decoration, not too different from the sense in which it is employed to describe the container of rouge and face powder in a lady's handbag; and that the word "fully" in the phrase "fully recognizing the principle of government by consent" was really meant to be spelled not with "u" but with a double "o".

Let me say now what kind of status we are confident we have established, and after that I will ask your leave to explore how far it can further develop.

As we see it, Puerto Rico is a new kind of state, both in the sense of the United States Federal System and in the general sense of a people organized to govern themselves. It is a system of government and it is a new manner of relationship to the United States, as it could be in the cases of any large union or confederation of political societies. The relationship can no longer be said to be based on a military occupation or a treaty of peace ending a war between two other nations.

The idea of "compact" determines a basic change in the relationship. It takes away from the very basis of the relationship -- the nature and onus of colonialism. It cannot be revoked or changed unilaterally. Even if it were legally possible, it cannot be conceived as morally possible. A body with the record of the Congress of the United States could not do so. After all, we know that the world of order and justice is not a nakedly legal world and that the ingredient of morals is a vital part of it.

The following was the view presented by the governments of the United States and of Puerto Rico at the United Nations, upon consideration by that body of the notification by the United States that it no longer considered necessary, in view of the change in Puerto Rico's status, to continue transmitting information about Puerto Rico as a non-self-governing area under Article 73 (e) of the Charter:

"Contrary to the position taken by the Independence Party, as well as that held by the Nationalist and Communist groups, the people of Puerto Rico hold that the Constitution and the laws of the Commonwealth can be amended, suspended or repealed only by their authority and that the compact between the United States and Puerto Rico can only be amended or repealed by mutual consent... This is also the understanding of the United States of America." In uttering these words at the United Nations, our Resident Commissioner, Dr. Fernós Isern, was acting as a delegate of the United States and thus was an extraordinary symbol of the unity of purpose and understanding of the United States of America and the people of Puerto Rico.

And with respect to the Federal Relations Act it was also said on this occasion by another United States Delegate, Congresswoman Frances P. Bolton, "The relationships previously established... by law of Congress, which only Congress can amend, have now become provisions of a compact of a bilateral nature whose terms may be changed only by consent."

So, the political status of Puerto Rico is one of free association with the American Union. It is a new way of abolishing a colonial status under the constitutional system of the United States. I do not say that the details of our relationship cannot be improved, both from the view of the American Union and that of Puerto Rico; but the principle that such relationship, however it may change, is one of free agreement, makes the step we have taken the definite one in self-government.

It represents a novel, flexible, imaginative relationship within the American constitutional tradition. As Chief Justice Earl Warren said, on the occasion of the inauguration of the new Commonwealth Supreme Court Building: "In the sense that our American system is not static, in the sense that it is an organism intended to grow and expand to meet varying conditions and times in a large country -- in the sense that every governmental effort of ours is an experiment --so the new institutions of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico represent an experiment -- the newest experiment and perhaps the most notable of American governmental experiments in our life-times." It is as well an experiment in non-nationalistic political freedom for a Latin American people.

There are, to be sure, other possible and necessary developments. The establishment of the principle of compact and the adoption by the people of Puerto Rico of a Constitution of their own are one phase in the task of developing the Commonwealth idea. Puerto Rico no longer "belongs" to the United States; it is associated to the United States as a free body politic on the basis of a common citizenship and a common loyalty to the ideals of democracy and freedom.

What further developments can advantageously take place in the growth of this new kind of state? The second phase of this process has just begun. The Legislative Assembly of Puerto Rico has passed a Resolution, approved by me, proposing to the Congress of the United States a number of clarifications and modifications of the Federal Relations Act -- which, if approved, would have to be voted also by the Puerto Rican electorate. These changes are intended to perfect the Commonwealth status, and not to transform it into federated statehood or independence. They represent the criterium of what the experience of the seven years that have elapsed since the proclamation of the Commonwealth points out as desirable, as mutually fair and advantageous for the United States and Puerto Rico.

In line with this Resolution, the Resident Commissioner of Puerto Rico in Washington has introduced H. R. 5926 which would amend the compact by clearly establishing what the bill calls "The Articles of Permanent Association of the people of Puerto Rico with the United States." Clearly all changes should imply the greatest possible scope, within our association with the United States, of the powers and faculties of the people of Puerto Rico to govern themselves internally and the greatest efficiency for the government of the Federal Union to carry out the responsibilities retained by it with respect to Puerto Rico at any point in the course of history.

What is the basic meaning of the Puerto Rican experience? The Puerto Rican experience denotes that a people with a love of freedom facing difficulties to achieve it along accustomed lines, can develop a new form. It would seem to show that Nationalism can be by-passed upon departure from colonialism, and might also give rise to some hope that the strong and narrow power of the nationalist idea itself may be subdued in the mind. And not at the expense of freedom.

BREAKTHROUGH FROM NATIONALISM

A Small Island Looks At A Big Trouble

by

Luis Muñoz Marin

LECTURE # III.

I should like to return this evening to some of the main concepts that were put forth in our first meeting. Let me once more state our theme: a small island looks at a big trouble. Now, we have seen that our big trouble lies in the world's incapacity to conceive itself as a basic unit facing the basic problem posed by the possibility of nuclear extinction of all of our membership -- the membership of man. The incapacity is rooted, to a very high degree, in the entangling web of nationalistic feelings and values which prevent the liberation of our thinking and our action.

I have looked at our predicament as one coming from a people who once considered themselves caught in a seemingly impossible trap and yet, by transcending the emotions of nationalism, were able to create a new, imaginative form of political association, well fitted to their needs and aspirations.

Puerto Rico modestly shows that there is plenty of life in the dynamic of federalism. Can we try, then, another exercise of federalistic calisthenics? Can we imagine, even if for only tonight, what we in the world can do, if we substitute our emotional readiness to go along with federalism?

We start with a simple assumption: That in view of the absolute power of nuclear weapons there can be no victor in any great war. Victory is a word that properly can never again be used meaningfully in connection with war, not by anybody. Wars in the past between national states or national blocs were fought with the expectation that victory was possible, and recently with a mutual expectation of unconditional surrender. The next unconditional surrender would be that of mankind to the Moloch of nuclear energy itself.

A few days ago, Senator Fulbright, in talking about the European democracies, gave some pertinent advice: "Federate or perish", he said. This holds true beyond Europe. Nuclear force has decreed a compulsorysolidarity for all.

The idea of federation on a world scale, has of course, been approached many times before as a general and vague aspiration. Aside from its historical and poetic projection, Wendel Wilkie eloquently expressed the idea in his ONE WORLD and at the end of the war a group of distinguished citizens brought forth proposals for world federation. I remember how at one time some kind of public discussion was going on as to who should be president of the world. My recollection is that I voted for Ghandi.

The mention of these things brings to mind the thought of noble but utopian ideas. At the time I am referring to they were that. But I cannot believe that we can afford, as the danger to our survival becomes more and more acute, to continue discarding such ideas as only proper for discussion in what used to be called "a little group of serious thinkers." While I do not believe, of course, that any such solution can be pulled out of a hat or established by a few rapid and masterly strokes of statesmen, it seems obvious there is need of giving the most effective thought to transcending nationalism and developing a deep conviction that man must unite somehow, not too late, against the menace of nuclear force.

We are on the threshhold of an era of great explorations, very much like Mediterranean Europe was at the end of the Fifteenth Century. Just as we then sailed many an uncharted sea, so are we now about to fly into space. As menacing nuclear force is a powerful negative motivation for changing our ways, the threshhold of this new era in which an infinite field for the adventurous man's spirit is opening is a positive motivation of the utmost validity, changing our ways, for looking to a great federalism as a difficult, a tremendously difficult, but unavoidable purpose. It would seem so puny if in this great adventure to a sideral Cathay, we take with us the petty concepts and emotions of nationalism, the clashing wills of empire, the intense jealousies and hates of a divided humanity.

We are engaged in an intense rivalry of economic systems, as part of our Civil War. Each side believes that the other side is resolved to the destruction of its system. It is true that those systems have been proclaimed as irreconciliable. But it is also true that with time each system has been taking on the more workable or the more necessary characteristics of the other. Certainly, Capitalism is not today what Marx saw nor is it anything like the future that he envisaged for it. Certainly, Communism as a way of production, (to be distinguished from its aspect as a political system) is not only different from what Marx calculated the historical process would make of it, but even substantially what the Bolsheviks of 1917 decreed. Mikoyan, a vastly important Russian manager, seemed to get along very well with the vastly important American managers during his recent visit. But what makes the most important change is the growth of science and technology, the common growth, on both sides of the Curtain, of this massive and decisive fact. The Russian leaders keep up a propaganda barrage on the theme of exploitation: certain evil capitalists get many pounds of labor out of the workers, giving him as few ounces of pay as possible. On the Western side, the insistence was that the bureaucratic Russian state could not provide a decent living for its people, even if it did not support a vast war machine, because without private initiative and private property and the incentive of profits, prosperity cannot be built.

The West is not insisting on this any more, but only on the fact that whatever is achieved economically it is at the expense of freedom.

Let us look at this clash from a different angle, the angle of the great technological revolution. Suppose we accept that this revolution that is taking place can bring about prosperity in the Socialist system, even if all the drawbacks assigned to that system by the West were true, and this same technology of production can abolish poverty under free enterprise, even if all the evils attributed by the Soviet to Capitalism were true. Suppose we say that poverty can be abolished under both Capitalism and Socialism and that our remaining differences are in political freedom and religious attitudes. Does anyone sincerely think that once the economic realities that I have briefly dwelt upon have been understood, anyone in Russia can believe that the United States and the West will deliberately risk nuclear destruction to impose congressional or parliamentary government on the Russians or to compel their leaders to join the Greek Orthodox Church? Can anyone in the West think that Russians will deliberately risk destruction to impose their manner of production on the West or their doctrine of the withering of the state? This doctrine, by the way, must hold some allure for reactionary capitalists, if they only believe it! Both these assumptions would credit mankind with a deadlier fanaticism than it has exhibited even at its most fanatical periods. The deepest religious differences have accommodated themselves to coexistence after struggles which would perhaps have been final if there had been Moslem and Christian atomic bombs or Catholic and Protestant guided missiles.

Each system of abolishing poverty, because of the common treasury of science and technology, can function, is functioning in different parts of the world. And the peoples concerned will decide, according to their own psychological and cultural traits, as well as to their historical circumstances, whether the political institutions under which this prosperity grows and functions are to their liking or not.

With these diverse manners of providing an ample base for the cultures of the world, the competition will be highly useful and profoundly interesting. This is a revolution in the manner in which economic systems can creatively use their rivalry. It should help us all toward the state of grace -- of federalist grace -- we are seeking, for that is the profound, the obvious, the disregarded revolution of our time.

(Economic rivalry in a world of great productivity cannot be the same as economic rivalry in a world of scarcity.)

Either in rivarly or in supranational cooperation, the underdeveloped areas of the world must be helped so that the gap between their economic facilities and that of the areas that have been more active or more fortunate can be closed, bringing a great sense of equality to all the peoples.

With the right kind of help, wisely give, the impoverished peoples of the world can develop, we can be sure, tremendous unused energies. I am speaking from knowledge of a people that did. They will seek out their naturally gifted sons and daughters, as was done in Puerto Rico, and give them educational opportunities limited only by their capacity to use it. They will develop groups of young people who will show extraordinary enterprise in converting inert natural resources into national wealth, who will be dedicated to their communities' progress, who will endeavor to endow all this with a meaning and a serenity, perhaps by reaching deep into their ancient philosophies.

When these young people dig into the great stock of innovations of the Twentieth Century, it should not be expected that they will come out every time with mere imitations. Every innovation has to be grapped with indigenously. They may prefer, for example, to form cooperatives instead of companies. They may prefer village community work, administered by the people themselves, to government directed work. All of us must respect them, even when they do not imitate the known systems. Perhaps they deserve even more respect for having the creative courage not to imitate, side by side with a non-nationalistic eagerness to learn freely all that there is to be learned from whatever source. The great and only question is whether the product of their hands and minds goes to increase human freedom and human happiness.

Let us, then, accept diversity as a basic need of human creatures and human society, yielding precedence only to survival, peace. Let us look at it as the living and multiple and dynamic method through which mankind achieves its potentialities.

This diversity, this rich pluralism of experiences, might require a new habit of looking at the living society of men and forces and facts. It demands an understanding that our goal is not a homogenous world, dominated by any given system and economically determined either by capitalism or socialism. We should insist that the spirit of man, in the new federalist era that we are envisaging should more than ever be in command and not in attendance of the economic process.

On my previous visit to Harvard in 1955, I described this task as Operation Serenity. "A society in which Operation Serenity has been successful" -- I said -- "would use its economic power increasingly for the extension of freedom, of knowledge, and of the understanding imagination rather than for a rapid multiplication of wants. It is a basic duty, although clearly an insufficient one, to fight poverty. Priority obviously goes to fighting the old-fashioned poverty that consists of vast masses of people being ill-fed, ill-housed, ill-clad, ignorant, insecure in illness, orphanhood and old age; That is an undebatable common denominator of the social conscience. There is room also, it seems to me, for an awareness of a new fangled poverty, that of the feverish desires outstripping the feverish production and of the feverish production provoking new desires that must go for many unfulfilled.

We are in the midst of a technological revolution that will require more than what Dr. Galbraith has called the conventional wisdom. With an all-frontal attack on a world-wide basis -- through strong joint, or rival action -- very few barren rooms will eventually be left in our house of the world. But as Professor Galbraith in his brilliant, provocative book THE AFFLUENT SOCIETY, has indicated, "To furnish a barren room is one thing. To continue to crowd in furniture until the foundation buckes is quite another. To have failed to solve the problem of producing goods would have been to continue man in his oldest and most grievous misfortune. But to fail to see that we have solved it and fail to proceed thence to the next task, would be fully as tragic."

What, then, shall be our dominant aspiration? Can we possibly be efficient in production and at the same time wise and modest in consumption? Can we be feverish in output and serene in intake?

Some economists could tell us that a higher and higher rate of multiple consumption is necessary to a high rate of production, and therefore of employment and of income, and that what I am talking about would bring economies tumbling down on our heads. It need not be so, because of the evident possibility of re-gearing high productivity to higher ends. If it were so it would most certainly be time to ponder what to do about a situation in which Serenity could bring about catastrophe.

Perhaps it is well at this stage to hear some wise words from the Orient for just as the West has brilliantly applied to human productivity the gift of science, so has the East probed deep for centuries into the concept of serenity as a refutation of disorder and chaos. "To say that it is necessary to adhere to old methods in order to maintain our old standards and values"-- Premier Nehru has written -- "means that we must remain poor and backward and only then can we maintain those values. It is true that as we adopt higher techniques for productive and creative activities these will affect our thinking and our lives. But it does not necessarily follow that this must lead to our discarding spiritual and higher cultural values of life. We must not combine spirituality and culture with privilege on the one hand and poverty on the other. We must separate basic values from the temporary and changing social or economic setup in which we live,

"Indeed it has become inevitable for us to fit in with the modern world of science and technology and it will be dangerous for us to imagine that we can live apart from it. It will be equally dangerous for us to think that we should accept technology without those basic values which are the essence of civilized man."

To give effectiveness to that synthesis so ably expressed by Nehru, involves a basic investment in education, a tremendously increased educational effort, quantitatively and qualitatively.

A great debate has been going on about education for a better world. I am, of course, not going into it as to technical merits. Since the first Sputnik flew into orbit, it has become increasingly dramatic to many of us that certain basic concepts in American education require searching reconsideration. In Russia, where educational methods are said to have had a very direct relation to the space progress symbolized by the first and subsequent artificial satellites, there seems to be no complacency with even the scientific education that made possible such results; we hear of Mr. Khrushchev calling for a tightening of the system. Russian education, geared to the purposes of the state, does not make it less efficient in the service of those purposes. We may question the purposes, but the effectiveness seems clear. "We should be wiser" says Admiral Rickover, "to investigate how Europe educates her children, for she prepares them better than we do, for a more difficult life we must expect in the future, yet she maintains a decent and comfortable standard of living on her very limited resources and her crowded land." Although I do not share the Admiral's certainty that if we overcome the cold war the future will be harder than the present, (I don't think it will be, saving as it should develop into civilization in which man imposes upon himself higher tasks) his counsel is a profoundly valid one, to look to Europe, to the successful European democracies, when seeking important growth in the educational system, to make each man as effective an intellectual force as God gave him the potential to be. The spirit of this should not be that of a humble pilgrimage to sit at the feet of masters as much as of an opening of windows to let in fresh winds. In Puerto Rico, where United States education has been very influential, we say that one should feel a reasonable pride in his home, but keep the windows open on all sides.

The dichotomy of mass education and the education of the exceptionally gifted should be broken through; it should not be a matter of choice. Both are profoundly needed. One should not take means away from the other. They should both raid the conspicuous consumption fund.

The dichotomy of education-for-adjustment and education-for-knowledge and intellectual skill should be broken through, putting the emphasis on knowledge and skill and accepting whatever of the adjustment method may have proven to have validity.

The dichotomy that there is a time-of-life in which one studies and a time in which one does not certainly ought to be broken through. Education in a world of affluence and serenity would have to be woven into the whole pattern of the way-of-life.

It would have, furthermore, the task of making quite compatible the love of country with the adherence to a great federalist idea, surpassing the narrow bonds of nationalism. We should divorce the love of country from the narrow habits of the nationalist attitude.

There is a Spanish word, "patria", which can be translated as fatherland. Once, while speaking to Puerto Ricans of the process by which I had come to feel the need of a new form of political freedom, I described the "patria" as the colors of the landscape, the changes of seasons, the smell of the earth wet with fresh rain, the voices of the streams, the crash of the ocean against the shore, the fruits, the songs, the habits of work and of leisure, the flowers, the typical dishes for special occasions and the austere ones for everyday, the valleys, the pathways; but even more than these things, "patria" is the people, their way-of-life, spirit, folkways, songs, the way of getting along with each other. Without these things, "patria" is only an abstraction, a piece of scenery. With them it is an integral whole, the homeland and the people.

"Love of country," I went on to say, "must mean both the love of "patria" and the people. But some of us confused love of the homeland with a narrow and petty concept of the national state. We felt that love of Puerto Rico had as a necessary corrollary the desire for separate independence. We had not yet comprehended that no law, divine or human, demands that countries must be suspicious, vain and hostile, that they must live separate from other countries whose peoples are a part of the broad equality which the Lord created on earth."

During the time of reappraisal that I am alluding to, I learned much from the wisdom of simple men and women, and that to them freedom is something deep in the heart, in the conscience, in everyday life, in personal dignity, in the furrow, the plow and the tools. I learned that among them, the nationalistic concept is as absent as the love of their native land is present; in its place there is a deep understanding of freedom. I learned that in their wisdom they preferred -- if they should be put in the dilemma of choosing, to be governed respectfully from a distance rather than to be governed despotically from nearby. Those imbued with the nationalist concept would prefer the despotic government of the nearby to the democratic government of the remote. Naturally, this need not and should not be the choice: democratic federalism requires that this dichotomy be not allowed and that freedom be prevalent at all levels. Such an understanding is the strong root for great federalist concepts, for great unions of men and women cutting across climates, races and languages, leaving unviolated, but not necessarily sacrosanct the things that make them love their native land.

We have heard much of the revolution of rising expectations. Could we not then proclaim another revolution, the revolution of deepening expectations, a revolution that would send to a common grave stultifying nationalism and power-politics, a revolution that would break through the world of gadgets and superficiality, through the wastelands of scarcity, and the jungles of illness and ignorance, into the exhilarating air where man, diverse in his creations, is one in the freedom of his intelligence? Thus "we", the world, may suddenly discover how strong and powerful and free is the membership of Man. If we don't succeed fairly soon in this discovery, in the face of the big trouble now confronting us, we might as well say with E. B. White: "Our science will have won the day, and the people can retire from the field, to lie down with the dinosaur and the heath-hen -- who didn't belong here either, apparently."

July 27, 1959

TO: MEMBERS OF NAIRO

FROM: Lloyd Davis, Chairman, 1959 Conference Program Committee

SUBJECT: 1959 Conference Program

I ON THE PROGRAM

The theme of this year's conference is: "Intergroup Relations - The Decade Ahead." The goal envisioned by your Program Committee was that of examining the problems and needs, the potentialities and resources, available to our field in light of expected social, economic, cultural and political change in the decade ahead. For many weeks, time and effort have gone into the exacting job of defining what we have in mind when we talk about economic, political, and socio-cultural change in the decade ahead. These reflections, (presented in Appendix Number Two), have been exciting and fascinating, and I can assure you that every hard-working member of the Committee has grown that much more professionally. We thank you sincerely for affording us this opportunity.

While we recognized that a discussion of the decade ahead was vitally important, we also endeavored to keep in mind the unique opportunity afforded us by our presence in Puerto Rico to view the problem of discrimination in its world-wide perspective. Here, too, since this represented a departure of NAIRO from the traditional, we made every effort not to over-emphasize this aspect of our deliberations. Faced with an added out-of-the-ordinary feature -- a four-day meeting -- we have endeavored to provide ample business sessions, adequate time for Commission and Departmental meetings, committee sessions, recreation and socializing, plus a chance to see first-hand, Puerto Rico's "Operation Bootstrap."

As you will readily note, the most difficult task facing the Committee was that of taking all these fine ingredients and mixing them up in such a way as to achieve the very best kind of balance, continuity, and smoothness of control. With respect to speakers, we have made every effort to secure the most outstanding and competent people available. With respect to the involvement of NAIRO personnel, (and only in this way can we individually continue our professional growth), we have scouted the country from North to South and from East to West ... with the resulting conviction that this conference will mark a new all-time high in the involvement of the membership.

One final word or two: last year a very successful feature of the conference was the "clinic." We have scheduled twelve of these informative sessions. They will deal with a number and variety of subjects which should attract the interest of our members and help make their visit to Puerto Rico even more rewarding.

As for our Departmental meetings and Commission sessions, we have attached a list of suggested items for discussion as derived from the weeks and months of discussions pursued by your Program Committee. Essential for participation in this conference is some knowledge of the subject matter of the various sessions, some awareness of current literature available, and a great deal of independent and collective reflection and thought. With this in mind, we have attached a bibliography to our report. You will shortly receive one of the most excellent lists of reading matter ever compiled in this field -- the bibliography of Herbert Blumer, (July 6, 1957), University of California.

The members of your Committee have earnestly endeavored to present you with a complete program package. We have sought to make this program substantial in content and far-reaching in the implications, and we are well aware that to do it real justice will require far more than a four-day meeting. A program of this sort must be worked at -- studied and promoted locally and regionally for years yet to come.

A few days ago, I had occasion to write Louise Blackham, Northwest Regional Chairman for NAIRO. In that letter, I stated:

> "Members of the Program Committee are sincerely convinced that the success of our national meeting will, in large part if not entirely, be dependent upon the efforts at a local and regional level. We feel that the program this year, the theme of which is, "The Decade Ahead," presents NAIRO and its members with a new kind of challenge. It gives us the opportunity to get away from the day to day workings of our individual agencies ... it affords us the opportunity to think and reflect on new and provocative concepts ... it forces us to view our work in terms of an international dimension, and it causes us to take time out to look ahead ten years and re-evaluate our agencies in light of anticipated economic, political, and socio-cultural changes. This is a big job and we'll be at it far be-beyond the meeting in San Juan.
> "I might add that it is absolutely essential for NAIRO members to do some reading and a great deal of thinking if they are to make a worthwhile contribution to this effort. Puerto Rico provides us with the opportunity to seriously THINK - LEARN and eventually, to ACT, with the competency of real professionals engaged in a noble and worthwhile activity, which seeks the betterment of society and the elevation of mankind."

II BOARD PASSAGE

Enclosed please find the proposed 1959 program which was presented respectfully to members of the NAIRO National Board on Saturday, June 6th, and which was adopted with these specific changes. Please note these changes carefully.

A. Board and/or committee meetings have been cancelled for Monday evening, October 12th. A joint meeting of the Board and those persons chairing Commission and/or Department meetings will take place at 8 a.m., breakfast on Tuesday, October 13th. If necessary, the Board will conduct a dinner meeting on Tuesday evening at 6:30 p.m.

B. There is a possibility that the Governor will sponsor the reception for delegates, and that the Mayor of San Juan will host delegates at dinner.

C. We have invited Governor Luis Munoz Marin to discuss the subject: "The Decade Ahead," on Tuesday, October 13th, at the 12:00 luncheon.

D. On Page 6, you will find the clinics listed. With respect to Clinic Number 10, delete the word "color" from the title of the subject matter.

E. Board policy is that, with respect to clinics, NAIRO personnel be utilized where possible.

F. A special clinic and/or seminar will be slated, (using local Island officials), for the purpose of assisting those persons who want more detailed information with respect to Puerto Rico's "Operation Bootstrap" and/or any additional related subject matter.

G. On Page One of the basic document, the word "junket" should be deleted and the word "trip" inserted. Although we are encouraging our members to work in their vacations with the conference to Puerto Rico, the meeting itself is primarily concerned with NAIRO and the business at hand.

Chairman: John A. Buggs, Executive Secretary, County Committee on Human Relations, Los Angeles, California

IV MOVEMENT IN THE RANKS

NAIRO Commissions, Departments, and Committees are going all out to make 1959 at San Juan a year to remember. The members are really beginning to stir in the ranks and their ingeniousness is building even greater body and substance into our conference program. For example:

Virgil L. Border, Chairman of the Department of Local and State Private Services informs us that their Department meeting will be concerned with the following subject matter:

"Professional Roles and Intergroup Relationships in the Decade Ahead."

-Will the decade ahead find intergroup relations agencies ready to meet demanding changes?

-Will we "keep up" professionally?

-What about "lines of Communication" with fellow professionals and their agencies?

-How important are respect, trust, rapport, honesty among us professionals?

-Does an agency shift roles to meet new problems?

-Do we confuse methods with principles?

-Are we becoming abstruse as intergroup professionals?

-Will the trend to suburbia strip-cities, etc., effect the status of intergroup agencies?

Louis A. Radelet, Chairman of the Commission on Interreligious Relations, confidently and enthusiastically announces that the noted Dr. Andhil S. Fineberg, Consultant on Community Relations, American Jewish Committee, has consented to present a special paper at the meeting of his Commission on the topic: "Christimas and Chanukah in the Public Schools." This promises to be one of the outstanding presentations at the conference.

Out west or perhaps up Northwest, Louise Blackham informs us that the NAIRO membership in Washington, Oregon and Idaho, are undertaking a regional meeting in preparation for the San Juan conference. They are developing their regional confab around four major topics being considered in Puerto Rico:

-Intergroup Relations - The Decade Ahead

-Discrimination - A World Wide Problem

-Role of the agency in conflict situations; its responsibility; its opportunity

-Intergroup relations, the allied disciplines and related fields of professional activities

ALL IN ALL - it looks like a great conference! One which you simply can't afford to miss.

OH YES, Joe Monserrat who heads up our Arrangements Committees, is really doing an outstanding job to make your stay exciting - pleasant and above all, rewarding. Our conference headquarters will be at the beautiful: El San Juan Intercontinental Hotel, set on a lush 15-acre tropical estate. It offers 325 air conditioned rooms, each with private balcony; Olympic-size pool; and nearby golf course. The 1500 foot beach is one of the most beautiful in Puerto Rico. For superb food - Le Pavillon dining room. For exciting evenings - the magnificent Tropicoro nightclub. Low-rate travel accommodations are being arranged for you and this information will be forthcoming. We have also made arrangements for the temperature to be "80.0" degrees - how's this for comfort! Puerto Rico offers a whale of a time for the small fry, so why not bring the kids along.

You'll be receiving additional information as our program continues to build. It really has been a pleasure for each and every member of the Committee to have served you. SEE YOU IN SAN JUAN.

RE : TRANSPORTATION TO THE 1959 NAIRO CONFERENCE - OCTOBER 13-16, 1959

In a few weeks we shall all be looking down at fluffy white clouds and the Atlantic Ocean as our planes speed in a southeast direction to San Juan and the 1959 NAIRO Conference.

After careful deliberation and cost studies, the Arrangements Committee has made a series of recommendations for traveling to the Conference.

(1) We will not charter planes since the cost will not be lower to the membership, and in the event of last-minute cancellations the cost per ticket may be higher than the cost of a ticket on a regularly scheduled plane.

(2) Since this is the first time NAIRO finds it necessary to participate directly in securing travel arrangements; and since these arrangements involve hundreds of persons from all points throughout the nation, the committee felt it necessary to secure professional assistance. Therefore, we are securing the help of a travel agency that has had experience in making arrangements of this type for groups going to Puerto Rico.

(3) The decision with regard to choosing a travel agency will not only be helpful to us in making the most direct and economical arrangements for travel to Puerto Rico from our various points of origin (at no extra charge to either you or NAIRO) but will also enable the Arrangements Committee to have up-to-the-minute information on all members' travel itineraries so that we may coordinate your hotel, transportation and other arrangements.

(4) The travel agency and members of the Arrangements Committee have selected certain scheduled flights on which the majority of NAIRO members can fly. The advantages of traveling in large groups are: faster baggage and check-in service from the major points of departure, cheaper transportation to and from the hotel in San Juan, faster baggage service upon arrival in Puerto Rico, tour leaders who can help you with any transportation difficulty which may arise, and the congenial companionship of your fellow NAIRO members.

(5) The majority of NAIRO planes will be economy service from New York to San Juan ($90 round-trip) and tourist service from Miami to San Juan ($91.40 round-trip). (Economy service is only available from New York, the least expensive means of flying from Miami to San Juan is tourist service.) However, if you wish to travel first class ($189 round-trip from New York to San Juan; $121.70 round-trip from Miami to San Juan) or tourist service from New York ($135.20 round-trip New York to San Juan) the travel agent will make the necessary arrangements.

(6) The economy service NAIRO planes will be leaving New York City on October 12 at 2:00 P.M., 4:30 P.M. and 11:45 P.M. All persons must check in 45 minutes to one hour before departure time. Average flying time from New York to San Juan is 5-1/2 hours. If you cannot arrange to leave on October 12, smaller groups will be set up leaving the major points of departure on other days.

(7) Those who wish to save one night in hotel costs can plan to take the late evening flight from New York on October 12 which arrives in San Juan around 6:00 A.M. on the 13th, in time for a short nap and a shower and the early morning sessions of the Conference. The majority of persons traveling on the night flight sleep during the five and one-half hours of travel. The planes are large and the trip is pleasant.

We ask your cooperation in helping us plan all the arrangements for the Conference, and suggest that you contact Mr. Ortiz of the Arco Travel Agency, 200 West 54th Street, New York 19, New York for your travel arrangements. We urge you to make your flight reservations as soon as possible since the flights to San Juan have very heavy bookings and are usually completely sold out weeks before departure time. If you delay making your reservation you might be forced to travel on another day, at an inconvenient hour, or not be able to travel the type of service you prefer, be it first-class, tourist, or economy.

For your convenience in requesting tickets we are attaching a form letter and a postage-stamped envelope which you can fill out and forward to Mr. Ortiz of the Arco Travel Agency. When filling out the form please do not neglect to fill in the complete information on:

(1) Names and addresses of all persons to whom tickets are to be issued.

(2) Point of departure in the United States.

(3) Date you wish to leave and general time preferred.

(4) Type of service you desire--economy, tourist, first-class.

(5) Date and general time you expect to depart from San Juan.

When Mr. Ortiz receives your request, he will inform you of the exact charges, and make your reservation from your point of origin to San Juan. You will be routed through either New York or Miami, depending upon whichever is faster and less expensive (unless you state some preferences).

Mr. Ortiz will forward your tickets after you send him a check or money order to cover the cost.

If you should have any further questions concerning your transportation, do not hesitate to contact me or Mr. Ortiz (Arco Travel Agency, 200 West 45th Street, New York City, Telephone PLaza 7-8496).

NAIRO CONFERENCE BULLETIN

This bulletin will seek to answer -- in capsule form -- some of the questions that NAIRO members have been asking about:

HOTEL RESERVATIONS	LUNCHEON MEETING COSTS
TRAVEL ARRANGEMENTS	SOCIAL ACTIVITIES
NON-MEMBER FEES	CONFERENCE PROGRAM
OFF-ISLAND TOURS	ETCETERA

But first, some statistics, The Conference will begin at 9:30 AM on Tuesday, October 13, and will end at 2:30 PM on Friday, October 16. It will be held at the San Juan Inter-continental Hotel. It is NAIRO's Thirteenth Annual Conference.

HOTEL RESERVATIONS

NAIRO has been granted special Conference room rates: Single, $10 per night; Double, $6.50 per person, per night; Triple, $6 per person, per night. The regular room rates are considerably higher!

To take advantage of these rates, you must make your reservations through: Joseph Monserrat, Chairman, NAIRO Conference Committee, 322 West 45th Street, New York 36, New York.

And you must make these reservations now!! Reservations received after September 23rd will be accepted at the regular hotel rate only -- if the hotel still has space.

In making reservations (if you have not already acted), be sure to send your name and the names of any sharing your accommodations, the type of accommodations desired (single, double, triple), and dates and approximate time of arrival and departure.

The special Conference room rates will be extended to those wishing to arrive a few days before the Conference or remain a few days afterwards.

Telephone inquiries about hotel reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Joan Finder (Mr. Monserrat's office) at CI 5-0700 (New York City).

TRAVEL ARRANGEMENTS

San Juan is served by three airlines (Transcaribbean, Pan American & Eastern). There are many flights daily, especially from New York but also from Miami, Washington, Philadelphia, and Chicago. There are three classes of air travel: First, Tourist, and Economy. However, not every city can offer all three types.

There will be no NAIRO charter flights, largely because of the difficulty in filling planes at any given time or date. Economy flight rates from New York are, in any case, almost as low as charter fares.

You must make your own transportation arrangements -- through a travel agency or directly with an airline. Special attention to the needs of NAIRO members has been promised by an experienced agent, Mr. Ortiz of the Arco Travel Agency, 200 West 54 Street, New York City (Telephone: PLaza 7-8496). However, you may deal with any travel agency that you choose.

You must act now, in any case! If you delay, you may be forced to fly at an inconvenient hour -- or at a higher class fare.

Suggested flight times mentioned in an earlier bulletin are not the only flights that you can take. While arrangements are being made to secure extra amenities on the suggested flights, there are many others -- at the same rate.

NON-MEMBER FEES

IMPORTANT As announced in a recent Newsletter, all those who are not NAIRO members in good standing (dues paid for 1959) and who do not join NAIRO at Conference-time must pay a $15 registration fee!

This will be waived for spouses and blood relatives of members, and for non-members with program assignments. Residents of Puerto Rico need pay only the customary $3 registration fee. There can be no other exceptions to the rule....

OFF-ISLAND TOURS

The Conference Committee is making no plans for organized tours off the island of Puerto Rico -- or, indeed, outside the San Juan vicinity. If you have such in mind, consult your travel agent now or make such plans when you arrive in San Juan (there is a travel agency in the lobby of the hotel).

There are, of course, many things to see in Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands are only minutes away. Other islands are quite accessible. However, such visits must be arranged by you; the Conference Committee's tours or trips will be limited to the San Juan area.

LUNCHEON MEETING COSTS

A very attractive "package deal" has been arranged for Conference delegates. For the modest sum of $12.50, payable at registration, you will receive:

1 - ticket to the Tuesday luncheon (Governor Munoz Marin)
1 - ticket to the Wednesday luncheon (Ass't Secretary of Labor George Lodge)
1 - ticket to the Friday luncheon (Panel discussion: The Allied Disciplines look at Intergroup Relations)
1 - invitation to the Buffet Supper & Reception to be given by the Mayor of San Juan (your spouse included)
1 - invitation to the Reception to be given by the Governor of Puerto Rico (your spouse included)
1 - ticket to the Wednesday evening Swimming Party (your spouse included)

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Among the social activities being arranged by the Conference Committee are such divertissements as: rum parties, a visit to the cockfights, the Wednesday evening

Swimming Party, and several special events for spouses who might not be attending Conference sessions.

In a slightly more serious vein, the Committee is also trying to arrange Friday afternoon tours of local housing developments, educational facilities, and the important community development projects in the San Juan area.

The Buffet Supper-Reception planned by the Mayor of San Juan, and the Reception to be given by the Governor, should be highlights of your visit.

CONFERENCE PROGRAM

Final details of the Conference program will be mailed to all members and other registrants in late September. The printed program will probably not be distributed before the Conference, however.

Free time (no meetings scheduled) will include: Thursday luncheon, Friday afternoon, Wednesday dinner (and the evening for those not planning to attend the Swimming Party), and one other dinner period to be announced.

All inquiries about the program should be addressed or telephoned to the NAIRO office.

ETCETERA

We have been advised that members attending the Conference may deduct their own expenses in computing federal income tax. This does not apply to spouses.

If you did not receive the helpful three-page bulletin on what to wear, how to dress, what to bring, etc., drop a postcard to the NAIRO office. (Prepared by the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, this bulletin was mimeographed on blue paper and illustrated with cartoons. Remember it?)

We will repeat the section on money and credit: "The same green stuff we use in the States, as well as the same credit card systems, are honored in Puerto Rico. The Intercontinental Hotel accepts the American Express and Diners Club credit cards. Personal checks can be chacked at the hotel with proper identification. However, if you wish to be on the safe side, I personally recommend that you carry some Travelers Checks with you. They can be cashed anywhere at almost any hour."

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS
426 West 58 Street, Room 209 New York 19, New York

A STATEMENT OF CONCERNS AND COMMITMENTS adopted by THIRTEENTH ANNUAL CONFERENCE 1959

of the
NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS
October 16, 1959
San Juan, Puerto Rico

In convention at San Juan, we, the members of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, salute the Puerto Rican people and Government, not only as gracious hosts of this occasion but especially as our continuing partners in the building of a society which shall deny no man or group full dignity and fulfillment. We share with them, on island and mainland, the hard tasks and tough hopes of this enterprise.

We rejoice to see in Congress its first members of Oriental ancestry, from Hawaii. We hope to see Alaska's statehood marked in time by qualified Indian, Aleut and Eskimo voices in our counsels -- just as we wish an early end to the denial of voting rights to residents of the District of Columbia. More than symbols, all such advances strengthen our nation at home and abroad, as Senator Fong's visits to Asian countries are likely to demonstrate.

Without evaluating the beginning of the Eisenhower-Krushchev talks, we join all peoples' deep desire for some way out of the nuclear nightmare, in order that mankind may yet have time to work out the "ordinary" -- but difficult -- problems of living together in cities, countries and continents.

For dealing with such problems, our nation's development in 1959 of skills and tools for intergroup adjustment includes both advances and lags. However, if American leadership and public opinion utilize the existing resources, public and private, our people can progress toward "unity amid differences."

Civil Rights Developments

One year ago, NAIRO in convention surveyed the state of civil rights in the U.S.A. Perceiving that a turning point had been reached in the struggle for desegregation of the public schools, it urged complementary use, by government and private organizations, of law and education toward an eventual solution. It called for effective national executive leadership, creatively utilizing the powers and the moral influence of our nation's highest office to strengthen compliance with law. Protection of the right to vote was emphasized. Outside the South, equal access to housing was seen as the major issue, requiring both legislation and voluntary action at the state and local level, and a "single, consistent, definitive" federal housing policy.

In terms of the foregoing prescriptions, one development at the federal and one at the state level are especially notable. The Report of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission was a comprehensive and vigorous scrutiny of voting, education and housing problems, accompanied by specific and imaginative recommendations for action by Congress and the President. Beside supporting bills to require preservation of voting records, it proposed that the federal authority take over the registration of voters when local officials practice racial discrimination. This is a trenchant reminder of all citizens' basic right, that of participation in their government.

The housing recommendation re-emphasized the 1958 findings of the independent Commission on Race and Housing, by calling for an Executive Order to erase discrimination in all housing built with federal assistance. Both Commissions recognized the damage done by discrimination in housing to the lives of millions of Americans of all groups, and to government as a party to injustice.

It is at least to the credit of Congress that it extended the Civil Rights Commission's life, though it failed to pass any other notable civil rights bills.

At the state level, 1959 saw passage of the first state anti-discrimination laws covering private housing, in Connecticut, Massachusetts, Colorado and Oregon. They will be administered by commissions already experienced with employment and other civil rights laws.

Thus experimentation proceeds in one or another of our 50 "laboratories." Also in 1959 Ohio and California enacted enforceable fair employment practices laws, the 15th and 16th since 1945. (Illinois is now the exception, among major industrial states, to the trend.)

Unity Amid Diversity

Representing all parts of the U.S. network of intergroup relations agencies, we remind ourselves and all citizens who support this work that unity in diversity must be practiced among us most of all. Each of us should recognize and understand the "other" group problems which are not one's own immediate specialty. No "balkanization" of awareness and sympathy should divide concerned Americans.

Therefore our concern touches many sorts of people: the Spanish-speaking folk from Puerto Rico, facing a mixed welcome in the urban Northeast (as did most of our ancestors before them); migrants from Mexico to Southwest farms and cities; rural Negroes northbound to industrial cities; the Ozark and Appalachian migrants, hungry in the hills, lost in the big town; the American Indian, whose condition on the reservation and whose relocation to our cities equally merit re-examination; the migratory farm laborers, of varied ethnic origin, who have no voting address or lobbyist; and finally the refugees and immigrants from Europe, who sometimes mistake the bigot's view for that of America itself.

All these are objects of our concern, not merely the victims of the more widely recognized discriminations. Nor do we forget such situational victims as: the "unprejudiced discriminator" who feels pressured to acquiesce in practices of inequality; the majority member who potential for accepting diverse people is stunted by his one-group environment; the minority member marked by equivalent ghetto limitations of acquaintance, plus real discrimination.

We think of the innumerable decent, kindly families, now experiencing neighborhood-change ordeals, who could accept new neighbors, if somehow the panic factors of change were controlled. Equally we feel for the incoming minority families, whose efforts to better themselves in the American way have evoked hostility, not praise. All these problems of people are the unfinished business of democracy.

Major Concerns of 1959 - '60

The question of political candidates' religious affiliations, raised in some 1958 state elections, has become prominent in the preliminaries to the 1960 presidential nominations. The news media and opinion polls reflect a mounting discussion and debate which will test our pluralistic unity. We hold it salutary to examine differences, rationally. The asset-liability balance of this open debate will depend upon the manner in which it is conducted. Intergroup relations workers will share with religious spokesmen and other leaders a difficult responsibility: to encourage a fair debate which avoids irresponsible assertions, name-calling and impugning of motives; to conduct a dialogue with constant regard for the public interest.

The process of defining the relations of government and religion, especially in edication, continued this year in the courts and public forums. This challenges the attention of agencies beyond those immediately involved. We all have a duty to support in this area the rule of fair debate mentioned above.

While progress in race relations continued in 1959, tensions and blocks were visible at certain points in American life. Causal factors included: the carryover of southern tensions into other regions; population movements; unmet housing needs; the minority's impatience where basic rights were still withheld; the majority's fear of the seeming swiftness of change; and so on. Part of these anxieties evidenced the progress made in recent years, for they reflected individuals' anxious adjustment to new status relationships.

To intergroup and community leaders, such blocks and tensions are a challenge to contrive additional -- and frank -- interchanges between group spokesmen. Not all impediments to communication are in the South.

Relevant here is the so-called "race and crime problem." Many of us have long been stating the realistic factors, in stressing needed job opportunity, decent housing, and more education for and motivation of minority youth. Now, when "minority crime" is headlined widely, we are surprised and disturbed to see so much of the nation's news network failing professionally to interpret what the raw facts mean.

We honor those men, services and publications which present a balanced and perceptive account. We know the difficulties of reporting events which can trigger emotions. But the fact remains that 1959 has been marked by an increase of group-labelling in crime news and in "community problems" reporting, including juvenile delinquency stories. Local incidents which were left to the local press two years ago are being picked up by wire services; the distorting effect, if not the intent, is to convince many citizens that a racial crime wave has broken out. It is a public disservice at this time to depart from the premise that crime is personal; or, where group membership is a factor in social problems, to inflame without informing citizens of the causes. The excellent but occasional interpretations to be found in all news media illustrate what should be the standards of reporting.

Conferences are needed, from the local to national level, to bring news executives into touch with community leaders, intergroup workers and minority spokesmen; to get past the stage of protest and retort, and into true consultation. This approach is urgently needed.

Police-citizen frictions have marred the year in a number of cities. Experience suggests three remedies: (1) Human relations training has been tried and tested by many police departments (aided by intergroup agencies), so that any city can borrow what is working elsewhere. (2) The same is true of complaint procedures, which must not only be fair but appear so. (3) Most vital is the promotion and maintenance of "conference" relations involving police, minority, civic and intergroup leaders.

Finally, we join many leaders and observers in recognizing as a major problem -- or cluster of problems -- the whole state of our larger cities and metropolitan areas. In its myraid elements it is a technical, an economic and a political conundrum. But it is no less a problem of human relationships. How can the metropolitan area be shaped in all its parts to meet the needs of people?

The problem elements are familiar: exodus of upper and middle-income families to the suburbs, leaving lower-income families, usually swelled by non-white in-migrants; efforts to rebuild streets and slums for traffic and blight control; consequent relocation efforts encountering segregated housing patterns, causing overcrowding and still more "white flight" from the city; overtaxing of educational and social services; juvenile delinquency; city budget crises; a confusion of demands upon political leaders; a growing, felt conflict of interest between different parts of the metropolitan population.

Truly the American ideal of "E Pluribus Unum," of unity amid diversity, is being tested today in our cities and suburbs.

We intergroup workers of the nation have no package of answers. But we do suggest some general principles of approach: (1) The planner will fail if he does not keep contact with, and get the reactions of the people his plans affect. (2) During implementation there must be two-way communication. (3) The news media and public officials must continually attempt to interpret the often unpopular but inescapable fact of interdependence, of give and take, to all population elements. (4) Finally, every technique and effort must reflect the foundation values of our nation -- a balance of rights and responsibilities, equal treatment and opportunity for all, respect for differences, and a moral obligation to consider our neighbor's needs.

We discern in 1959 some heartening signs, amid the visible frictions, that more citizens are rethinking the American creed in terms of the many problems we have sketched here.

What all men share, all men will cherish and defend.

Dear John:

This is a double-barreled letter; one barrel of which is to ask you to serve as Chairman of NAIRO's Annual Conference Program Committee. It seems to me that this is entirely logical since we plan the 1960 Conference around the two consultations and the papers which come from it. Since you are the chairman of the special committee representing both the Resources and Planning Committee and the Commission on Nature, Scope and Theory for these consultations, it would seem that you will be the person best qualified to chair the Program Planning Committee. I recognize how busy you are, but I also recognize that you would have considerable help available to you among the NAIRO membership in the nation's capitol. As you probably know, Virginia Coffey is Chairman of the Arrangements Committee for the annual meeting. Please give this your most serious consideration. I think it is highly important to the success of our next annual conference.

The second barrel is loaded and contains a blast. In terms of the proposed consultation in conjunction with the AJC, it seems to me that we are missing a real boat. Let me explain. We are dealing with such problems as the future of the Negro in American life and have no one out of the South, where more than half of the Negro population still resides. I would suggest - more than this - strongly urge that we consider someone like John Hope or Herman Long in this area. In the future of interreligious relations, perhaps nothing more significant is being done than the job of the National Council of Churches in the South in the area of the desegregation controversy. In that sad region, the deep concerns of religiously motivated people are being translated into constructive action. I believe that Will Campbell, for instance, could do a significant job of forecasting future developments in this area. I believe this to be very significant to our field.

I don't mean this to sound chauvinistic or provincial - it is not; but I recall only too well that time and again as I wandered about the South at a time when I was Regional Chairman for NAIRO, I was told that it was thought of as the Northern Association of Intergroup Relations Officials. I believe that the inclusion of more professionals out of the South would help dispel this thought.

All good regards.

Cordially yours,

Frederick B. Routh

1959 NAIRO Program Committee

I. INTRODUCTION

The theme of this year's conference is: "Intergroup Relations - The Decade Ahead". The goal envisioned by your Program Committee was that of examining the problems and needs, the potentialities and resources, available to our field in light of expected social, economic, cultural and political change in the decade ahead. For many weeks, time and effort have gone into the exacting job of defining "what we have in mind" when we talk of economic, political and socio-cultural change in the decade ahead. These reflections have been exciting and fascinating, and there has been a great tendency for the committee to get carried away with speculation on things to come. While we recognized that discussions of this nature are in themselves thought provoking and stimulating, they are not conclusive.

We have also endeavored to keep in mind the unique possibilities afforded us by our presence in Puerto Rico, to view the problem of discrimination in its world-wide perspective. Here too, since this represents a departure of NAIRO from the traditional and the conventional, we leaned over backwards not to over-emphasize this aspect of our deliberations. Faced with an added "out of the ordinary feature" — a four day meet, we have made every effort to provide ample business sessions, adequate time for Commission and Departmental meetings, committee sessions, recreation and socializing, plus a chance to see first-hand, Puerto Rico's "Operation Bootstrap".

As you will likely note, the most difficult task facing the Program Committee was that of taking all these fine ingredients and mixing them up in such a way as to get the very best kind of balance, continuity and smoothness of control. Final selection of speakers rests with the Board, but we have respectfully suggested some individuals in whom we have confidence that they will do justice to the subject matter.

One final word or two: last year a very successful feature of the Conference was the "clinic". We have scheduled several of these informative sessions again. They will deal with a number and variety of subject matters which should attract the interest of our members and help make more rewarding their junket to Puerto Rico. As for our departmental meetings and Commission sessions, we have attached a list of suggested items for discussion as derived from the weeks of discussions pursued by your Program Committee.

II. DEFINITIONS

A. Business Meetings — These are meetings attended by the full membership for the discussion and transaction of NAIRO's organizational business. Three such meetings have been slated.

B. General Sessions — These, too, are attended by the full membership for the discussion of topics which are of general interest to the profession. Four of these sessions have been slated, three of which will be luncheon sessions at which a fee for meals will be charged. This will not be over-taxing on delegates because the Governor's Banquet and the Mayor's Reception are without charge.

C. Concurrent Sessions — These are meetings of either Departments or Commissions, so labelled because, since treatment is given to problems directly concerning particular segments of the profession, all the Departments or Commissions meet simultaneously. Concurrent sessions are of two types: to discuss in detail particular topics first discussed generally by the full membership at a General Session; and to discuss other items of Departmental or Commission business. In either case, the Department or Commission itself arranges for the manner of presentation and discussion. Two concurrent meetings of Departments and Commissions have been scheduled. One of the two meetings will be reserved for a topic of their own choosing.

D. Clinics — These represent a new attempt to formalize something the members have, over the years, considered of great importance because they offer an opportunity for those with questions to get together with those who may shed light on them. Clinics at last year's Conference proved to be very successful and attendance at them was excellent. Ten concurrent clinics have been scheduled: five on Wednesday of the Conference and five on Thursday. Slating this number of clinics will afford us the opportunity of utilizing as many members of NAIRO with talent as possible. The attached sheet will give a breakdown of the suggested topics for these clinics.

III. SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

There is appended hereto a timetable of the conference, as recommended by the Committee. In connection with Sections I and II above, it will be seen that:

A. Three business meetings have been arranged. One session has been slated for Tuesday morning, another for Wednesday morning, and a final one for Friday morning. These meetings should afford adequate time for the transaction of all business and also, if need be, to anticipate and cope with any emergency situations.

B. Four general sessions have been scheduled — lunch on Tuesday; lunch on Wednesday; morning on Thursday, and lunch on Friday.

The first has been structured so as to relate specifically to subsequent concurrent sessions of Commissions and Departments. This session will be devoted to a searching analysis of the expected socio-cultural, political and economic changes in the decade ahead, and how these changes will relate to the field of intergroup relations.

The second session is designed to focus our attention on the world-wide aspect of the problem of discrimination.

The third session is provided in order that we might undertake a more thorough analysis of the practicality and applicability of the Dodson's, "Creative Role of Conflict," thesis, to actual situations confronted by private and public agencies.

The fourth and final session is structured in such a manner as to give persons of stature in allied disciplines and related fields of professional activity the opportunity to discuss NAIRO, the field of intergroup relations as they see it from afar, and how their fields of interest and that of NAIRO's might better complement one another.

C. The Mayor of San Juan will entertain delegates at a reception at the Mayor's residence on Tuesday evening. Governor Luis Munoz Marin will entertain delegates at a banquet in the Governor's residence on the evening of Thursday, October 15th. This banquet will take the place of the traditional "President's Reception" and it will also afford Governor Marin the opportunity to discuss Puerto Rico's "Operation Bootstrap." Wednesday evening, October 14th, has been reserved for a swimming party at the Hotel San Juan Intercontinental. This party is optional for delegates. Many persons may prefer to make the round of some of the outstanding night spots, while others may want to do both.

D. As for tours: Friday afternoon has been reserved for tours of the Island, University sites, historic landmarks, etc. Details with respect to this item will be dependent upon the local Committee on Arrangements.

IV. TOPICS AND SPEAKERS

A. It would appear that the respective Commissions and Departments are charged with responsibility for programming their own concurrent meetings even when these are geared to a presentation made at a general session. It is hoped that these Commissions and Departments will utilize as much NAIRO talent as possible.

B. It would seem to be the Board's responsibility, therefore, to select topics and speakers for the general sessions and the committee's responsibility to make appropriate recommendations. Listed below are the proposed general sessions, together with one or more suggested topics and speakers.

1) Tuesday Lunch Topic: "The Decade Ahead" — a searching analysis of expected economic, political and socio-cultural changes in the decade ahead and how these developments will relate to the field of inter-group relations.

Speaker: DAVID REISMAN

or ALDOUS HUXLEY and/or REUEL DENNEY

2) Wednesday Lunch Topic: "Discrimination a World Wide Problem." The world has made tremendous progress along technical and scientific lines. It has made relatively little significant progress in matters of human relations. Human relations' problems are no longer local, sectional, or even national. They are world-wide in scope. The speaker is expected to bring new insight into the importance of the international dimension of the problem, especially in light of the existing cold war.

Speaker: AMBASSADOR JOHN CABOT LODGE

or DR. RALPH J. BUNCHE

3) Thursday Morning Topic: "Role of the Agency in Conflict Situations; Its Responsibility — Its Opportunity." NAIRO has had Dan Dodson's initial presentation on this challenging new concept. Last year we were presented with an over-long panel on practical application. We now appear ready for a more searching analysis of its practicality and applicability to actual situations confronted by private and public agencies.

Possible Discussants: Arnold Forster, National Civil Rights Director, Anti-Defamation League

Dr. Dan W. Dodson, Director,
Human Relations Center and Community Studies
New York University

4) Friday Lunch Topic: "Intergroup Relations, The Allied Disciplines and Related Fields of Professional Activities." There has been far too little communication and cooperation between workers in the field of intergroup relations, the allied disciplines of sociology, anthropology, socio-psychology, and related fields of professional activities like social welfare services. What do these other disciplines and fields of professional activities think of NAIRO? Are there grounds for effective communication and cooperation between NAIRO and members of these allied disciplines, and field of related professional activities? A panel of experts will look into this matter.

Suggested Panel: (1) Head of the National Association of Social Workers
(2) Dr. Lyman Bryson, Columbia University
(3) Dr. Goodwin Watson, Columbia University

ONE FINAL WORD.

A bibliography will be provided delegates in advance with appropriate reading materials, and notations as to where said materials may be obtained. Commission chairmen and Department heads will be sent selective reading materials in order that they may more adequately prepare for attendance at this important conference.

Recorders will be provided for all General Sessions, Business Sessions, meetings of Commissions, and meetings of Departments.

SUGGESTED CLINICS

(1) Topic: "How can we establish and maintain integrated communities without adopting a quota plan?"
Possible discussants: Morton Grodzins, Frank Horne, Saul Alinsky, Stanley Lowell

(2) Topic: "How do we go about defining what areas of intergroup relations should be publicly supported and which areas should be left to the private or voluntary agency?"
Possible discussants: George Schermer, Robert Williams

(3) Topic: "How can our present exchange programs be better utilized, improved upon, and how can NAIRO be related more adequately to these efforts?"
Possible discussants: Louis T. Olom, Staff Director, U.S. Advisory Committee on Information

(4) Topic: "How can we structure our various scholarship programs and services so that they do not become devisive in terms of race and class distinction, and thus harmful to our democratic process?"
Discussant: Dr. Annabel Carey Prescott

(5) Topic: "How can intergroup relations agencies differentiate methods and techniques appropriate to urban as distinct from those appropriate to suburban situations?"

(6) Topic: "What can we expect by way of trends (conflicts, overlapping, etc.), in jurisdiction and programming of public intergroup relations agencies at the state and local level?"

(7) Topic: "How can private intergroup relations agencies attract more Foundation funds?"
Possible discussants: Robert Sargent Shriver Jr., President, Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., Foundation — Vernon Eagle, Executive Director, The New World Foundation — David Freeman, Rockefeller Brothers Fund

(8) Topic: "How can public and private agencies work to offset increased religious conflict stemming from the Supreme Court decisions and the approaching 1960 presidential campaign?"

(9) Topic: "How can de facto segregation in public schools be eliminated?"

(10) Topic: "What are the effects of color prejudice on the adjustment of the Puerto Rican in-migrant in the States and what can be done about it?"
Possible discussants: Rev. Joseph P. Fitzpatrick, S.J. — Mrs. Matilde Perez Desylvia

APPENDIX NUMBER TWO

SUGGESTED AREAS OF CONCERN FOR COMMISSIONS AND DEPARTMENTS

Departments

Departments may want to confine their inquiry to the area of expected political change.

Dr. Scammon's speech at the closing session of last year's Annual NAIRO meeting would be a good reference for this section. Basically, what we should be examining is the role of agencies and professionals in view of the expected changes in the decade ahead. In the area of political change we have some rather good bench-marks: Our questions should be aimed at what this means in terms of the total society; what it means for minority groups, and what tentative suggestions we have for developing creative, flexible programs that will be effective in increasing the equal participation of all people in decision making, in shared responsibility, and in the benefits which come from a growing democratic society.

In the area of political change, the other area of inquiry should be aimed at how we, as professionals, can assist the electorate and public officeholders in establishing a national policy which demands the recognition of the equal dignity and worth of each of our people as citizens of the United States and children of God.

Commissions

Commission on Housing, Manpower, Nature, Scope & Theory, Research Services, may best confine their inquiry to the area of expected economic change.

We are in the midst of a rapidly expanding economy, and all indications point to a vastly increased gross national product in the decade ahead. It has been said that we are now an Affluent Society and that failure to realize and recognize this is leading us down the path to self-destruction. Big Labor and Big Business are playing an increasing role in decision making of national policy. How can the intergroup relations agencies and professionals help both these powerful groups become more sensitive to intergroup relations considerations? For instance, do we professionals believe that national policy should be aimed at the creation of a national FEPC or even broader agency USCAD governing employment, housing, public facilities, education, etc., etc.?

The decade won't be without its ups and downs. Does experience in the recent recession indicate that the old adage, "The first to be fired and the last to be hired," has any validity? If so, what can we do about it for future recessions?

What does automation mean for working people? Will it displace large numbers of workers? If so, how can we help prevent an unfair share of lay-offs for minority group workers?

Another basic area of consideration is the changing farm economy and the mass migration of people off the farms and into the city. Should we be concerned about keeping people "down on the farm?" What can we do to help prepare those who leave the farm for city living and non-agricultural employment?

What can we expect in the decade ahead by way of an advancing economic status for our major minority groups, and how will this relate to our work?

What about our problem of housing minority group members in the North? What fresh new solutions can we advance?

Will the trend toward suburbia, strip cities, standard metropolitan areas and the like, make the so-called city public and/or private intergroup relations agency, a thing of the past?

Will the decade ahead find intergroup relations agencies turning increased, if not major, attention to the problems of the aged?

It has been said that, in the real contemporary world, the population problem has not been solved. On the contrary, it is becoming more grave and more formidable with every passing year. How will this population explosion relate to our work in the decade ahead?

Which will be the minority groups of the next decade, and by what symbols will we identify them?

Some intergroup relations professionals have contended for some time that socio-economic class distinction can be, and often is, the proper concern of intergroup relations agencies and professionals. General attacks on labor or general attacks on management are no more acceptable in a democratic society than attacks on minority groups. One of the very basic questions which faces this nation is the extent to which social mobility is possible. There are indications that American society is becoming more class-rigid; that the children of workers shall be workers, the children of professionals shall be professionals, and the children of the managerial elite shall be leaders. At the same time, we recognize that, through the development of a caste system based on race, nationality or religion, we have limited the ability of some to move into middle class status. The question which faces the intergroup relations agencies and professionals is how to remove the artificial barriers which keep people frozen in their assigned class. We should also seek to find who does the assigning.

Is it true that what we need is an overall strategy for integration, as well as a set of principles and good intentions? When do we start to formulate such an overall strategy?

How can we more adequately prepare minority group youth to meet the manpower needs of the decade ahead? Are there any "new" ideas we can advance along these lines?

* * * * *

Commission on Education, Interreligious Relations, Other Civil Rights, Nature, Scope & Theory, Research Services, may best confine their inquiry to the area of expected socio-cultural change.

We have not had a major presentation in this area at a NAIRO Annual Meeting. What will change in this area mean in terms of the roles of agencies and professionals?

Granting that interfaith tensions will be with us for a long time, what basic work can be done in laying out ground rules for social conflict at the community level?

What will the medium of public communication be like in the decade ahead and how can we relate this to our field? Will the things cited in Huxley's "Brave New World Revisited," come to pass, and how can we prevent these tools of mass manipulation from falling into the wrong hands?

Will the decade ahead find NAIRO with an office on the moon? Can we expect to find at least an "international NAIRO," and, if so, how can we move to make such a thing a reality?

What developments in the field of education can we expect in the decade ahead? What about matters of curriculum, integration, Negro teacher placement, role of degree, etc.?

What will be the effect, if any, of a prolonged cold war on the decade ahead as it relates to our field? Can intergroup professionals do anything to stimulate and promote a more intensive cultural exchange program?

What effect will increase leisure time activity have on intergroup relations problems in the decade ahead? How can we prepare now to cope with these additional problems?

How important will religion be in the decade ahead in determining and/or directing the behavior of individuals, and how will this relate to the field of intergroup relations?

To: NAIRO Members

From: Joseph B. Robison, Chairman,
Resolutions Committee

The attached draft of the 1960 Statement of Concerns and Commitments is sent to you for consideration and suggestions prior to the Conference in November. It is based in large part on communications received from a number of NAIRO members, to whom I take this opportunity to express my thanks. Please note:

1. The Statement will have to reflect the final election results as well as the treatment of the religious question and civil rights issues during the campaign. Since that must wait until after November 8, I have indicated in brackets in the enclosed draft the points at which such material will probably be inserted.

2. The draft is being circulated now to obtain your suggestions so that a revised draft can be prepared for circulation at the beginning of the Conference. Please let me have the benefit of your thinking as soon as possible. Most important, try to make your suggestions in the form of actual language to be used in the Statement.

3. Please send your suggestions to me at the American Jewish Congress, 15 East 84th Street, New York 28, N. Y. As soon as possible. No deadline -- but anything that comes later than November 9 won't help much.

NAIRO 1960 STATEMENT OF CONCERNS AND COMMITMENTS

This conference of the members of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, held in Cincinnati in November 1960, follows immediately upon a presidential election that again demonstrated to the world the continuing vitality of the democratic process in the United States. We have every reason to believe that the newly-elected government will continue to lead the fight for freedom in the world and will press vigorously for the attainment of full equality for all Americans and the amelioration of intergroup differences.

/Brief reference to religious issue in the election to be inserted./

This conference takes place in a time of world crisis, a crisis in which the raw fact of race threatens to take over the center of the arena. /Description of current scene to be inserted. Will presumably cover Africa, summit talks and the threat of nuclear warfare./

CIVIL RIGHTS DEVELOPMENTS

The Statement of Concerns and Commitments adopted by the 13th NAIRO Conference last year reviewed the major obstacles to equality and outlined the principal points of concern for the immediate future on the part of intergroup workers. In almost all respects the tasks there outlined remain before us. Without repeating the details of that Statement, we shall here stress the most important developments of the past twelve months and their implications for the future.

The most striking development of 1960 was the upsurge of mass protest activity against inequality manifested in the "sit-in" demonstrations against lunch counter segregation in Southern cities. The facts have been well publicized -- the use of picketing, the occupation of space in lunch counters, restaurants and public libraries, the nationwide wave of support expressed through picket lines in other parts of the country, the mobilization of legal and illegal, even violent, opposition and, most important, the wide measure of success that the movement has already achieved. The "impossible" has become fact in more than thirty cities from Virginia to Texas. The whites and Negroes who are now eating together in public places in those cities are proof that the rate of progress in race relations can be greatly increased by effectively organized protest.

Some aspects of the sit-in demonstrations raise moral and legal issues that have not yet been fully resolved. The members of NAIRO, however, have no doubt as to the validity of the basic aims of the demonstrations -- the vigorous expression of personal determination that the indignities of inequality shall be ended.

We welcome this exercise of the constitutional right to assemble and to petition for redress of grievances. If the number of demonstrators continues to grow, the weapon of mass activity could drastically change the nature of the struggle for equality and bring it to rapid success.

The increased vigor of civil rights forces was undoubtedly responsible for the sweeping nature of the civil rights pledges in the Democratic and Republican Party platforms of 1960. While party pledges do not always mean party action, particularly on civil rights, the civil rights planks clearly reflect growing voter sentiment for equality. In 1956, neither party found it politically advantageous to express approval of the 1954 decisions of the Supreme Court condemning racial segregation. In 1960, both did.

The strength of the opposition to racism was also recognized by both candidates during the campaign. [To be done, particularly as to successful candidate.]

Realism compels us to recognize that, despite this support, only a very small advance was made by Congress in 1960. No more than a few of the recommendations made by the Civil Rights Commission established under the 1957 Civil Rights Act have been put into effect. The Civil Rights Act enacted this year is extremely limited. Far more sweeping legislation will be needed to redeem the pledges just made by both parties. As persons directly concerned with intergroup relations, we know that a greater mobilization of forces will be needed to bring those promises to fulfillment.

Much remains to be done even in the vital area of the franchise. Despite provisions in the 1957 and 1960 Civil Rights Acts, denial of the vote because of race is still widespread. It is generally accepted that the two Acts had little appreciable effect on who was allowed to vote in the election just concluded.

In the area of public school segregation also, there is imperative need for new approaches and greater mobilization of forces. The rate of progress in the last three years has been alarmingly slow. There is no sign of a major breakthrough.

Outside the South, where segregation exists in public schools because of discrimination in housing rather than official state policy, intergroup workers have continued their efforts to find ways of reducing the damage done by this evil to our nation's children. More broadly, they have been concerned with other forms of inequality of educational opportunity based on religion, ethnic background, economic class and place of residence, particularly at the higher educational levels.

Gratifying progress continued to be made in many parts of the country against discrimination in employment, public accommodations and other areas of our daily lives. Enactment of fair employment laws in Delaware and Baltimore, was an encouraging development in the border area.

In the more difficult and more important area of housing, significant gains were made, particularly under the anti-discrimination laws now in effect in a number of states and cities. It is particularly encouraging that the Supreme Court of New Jersey upheld the application of that state's anti-discrimination law to the 16,000-home Levittown development and that the owners of that project accepted the decision and began to sell homes to Negroes. However, housing continues to be the major concern of civil rights groups outside the South. It is still unfortunately true that the great bulk of the housing market is segregated, that the federal government continues to support segregated housing and that none of the recommendations of the Civil Rights Commission on this subject have been implemented.

Controversies over the relationship between government and religion reveal fundamental differences among religious groups that continue to claim the attention of intergroup workers. Experience shows that the American people are prepared to recognize and accept the right to differ on this issue and to assert unpopular minority views.

/Discussion of religious issues in election to be inserted./

The 1960 Census documented a development that has had a profound effect on intergroup relations -- the changes in the nature of urban populations brought about by migration of new groups into the cities and the movement of the earlier city elements into the suburbs. The strikingly rapid change in the racial makeup of city populations that these movements cause requires constant readjustment in our treatment of intergroup problems. It becomes ever more clear that those problems cannot be solved independently of the transportation, police, tax and other difficulties that face most of the metropolitan areas in which the majority of Americans now live.

Touching both problems is the matter of relationships between metropolitan police forces and the groups with which they deal. NAIRO has long actively supported programs on this subject. A recent favorable development has been the establishment by a number of cities of civilian boards independent of the police department to review police practices.

THE CHALLENGE TO THE INTERGROUP WORKER

The years since the founding of NAIRO have seen a steady broadening in the range of our concerns and in the techniques that are used in fulfilling our responsibilities. That trend continues today. In the years ahead, we will need to extend our use of every possible discipline -- sociology, psychology, mass communication, the arts and the law. We will need to create greater public support for intergroup work -- to build an understanding that such work must be as much a part of the fabric of our government as the agencies for public health, police protection, education, and public works. We will seek to increase the role and responsibility of the intergroup worker in the agencies established for promoting housing, education and other public benefits.

It will also be necessary to continue to strive to reduce friction among religious groups, while recognizing that they may differ strongly on matters of deep concern to them. Nothing in the philosophy of our democratic society requires suppression of those differences. It requires only that they be allowed full freedom of expression. We therefore welcome the airing of differences concerning the place of religion in our society. We are confident that we have ample resources to deal with any tensions that may result from that development.

Perhaps the greatest challenge to the intergroup worker in the immediate months ahead will be to work with the mass protest movement symbolized by the sit-ins. That movement is certain to cause changes in the methods and techniques used to achieve equality. While old procedures will not be abandoned, new methods will demand more attention and expenditure of funds and energy. It will also be necessary to give consideration to the application of the nonviolent protest technique to problems of bias outside the South.

A special feature of the sit-in type of activity is that it cannot occur until the situation is ripe for it and that, when the situation is ripe, it frequently occurs spontaneously. Civil rights leaders must therefore be alert to sense the climate so that they can help when and where they are most needed. Recent events show only too well the need of applying the skills and experience of intergroup workers to the tensions that are likely to develop out of these situations. All citizens have an interest in preventing these expressions of protest from leading to outbreaks of violence.

In this connection, special attention should be given to the work of bi-racial committees through which communications among diverse elements in the community can be maintained. Such committees have worked very effectively in a number of cities during the past year. We believe they are an appropriate and effective way of dealing with intergroup tensions. We therefore urge much wider use of this technique.

The sit-in development is only one aspect of the fact that the continuation of the most extreme forms of segregation and discrimination in the South is a matter of vital national concern. All parts of the country have a stake in speeding up the present slow pace of improvement in the South. We fully realize that there is far too much discrimination in the North to permit any sense of complacency. We believe, however, that the existence of extreme forms of discrimination in any part of the country breeds an atmosphere of evil that spills over into the rest of the land. Thus, reduction of discrimination in any one section of the nation advances the anti-bias struggle in every other section.

Ultimately, this principle will have to be extended to international as well as national affairs. The philosophies, techniques and resources of the intergroup relations field should be applied to our dealings with other countries, particularly in the effort we must make to help them cope with the acutely dangerous interracial tensions now erupting in so many parts of the world.

Equality is a goal that must be sought everywhere by elimination of inequality everywhere.

Dear Dan:

Not having heard from you to the contrary, I'm assuming you will make the NAIRO session the evening of the 15th.

We have merged with Will Campbell's Commission session on the religious issue in the campaign; this means only that he'll present Arthur Lazell on that subject. The rest of us will focus on what the next administration can and ought to do about civil rights in the South. If you feel moved to add anything on the religious issue, that too will be welcome. Each panelist will speak for about 15 minutes, after which there will be discussion.

If by any unwelcome chance you're not going to be able to make it, let me know right away. Otherwise, I'll look forward to seeing you next week.

Dear Herman:

This is just to confirm our recent conversation in Atlanta, when you agreed to serve as panelist at the NAIRO session of the Commission on Other Civil Rights, the evening of November 15.

As you may have noticed, we have merged with Will Campbell's Commission which is to deal with the religious issue in the campaign, mainly in the South.

Our focus will still be on the civil rights responsibilities of the next administration. But if you have any observations to make on the religious issue, they will be welcome. Each panelist will have 15 - 20 minutes.

I'm delighted that you've consented to serve on the panel, and I'm looking forward as always to seeing you again.

NEWS from Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc.

November 5, 1960

NEW ORLEANS Nov.5--Rudolph Peters, young unemployed musician, and Walter Rogers, age 60, a union construction worker, were freed from criminal charges here Nov.3 when the district attorney's office dropped the case.

Peters, a Negro, and Rogers, white, a pile-driver fireman, had been charged with "criminal mischief, criminal trespass, disturbing the peace" at a Woolworth lunch counter. Conviction on all three charges could mean $1200 plus a year and 10 months in jail.

Assistant District Att'y A.I.Kleinfeldt told Judge Thomas Brahney that the state will not prosecute either defendant "since both Mr. Peters and Mr.Rogers have stated they had no criminal intent."

Police who arrested Peters and Rogers had seen Peters sitting at the counter and Rogers standing beside him, chatting. They asked Rogers, "Were you encouraging him?" Rogers said "No." He revealed afterward that he thought Peters had won his sitdown. "A man who's just won a sitdown single-handed don't need encouragement," he said. "He needs congratulations."

Rogers acted as his own attorney, stating that construction jobs are too scarce nowadays to cover attorney's fee.

On the same day, in another section of Criminal Court, Judge J. Bernard Cocke took under advisement a motion to quash criminal charges against four youths--three Negro and one white--who sat down at McCrory's lunch counter. The white youth, Sydney L. Goldfinch, 21, a Tulane University student, is charged with "criminal anarchy." Conviction could mean 10 years in prison.

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETING OF THE ASSOCIATION

15 October 1960

TO: Members of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials
FROM: Virginia Coffey, Secretary

The Annual Meeting of the Association will be held this year at the Netherland Hilton Hotel, Cincinnati, Ohio. It will begin at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday morning, November 15, and end at 2:30 p.m. on Friday afternoon, November 18.

As required by the Association By-Laws (Article XVI), I submit to you the following proposed amendments, which will be voted upon at the Annual Meeting. One would establish a standing Legal Committee and grant ex officio Board membership to its chairman. The other would enlarge the maximum number of Board members to permit ex officio service by the Legal Committee Chairman and the Membership Committee chairman. (The latter was granted ex officio Board membership in an amendment adopted at the 1959 meeting, but, through an oversight, the maximum Board membership was not increased correspondingly.)

Proposed by Frederick B. Routh

In Article IX, Section 1, insert as sub-section:

"d. A Legal Committee, which shall advise the Board of Directors (and Executive Secretary, if any) on legal matters relating to the Association. The Chairman of this Committee and its members shall be appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Board. The Chairman shall be designated as Legal Counsel and, if not otherwise a member of the Board, shall serve ex officio during his term in office."

In Article VII, Section 1, change the first sentence to read:

"1. The affairs of the Association shall be managed by a Board of Directors which shall consist of not more than thirty-four (34) members, and not less than eighteen (18). . . ."

Conference Bulletin #1

F O U R T E E N T H A N N U A L C O N F E R E N C E

National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials

Netherland Hilton Hotel, Cincinnati, Ohio

July 8, 1960

To: NAIRO Members

From: Conference Chairman, Virginia Coffey

Subject: Annual NAIRO Conference

Theme: Looking Ahead in Intergroup Relations: The World, The Nation, The Community

Time: November 15-18, 1960

This is the first bulletin to inform you of the forthcoming conference of NAIRO. This particular bulletin will give only a broad picture of conference plans to date. Later bulletins will provide the details of program content, speakers and consultants.

Remember -- this is a four day conference. The success of its program will depend on you.

Our 1960 Conference will climax a 10-months reassessment of the "goals, directions and priorities" in intergroup relations in the 1960s. Begun at the January "Big Think" sessions of some of our leaders, this process has continued among members in the various regions. And now that the Spring Journal of Intergroup Relations has given us all the papers of the January session, each one of us can be a part of the mind-stretching preparation for November.

Building upon the reassessment, our Program Committee will offer you at Cincinnati such topics as "The Changing Status of Racial Groups", "The Changing Status of Religious Groups", "The Changing Nature, Scope and Theory of Intergroup Relations", "The Changing City".

Your hosts, members of the Cincinnati Interagency Council, are doing everything possible to provide you with Cincinnati's customary hospitality.

CONFERENCE DATA

Headquarters -- from now until November 11 conference headquarters is the Mayor's Friendly Relations Committee, Room 105 City Hall, Cincinnati 2, Ohio. Inquiries about the conference can be sent to this address.

Registration -- registration in advance will be handled by the Ohio Civil Rights Commission, 814 Schmidt Bldg. (detailed information will be supplied later).

Hotel Reservations -- the conference hotel is the Netherland Hilton hotel. Advance reservation cards will be mailed you in Bulletin #2. Early reservations are encouraged.

Conference Opening and Closing -- the conference opens at 9:00 A.M. on Tuesday, November 15, with registration beginning at 8:00 A.M. Conference closes at 4:00 P.M. on Friday.

Transportation - We are centrally located; half the nation's population can reach Cincinnati overnight, and our city is served by twenty-one divisions of eight main trunk line railroads, and by major airways, which facilitates connections with rail or air routes. The hotel rates meet the present price level and organizations repeatedly return to Cincinnati for successful meetings.

During our usually mild winters, good highways make travel by automobile an attractive possibility for agency staffs. Reduced traveling expenses induce greater attendance.

FOURTEENTH ANNUAL CONFERENCE
Hotel Netherland Hilton - Cincinnati, Ohio
November 15-18, 1960

Theme: "Looking Ahead in Intergroup Relations:
The World, The Nation, The Community"

This Second Epistle to NAIRO members from Virginia Coffey, Conference Chairman, brings you: I. Registration and reservation directions, and II. a summary and schedule of the conference program.

I-A Registration. This includes something new: a $5 registration fee set by the Board for all conferees (except students: $2).

The Conference Package entitles you to three luncheons, the Banquet and the President's Reception, for $19. $5 plus $19 equals $24.

Advance Registration will save you time and wear later. Just fill out the enclosed registration card, enclose payment for the $5 fee, and $19 for the Package if you wish to pay both now, and mail to: Robert Coates, Registration Chairman, c/o Ohio Civil Rights Commission, 814 Schmidt Building, Cincinnati 2, Ohio. (Note: Draw checks to "NAIRO Conference." P.S.: Do not include NAIRO dues checks. Pay these at Conference, or N. Y. office.

B Hotel Reservations - Fill out the enclosed card immediately and mail direct to the Netherland Hilton. This is important. Additional cards may be secured from NAIRO pre-conference headquarters, 105 City Hall, Cincinnati 2, Ohio.

C Exhibits - Mail all materials for exhibits directly to to Netherland Hilton c/o Robert Kelly, Sales Manager, and clearly mark NAIRO CONFERENCE. You will be responsible for arranging your own display and also for dismantling the tables and return shipping.

II-A PROGRAM - The purpose of the 1960 Conference is to climax NAIRO's year-long reassessment of intergroup relations goals, directions and priorities, by translating the broad world and national view into community implications and next steps. This will be done by:

REPORT OF 1960 CONFERENCE PROGRAM COMMITTEE

This year's Conference Program Committee consists of the following: David Danzig, Chairman; Daniel S. Anthony (Mayor's Commission on Group Relations), George Beebe (Institute for International Order), Max Birnbaum (American Jewish Committee), Irving Goldaber (Commission on Intergroup Relations), George Grier (New York State Commission Against Discrimination), Saal Lesser (Encampment for Citizenship), Ted Leskes (ex-officio, American Jewish Committee), John A. Morsell (NAACP), Dr. H. H. Giles (New York University), Joseph Robison (Commission on Law and Social Action), Edward Rutledge (State Commission Against Discrimination), John Lassoe (ex-officio, NAIRO), Joseph Monserrat (Puerto Rico Labor Department), Mrs. Virginia Coffey (Mayor's Friendly Relations Committee), George W. Culberson (Commission on Human Relations), Lloyd Davis, John G. Feild (Office of U.S. Senator Philip Hart), Miss Virginia Huebner (Fair Employment Practices Division), Howard W. McKinney (Community Relations Commission), Philip G. Sadler (represented by Alfred E. Smith, PHA, New York City), Virgil Border (NCCJ), Frederick B. Routh (Michigan Fair Employment Practices Commission).

The Committee met twice, during April and May, to consider Conference theme, session topics, schedule, procedure, and - quite tentatively - speakers. It submits the following recommendations for approval by the Board of Directors:

THEME: Looking Ahead in Intergroup Relations: The World, The Nation, The Community.

SESSIONS:

General:	5 (3 luncheons, 1 morning, 1 banquet)
Business:	3 (mornings)
Commissions:	1 (all meeting concurrently)
Departments:	1 (all meeting concurrently)
Committees:	1 (all meeting concurrently)
Discussions:	3 (following 3 General Sessions)
Special:	1 (President's Reception)
Free Time:	(2 dinner hours, 1 lunch period, miscellaneous evening time)
Clinics:	For reasons of schedule and procedure, the Committee recommends that clinics not be planned this year. As we viewed theme, topics, and schedule, something had to be dropped from our normal pattern, and clinics seemed to be the most expendable this year.

SCHEDULE: Attached. Note that discussion sessions after the Tuesday and Wednesday luncheons, and early Thursday afternoon, are to concern themselves with the topic of the preceding general session. Conference delegates will be divided arbitrarily into groups of approximately 40 each at these times.

TOPICS:

Commissions: Topic of their own choice, as planned by them.

Departments: Topic of their own choice, as planned by them.

Committees: Topic of their own choice, as planned by them.

Business: As planned by the Board of Directors. We ask, however, that time be allowed -- before discussion of the Statement of Concern on Friday morning -- for a summary report (one speaker) on consensus achieved by discussion groups on the preceding days.

Banquet: As planned by Cincinnati committee.

General and Discussion:

(1) Tuesday luncheon, followed by discussion groups (2:30 - 5:00): The Changing Status of Racial Groups.

(2) Wednesday luncheon, followed by discussion groups (2:30 - 5:00): The Changing Status of Religious Groups.

(3) Thursday morning (10:30 - 12:30), followed by afternoon discussion groups (2:00 - 4:00): The Changing Nature, Scope and Theory of Intergroup Relations.

(4) Friday luncheon (closing session): The Changing City.

* * * * *

(1) The Changing Status of Racial Groups

Rapid social change has profoundly affected the status of the African and Asian native abroad, and of the Negro American at home. We see in both instances a newly-developing self-image and a growing consciousness of racial community. At home and abroad, the people affected most directly by racist practices, by discrimination and segregation, are seizing the initiative and providing new leadership in the effort to effect the change too long delayed. Here the actual resemblance may end, but the common factors and the mutual impact cannot be ignored.

A look abroad at emerging new nations, restive colonies, and subjugated majorities, at a nationalism that borders often on racial chauvinism, provides us with context for a continuing examination of the changing status of the Negro in American Life, taking up where Johnson, Long and Rose* left off, we move on to suggest the implications of these nationwide trends for intergroup relations in the local community, both Northern and Southern; to project future directions and dimensions; and to suggest where new goals and priorities might be considered. The discussion groups will pursue this in their sessions.

* Robert B. Johnson, Herman Long, Arnold Rose: papers in the Spring Issue, JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS.

(2) The Changing Status of Religious Groups

Intercreedal competition, shifting interreligious relationships, and growing religious group consciousness are not limited to the United States. While the American analysis by Pfeffer and Spiegel* cannot be superimposed bodily on foreign situations, a look at religious conflict and interreligious developments in other parts of the world provides context for better understanding of trends at home. Whether it be the competition between Christianity and Islam for the allegiance of the new African, the marriage of nationalism and religion in the Middle East, or the signs of a shift from traditional religious-political identification in Europe, the meaning for interreligious relations at home is important if not always obvious.

With a world view and nationwide trends in mind, we turn to the impact on the local community. There is need to examine the impact of religion on suburbia (and vice versa), shifting religious power ratios in the urban centers, increasing tension over church-state questions, factors working for and against the development of a true religious pluralism, the interaction of race and religion in intergroup relations, and perhaps the implications of a political campaign just concluded (i.e. by November 15-18). In all cases we seek to identify new directions and dimensions, and to suggest to the intergroup relations worker his future role and function in interreligious affairs. Discussion groups will pursue this inquiry.

* Leo Pfeffer, Hans Spiegel: papers in the Spring Issue, JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS.

(3) The Changing Nature, Scope & Theory of Intergroup Relations

As its problems change, assuming new dimensions or developing new challenges, the field of intergroup relations will find itself faced with a redefinition of the nature of its practice, with an inevitable restructuring of the respective roles and responsibilities of public and private agencies, and with an even more urgent need to agree on essential knowledge and techniques, devising then the means of transmitting them to new workers. Context for this discussion may be found in the development of knowledge, techniques, role and responsibility in other professions; the papers of Kidneigh, Watson, and Feild* offer guidance here.

Problems of changing nature, scope and theory of intergroup relations were set down -- in historical perspective -- by Feild, Aronson, Livermore, Allen, and Schermer. We need to move now to a more careful analysis of these in terms of our specific agency and professional functions, to assess their impact on our work within the community, and to develop ways in which we may move toward consensus. Some of the questions will be relatively specific, and we note such examples as the shift in public agency role from persuasive to coercive, problems in complaint processing under fair housing and fair employment laws, the roles of public and private agencies in neighborhood intergroup relations efforts, and the content and structure of intergroup relations training programs. Others are more abstract, and might include such areas as public acceptance, public and private agency financing, and our relationship to peripheral disciplines. The discussion sessions will pursue these topics in search of consensus.

* John Kidneigh, Goodwin Watson, John G. Feild: papers at closing session, 1959 NAIRO Conference. CONFERENCE PROCEEDINGS.

 John G. Feild, Arnold Aronson, Charles Livermore, Alexander J. Allen, George Schermer: papers in the Spring Issue, JOURNAL OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS.

(4) The Changing City

"It is a tragic fact that as our cities grow and their needs multiply, our capacity for dealing with them seems to diminish."* The face of the modern city is changing rapidly, and problems noted gravely by the farsighted ten years ago are today omnipresent reality. The two-class city of the very rich and the very poor is fast becoming fact as diminishing urban middle income housing and the upward-mobile lure of the suburbs combine to draw the not-so-rich and not-so-poor from the center city. Unprecedented migration finds the already-disadvantaged coming to the city to live in housing that long ago earned its slum designation. Automation acts to reduce the demand for the new migrants' unskilled or semi-skilled labor at the same time that a combination of factors works to move all but the most marginal industries out of the city. The departure of middle class taxpayers and tax-paying factories strikes at the city's tax base, already strained to support health, welfare and other essential services that are fast proving inadequate to meet growing demands. Not the least of these essential services is the school system, and the knowing warn that education is "in crisis."

The implications for intergroup relations are clear. Taeuber and Senior have noted the trends in migration and the shifting racial and ethnic composition of the urban centers. Others have commented on the persistent effects of residential segregation, the impact of changing labor force needs on those prevented by discrimination from acquiring demanded skills, and the political implications of racial and ethnic, center city "islands." We seek here to draw together all the facts that bear on "The Changing City," to suggest the areas that need our special attention and study during the year ahead -- looking toward the 1961 NAIRO Annual Conference, for which we recommend this subject as the theme.

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETING OF THE ASSOCIATION

October 6, 1961

TO: Members of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials
FROM: Virginia Coffey, Secretary

The Annual Meeting of the Association will be held this year at the Hotel Whitcomb, San Francisco, California. It will begin at 10 a.m. on Tuesday morning, November 7, and conclude at 2:30 p.m. on Friday afternoon, November 10.

As required by Article XVI of the By-Laws, I submit to you the following proposed amendments to the By-Laws, which will be voted on at the Annual Meeting.

PROPOSED BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS (as instructed by the 1960 Annual Meeting):

In Article IX, Section 1, substitute the following for present paragraph a:

"a. A Nominating Committee of not more than thirteen persons, the duties of which shall be to nominate for presentation at the annual meeting or by mail ballot a slate of officers and directors, with at least one candidate for each vacancy. From a slate composed of three nominees from each region (Article VII, Sect. 1), proposed by the members thereof through the Regional Chairman, the membership shall elect a number of persons equal to the number of regions, and these, together with up to three persons appointed by the President (with the advice and consent of the Board), shall constitute the Nominating Committee for the year following."

(This Amendment would remove from the Nominating Committee the responsibility for nominating its successors each year. Regional nominations -- three from each region, proposed by the members thereof -- would constitute the slate. The method of election remains unchanged, although the President would be empowered to appoint up to three additional members.

PROPOSED BY THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE:

In Article VII, change Section 1 to read as follows:

"1. The affairs of the Association shall be managed by a Board of Directors which shall consist of not more than thirty-six (36) nor less than eighteen (18) members. Eighteen Directors shall be elected by the membership, in accordance with the provisions of Article X; in addition, any of the six (6) officers who is not otherwise a member of the Board shall serve ex officio during his term in office. Further, the President, with the advice and consent of the Board, shall appoint not more than ten (10) Regional Chairmen of the Association, from not more than ten (10) separate geographic regions of the country to be defined by the Board. These Regional Chairmen shall serve for terms of one year or until their successors are chosen, and shall serve ex officio on the Board of Directors, if not already members of the Board."

(This Amendment would increase from eight to not more than ten the number of geographic regions within which Regional Chairmen could be named. Definition of such regions and confirmation of the Regional Chairmen would be the responsibility of the Board. Maximum membership of the Board would be increased to thirty-six, to permit appointment of up to two Regional Chairmen.)

October 6, 1961

Dear Member:

At its recent meeting in New York, NAIRO's Executive Committee voted to submit to the membership -- by mail referendum -- the following proposal:

> "The annual dues of Active and Associate members shall be increased to twenty ($20) dollars, effective January 1, 1962."

This recommendation is based on the inescapable fact noted in my earlier assessment letter: income from membership dues, publications sales, and current activities provides two-thirds of our $33,000 budget, but leaves us with an $11,000 annual deficit that we are finding increasingly difficult to meet from other sources. With our present membership of 800, this amounts to $13.75 per member, and we are asking the membership to agree to assume less than half of this, in the form of a $5 increase in annual dues.

Although this referendum follows hard on the heels of the $5 assessment, I would like to underscore the difference between the two: the assessment was a painful but necessary step to meet a pressing emergency, while this proposal represents a calculated effort to prevent future financial crises. The Executive Committee feels quite simply that we must narrow the gap between "normal" income and minimum operating expenses even more rapidly than we have over the past four years (during which period it has been reduced from 80% to 33%).

Although it would have been quite proper to submit this question to a vote at the Annual Meeting in San Francisco, with careful and full discussion of the financial implications for NAIRO, the Executive Committee was keenly aware of the large number of members who would thus have been deprived of a voice and vote. The mail referendum seemed to offer a better opportunity for member participation in the decision.

Sincerely yours,

George W. Culberson

On Charter Flights

Charter flight possibilities have been investigated by the San Francisco Conference Committee, but do not look promising. The cheapest type of plane flown directly from New York City to San Francisco (the airlines have discouraged a multi-stop flight because of problems of pro-rating costs) would cost $99.59 per person with 80 passengers, $106.09 with 75 aboard. The fare on a regularly scheduled non-jet coach flight is only $118.36 each way, and this drops to $97.90 under excursion rates (round-trip ticket with a minimum stay of thirteen days on the Coast). In any event, it seems unlikely that 75 or 80 riders can be recruited in an area close enough to New York to make the modest saving worthwhile. THOSE FIRMLY INTEREST IN AT LEAST THE FLIGHT WEST (MONDAY, NOVEMBER 6 -- NEW YORK CITY TO SAN FRANCISCO -- FARE BETWEEN $99 and $127) SHOULD WRITE TO THE NATIONAL OFFICE AT ONCE, JUST IN CASE....

TO: NAIRO Board of Directors

FROM: Frederick B. Routh, Executive Director

SUBJECT: Urgency of training needs in the field and Executive Committee Action to meet these needs

The Executive Committee, acting upon mandate of the May meeting of the Board of Directors that immediate steps be taken in cooperation with the Institute of Human Relations (American Jewish Committee) to develop proposals for dealing with the serious training needs of the field, has taken some urgent action with which it sincerely hopes that you will concur. Recognizing that public and private intergroup relations agencies are seriously pressed for trained personnel and that as the nation's professional organization in this field, NAIRO is determined to meet this challenge, the Executive Committee approached our incumbent president, Lloyd Davis, and asked that he head up a national training project designed to meet urgent needs in the field. Though realizing the financial and other sacrifices involved, Lloyd has agreed to leave his position at the Post Office Department and to resign as President of NAIRO in order to get this important effort off the ground.

The Executive Committee has not resolved matters of financial remuneration with Lloyd at this time, and has pointedly suggested that he may have to work closely with members of the Committee in finding financial resources for any proposed projects and approaches. I think, however, that you will share with the members of the Executive Committee our deep gratitude to Lloyd Davis for his willingness to give up so much in order to help further advance our cause and the field. It is our earnest hope that by the time of our September Board meeting that specific and detailled plans (including Foundation proposals) will have been developed and that they can be put before you at that time. Finally, enclosed you will find a press release which we have developed in cooperation with the Post Office Department and which will be released in the next twenty-four hours.

TO BE RELEASED IMMEDIATELY

Lloyd Davis was named director of a national training project to be carried out by the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, it was announced today by Frederick B. Routh, the association's executive director.

Mr. Routh, in making the announcement, said: "Mr. Davis has been asked by NAIRO to launch immediately the association's longstanding plans for meeting urgent training needs in the field of intergroup relations.

"Public and private intergroup agencies are seriously pressed for trained personnel, and as the nation's professional organization in this field, NAIRO is determined to meet this challenge."

Mr. Davis has resigned his position as president of NAIRO and has left his position with the Post Office Department, where he served as executive assistant to the Assistant Postmaster General for the Bureau of Personnel. In accepting the directorship of the national training project to be carried out by the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials, Davis expressed sincere regrets at leaving the Postal Service and cited his association with the Department as one of the most exciting and eventful periods in his life.

Davis said that his decision to personally help NAIRO move quickly and speedily along the new frontiers in intergroup relations training was necessitated by the urgency for qualified workers in the field. He predicted that NAIRO would meet this new training challenge and that in so doing, it would make a further contribution to the national effort, to eliminate prejudice and discrimination, based on race, religion, creed or national origin, from the land.

1 9 6 2 - NAIRO CONFERENCE - WASHINGTON, D. C.

NOVEMBER 28th - DECEMBER 1st

NAIRO'S Annual Conference serves many purposes -- both professional and personal. The formal sessions with their speeches and panel presentations cover much of the new developments and thinking in the field. Here, top experts and practitioners relate theory to practice and practice to experience. The business sessions give an opportunity to all members to participate in the affairs of the Association, to make the decisions which will guide the Board of Directors, the Executive Committee, and the staff during the ensuing year. The President's Reception, the hospitality suite, and other informal sessions give ample opportunity for the members to get to know each other and members of the Board and Association officers and staff on a personal basis.

This year's Conference promises to be an unusually exciting one for it is being held in the Nation's Capital at a time when a new administration is moving into full stride in expanding efforts within the Federal Establishment to secure equal opportunity for all and full citizenship for each American. Many government officials are on the program, many others will attend the conference. We expect a record turn-out this year because of the site and theme of the Conference: THE ROLE OF GOVERNMENT IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS: FEDERAL, STATE, AND LOCAL.

At Summer's end, the staff reports to NAIRO's 961 members throughout the nation.

SEPTEMBER BOARD MEETING

NAIRO's Board of Directors met on Saturday and Sunday, September 8 and 9, in New York City. Your Board also met in emergency session on July 21st to consider measures for overcoming NAIRO's pressing financial situation. Highlights of these meetings are reported for your information.

In an effort to streamline expenditures for the remainder of the year, the Board has asked that staff travel and office expenditures be held to a minimum. The Board also directed that funds budgeted for Regional Chairmen's expenses be frozen as of the 15th of September. Due to the current bank balance, it was decided that the position of assistant director should not be continued past the original date of the agreement, November 15, 1962. Thus, after that date, office staff will consist of the director and the office secretary.

The Board approved a recommendation of president DAVIS that NAIRO combine all requests for project funds (this does not include those requests for funds for the general operating budget) in one foundation package. It is felt that a number of NAIRO projects on training, housing, urban redevelopment and urban life, might be put into one proposal since several foundations have indicated an interest in such a "package", which would cover a variety of programs in various areas. DAVIS has asked the following members to serve on a committee to develop it: EDWARD RUTLEDGE (State Commission for Human Rights, New York City), JOHN G. FEILD (President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity, Washington), ELMER PAUL BROCK (U.S. Post Office Department, Washington), HAROLD FLEMING (Potomac Institute, Washington), IRVING GOLDABER (Commission on Human Rights, New York City), DAVID DANZIG (American Jewish Committee, New York City), and JOHN V.P. LASSOE (National Council of the Episcopal Church, New York City).

Resolutions and Statement of Concern: The Board made a distinction between the Association's statement of Public Policy and those resolutions that may be forthcoming from the Annual Conference. GEORGE CULBERSON's Public Policy Committee is responsible for drawing up a broad policy statement which will serve as the "Credo" for the association. Conference resolutions are naturally more topical and relate to our immediate concerns on specific issues. JOHN MORSELL (N.A.A.C.P., New York) was appointed as chairman of this year's Resolutions Committee and the Board decided that all resolutions to be considered at the 1962 Washington Conference must be in the hands of the Committee by November 10th.

At the September meeting, the Board considered a suggested change in the By-laws which proposed that the terms of office be extended from one to two years for all officers. The Board did not agree to recommend this particular resolution to the membership due to its wording and lack of clarity but did, however, agree with the suggestion of two year terms and has asked the President to appoint a committee to draft such a proposed change.

NAIRO RECEIVES NEW GRANT — In late July, NAIRO received its second foundation grant for general operating expenses. This one for $1,000 was from The DIVISION FUND.

HOUSING CONFERENCE — NAIRO's Commission on Housing and Urban Life, EDWARD RUTLEDGE, chairman, is completing program plans for the October Princeton Conference. We are told that thirty-eight of the forty national leaders in the housing industry invited to participate in the four-day conference, have accepted. Advance indications (acceptances, program, enthusiasm, and determination to succeed) are that this conference will be a most successful beginning to NAIRO's Housing Program.

MEMBERS RECEIVE AWARDS — JOHN YOSHINO (president's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity, Washington, D.C.) was recently awarded a Silver Medal as one of five top finalists in the Japanese American Citizens League's national search for "Nisei of the Bienium". Yoshino was presented the award at ceremonies in Seattle, Washington, and was cited specifically for his contributions in the field of intergroup relations.

ELMER PAUL BROCK, HOLLIS BACH, JAMES J. LA PENTA, JR., and SAMUEL J. SIMMONS (all of the Bureau of Personnel, Post Office Department, Washington, D.C.) were given the department's Meritorious Service Award, the second highest honor in postal service. In making the presentations, Postmaster General Day noted, "their outstanding contributions" in developing policies, procedures and training programs which executed President Kennedy's Executive Order recognizing employee unions in the federal government.

TASK FORCE II — Task Force II on the role and function of county and municipal intergroup agencies has gotten underway under the chairmanship of GEORGE SCHERMER (Commission on Human Relations, Philadelphia). Task Force personnel has been selected, fact-finding assignments made, and work papers have been circulated. The group held its first meeting in Philadelphia early in September. A second preliminary meeting is planned for Chicago sometime in the near future. The group has decided upon a thorough and comprehensive look at the total problem of urban area which would involve persons outside the field of intergroup relations and concerns other than our own. Their final report will be based on the results of this study and will deal primarily with the role of a local public agency in the light of today's urban problems.

DELINQUENT MEMBERS — Are you one???

Please renew soon!!!

STAFF ACTIVITIES — NAIRO's staff has had a busy summer which has involved trips to Atlanta, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Grand Rapids, Berkeley, San Jose, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle. The Association was represented at the annual meetings of the National Urban League, the National Federation of Catholic College Students, the U.S. National Students Association, and the Southern Inter-Agency Committee. We were also involved in regional and chapter meetings in the Great Lakes Region, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Washington, and Seattle. (Our thanks to FRANK BALDAU and his staff at the Ohio Commission on Civil Rights for representing NAIRO at the meetings of the National Student Association in Columbus).

THE DIRECTOR'S BOX

Welcome back from summer vacations! I hope that each of you has come back recharged with energy and renewed in spirit. My six weeks on the West Coast as director of the Encampment For Citizenship, while not a vacation, did this for me. I came away convinced that this program is one of the most worthwhile and more exciting things being done in education in the United States. It further convinced me that young America has not lost its way but, rather, knows where it is going and has some pretty specific ideas on how to get there.

Having had my way to the West Coast paid by the Encampment, I took advantage of the situation and visited our San Francisco and Los Angeles Chapters and a group of members in Seattle. The West Coast professionals are a lively bunch! I have also attended the meeting of the Southern Interagency Conference in Atlanta, meeting with the Pros from most of the agencies with major programs in the South. I had a chance to interpret NAIRO's new program developments and its concerns. It would seem that the fears, expressed by some when we moved the national offices to Washington that staff would forget those in the field in favor of the intoxicating programs of the federal establishment, were unwarranted!

One last word: this year's Annual Conference promises to be one of the more exciting ones ever planned. You have received the details from the Program Committee. I urge each of you to make every effort to come to this Conference, November 28 - December 1; your efforts will be well rewarded. All the best.

Dear Sir:

As you, undoubtedly, know, the 1963 Conference of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials will be held in Cleveland, Ohio, on November 20-23, at the Pick Carter Hotel.

As chairman of the Committee on Exhibits, I am asking all agencies wishing to display materials at the conference to contact me as soon as possible informing me of the amount of exhibit space desired. This information is needed soon in order to plan and assign such space in advance.

A nominal fee of $10 will be charged for exhibiting space during the Conference. Please make all checks payable to The Cleveland Chapter, NAIRO.

All exhibiting agencies must maintain their own exhibits including assembly and disassembly.

The Pick-Carter management states that exhibits are not to be shipped to the hotel earlier than one day before the Conference begins, and all heavy exhibits must be handled by a carriage company.

Thank you for your prompt attention and response to this letter.

Yours very truly,

Wesley Toles

RALPH S. LOCHER

Dear Friends:

Welcome to Cleveland — a city on the move.

While in Cleveland you will have an opportunity to witness the rebuilding of a city. One of the largest downtown renewal projects in the country is under way in an area known as Erieview, extending along the lake from East 9th to East 17th Streets.

The demolition of numerous old buildings is a spectacular sight in itself. Soon glamorous new skyscrapers and beautiful plazas will be under construction.

Don't fail to visit the construction site of the country's largest convention auditorium, directly across from City Hall on Lakeside Avenue.

When you visit the cultural center at University Circle you will find another great renaissance taking place.

We hope you enjoy your stay in Cleveland and on your next visit you will be able to note tremendous progress in the rebuilding of the city.

Cordially yours,

Ralph S. Locher

Mayor, City of Cleveland

Dear Casey:

I am not really informed enough about the internal workings of NAIRO to have a good independent judgment of the proposal you sent down on September 11 regarding regional boundaries. I read your proposal carefully, and it does seem to me to make sense. I'll depend on the discussion in the meeting to determine my vote, but I do feel highly sympathetic to your proposal.

All best wishes, and I'll see you in New York.

Sincerely yours,

ALL BOARD MEMBERS OF NAIRO

Dear Fellow Board Member:

I am enclosing a proposal on which I would like your opinion now. If it seems to have acceptance I will present it officially at the board meeting following the conference. Your reaction at this time is solicited to assist me in my planning but you certainly retain the right to demur at the later date.

While I am using this letter as a vehicle to identify and extend this proposal, let me also use it to urge you to plan your time at the 1964 Conference so that you will be able to remain afterwards for the initial board meeting of the new administration. We will convene our board meeting at about 4 p.m. on Friday the 9th of October (the time will be officially announced at the conference), work toward a pre-dinner adjournment but certainly plan on finishing our work sometime that evening, thereby eliminating the necessity for a board meeting on Saturday morning as we have sometimes had to do. In fairnesss to your fellow board members I urge you to be present. It is my present plan to present for your consideration a budget which will contain some unusual expenditures.

I look forward to seeing you at the conference.

Sincerely,

Casey

PROPOSAL

I would like to respectfully recommend to the 1964-65 Board of Directors of NAIRO a new definition of Regional boundries. I would like to preface this recommendation with some background information and my interpretation of why certain things have been done by the NAIRO Board.

In January, 1958, the Board adopted the following resolution "the Regional Chairmen are primarily responsible for organizing and stimulating local NAIRO groups (chapters had not then been authorized), for aiding them in their programing, for cordinating their activities, and for reporting on them to the Board. As representatives of the NAIRO Board they are also responsible for interpreting NAIRO policy in their respective regions. Finally, they are responsible for appointing people within their regions to handle membership recruitment and renewals in cooperation with the membership committee." As of November 1960 the by-laws of NAIRO directed that "the President shall appoint 8 Regional Chairmen of the Association, from 8 separate geographic regions of the country, to serve for terms of one year or until their successors are chosen...."

At the annual conference in San Francisco in 1961, the by-laws were changed to read, "the President, with the advice and consent of the Board, shall appoint not more than 10 Regional Chairmen of the Association, from not more than 10 separate geographic regions of the country to be defined by the board. These Regional Chairmen shall serve for one year or until their successors are chosen...." (Underlining mine) At the annual conference in Cleveland in 1963 the by-laws were again changed to provide for membership on the Board of Directors for Chapter Chairman. The provision for the 10 Regional Chairmen to continue to serve was retained. As I remember the Board discussion and interpret the legislative intent of this latest change, it was for the purpose of providing representation and recognization of Chapters on the Board. The original need for Regional Chairmen was somewhat diminished by this added representation which the Chapters were now to have. At that Board meeting there was some discussion of whether there was any need for Regional Chairmen but it was decided that they should be retained.

More than seventy-five per cent of our membership are members of Chapters. These members are represented on the Board by a Chapter Chairman, a Regional Chairman and all elected Board members. Those members who reside outside the areas of Chapters are represented by a Regional Chairman and the other Board members. It has been my observation (though this is a point on which reasonable minds could differ) that in recent years there has been little or no activity by many of the Regional Chairman. I believe there are several reasons for this: The work load is too great; the areas too large; the members for which they are responsibe too numerous; and the function to abstract. I believe that Regional Chairmen can be more effective if they have fewer members to be responsible for and smaller geographic areas to cover. By the same token, I believe that Regional Chairmen should be active workers and not named for the honor that this office might bestow upon them.

My proposal is that no chapters be contained within the Regions (which regions I interpret the by-laws to indicate should be "defined by the Board"); and that the Regions have the following definitions:

SOUTHERN REGION - 12
Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, and Florida.

NORTHEAST REGION - 28
New York (but not New York City), Ontario, and Quebec.

CENTRAL REGION - 21
Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Missouri (but not St. Louis).

NORTH CENTRAL REGION - 28
North Dakota, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Minnesota (but not Minneapolis - St. Paul).

NORTHWEST REGION - 16
Washington, Oregon, British Columbia, and Alberta.

SOUTHWEST REGION - 22
Arizona, New Mexico, and Texas.

MID ATLANTIC REGION - 40
New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland (but not Prince George or Montgomery County).

GREAT LAKES REGION - 25
Indiana, Illinois (but not Chicago), and Ohio (but not Cleveland).

MIDDLE SOUTH REGION - 30
Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, and West Virginia

PENNSYLVANIA REGION - 41
Pennsylvania (but not Philadelphia).

You'll note that the states in which we have no NAIRO members are not included in the list. You will also note that the states of California, Michigan, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Colorado, and Georgia, have all been left out of the regional structure. This is done in an effort to strengthen the chapters in those various states where almost all the membership resides in or near the Chapter city and/or is included in the membership of the Chapter.

This division does provide for a workable load for Regional Chairmen. No Region would have more than 40 members and as soon as the potential chapters are developed in two of these Regions, no Region would have more than 30 members. This may make it appear as though non-chapter members are better represented on the Board than are Chapter members; but if we weigh this against the proposed by-laws change which will make the nominating committee consist primilarily of Chapter Chairmen then this might be considered to be a fair distribution of representation. I think its major argument is simply that it will allow the Regional Chairman to actually get something accomplished in his Region. The other system was just to gargantuan for success.

If the Board approves this regional structure then I will ask each Regional Chairman to immediately name for his Region a membership chairman who will work directly with John McKnight, National Membership Chairman for NAIRO. (The same will be requested of Chapter Chairmen). Regional Chairmen will be expected to attend as many Board meetings as possible and report to the Board in writing in the event that they cannot attend any given meeting. Regional Chairmen will be urged to convene regional conferences. The deletion of chapters from the regional structure will make conferences more difficult but it would seem completely appropriate for any Regional Chairman to invite one or more chapters to join his region in the conduct of such a conference. So long as the National Conference remains in the Fall it is probably the case that Regional Conferences would continue to be scheduled for Spring. Chapters may also convene conferences and invite members of nearby regions to attend.

The Regional Chairman would be expected to maintain contacts in his region either by personal visits to various communities or by correspondence depending on the situation in which he finds himself. He should work to create new chapters (and thus lighten his own work load). I would urge each regional chairman to maintain his own newsletter which should be shared with officers and other Regional Chairmen as well as his constituency.

The Regional Chairmen is responsible for keeping NAIRO, its headquarters office, and its officers informed of significant happenings within his region which may effect NAIRO, its members, or the field.

To recapitulate: Membership recruitment, chapter development, membership contact, are the major responsibilities of the Regional Chairman. Whatever techniques he can devise to accomplish these ends should be done and shared with other Regional Chairmen in an informative way so that each can do a better job than any one might now be doing.

Independent of the proposal to affect the regional boundries, I am going to ask the Board to appropriate $50 to each Region and to each Chapter, this money to be used at the descretion of the Regional and Chapter Chairmen for the promotion of NAIRO.

Dear NAIRO Member:

Enclosed is a rough outline of the program for NAIRO's 18th Annual Conference, October 7-9, 1964, at the Park Sheraton Hotel in New York City; a registration form and a room reservation card. We hope you will want to attend and that you will find the Conference to be interesting (if not exciting) and personally worthwhile.

The date of the Conference is a month earlier than usual to allow you to visit the World's Fair (after the Conference is over on Friday afternoon!) We have packed a lot of work in the 2 3/4 days, so please be prepared to spend your time in earnest debate and learning so that you may enjoy the rest of your stay with a clear conscience! We feel that this 18th NAIRO Conference will be memorable and most worthwhile and urge you to send in your room reservation card as quickly as possible. As you probably know, hotel rooms are at a premium because of the World's Fair.

Send the registration card to Paul Klein, registration chairman, so that he may help you to avoid a long wait and so that we might have an indication of attendance. We urge you also to take the Conference Package. The Hotel has been most generous and we can promise you good food and accommodations at a reasonable rate for New York.

We will have World's Fair tickets for you at about ½ the normal price and are negotiating for a special package for NAIRO members who plan to stay over and attend the Fair.

If you have any questions, please let us hear from you.

Cordially,

Saal D. Lesser

URGENT NOTICE

The Eighteenth Annual NAIRO Conference is now less than two months away. The dates are October 7-8-9 !!! Its theme this year is:

THE DEEPENING CRISIS IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS

It promises to be a most productive conference, held at a most critical time -- following a summer of crisis and violence and only a month prior to a Presidential Election which will profoundly affect intergroup relations in the United States.

YOUR NAIRO BOARD URGES YOU TO ATTEND

Because the World's Fair is being held in New York and will still be in session during the conference, hotel rooms are at a premium. The hotel has set aside a block of rooms for NAIRO Conference participants.

HOTEL RESERVATIONS MUST BE IN BY SEPTEMBER 4th.

Send your reservations directly to the hotel; if you have received a hotel reservation card, please use it; if you have not, do not wait for one but write to the hotel and tell them you are coming to the NAIRO Conference. List your date of arrival, your date of departure at the hotel. List the type of accommodation you want: Singles, $12.00; double, $16.00; twin, $16.00.

Dear Leslie:

In connection with the forthcoming NAIRO Conference which ~~will~~ take place in New York at the Park Sheraton Hotel, October 7-9, 1964, you will be pleased to know I am sure, ~~that the~~ Board of Directors of NAIRO has requested that you participate in a plenary session panel, tentatively titled, "Politics and Civil Rights, North and South". The panel will be moderated by Richard Heffner, nationally known for his work in educational television and most recently as a professor of Communications and Public Policy at Rutgers.

You are asked therefore, to make a 10-minute presentation on the following subject: "Implementation in the South". We are asking Arnold Aronson to speak on "The Civil Rights act of 1964" and John Morsell to speak on "Implementation in the Rest of the Nation". They will also speak 10 minutes each. There will then be discussion from the floor from tables of 10, members of which will present questions. The entire program will last from 9 A.M. to noon, Thursday, October 8.

We recognize how difficult it is to keep your remarks to within a 10-minute time span but since I am giving you sufficient advance notice it should be possible for you to write out what you are going to say so that you will be prepared to make a statement of significance within the alloted time. It is expected that during the give and take of discussion you will have ample opportunity to expand on your major premises and ideas. It would be hoped that your 10-minute paper could be printed in an appropriate journal.

I will look forward to hearing from you in the affirmative and anticipate that the Thursday panel will be the highlight of the Conference. May I please hear from you at your earliest convenience?

Most cordially,

Saal

Presidential Address delivered by Frederick B. Routh at the 1960 NAIRO Annual Conference,
Cincinnati, Ohio

NOT UNDER MAN -- BUT UNDER GOD AND LAW*

Outside my office window, in Detroit's old courthouse square, stands a monument on which is inscribed, "Erected by the People of Michigan in honor of the Martyrs who fell and the Heroes who fought in defense of Liberty and Union - 1861-1865". We are now met in Cincinnati nearly a full century after the close of the war which that statue commemorates. Today we can, in honesty, say that the indissolvability of the Union is all but universally accepted. If however we could speak to the fallen who have fought in freedom's cause at any time in the long history of man, tragically would we have to report that victory is not yet won.

The struggle for the rights of man is endless. Each past generation has witnessed, and each future generation may expect assaults on the dignity of the individual and onslaughts against liberty and justice. The annals of history are littered with the tragic record of the distance between man's intended state and his reality. In the past, and even now man has been relegated to second-class status, denied his liberty, or deprived of his life because those in power and authority disagreed with his religious beliefs -- or lack of them, his racial identification, his economic theories, his national allegiance, or his politics. Those who do not believe in and those who do not trust the democratic process have been given aid and comfort by the indifferent.

But there is an audible drum-beat in the halls of history that cannot be stilled; men who value freedom march to its cadence. Today, the drummer increases the tempo and no one in the ranks of the free dare stand at parade rest. Those who have experienced freedom must give guidance to those who seek after it, lest they lose their way; marching to an undetermined destination is all but futile.

In some parts of the world, the expulsion of colonialism and the growth of nationalism are the pale substitutes for the development of respect for individual liberty and social justice. Lest it be forgotten, let the record show that despotic leadership, be it foreign-imposed or be it home-grown, is tyranny; and tyranny is the killer of freedom and justice. Fully convinced that a just and free society is the highest goal attainable by man on this earth, let us turn all our efforts in that direction and march with purpose to the beat of the drummer.

Democracy is the most demanding form of Society:

- Demanding in that it calls for a balancing of individual liberty and community responsibility;

- Demanding in that it calls for a citizenry which participates in decision making;

- Demanding in that it calls for an almost universal commitment to the sanctity of the individual;

- Demanding in that it calls for a high degree of self-discipline.

Democracy is also the most rewarding form of Society:

- Rewarding in that it gives recognition to the dignity of each individual;

- Rewarding in that it lends encouragement to each citizen to develop fully his potentialities;

- Rewarding in that it grants equality of opportunity to each according to his merit;

- Rewarding in that it permits no sanction to bigotry.

Let us direct our efforts to the securing of such a society, recognizing that the peculiar responsibility of the intergroup relations field, in seeking after it - is four fold:

1. To increase the awareness on the part of all citizens, particularly the opinion molders and decision makers, that democracy is indivisible; when the rights of some are denied, the rights of all are jeopardized.

2. To goad the conscience of the nation into realizing that there is yet much to be done before our practices approach our ideals; we must develop workable programs to close the gap.

3. To distinguish between the ordinary conflicts and tensions, which almost inevitably accompany social change, and destructive human conflict; directing the former into creative and constructive experiences, and ameliorating the latter.

4. To assist minority group leadership and membership in partaking, ever more fully, of the benefits and responsibilites of first class citizenship; including those now available but not yet made full use of.

In all our efforts we must make certain that the methods we use are compatible with the goals we seek. We reject the thesis that the end justifies the means for we believe that the well being and the security of the masses rests with the security and well being of the individual, and not the reverse. In seeking this more ideal society we must work with people, not on them nor for them. Working for them is paternalistic, working on them is manipulative; both are repugnant to democratic intergroup relations.

With compassion, with singleness of heart - let us assist those at home and abroad, who thirst after the cup of freedom. By our actions let us proclaim that the days grow short for those who practice group-superiority while mouthing platitudes of liberty; that they are but few for those who practice colonialism while fawning over freedom; that they are numbered for those who practice oppression while crowing of a peoples democracy.

Let us recognize that the rights of man are inherent, that the individual is precious for each is created in God's own image, that those who treat him as less offend against the Laws of God as well as the laws of man. As is written on the Great Facade of the Harvard School of Law, let us affirm that the destiny of man is "Not Under Man But Under God and Law". To those who sit in the darkness of tyranny and to those who shiver in its shadow let us say, bend with ours your efforts and the night will not be long.

WHO ARE THESE "GIANTS OF JUSTICE"?

And here are some early comments on

"GIANTS OF JUSTICE"

"The figures that are treated come alive, both because of the vivid and compelling style of the author and because they are not exhibited as plaster saints but as creatures of flesh and blood with weaknesses as well as elements of strength. Nor are these characters treated as antiquarian figures. The author has not hesitated to draw parallels between the problems his heroes faced and the issues of our day . . . . A superb achievement."

—DR. ROBERT GORDIS, Rabbi, Temple Beth-El of Rockaway Park, N. Y.

"Should fill a great need. I join others in this field in gratitude for giving us information and tools with which to work."

—MRS. THEODORE KROHN, Chairman, National Social Action Committee, National Women's League of the United Synagogue of America

"It was a sentimental journey for me."

—DR. A. L. SACHAR, President, Brandeis University

"Most informative and even inspiring."

—DR. SIDNEY B. HOENIG, Director of Adult Education, Community Service Division, Yeshiva University

"A work of great importance bringing the attention of the Jewish community to the men and women who have singled out the element of justice in Judaism as its cornerstone."

—RABBI ALFRED GOTTSCHALK, Dean, California School, Hebrew Union College – Jewish Institute of Religion

"I cannot contain my enthusiasm . . . it's a stunning educational instrument . . . ."

—RABBI STANLEY R. BRAV, Temple Sholom, Cincinnati

"A good and readable book much needed in this period."

—JUDGE JUSTINE POLIER, New York

"Although this reviewer works with Jewish organizations and rabbis regularly, no single source has ever given me such a 'feel' of the liberal Jewish spirit as this book, nor so much understanding of the organization of the Jewish community . . . a book deserving to be read especially by Christians concerned for putting our Judeo-Christian heritage to work in the modern world."

—REV. CLAIR M. COOK, Executive Director, Religion and Labor Foundation

"A vibrant, authentic contribution to the cause of basic Judaism . . . gives us, who need resource materials, valuable instruction for the implimentation of our teaching."

—RABBI EDWARD E. KLEIN, Stephen Wise Free Synagogue

"Should be in all libraries . . . should become a standard in every home."

—ADOLPH MARKEL, JR., President, Temple Beth Emeth, Wilmington, Del.

"It is more than a fascinating story of stout-hearted, far-seeing leaders. The author had the insight and courage to deal with the great issues in which they were involved and, in a sense, it is also a critique of their times. It may be too much to hope that every Jew in America will read it, but we ought to try. What may be somewhat easier to achieve, but equally as important, is to make sure that it is made available to our many Christian friends."

—IRVING KANE, President CJFWF

"It is a long time since I have enjoyed a volume this much or been so excited by it. The concluding chapter in particular is one of the best analyses of the current synagogue situation I have read in a long time."

—ROLAND B. GITTELSOHN, Rabbi, Temple Israel, Boston

THEY ARE 14 GREAT AMERICAN JEWS who have left their mark upon democratic America in this century — hard-hitting fighters for a better America, for a wider application of justice, for a more humane society.

A varied and colorful group — liberals and conservatives, labor leaders and rabbis, social workers and men of wealth, Zionists and anti-Zionists, religionists and secularists — all have in common an obsession with social justice, a compulsion to speak out, and a basic dependence upon their Jewish heritage.

In GIANTS OF JUSTICE , just published by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, Albert Vorspan presents vivid portraits of these giants and their contributions to social justice. And in so doing he has made available an exciting text for adult education classes, high school departments of religious schools and social action groups. And he has also provided Jewish teachers and everyone interested in the Jewish community with a most informative background as well as a picture of the present status of Jewish social idealism. Here is a provocative and stirring analysis of what the synagogue will have to do to preserve Jewish ethical distinctiveness and prevent it from being swamped by suburbia, conformity to middle-class respectability and materialism.

These are the GIANTS OF JUSTICE you will meet in this book:

1. SIMON WOLF—Court Jew. Unofficial adviser on Jewish affairs to twelve Presidents of the United States from Lincoln to Wilson.
2. HENRIETTA SZOLD—Mother of a People. Greatest Jewess of our time, builder of Hadassah, gentle redeemer of children from the hands of the Nazi oppressors, and symbol of the spirit of modern Israel.
3. STEPHEN WISE—God's Angry Prophet. Rabbi and seer. Fearless fighter in the battle for man's humanity to man. Powerful foe of racism, mccarthyism and corruption.
4. EDWARD ISRAEL—Young Religious New-Dealer. Rebel with many causes. Passionate protagonist of social action. Fighter for prison reform, economic justice, and interreligious teamwork.
5. ALBERT EINSTEIN—Poet of Science. Scientist of the ages. Pacifist, humanist, lover of freedom, and visionary of a brighter tomorrow.
6. SAMUEL MAYERBERG—Crusader for Civic Decency. Successful leader in the fight against the Pendergast machine in Kansas City. Spiritual goad to public morality.
7. HENRY MONSKY—Gambler in Futures. President of B'nai B'rith who broke his health and his heart seeking to unite American Jewry.
8. LOUIS BRANDEIS—From Assimilation to Zion. Dedicated attorney for the American people and first Jew on the U.S. Supreme Court. Leader of American Zionism.
9. HERBERT LEHMAN—Public Servant. Humanitarian, healer of the world's wounds, and spokesman for conscience in the halls of Congress.
10. LILLIAN WALD—Angel of the East Side. Warm-hearted founder of Henry Street Settlement. Path-finding social worker in the jungle of New York's Lower East Side.
11. LOUIS MARSHALL—Last of the Great Shtadlanim. Founder and president of the American Jewish Committee. Champion of civil liberties.
12. HENRY COHEN—The Heart of Texas. Saintly rabbi and rare human being. Beloved servant of his Galveston community and master of the art of compassion for all.
14. DAVID DUBINSKY—Jewish Worker. Dynamic product of the ferment of an immigrant America, labor leader par excellence, and master architect of the ILGWU.
13. ABRAHAM CRONBACH—Voice in the Wilderness. Tender-hearted teacher. Gentle idealist in a world at war with his ideals.

MEMORANDUM May 17, 1965

To: Members & Friends of NAIRO

From: K. B. M. Crooks, Jr.
Secretary, Atlanta Chapter NAIRO

# # #

At the last monthly meeting of the Atlanta Chapter, NAIRO, the secretary was asked to provide a copy of the attached document to each friend and member of NAIRO for careful scrutiny so that at our next monthly meeting set for Tuesday, June 15, 1965 at 5:30 p. m., proper consideration can be given to the Chapter's Program Prospects for 1965-66.

Note that the regular day (the 2nd Monday of each month), and the regular hour (12:30 p. m.) have both been changed because of conflicts and what we feel will be a welcome surprise to you.

Kindly familiarize yourself with the attached document and come to the next meeting (our last for 1964-65) prepared to explore meaningful activities in which the chapter can participate in light of the information on the attached.

The meeting place will be announced at a later date.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERGROUP RELATIONS OFFICIALS

ATLANTA CHAPTER

MEMORANDUM TO: NAIRO Members and Friends

FROM: Mrs. Ruby Hurley, Chairman
Atlanta Chapter

RE: June 15th - Meeting
Top Of The Mart

June 3, 1965

We are concerned about our NAIRO Chapter.

The 28 or 30 people who participated in the meeting when Fred Routh was here indicated interest, but somehow or other, the Chapter has not begun to "click"!

We recognize that a part of our problem stems from the fact that many of us who are officers and members are required to travel almost constantly, and that all of us carry a full load on our respective job assignments. However, if each of us accepts a share of responsibility in the building of our Chapter, it should prove beneficial to all of us.

Will you do all that you can to arrange your schedule so that you can join in a "brain-storming" session on Tuesday, June 15? Those who were present at the last meeting voted that this should be the date, leaving our regular meeting day free for the ball fans; that we have a social hour beginning at 5:30; and that we have dinner beginning at 6:30 at the Top Of The Mart.

We hope that we will have a significant number to greet, eat, and meet at this our last meeting until fall.

The approximate cost for dinner will be $6 per person which will include a beverage and desert. Drinks during the social hour are "Dutch Treat". Please fill in the enclosed form and return it to us immediately so that we can get our reservations to the Mart no later than Tuesday.

Dear Mr. Anthony:

The Atlanta Chapter of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials is considered to be the professional association of those individuals who work in professional capacities for, and those who serve on the Boards and Commissions of governmental or private agencies, organizations or institutions in the field of civil rights, civil liberties, intercultural education, community relations and intergroup relations. Our chapter is a part of a national organization that is to these individuals what the American Association of University Professors is to college teachers.

The eight functions of NAIRO as a professional association, are listed in the attached brochure which also identifies some of the major activities to which this organization addresses itself.

In the last emergency meeting of the Atlanta Chapter, your name was submitted along with four other professionals in the Intergroup Relations field to function as a Nominating Committee with some very special responsibilities as follows:

1. To select a Board of nine including top young Atlanta leadership to function as the Board of Directors for the Association Atlanta Chapter.

2. To establish a Past President's Advisory Council to work in concert with the Board.

3. To develop a comprehensive program, with the Past President's Advisory Committee, to which the local chapter should address itself.

4. To elect a slate of officers for the coming year.

5. To function as the Nominating Committee for the coming year and assume responsibilities other than those identified above which would fall under the jurisdiction of a Nominating Committee as established in Robert's Rule of Order.

This extraordinary responsibility has been placed upon your shoulders as a result of the local chapter's careful assessment of its past programs and the obvious need for a significant intergroups relations organization for the City of Atlanta. The garbage worker's strike, several weeks past, and the events that led to the solution of these problems, is a perfect example of a situation which we should have been prepared to address ourselves. That other situations like this will develop in our city is not questioned. That we be prepared to address ourselves to these issues is the concern which our chapter has at this time.

Let me take this opportunity to suggest two alternate dates which might fit into your schedule. The first is Monday, October 7, at 12:30 p.m. The second alternate date would be Monday, October 14, 1968 at 12:30 p.m. We have selected the Conference Room of the Southern Regional Office, National Urban b eague as the meeting place and, as a result of telephone calls, would suggest that first alternate date be considered a priority. Of course, the local chapter's business is also a concern which we wish to address ourselves and makes it further imperative that the meeting take place as soon as possible. If October 7 is not convenient for your schedule, I hope that you will feel free to give me a call at your earliest convenience.

Yours very truly,

K. B. M. Crooks, Jr.

Dear Ken:

Many thinks for your invitation to attend the meeting of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials in Atlanta, Georgia, on February 14 and 15, 1969. I plan to be present for both sessions. I will take care of my own reservations.

I would appreciate it very much if you would send me further details about the meeting.

Dear Ken:

As a Chapter Chairman, you have already received a copy of the minutes of the organizational meeting of the NAIRO National Commission, together with a covering memorandum. As was noted in the memo, the schedule for the proposed hearings appears on pages three and four of the minutes (an extra copy is attached).

If the hearings are to be meaningful, we will need the cooperation of the Chapter Chairmen in the cities in which they are to be held. I write to ask your assistance in making successful the hearing scheduled in your city on February 13.

The hearings are invitational and not open to the press or public -- a press conference may be held at the close of the hearing if the Commission Chairman and the local Chapter Chairman agree that it is appropriate.

We are planning two sessions for each hearing: 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. If you deem it advisable we could add an evening session from 7:30 to 10:00 to enable participation by those who cannot get off during the work-day. Each witness will be allocated 10-15 minutes; priority will be given to NAIRO members.

We will need a room that will seat 20-25, arranged theater style, with a table seating five in front. Will you please arrange this accommodation for us? It could be at one of the agencies or at a hotel -- we are prepared to pay for the latter.

Two other things: we need someone to take notes -- preferably a professional, rather than a steno, for we want good notes not a verbatim report and, further, we will have a written statement or an outline from each witness. Second, can you please make all this information known to members of your Chapter and to other appropriate professionals in your community.

Many thanks, in advance, for assisting us in this endeavor. We hope that you may sit with the Commission during the hearing in your city and, of course, we would welcome a statement from you.

You may write me at NAIRO's National Office or, should you care to telephone, my number is: 202/755-5567.

Sincerely,

William White, Chairman
NAIRO's National Commission

MEMO

TO : Paul Anthony

FROM : Robert Alexander Robert

SUBJECT: N. A.I R O Chapter or No

NAIRO, theoretically , is necessary, vital,important and required in the coming months.

Looking at the lay of the land in a practical manner NAIRO will not move from the launching pad unless it receives a transfusion.

The reasons it will not get off the ground are:

1. Individual obsession by member to forego or avoid any additional involvement.

2. The inability , by prospective members, to foresee benefits to be derived from support.

3. Reticence by those who feel they may be used for enhancement of others.

4. Refusal by former active members to face the reality of changing roles, functions and needs.(It was good before)

5. Prospective members are not aware.

THE WAYS TO ADMINISTER THE TRANSFUSION

The revitalizing of an old association are much the same as selling a new one .A suggestion or two:

a) have one man twist arms for the first meeting attendance

b) make a presentation worthy of the potential chapter

c) See the first project through

d) The local chapter will become visible

I suggest as the format for The Atlanta Chapter a dual goal approach

i.e., a) presentation of the clearly defined issue and strong advocacy

b)use of primary responsibility concept and through this forcing that organ to function until the issue is satisfactorily resolved.

Paul , you have my answer . A NAIRO chapter is too important not to have . It appears that some effort will be required on a systematic basis to make it go. Good luck .

MEMORANDUM February 10, 1969

To: Atlanta NAIRO Members

From: Paul Anthony
Executive Director, SRC

Re: National Commission Hearings.

NAIRO has established a National Commission to hold hearings throughout the country to hear members address themselves to the future role of the organization. On Thursday, February 13, representatives of that Commission will be meeting in Atlanta. They will meet in the SRC Conference Room beginning at 9:30 a.m.

This is to extend an invitation to you to sit in during the day on such parts of the hearings as you wish, and to give such testimony as you may wish.

Dear Paul,

I was glad to learn from Clarence Coleman that you and a committee of six met several weeks ago to discuss the details concerning the future of the Atlanta Chapter, NAIRO.

It is my understanding that the committee is expected to meet again before December 31, 1968 to make final decisions in relation to this matter.

As you know, the Atlanta chapter, NAIRO, usually meets on the second Monday afternoon of each month. If possible I would like to plan a special meeting at which we could invite not only present members of our Atlanta chapter but also friends and citizens of this city who have an interest in the general aims and objectives of the organization but have not yet had a chance to participate in its program.

If this meets with your approval and you are able to accomplish the objectives that your committee originally set out to accomplish, I would like to call such a meeting for January 13, 1968 between 3 and 5 P.M. either in the Souther Regional Office, National Urban League or in your conference room at which time the report and recommendations would be heard.

I think it is important that we move rapidly in this direction since I understand that the Atlanta chapter might have an interest in hosting the National NAIRO convention in the not-too-distant future.

If the date of January 13 conflicts with your schedule I hope that you will give me a call at your earliest convenience so that we might select an alternate day during that week that would be more convenient.

Yours very truly,

Dear Ken:

Following our telephone conversation of yesterday, here is an accounting of several meeting of the NAIRO committee which was asked to investigate the possible future of the Atlanta NAIRO Chapter.

After several meetings we decided that our only sensible course of action was to call a general membership meeting to get the members' opinions. Such a meeting was called on February 7. At that time those in attendance agreed that it was very doubtful that a NAIRO chapter could be maintained here in Atlanta. They also agreed, however, that further effort should be made to keep the structure of this effort together, if possible.

Toward that end, it was agreed that we should try to have, periodically, social hours at which people would be invited to get-together. informally. It was understood that if this works we would attempt to build more substance into these meetings.

The group recommended that John Morris, now a permanent member of the SRC staff, accept the presidency with the reponsibility of arranging these get-togethers. He accepted, and SRC agreed to have, and finance, the first one during March.

As we agreed, we are prepared to have that reception here at our office at 5:00 p.m., Friday, March 15. After such communication as you wish to send out goes, I or John will follow it up with a further invitation.

Sincerely,

Paul Anthony
